DESPATE

WINUTES, ANIL CO

NCE,

MARQUESS WEI

G.

DURING HIS ADMILITED TO

01 1

INDI

EDIT

MR MONTGOT RAT

VO1, J,

LONDEN

JOHN MURRAY, ALBERTA FEREET

MDCCCX, , vi

DEDICATION FOR MAJESTY

SIRE.

The deep solicitude which your Majesty has, on all occasions, evinced for the welfare of that important portion of the empire denominated British India, - the countenance and favour bestowed from the throne on those who may have contributed either to acquire or to retain a dominion which. with justice, may be considered the brightest gem in the English diadem .- and the personal regard with which it has pleased your Majesty to honour the nobleman whose administration the following despatches and correspondence fully illustrate, will, I hope, acquit me of any charge of vanity for soliciting the distinguished honour of dedicating the accompanying work to a Sovereign whose comprehensive mind has been long directed to the weal of our transmarine possessions, and which, at an eather period of life, and in an hostile age, he had so nobly endeavoured to preserve and to extend

It must at all times, Sne, be grateful for the Monarch of a free people to contemplate the arduous and heroric efforts of his subjects in a distant country, under an enervating clime, and aimdst an adverse race, struggling to maintain, in all its puissance, the proud pre-eminence of their native land, and Sire, it must be equally grateful for those subjects to know and to feel that, whether their efforts be enowned with success or otherwise, they are certain to receive a protection, encouragement and reward, proportioned to their deserts, which neither faction nor envy can withhold, and the conferring of which forms one of the purest sources of enjoyment of a patriot King

But. Sue, high and great as are the sentiments of lovalty and patriotism which prompted and sustained the efforts of the British Nation, for the acquisition and maintenance of dominion in the East, there are yet higher and hoher feelings connected with this important subject. No lust of power, no ambitious thust, no mercenary thoughts, have led to the conquests which these pages record ,-an unseen, yet ever present, Providence has given to a small island in the western Atlantic supremacy over millions of our fellow creatures in another hemisphere, myriads of brave and intelligent men have been rescued from the ignominious bondage of agree. the clang of aims has changed into the busy hum of industry. the arts of peace have followed in the track of our footsteps. science and literature are every where expanding, and the barbarous rites of fanaticism and superstition are vielding to the mild and humanizing influence of Christianity

Sue, it was the hope of accomplishing these truly great objects that guided the Councils of Anglo-Indian policy, and nerved our gallant countrymen to deeds of unwonted hero-ism, and that Omnipotence which presides over man in his collective, as well as individual capacity, gave fortitude and wisdom to our statesmen, and strength and humanity to our soldier;

To place on urefutable record the noble deeds of Britons, while many are yet living who can attest their accuracy, is the main object of the present work, so that when the imparital historian shall ponder in amazement on the Anglo-Indian territories, he may be enabled to judge with correctness, and to declare with truth, the inotives for our acquisition of these territories, and the means by which they were acquired

Let me also, Sue, be permitted to express a wish that the bright example which these pages hold forth may not be without its effect on the rising generation, that the remembrance of the past may operate as a stimulus to future excitons for the honour and glory of the British crown, for upholding in its integrity this vast and unparalleted maritime empire, and for diffusing the incalculable advantages of order and of peace, of freedom and of happiness, throughout the most distant regions of the earth

With an aident hope that our constitutional monachy, which has been productive of so many and such beneficial results, may long continue in its purity and stiength, and with a sincere prayer, that He who governeth the hearts of kings, and sways the destinies of nations, may vouchasfe to your Majesty a full emjoyment of all the blessings derivable from a conscientious exercise of the exalted power, which your Majesty so mercifully wields,—I have the distinguished honour and gratification to subscube myself,

Sue,

Your Majesty's dutiful subject,

ROBERT MONTGOMERY MARTIN.

INTRODUCTION

THE publication of the official despatches and correspondence of the Marquess Wellesley, during his administration in India, outsinated in the suggestion contained in a letter from Mr Montgomery Martin to his Lordship, of which the following is an extract -

London, 8th Sept 1835 "In preparing the second Edition of my ' History of the British Colonies,' (Vol. 1, Asia,) I have been more strongly than ever impressed with the importance of your Lordship's eventful career, as Governor-General of British India, while regretting that the public are so much in error as to the events of that momentous period Several friends of India have expressed then regret that your Lordship's despatches have never been made public. I am, therefore, desirous of ascertaining whether your Lordship would aid me with copies of your despatches and official correspondence, which, combined with those obtainable from the East India House, Board of Controul, &c., would, I think, form an important portion of the history of the British empire" Lord Wellesley's assent to this proposal is contained in a letter to Mr Martin, of which the following is an extract -

" Fulham, 13th Sept 1835 " It is perfectly true, that the public has received erroneous impressions of the system of policy, which I pursued

in India

" I have neither had leisure not inclination to rectify those enions, although I certainly must agree with you, that it is highly proper to clear such important transactions from misunderstanding. I shall be happy to furnish you with any materials within my reach for this laudable purpose."

The collection of official and other documents in Lord Wellesley's possession relative to India, was ascertained to be very great, and of the highest importance, since it supplies information which could not be obtained, with equal advantage, from any other source

\(\) In order to preserve the spirit of the correspondence, it was deemed preferable to give the documents chronologically rather than according to the events to which they rete! } for by this means the reader is better enabled to judge of the motives which prompted various actions, and the nature of the policy pursued is rendered more apparent than by the perusal of letters written after the completion of the transactions to which they advert, und necessarily receiving some colouring from the success or finduce of the undertaking.

(The work commences with the Governor-General's correspondence from the Cape of Good Hope*, while on his voyage to India, and the first volume terminates with the fall of Seingapatam, thus embracing the origin and conclusion of the war in Mysore †

^{(*} Loid Monington was appointed Governor-General of India on the 4th, and swon in on the 6th, October, 1797, suited from England on the 7th November following, a nived at the Cape of Good Hope in February, 1798, at Fort 5t George on the 26th April, 1799, sailed from thepec on the 9th May, and nived at Fort William on the 17th May, 1798

[†] The Editot has much pleasure in acknowledging the attentions and kind assistance with which he has been favoured by the Eat of Powra, Lord Viscount Melville, the Chairman, Deputy Chairman, and Secretary of the East India Company, N B Edmonstore, Eq. Lucteonat-Coloned Meyrick Shaw, Sin Robert Compbell, Bart, Sir Chailes Fotbes, Bart, the Right Honomable S R Lushington, M P, T Cockburn, Esq., and by several other distinguished individuals, where munes will be more patticulally acknowledged in the subsequent volumes.

As the following documents are connected with almost every part of this volume, * they are here inserted

Liberty

(Proclamation at the Isle of France

Liberté

Egahté

Equality

REPUBLIQUE FRANCAISF, Une & indivisible THE FRENCH REPUBLIC, One and indivisible

PROCLAMATION

PROCLAMATION

Anne Joseph Hyppolit. Malarite, General en Chef, Governeur-general des Isles de France & de la Reumon, & Commandant-general des Etablissements Français, a PEst du Cap de Bonne Esperance

Anne Joseph Hyppolite Malarite, Commander in Chief and Governor-General of the Isles of France and Reumon, and of all the French establishments to the eastward of the Cape of Good Hope \

CHOYENS,

CITIZENS,

Connaissant depuis plusieurs années vote zèle & votre attachment pour les interèts & la gloine de notre Republique, nous sommes tres empressés & nous nous faisons un devou de vous donner connaissance de toutes les propositions que nous fait Tippoo Sultaun, par deux ambassadeurs qu'il nous a déréchés

Having for several years known your zeal and your attachment to the interests, and to the glory of our Republic, we are yery anxious, and we feel-st a dufy to make you acquainted with all the propositions which have been made to us by Tippoo Sultaun, through two ambassadors whom he has despatched to us.

Ce pinuc a écut des lettres particulières à l'Assemblée Colomale a tous les Généraux qui sont employés dans ce gouvernement, & nous a addressé un paquet pour le Ducetone Executif This prince has written particular letters to the Colonial Assembly, to all the generals employed under this government, and has addressed to us a packet for the Executive Directory

1º Il demande à fane une alliance offensive et défensive avec les Fiançais, en proposant d'en-

1 He desires to form an offensive and defensive alliance with the French, and proposes

^{*} See Governor-General's Minute of the 12th August, 1798

tretenir à ses fiais, tant que la gueire durera dans l'Inde, les troupes qu'on pourra lui envoyer 2° Il promet de fommi toutes

les choses necessaires pour faire cette guerre, excepté le Vin & l'Eau de Vie, dont il se trouve absolument dénué

3° Il assure que tous les préparatifs sont faits pour regevou les secours qu'on lui donnera, & qu'à l'aintée des troupes, les Chefs & Officiers trouveront toutes les choses necessaires pour faire une guerre a laquelle les Européens sont peu accoutumés

4º Enfin il n'attend plus que le moment ou les Français viendiont a son secouis, pour déclarer la guerre au Anglais, dechasser de l'Inde

Comme il nous est impossible

de diminue le nombie des soldats des 107c & 108c regimens, & de la gai de soldée du Port de la Friatennté, a cause des secous que nous avons envoyès a nos alhés les Hollandais, nous invitons tous les citoyens de bonne volonté, à se faire inscriue dans leuis municipalités respectives, pour alle seivir sous les diapeaux de Tippoo

Ce prince desne aussi avon des citoyens de couleur, libres, to maintain at his charge, as long as the war shall last in India, the troops which may be sent to him?

2 He promises to furnish every necessary for carrying on the war, wine and brandy excepted, with which he is wholly unprovided

3 He declares that he has made every preparation to receive the succours which may be sent to him, and that on the arirval of the troops, the commanders and officers will find every thing necessary for making a wai, to which Europeans are but little accustomed

(4 In a word he only wuts the moment when the French shall come to his assistance, to declare was against the English, whom he arduitly desires to expel from India)

As it is impossible for us to reduce the number of soldiers of the 107th and 108th regiments, and of the regular gu ard of Port Fraterinté, on account of the succours which we have furnished to our allies the Dutch, we invite the citizens, who may be disposed to enter as volunteers, to entol themselves in their respective municipalities, and to serve under the banners of Toppoo

This prince desires also to be assisted by the free citizens of & nous invitons tous cenx qui voudront aller servir sons ses dispeaux, a se faire aussi inserie

Nous pouvons assure torus les cutoyens qui se feiont inscine, que Tippoo leui feia des trattements avantageux qui seiont faisés vere ses ambassadeus qui seiont de lui souveram, a ce que les Tranças qui autont pris patit dans ses aimées, no puissent jamais y ette itemus quand its voudiont rentier dans leui patrie

coloui, we therefore minte all such who are willing to serve under his flag, to emol themsolves

We can assue all the citizens who shall emol themselves, that Tippoo will allow them an advantageous rate of pay, the terms of which will be fixed with his ambussadors, who will finither engage in the name of their sovereign, that all Frenchmen who shall enter unto his arimes, shall never be detained after they shall have expressed a wish to eithin to their own county.

Done at Port North West.

MALARTIC

the 30th January, 1798

(Signed)

Fartau Port Nord-Ouest, le 10 Pluviost, l'an six de la République Française, une & indivisible

(Signé)

MALARTIC

Lippoo Sultaun to Sir John Shore

Received at Fort William, 26th April, 1798 *

"I have been favoured with your letter, notifying your intention of returning to Europe, and the nomination of Loid Mornington, who is of rank to the office of Governor-General, in whom the same disposition would be manifested with yourself to cultivate and improve the friendship and good understanding subsisting between the two states, and an inviolable adherence to the engagements by which they are con-It is very well, you must impress Lord Mornington with a sense of the friendship and unanimity so firmly subsisting between us, and constantly favour me with letters communicating your health and welfare "

N B—On the 26th of Apial, 1798, (the day on which this letter was recarred at Calcutta) Tippoo Sultain's Ambassadors landed at Mangalore, accompuned by the French force, letted under the above proclamation— The Earl of Monuncton landed at Fort St. George from England, on the same das—the 26th Apial, 1799.

In another letter from Tippoo Sultaun received also at Fort William on the 26th of April, 1798, and relating solely to Wynaad, Tippoo thus concludes]

"Believing my friendly heart disposed to pay every regard to truth and rustice, and to strengthen the foundations of harmony and concord established between the two states, I hope you will always gratify me by letters notifying your welfare "

ERRATA

Page 8, 1 10 for enemy read nemy 31, 1 10 for I conceive, read I consider

- 31, 1 10 for Franceire, Tenn Franceire 32, 1 13 for can be inta_ined rend it would afford
- 37, 1 8 9 and 10, for Omdul, real Omdal Zulfaller Zulfale, Tung Jung, and Surdan Surdan
 - 20 1 15 after Memor indum Fort St Ceorge ' read ' by the Covernor of after Minute by Governor General on lanjore read 1 ort William ' Memor indum Port St Ceorge ' read ' by the Covernor General '
- 11 after Variate by Governor General on Larjor read. Lort William "11 11 from bottom for Residency 1 and 1 revisiones; 11 19 from bottom for marketed revi muscles of $\frac{1}{2}$ of them bottom for marketed revi muscles $\frac{1}{2}$ of $\f
- 70 1 Ir from touting, for Organized Sea South
 - 178 note, for see Appendix read see page, 211

- 507 1 23 for the read and 509 1 2 from bottom, (in note) for his, read its
- 509 1 2 110m hottom, (in hate) to me, read-592 hert page for 693, read 593 599, 1 22 for CCIV read CCVIV 621, 1 14 omit own before acquantance 055, 1 21 for Neadydioog, read Namlydroog

I REATA, APPENDIX

Page 667 |) tor Motto Falou tend Moter I don | 16, tor Asrku th rend Hirkarah 2 U sheet, for pinc 067, re al 057, and so on

CONTENTS OF VOL I

No	From	To	Date	Page
223	Addington, Hon Henry	Earl of Mornington	5th Oct 1799	632
164	Anstruther, Sir John,
	Chief Justice	do	27 Mar —	506
205	Do	do	17 May	589
212	Burd, Major Gen	do	27 June	598
221	Bombay Inhabitants Ad
	dress (with Reply)	do	3 Aug	624
222	Cilcutta Inhabitants Ad-	do	01.4	00#
	dress (with Reply)	do	21 Aug	627
152	Clarke, Lt -Gen Sir Alured	do	5 Mar — 8 Mar —	481
153	Do Do	do	17 May	482
206 54		Earl of Mornington	22 Aug	590 222
60	Chve, Lord Do	Rt Hon Henry Dundas	8 Sept —	251
62	Do	Earl of Mornington	11 Sept —	255
68	Do	do	22 Sept —	267
53	1)0	do	24 Oct -	309
87	Do	do	29 Oct -	317
106	Do	do	29 Nov —	361
107	Do	(Memorandum)	28 Nov —	361
113	Do	do	17 Dec —	380
117	Do	do	31 Dec —	389
192	Do	Secret Committee of the		566
102		Court of Directors	.,p	000
197	Do	Rt Hon Henry Dundas	11 May	576
204	Do	Court of Directors	16 May	588
224	Commons, House of,
	Thanks of	do	4 Oct	633
6	Cornwallis, Marquis	Naoob of Arcot	17 Oct 1797	36
159	Do .	Earl of Mornington	18 Mar	493
213	Do.	do -	20 Sept	598
Note	Do	do	2 Mar 1800	630
70	Craig, Maj -Gen Su J H	do	26 Sept	269
75	Do	do	6 Oct -	278
79	Do	do	13 Oct	299
80	Do	do	13 Oct	304
101	Do	do	15 Nov	345
102	Do	do	15 Nov	346
110	D ₀	do	13 Dec	365
123	Do Do	do	12 Jan 1799	408
208 16		do	21 May	593
10	Du ectors, Secret Com-
218	mittee of the Court of Do	do	18 June -	61
210	Duncan, Hon Jonathan	do	18 June —	614
42	Duncan, rion sonathan	do do	23 May 1798	39
91	Do		2 Aug —	150
210	Do	do	31 Oct	320
104	Do	do	25 May	595
214	Do	do	20 Nov	348
215	Do	do	13 Aug	599
210	200	uo	27 Nov	601

216 Dundas, Rt Hon Henry	Earl of Mornington	29 Dec 1798	605

λIII

21	b Dundas, Rt Hon Henry	Earl of Mornington	29 Dec 1798	605
21		do	18 Mai	608
17		do	l0 April —	525
Not	te Do	do	26 Aug -	620
	7 George III	Nabob of Arcot	Oct 1797	37
No	te Govi Genl in Council,	Gov in Council, Fort
	Port William	St George	20 June 1798	240
D	Govi in Council, Fort
-	5t George	Earl of Mornington	10 July -	214
D		Lair or mornington	To bury —	214
-	Fort William	Gov of Fort St George	13 July -	234
D			20 July
		do	20 July -	244
D		Eul of Mornington	3 Aug	236
	St George
	7 Gov Gen in Council	Lieut-Gen Harris	10 Aug -	240
11		(Proclamation)	2 Jan 1799	390
13	0 Gov Gen in Council	(General Orders)	2 Feb	424
14	0 Do	(Declaration of War)	22 Feb	449
20	12 Do	(General Orders)	15 May	586
20		(do)	24 May -	593
	8 Harris, Lieut General	Earl of Mornington	23 June 1798	65
	Do Do	do	6 July	67
	3 Do	do	6 July —	42
	3 Do	do	14 July	131
	8 Do	do	22 July —	145
	0 Do	do	29 July -	148
No		(Minute, Ft St George)	31 July —	217
4	5 Do	Earl of Mornington	7 Aug	155
	S Do	do	29 Oct	318
13		do	2 Feb 1799	425
14		do	25 Feb -	470
16		do	27 Mai —	505
10		do	5 April	514
13		do	7 April —	518
12		do	9 April —	523
∘-∞3		do
			22 April —	537
18		do	27 April -	559
18		do	28 April -	560
15		do	4 May	568
	34 Do	do	7 May —	569
	36 Do	do	9 May -	575
	00 Dα	do	13 May	582
No		do	27 June	617
	 Mornington, Lail of 	Rt Hon Hen Dundas	23 Feb 1798	1
	2 Do	Secret Committee of the
		Court of Directors	25 Feb -	16
	} Do	Rt Hon Hen Dundss	28 Feb -	17
	1 Do	The Nabob of Arcot	27 April —	35
	8 Do		27 April —	33
	8 D0	(Memdm on Carnatic
		Affans)	8 May —	19
	10 Do	(Minute on Tanjore)	31 May -	41
	18 Do	Lieut Gen Hairis	9 June	54
	14 Do	(Minute Financial)	12 June -	54
	15 Do	Tippoo Sultaun	14 June -	59
	17 Do	Lieut Gen Harris	20 June -	64
	19 Do	do	26 June -	66
	22 Do	Rt Hon Hen Dundas	6 July -	80
	25 Do	Capt J A Kirkpatrick	S July	94
	26 Do	Hon Jon Duncan	8 July —	110
	27 Do	Lient-Col Wm Paliner		111
	28 Do	do do	8 July —	113
		Least Can Charact
	30 Do	Lieut -Gen Stuart	14 July —	127
		Lieut -Gen Stunit	14 July —	127
		Lieut-Gen Stuart	14 July —	127

CONTEN

Lacut -Col Wm Palmer 14 July 1798

14 July

Captain Kirkpatrick

129

129

VIV

31

Mornington, Carl of

		Captain Kirkpatrick	14 July	-	129
34	Do	Lieut Gen Hailis	15 July	_	132
35	Dο	Lacut-Col Wm Palmer		_	131
36	Do	Lacut Gen Harris	18 July	_	135
37	Do	Ciptain Kirkpatrick	18 July		143
Note	Do	(Min in Cheil, Ft Wm)			241
39	Do	Colonel William Palmer			147
Note	Do	Lord Clive	29 July	_	223
4.3	Do	Resident at Lucknow.	6 Aug		153
44	Do	Pippoo Sultaun	7 Aug		154
46	Do	Lieut -Col W Palmer	9 Ang	_	157
47	Do	Capt im Kirkpatrick	11 Aug	~~~	158
48	Do	(Minute in the Serret
	Do	Department)	12 Aug	_	159
49		Captain Kirkpatrick	14 Aug	_	209
50	Do Do	Lieut -Gen Hairis	16 Aug	_	211
51	Do		19 Aug	_	217
52 53	Do	Lieut Col Wm Palmer	19 Aug	-	219 221
55	Do	Captun Kukpatuck	20 Aug	-
56	Do	Hon Crt of Directors Govt of Fort St George	23 Aug	PROM	233 234
58	Do		29 Aug	-
59	Do	Rear Admiral Rainier	29 Aug	-	248
61	Do	Captain Kirkpatrick	31 Aug		249
63	Do	Lieut Col Win Palmer Lieut -Col J Collins	9 Sept	_	252 257
64	Do	Maj Gen Su J Creig	15 Sept 16 Sept		261
65	Do	Captain Malcolm	20 Sept		264
66	Do	Lord Clive	20 Sept	_	265
67	Do	Resident at Lucknow	21 Sept	_	266
69	Do	Lord Clive	24 Sept		268
73	Do	Chauman of E I Comp	Oct	_	274
74	Do	Secret Committee	1 Oct	_	275
76	Do	Hon J Duncan	8 Oct	-	285
77	Do	Resident at Lucknow	10 Oct		287
78	Do	Rt Hon Hen Dunday /	11 Oct		488-
81	Do	Resident at Lucknow	18 Oct	_	305
82	Do	Hon Jonathan Duncan	24 Oct	-	306
85	Do	Leut Col John Collins			311
86	Do	Maj -Gen Su J H Craig		-	314
90	Do	Robert Brooke, Esq	30 Oct	-	319
92	Do	Captain Kirkpatrick	2 Nov		320
93	Do	Tippoo Sultaun	4 Nov	_	321
91	Do	Lord Clive	5 Nov	_	322
96	Do	Tippoo Sultaun	8 Nov	-	326
97	Do	Captain Kirkpatrick	9 Nov		328
98	Do	Resident at Poonsh	10 Nov	_	337
99	D_0	Rt Hon Hen Dundas	12 Nos	_	339
100	Do	Lord Clive	14 Nov	-	244
105	Do	Hon Court of Directors	21 Nov		351
109	Do	Tippoo Sultaun	10 Dec	-	363
109	Do	Lord Clive	10 Dec	-	363
111	D_0	Rear-Admiral Rainter	13 Dcc	-	368
112	Do	(Minute in the Secret
	-	Department)	14 Dec		371
115	Do	do	22 Dec		384
116	Do	J Lumsden, Esq	23 Dec	_	386
119	D_0	Hon Court of Directors	2 Jan	1799	391
121	Do	Tippoo Sultaun	9 Jun		394
122	D ₀	Resident at Poonsh	11 Jan	-	406
124	Do	Hon Court of Directors			407
125	D ₀	Majoi Bannerman	16 Jan	_	412

CONTENTS

λV

126	Mornington, Earl of	Tippoo Sultaun	16 Van	1799	413
127	Do	Resident at Hyderabad	21 Jan	_	418
128	Do	Rear Admiral Rainier	21 Jan	_	420
129	Do	Resident at Hyderabad	22 Jan	_	422
132	Do	Licut -Gen Harris	3 Feb	_	426
133	Do	Hon Jonathan Duncan	5 Fcb		428
134	Do	Hon Court of Directors	12 Fcb		429
135	Do	Hon Jonathan Dunean	13 Tch	-	432
137	Do	Hon Comt of Directors	13 Γcb	-	484
138	Dα	Resident at Poonsh	19 Fcb	_	439
139	Do		22 Γ(b	-	442
141	Do	Tippoo Sultann	22 Fcb	_	453
142	Do		22 Feb	_	454
143	Do	do	23 Feb		465
144	Do	The Peishwa	2 i Feb	-	466
145	Do	Lient Gen Stumt	24 Pcb	-	169
147	Do		25 Fcb	_	472
148	Do	Earl of Macartney	26 Feb	-	473
149	D_0	Colonel Wm Palmer	3 Mai	_	475
150	Do	Captain Kiikpatiick	3 Mai	_	477
151	Do	H (okbrook, Esq	3 M 11	_	479
155	Do	Lt Gen 'n AlmedClark		-	487
157	Do	Haujee Khullecl	15 Mai	_	492
158	Do	Rear-Admiral Rainier	16 Mar	-	492
160	$\mathbf{p}_{\mathbf{o}}$	Resident at Poonah	19 Mai	=	491
161	Do	Hon Court of Directors		_	495
162	Do.	Lieut Gen Stunit	21 Mar	_	504
165	Do	R Liston, Esq	1 Ары	l	509
166	Do	Colonel Palmer	3 Apr.	I —	509
167	Do	Lieut -Gen Hairis	3 Apri	1	513
169	Do	Colonel Wm Palmer	7 April		517
171	Do	Hon Jonathan Duncan	7 April	. —	518
173	Do Do	Commis of Malabar Licut -Gen Harris	10 April	1 —	523
176	D_0	Sir Alured Clarke	17 Apr.		527 528
177	Do	Court of Directors	17 April		528
178	Do	Secret Committee of the	20 April		53 >
170	20	Hon Cit of Directors	22 Aprı	. –	333
190	Do	Lieut -Gen Harris	23 Apri		538
Note	Do	General Harras	23 Apri		581
181	' Do	Nabob of the Carnatac	24 Apri	1 —	541
182	Do	Hon Jonathan Dancan	24 April		555
183	D_0	Colonel Palmer	25 Apri	ıl —	556
184	D ₀	Major Bannei man	25 Apri		558
185	Do	Licut -Gen Hairis	26 April	i	558
188	Do	do	28 Apri		561
189	Do	Hon Jonathan Duncan	30 Apri		562
190	Do	Lieut -Gen Harris	30 Apri	i	565
191	Do	Lt -Gen SirAluredClark	30 Apri	1 —	565
195	Do	Hon Jonathan Duncan	8 May		574
198	Do	Hon Court of Directors	11 May		577
199	Do	Lieut -Gen Hairis	12 May	=	578
201	Do	do	15 May	-	584
203	Do	Right Hon H Dundas	16 May	_	587
207	Do	Secrt Com Ct Diretra	19 May	_	591
211	Do	Hon Court of Duectors	6 June	e —	596
219	Do	Rt Hon H Dundas	June		616
220	Madras Inhabitants Ad-				-10
	dress (with Reply)	Earl of Mornington	26 June		621
Intrd		(Proclam, Mauritius)
71	Nızam, The	Earl of Mornington	27 Sept	t —	270
11	North, Hon Frederick	do	3 June		50
	. ,

(V)		CONTENTS
12 21 89 156 Note Note 95 151 29 41 72 84 103 114	Smith, Spearer Stuart, Lieut-General Trippoo, Sulfrana Do Do Do Do Do Do Do Do Do	Eail of Moi nington do do do do do Tippoo Sultain Earl of Monagton do do do do do do Governor-General Farl of Monagton Governor-General Farl of Monagton do	7 July 20 1798 7 July 20 12 Mai 1799 20 Sept 7 Mai 1799 20 Sept 7 Nov 8 Mar 1799 recd 10 July 1796 20 July 1796 21 July 1796 21 July 1799 22 July 1799 23 July 1799 25 July 1799	93 319 491 414 602 324 324 38 127 98}149 5 }278 310 347 381 393
136	D_0		13 Feb —	433
Intrd 5 21	Do Do Wales, Prince of Webbe, Mr Josias	Sir John Shore French Directory Nabob of Arcot Lt -General Harris	14 Oct 1797 6 Tuly 1798	35 72
APPENDIX
	fajor Kirkpatrick's Answers etter from J. Bosanquet, Es			p 637
	1798	-		651
C — Captain Malcolm's present state of Tippoo Sultain D — Letter from Zemain Shali to Sir John Shois, received 3 June 1798— from Zemain Shali to Mi Linniden, received 27 May 1798
F N	from Zemaun Shau to Mi femoir, with Observations of			670
20 11	by Major-General Sir Jame		Michael Calife,	671
F	Hyderabad Treaty, 1 Septem	ber 1798		682
F M	emorandum relative to th	e late French corps in t	he Deccan, by
0 0	Captain Malcolm	0		685
	uonaparte's Letter to Tippo 'roclamation du General Bu		Tdnou to I a. d	686
M	Grenville-Mr Secretary	Dunday to do -Secret Int	elligence from Frankfort-Importance of	Egypt to the French-East	rl of Morning-ton to Scirdiah-Militia Orders, Fort William, Dec. 21, 1798-
1 10	Right Hon H Dundas to			687 697
1 —Major-General Baird to Lieutenant General Harris b: K —Statement of the force composing the grand army under Lieutenant.
General Harris
L -General return of the troops belonging to the Presidency of Bombay				700 703
M —General return of killed and wounded near Seducer, March 6, 1799 N —General return of killed and wounded near Mallavilly, March, 27.
0 4	1799 bstract of the returns of the	numm nadou I contoured of	7 1 27	705
P G	eneral return of killed and	wounded before Sering	general right is	70 6 70 7
Q A	bstract of ordnance, &c. m	Seringapatam	•	707
R N	femorandum respecting pri	ze property captured at	Seringapatam	710
s-T	he Sircar Condudad to t	ne Executive Directory-	-Note of the
Proposals of the Amhassadors to the Executive Directory				711

ILLUSTRATIONS

Portrait to face Title-page —Map of India to face Dedication ——Plan of Seringapatam to face First page

DESPATCHES.

MINUTES, AND CORRESPONDENCE.

&c &c &c

INDIA

No I

(To the Right Hon Henry Dundas, President of the Board of Control, &c

My Dear Sir, Cape of Good Hope, 23 Feb 1798

Among the subjects which you recommended to my early consideration upon my arrival in India, you particularly urged the necessity of my attending with the utmost degree of vigilance to the system, now pursued almost universally by the native princes, of retaining in then service numbers of European or American officers, under whom the native troops are trained and disciplined in imitation of the corps of sepoys in the British service By accident I found at this place, on account of his health, Major Knkpatrick lately Resident at the Court of Hyderabad, and formerly at that of Scindiah, and I have endeavoured during the period of my detention here to collect from him whatever information he could furnish respecting the European or American officers and the corps commanded by them in the service of the Nizam For this pulpose after several conversations on the subject, I requested Major Kirkpatrick to return detailed answers in writing to several questions which I drew with the intention of bringing under your observation not only the actual strength but the original object of this part of the Nizam's military establishment, its rapid increase, the consequences to be expected from its continuance or further growth, as well as the means which either had been or might he suggested for averting any danger which those consequences might threaten to our interests in India with this Letter a copy of my questions and of Majoi Kirk-patrick's answers,* and although I am awaie that the substance of both must be familian to you, yet imagining that it may hitherto have come under you notice only incidentally in detached despatches and advices from India, I think it may be useful to lay before you in a more regular and connected form a view of this most material and (in my judgment) foundable branch of the system to which you have directed my attention In this Letter, I shall endeavour to recapitulate the most important facts stated by Majoi Kirkpatrick, adding such observations as have occurred to me upon them, in the hope of receiving from you at an early period, you instructions upon such points as the materials before you can enable you to determine

(It appears that the Nizam had recently at different peuods returned in his service, exclusive of our detachment, three distinct coips of sepoys under the command of European or American officers one commanded by a Frenchman of the name of Raymond, another by an American of the name of Boyd, and a third by an Lishman of the name of Finglass, for some time a Quarter-Master in the 19th Regiment of Diagoons

The corps of Boyd and Finglass were taken into the service of the Nizam during the residence of Azim ul Omra at Poonah, at the suggestion of our Resident at that Court, acting under the sanction of the Government of Bengal This measure was taken by our Resident and by that Government principally with a view of forming a counterpoise to the corps of Raymond Boyd's corps consisted of about 1800 men, it is no longer in the service of the Nizam, and has probably passed into that of the Mahiattas Finglass's corps still remains at Hyderabad, but consists of only one battalion of about 800 men. Both these corps appeared to be well affected to our interests, as may be judged by their willingness to assist our detachment in repelling an expected attack from the corps of Raymond The corps of Raymond had been in the service of the Nizam before the last war with Tippoo Sultain, and in 1792 its strength was not more than 1500 men at the highest estimation, at the battle of

See Appendix A

Khudlah in 1795 its stength amounted to no less than 11,000 men, it now consists of 10,000 men, and the order has actually been given for augmenting it to the number of 14,000 men. Attached to this corps is a train of atillery of about 30 field pieces, and a troop of 80 native diagoons. The discipline of the corps does not appear to be by any means good, and accordingly it has never yet rendered any distinguished service in the field.)

The pay of the corps is now secured by the assignment of a large district of country, part of which borders the Carnatic, at this particular station is a fortified post, and constant communication is maintained between it and the nort of Naipilly. as well as with Ongole and other parts of the territories of the Company and of the Nabob of Arcot (The corps is iccruited in the proportion of one-third of its total numbers. from our territories and from those of the Nabob of Arcot. and partly from deserters abandoning our service. The chief officers are Frenchmen of the most virulent and notorious principles of jacobinism, and the whole coins constitutes an aimed French party of great zeal, diligence and activity The efforts of this party are continually directed to the object of magnifying the power, resources, and success of France in the eyes of the Court of Hyderabad, and of depreciating the character, force and credit of Great Britain by every possible means

The detachment of this coips stationed on our frontier has been very assiduous with great success in seducing from then duty our seroys quartered in the neighbourhood—a considerable descrition lately took place in one of our native regiments on its march from Masulipatam to the southward, and many of the deserters on that occasion are to be found in Raymond's corps.) No positive proof has yet appeared of a direct conrespondence between the leaders of this corps and the French Government, but it seems to be unquestionably certain that they communicate with Tippoo Sultaun and with the French corps in his service. Whatever may be the discipline or military skill of this corps, it now forms by far the most considerable part of the Nizam's military establishment J In this corps consists the main strength of the aimy of our ally, and it possesses the influence which usually belongs to an aimy in the councils of the native princes of India. This influence seems to have alaimed Azm ul Omia the first muister of the Nizam, neither the origin not the subsequent augmentations of this corps appear to have been at all connected with any hostile disposition in the Court of Hyderabad towards the British interests. The institution of the corps proceeded from an administration of the successful policy of Mahdajee Scindinh and the subsequent augmentation was directed primpilly in not solely against the Mahrattas & Their is reason to believe that the orders lately given for a further increase of the corps to the number of 14,000 men arose from a desire in the mind of Azim ul Oma of dawing us into a more intimate connection with the Nizam, by exciting our jealousy of the growing influence of the French part va the Veladad

Such is the state of the leading facts communicated by Major Kirkpatrick The result in my mind is a decided common, that the continuance, and still more the further growth of the corps of Raymond ought to be prevented by every means within our power, consistent with the respect due to the Court of Hyderabad, and with the general principles of moderation and justice, which ought to form the rule of our conduct in India The dangers to be apprehended from the existence of this coips are not to be estimated by a consideration of its actual state of discipline, or even of its actual numbers, or degree of present influence over the councils of the Nizam I consider it as the basis of a French party in India, on which, according to the opportunities of fortune and the variation of events, the activity of the enemy may found a strength of the most formidable kind either in peace of war If we are to look to the settlement of peace. can it be possible to provide a more ready channel for the intrigues of France, than would be offered by the existence of a body of 10,000 men, united by military discipline, and stationed in the dominions of one of our principal allies, and on the borders of our own? If the war is to continue in Europe without extending to the continent of India in the first instance, the danger of French intrigue acting with such an instrument as I have described, would be greatly aggravated. But if the war should extend to the continent of India, and if we should be under the necessity of calling forth the strength of our allies to assist us in any contest with Tippoo, what assistance could we expect from the Nizam, the main body of whose aimy would be officered by Fienchmen, or by the agents of F1ance, and the co11espondents of T1ppoo himself * In such a situation it would be difficult to determine whether our danger would be greater from an entire desertion of our cause by the Court of Hyderabad, or from our acceptance of the only species of support which its military force could offer us in the field But I confess I carry my opinion upon this subject still faither (I have no doubt that the natural effect of the unchecked and rapid growth of such a party at the court of one of our principal allies must be in a very short period to detach that Court entirely from our interests, and finally to fix it in those of our enemies, to subject its councils to their control, and its military establishments to then direction. However despicable the corps of Raymond may now be in point of discipline or effect in the field, would it be wise to leave such a large body of men in readiness to receive whatever improvements the ability, assiduity and zeal of French officers, sent from Europe for that express purpose, might introduce into the constitution of a corps, so prepared by correspondent principles and objects to meet the most sanguine expectations of their new leaders Under these cucumstances, the corps, which perhaps now has little more efficiency than that of a political party, might soon become in the hands of our enemy as efficient a military force, as it is now in that view wholly useless either to the Nizam or to us 3

5

I desire to add one more consideration, must not the continuance of such a cops in the service of our ally tend to raise the hopes of Tippoo, and in the same proportion to disparage us in the eyes of all the native princes of India? That it has tended to encourage Tippoo, I have no doubt, and his concespondence with the leaders of the corps will sufficiently shew in what light he views them. Derhaps I have dwelt too long on this pair of the subject, where the proof of the wate policy of suffering such an evil, as I have described, to increase without check or disturbance seems to require no labour of argument

(A more interesting and difficult consideration will be to devise for remedying this evil some means which shall not expose our interest to as great a danger as that which we wish to avoid. In the paper transmitted with this letter four distinct measures are proposed for consideration with a view to the desirable object of subverting the French party at the Court of the Nizam The first is to introduce British subjects, or others (being the subjects of friendly powers) into the military service of the Nizam for the purpose of forming a balance against Raymond's corps This measure has already been partially attempted by the introduction of the corps of Boyd and Finglass at Hyderabad, but it has failed of success in the case of Boyd, who upon some quarrel with the Court has left the service of the Nizam I do not think this measure likely to be effectual to any good purpose, and it might even aggravate the evil which it is proposed to re-A party so consolidated and united as that of Raymond's, which has been strengthening itself for a period of several years at Hyderabad, and has established the means of recruiting and augmenting its members will not be counteracted by the megular and desultory opposition of such adventurers as might be induced by our encouragement to seek employment in the service of the Nizam, persons of this description (and we cannot expect that any other will engage in such an undertaking) would want the system and concert necessary to give vigor to then operations

It is also difficult to suppose that the Nizam would at once 1 etain in his service such a number of these persons, as could in any degree enter into competition with the numerous corps of Raymond and his adherents But even if these objections did not exist against the introduction of a crowd of European adventurers at Hyderabad, there would remain a difficulty which appears to me insuperable The impossibility of finding a sufficient number of such adventurers on whose principles any reliance could be placed, in such circumstances, our attempt to subvert the French party at Hyderabad might only serve to furnish it with additional recruits of other nations. and I much fear that many British subjects might be found m India whose spirit of adventure would rather direct them to seek a new order of things, than to contribute to the maintenance of our power Lord Hobart has declared his objection to this measure, but as well as I recollect his letter, his principal ground is the danger of improving the military discipline of the annes of the Native Plinces by furnishing them with European officers unfortunately this objection now comes too late, the system which Lord Hobart very justly dreads, has been suffered gradually to gain such a strength, that there is scarcely a native court in India without its establishment of European officers

The second measure proposed in the annexed paper, is nothing more, than that we should endeavour by representation and demand to induce the Nizam to dishand Raymond's corps. AI recommend Major Kirkpatrick's observations on this head, to your particular attention Certainly no representation from one friendly state to another could ever be more solidly founded than ours might be to the Nizam in the case before us But besides that Major Knkpataick expects no benefit from representation and demand unconnected with the offer of some advantage to the Nizam . I doubt whether our manifesting in the first instance the extent of our anxiety for the dismission of Raymond's corps, might not embairass us in the progress of the most effectual measures for that desnable end, at present the Court of Hyderabad seems willing to purchase a closer connection with us by great sacrifices, and if that connection should not appear objectionable on other grounds, it may probably take place on much more advantageous terms to us, if we grant it as a matter of favour to the solicitation of the Nizam, than if we commence the negociation by demanding the dismission of any part of the Nizam's military establishment This observation will be better understood, when I come to take notice of the fourth measure proposed by Major Kukpatrick Before I leave this article I must however remark that I should not be satisfied by obtaining the modification hinted by Major Kirkpatrick, namely, that the French officers of other Europeans in Raymond's corps should be dismissed, and their places filled by British subjects nominated by us modification would leave the corps precisely in its present form with the exception of the European officers only although the European officers are certainly the most objectionable part of the establishment, it may be doubted whether the habits and dispositions of the native officers and sepoys formed under their French leaders would be at once broker by a mere change in the command, while every other circumstance of the corps remained the same, seeing then no prospect of success from official representation or demand alone. and thinking it impludent to anticipate the expected application of the Court of Hyderabad for a more intimate connection with us by unging to them at this period any proposition the concession of which they might deem a favour, I proceed to examine Major Kirkpatrick's third suggestion. This he states to be of a nature justifiable only by the case of an actual ruptine with the Nizam, or of open violence on the part of Raymond against us, the measure is no other than to induce Raymond's officers by pecuniary compensation to abandon the corps, on this measure it is unnecessary to say anything, because the cases alone to which it is meant to apply, neither have existed nor are now likely to happen, I own that I should never think it worth while, even in the cases supposed of a jupture with the Nizam, or of an attack from Raymond, to repel the aggression by corrupting the officers of the hostile enemy. I trust that in either case, we should soon find a more certain as well as a more honourable mode of effectually destroying this French party and its adherents

The fourth proposition contained in Major Knkpatrick's paper, is that to which I wish to call your most particular attention

The desire of the Court of Hyderabad to obtain from us an increase of our detachment now serving the Nizam, and also an extension of the power of employing the force furmished by us, has appeared on several occasions, and you will find allusions to this disposition in the last secret despatches from Bengal) There seems to be no objection to the first part of this proposition provided our consent to it shall secure to us equivalent concessions on the part of the In another Letter which I shall forward to you on the general subject of the political state of India in the piesent moment, you will find my reasons for entertaining an opinion that it would be a wise policy for us to check by timely aid the rapid declension of the Nizam's weight among the powers of Hindostan, this could be done in no manner so effectual or unobjectionable as by furnishing him with a large increase of our force now in his pay, the pay of the

anomented force to be secured in the manner best calculated to prevent future discussion and embarrassment. In granting this force to the Nizam, we ought not only to stipulate for the disbanding of Raymond's corps, but we ought to take care that the officers should be immediately sent out of India There are perhaps other points which on this occasion might be obtained from the Court of Hyderabad The great difficulty which would obstruct such an arrangement would be, that the Nizam would mobably be unwilling to part with Raymond's coips, which he has the power of employing against any enemy, unless he could obtain powers equally extensive with respect to the employment of any force furnished by us You are aware that the British detachment now in the pay of the Nizam is not only restricted from acting against the Mahiattas in any possible case, but also from acting against certain Polygars tributary both to the Mahrattas and to the Nizam, and even from passing, without a formal permission, certain parts of the Mahratta Territory which are intermixed with the dominions of the Nizam The object of the Court of Hyderabad would of course be to obtain our guarantee of its possession generally, against the Mahrattas, accompanied with the assistance of a large force, to be employed with the same extensive powers as now apply to the corps of Raymond For this object I have little doubt that the Nizam would sacrifice the whole French party at his court, and even the persoush now paid by us on account of the northern cucars. But such an alteration of our connection with the Nizam would naturally raise the realousy of the Mahratta powers, and might involve us in discussions of a very disagreeable nature if not in a war with them. The result therefore of this view of the subject would lead us to enquire, whether some arrangement might not be fiamed, founded on a modification of the views of the Court of Hyderabad, and comprehending certain favourite objects of the Mahratta States, which while it secured for us the destruction of the French party at Hyderabad, should tend to restore to the Nizam his due weight among the Indian powers, without exciting the animosity of the Mahiattas against the British Government

It appears to me that the only effectual mode of enadicating the French party at Hyderabad would be to furnish to the Nizam such a force as should be a just equivalent to Raymond's coips, considering the superior discipline of our sepoys, I beheve that 3,000 men under Bitish command, not only would be, but would be deemed by the Court of Hydeiabad, a force fully equal to that of Raymond in its present state.

The instruction by which our detachment is prevented from acting as the troops of the Mahrattas and of the Nizam now act against the Polygais who pay joint tribute to the two powers might probably be removed by a full previous explanation with the Mahrattas, as that restruction does not appear to be founded on any solid principle, nor could the removal of it open the way to any real incorvenience or danger to the interests of the Mahratta State

The power of mutually passing their intermixed boundaries is now constantly exercised by the troops both of the Mahrattas and of the Nizam, and there is no reason to suppose that a formal permission would have been refused to our detachment for the same purpose, had it ever been demanded But the Nizam never would allow any application to be made for a permission to do that, which he held to be his right, and which was constantly done without question both by his own army and by that of Poonah. It is very improbable that we should find great difficulty in engaging the Mahrattas to place our detachment in this respect on a footing with their own, nor can I foresee any tenable ground of argument on which this point could be maintained against us

The settlement of these two points only, would, I understand, be considered as a great acquisition by the Nizam, and would go a great way towards inducing him to substitute a British force in the room of Raymond's coips

The third point is of much more importance and of much greater delicacy and danger, I speak of the desire of the Court of Hydeiabad to obtain our guarantee of their possessions against the Mahrattas as well as against Tippoo, together with a right of employing defensively the toops furnished by us against the former as well as against the latter of these powers. This point perhaps might be reconciled with the interests of the Mahrattas, if it were thought prudent to enter into similar engagements with them, or in other words. to guarantee then possessions against any attack from the Nizam The effect of such an engagement with both powers would be to place us in the situation of arbitrators between them, and perhaps then mutual apprehensions of our interposition in the case of any aggression on either side might tend to restrain the resentment and ambition of both In this view such a system of treaty with the Mahiattas and with the Nizam, so far from being liable to the objection of an undue interference in the disputes of the native powers of India, or of that description of officiousness and intriguing spirit which tends to foment divisions, and to occasion war. might be deemed the best security for the maintenance of the peace of India, as well as the strongest pledge of our disposition to preserve it from disturbance. It would also tend to preserve unimpaned the strength and resources of the two powers, on whose cooperation we must depend for assistance against any future attempt on the part of Tippoo it cannot be a wise policy to suffer the Nizam and the Mahrattas to weaken themselves by repeated contests, while Tippoo remains at rest, and any measure deserves attention. the tendency of which is to iestore to the Mahiattas and to the Nizam then relative consideration and power as they stood at the conclusion of the treaty of Seringapatam (You will find by the last secret despatches from India.* that some opening has been given for our ai bitration in settling the disputes between the several Mahratta chiefs, and that the Government of Bengal has agreed to undertake the mediation proposed, under the condition of a previous formal agreement signed by all the parties, binding themselves to accept our award as final and conclusive upon then respective claims If any such proceeding should take place, it will give a natural opening to such further engagements as may appear advisable.

The same despatches will inform you of the anxiety of the Mahattas to obtain our agreement to a general defensive treaty against Zemaun Shah. The Government of Bengal have postponed the consideration of this proposition to a period of time, which I confess I should think the most unfavourable for the examination of this difficult question, and still more unseasonable for the negociation of a treaty with such a power as the Mahnatta states, this period of time is no other, than the moment when Zemaun Shah shall again approach the frontiers of Hindostan) Without giving any decisive opinion on the wisdom of entering into the treaty proposed. I shall certainly think it my duty upon my arrival in India to proceed without the delay of one moment to the examination and decision of the proposal made by the Mahrattas if it should appear expedient to engage with them in a defensive system against the threatened invasion of Zemaun Shah, there is no doubt that such a measure would tend greatly to reconcile to them any propositions, which we might wish to offer with respect to the arrangements at the Court of Hyderabad

^{*} The opening of these Despatches is explained in Letters, Nos II and III

The inclination of my opinion at present rather leads me to think, that a general defensive alliance between all the existing powers of Hindostan (Tippoo perhaps alone excepted) against the expected invasion of Zemaun Shah, would not only be the best security against the success of such an invasion, if attempted, but might have the effect of deterring that Prince from an undertaking which must end in his own disappointment and ruin, if our Government in India, and our allies do not neglect to make seasonable preparations of defence If a treaty can be formed at an early period so as to unite the Mahiatta powers with us in a cordial and systematic plan of vigorous opposition to the supposed projects of Zemann Shah, without binding us to advance farther from our own frontiers, than the real exigency of the case may appear to demand upon his approach, I should think such a treaty a solid acquisition of strength in the present critical situation of India. you will observe from this detail, that I consider the fourth measure suggested by Major Kirkpatrick to be the only one. from which it is reasonable to hope that the effectual destruction of the French army at Hyderabad can be accomplished. but that I view that measure as connected with considerations of the most serious nature, and involving consequences of the utmost delicacy and importance I have laid before you the whole train of my thoughts on this subject, as I shall think it my duty to do on every question affecting those interests.

which I know to be not only highly valuable in your estimation, but the most patricular and anxious objects of your unemitting soluctude and care C I will conclude this long letter by stating the piecise questions on which I wish to receive your instructions, and by submitting to you the plan of measures which I propose to pursue with relation to this subject, in the interval which must clapse, before I can receive your opinion)

In the first place I wish to be informed whether you think a closer connection than at present subsists between us and the Nizam advisable for our interests on general grounds, provided such a change of our engagements with the Nizam can be rendered acceptable to the Malnattas

Secondly, whether you would approve of our entering into treaties with both the Mahrattas and the Nizam guaranteeing the dominions of each power respectively against the aggression of the other

Thirdly, whether you would approve of our taking measures for acting in conceit with Azm ul Onna in support of the succession of Secunder Jah, the eldest son of the Niram? whether we should endeavour to obtain the cooperation of the Mahratras in securing this succession? and what should be our conduct, if the Mahratras should differ from us in the choice of the succession to the Niram?

Fourths, whether you would approve of a general defensive treaty against any invasion from Zemaun Shah, and what limitations would you propose to the powers which the other allies might require of employing our troops beyond our own fronters; \(\frac{1}{2} \).

You will observe that the determination of all these questions is necessary, in my view of the subject, in order to enable me to carry into effect the only measure which I can rely upon as a sufficient check to the growth of the French interest at the Court of Hydenabad and as permanent barrier against any future revival of that interest in the same quarter

But I am aware that I cannot receive your opinions for a long time. In that interval circumstances may compel me to decide some of these important questions upon my own judgment, my wish however is to reserve them all for yours, and with this view, I purpose to pursue a system of measures, which, while it shall leave all the most deheate parts of the situation of affans in India open to your decision, shall tend to check in some degree the progress of the French party at Hyderabad, and to finish me with such materials as shall enable me to form a competent opinion of the effects to be expected from any decision of the points reserved for your judgment.

I propose to direct the Resident at Hyderahad to suffer no augmentation of Raymond's corps to take place, if it can be prevented by the stongest and most pointed representations. This step may probably check the increase of the corps, although from this step alone I cannot hope for its final annihilation

I mean also to duect that any proposals from the Nizam's ministers for an increase of our detachment shall be favourably received, and I shall increase the detachment accordingly on the first practicable occasion, but I shall stipulate that for every man we grant, there shall be a proportional reduction made in Raymond's corps This proportion shall be calculated upon the relative estimation of our sepoys (in the opinion of the ministers of the Nizam themselves) when compared with Baymond's corps, and I believe that on this ground, I shall not find it difficult to contend that a reduction of 3,000 men should be made for every 1,000 men granted by us ducing the army of Raymond, I shall endeavour in the first instance to disband the most obnoxious and dangerous officers with their coins. I have lesson to believe that I may be able to effect this species of partial reduction of Raymond's corps, without entering upon any of the difficult points involved in the general questions stated in the letter. In the meanwhile however I shall direct the Resident, at Poonah and with Scindiah, to ascertain as speedily as possible the views and dispositions of those powers with respect to the same points and especially with respect to any alteration of our connection with the Nizam, to his eventual successor, and to the proposed defensive engagements against Zemaun Shah

In submitting the whole of this extensive subject to your consideration I have been obliged to leave many parts of it open to doubt, for want of the information which may be expected from the residents with Sciendiah, and at Poonah, I beheve however that it will not be difficult for you to answer the questions which I have proposed, faming your answers in such a manner as may admit of any variation of opinion, which the information from those Courts may require

The state of the military establishment of the Mahratta powers did not properly come under Major Kn kpatrick's view, and I propose to transmit to the residents at Poonah and with Scindiah a copy of my questions to Major Kirkpatrick with such alterations as the several cases may require, in order to obtain for you a full statement of the corps disciplined by Europeans of Americans in the service of the Mahrattas I am at present able to give you no fuller information on this part of the subject, than that Scindiah employs about 20,000 senovs disciplined by Europeans of Americans The commander is named Person, a Frenchman, most of the officers are British subjects. The discipline of this corps is said to be superior to that of Raymond's, but the disposition of its officers to be much more favorable to the British than to the French interests This was De Boigne's corps, whose history you probably know De Boigne was lately in London, if he should not have left it, he can give you the fullest information of the state of Scindiah's aimy There was a small corps of about 2.000 men commanded by European officers in the service of the Peishwah, and another of about the same number in that of Tuckagee Holkai, they are both inconsiderable, if they still exist, and the dissentions which have broken out between Holkar's two sons since the death of their father, have left that branch of the Mahiatta power in a situation from which little danger is to be apprehended | There is a fourth corps commanded by a Frenchman of the name of D'Agincourt in the service of Azim ul Dowlah at Hyderabad. This coips is paid by the state. It consists of 1.500 men The commander is a determined racobin

The Rajah of Beiai is said to have a corps in his service commanded by British officers, it is said to consist of above 2,000 men

I am, my dear Su, &c
Morningion

(No II

To the Secret Committee of the Court of Directors

HONOURABLE SIRS, Cape of Good Hope, Feb 25th, 1798

In my lette dated the 19th mstant, addressed to the Honounable the Court of Ducctors,* I have stated the cn-cumstances which induced me to open the secret packet addressed to you Honounable Committee, on board the ship Houghton

In addition to the circumstances stated to the Honounable Court of Directors, I think it necessary to submit to you that [I had learnit, by vague reports, the outline of the important events which have happened in Oude, the apprehensions entetained of the return of Zemann Shal towards the footness of that province, the several movements of Tippoo Sultaun/and the sudden suspension of the expedition embalked for the attack of Manilla

It appeared to me on every ground to be an indispensable atticle of my duty to obtain, as speedily as possible, the most authentic account of events so deeply affecting the interests committed to my charge, and of which any false impression might lender me less equal to the execution of my public tust

But whateven may have been my view of my duty, on my conception of the propriety and necessity of the step which I took in opening the several despatches and packets, I shall not be satisfied with my conduct until it shall have received the sanction of your approbation, as well as that of the Honoulable the Court of Directors To both, in your joint and several capacities, it will always be my desire to pay every mark of deference and respect.

I have the honour to be, &c
Mornington

^{*} The Letter here adverted to does not require insertion, the observations being similar to those contained in the present Letter

No III

To the Right Honourable Henry Dundas

My DEAR SIR, Cape of Good Hope, Feb 28th, 1798

During my detention at this place the ships, of which I enclose a list, arrived with despatches from Bengal. My anxious desine to learn the actual state of affairs in India from the most authentic sources induced me to open the public and secret packets, the contents of which I have examined with great attention and care. I flatten myself that this step, proceeding from a wish to enable myself to do justice to their service, will meet with the approbation of the Court of Directors, and that they will be satisfied with the reasons which I have offerced in my letter to them on this subject

The contents of these despatches have led me to a very serious ieview of the opinions which I had formed under your direction with regard to the relative situations of the several native powers of India, and the system to be pursued with respect to their interests by the government committed to my charge

The leading pinciple of your instructions to me as applicable to our external policy in India, was, that I should endeavour, as nearly as possible, to preserve the balance of power between the native pinces upon the same footing on which it was placed by the Treaty of Seringapstam

It would be a waste of you time to state, at any length, the precise nature of the relative conditions of those states whose interests were affected, and whose power was ascertained by the operation of that treaty. It will be sufficient to remaik, that one part of the policy of the treaty was, by strengthening the Mahrattas and the Nizam to the extent and in the manner provided by the articles of the treaty, to establish an efficient check upon the future ambition or resentment of Tippoo, and to secure to us an efficient support against him whenever we might have an occasion to call for it.

The plain question, to which my attention has been directed by the inspection of the late despatches, is this —Are the Mahrattas and the Nizam now in the same condition in which the Treaty of Seringapatam left them, and can we now look to both, or to either of those powers, for that degree of support against Tippoo which it was the intention of that treaty to provide? I am afraid that a very short examination of the present position of the Malnattas and of the Nizam will furnish ample proof that neither of those powers remain in the same state in which they stood in 1793, either with elation to each other or to the general balance of power in India, and above all, that their means of assisting us against Tupoo are consideably dimmished

AOT I

Since the conclusion of the peace of Seringapatam the credit and resources of the Court of Hyderabad have been constantly declining a The disgrace which fell upon the Nizam's army in the unfortunate contest with the Mahrattas at Khurdlah, reduced the military character of the Court of Hyderabad to the lowest point of degradation The treaty in which that defeat terminated completed the humiliation of the Nizam vou will remember that he was compelled to sacufice a large portion of territory, to engage to pay a fine of three croics of rupees, and to submit to the captivity of his minister Azim ul Omra, who was carried a prisoner to Poonah Azım ul Omia resided at Poonah during the late convulsions in the Mahratta governments, and boile a very distinguished part in supporting Nana through the various revolutions which followed the sudden death of the Peishwa Mahda Row. For these services Nana had agreed to sacrifice all the benefits acquired for the Mahratta state against the Nizam by the Treaty of Khurdlah But the event has been, that after the recovery of his own power, Nana has insisted on the cession of one-fourth part of the territory, and on the payment of one-fourth part of the fine stipulated by that treaty So that the final result is a considerable diminution of the territory and resources of the Nizam, added to all the effects which might naturally be expected to be produced upon his domestic peace and foreign consideration by so heavy a loss both of power and honour. The two rebelhons of the Nizam's son Ali Jah, and of the son of Daia Jah. are stated to have arisen from the contempt into which the Nizam's authority had fallen at home, and although those rebellions have been quelled, the collections of the revenue have been so severely affected, as well by them as by the detention of Azim ul Omia at Poonah, that the resources of the country are not likely to recover the shock for some time

The effect of these causes has been very much to lower, the value of the Nizam's power in the scale of the neighbouring states. He has been obliged to submit implicitly to the will of the government of Poonah, the Rajah of Bera has exacted large contributions from a part of his territory, and Tippoo (although endeavouring to gam him as an ally,) has omitted no occasion of expressing the utmost contempt for his abject situation

But the most stiking feature of change in the state of the Nizam's afflure since 1798 is the alteration which has taken place in his military establishment. This, at first view, might appear an improvement of his political strength, but whatever may be youn judgment on that question in a general view of it, you will, I am persuaded, concui with me in opinion, that the alteration which has taken place in the Nizam's military establishment, since the peace of Seingapatam, has nearly disqualified lum from co-operating with us as an ally in the cases for which that treaty meant to provide

The Nizam since the peace has ejeatly jeduced his cavality and other troops, and in the meanwhile has considerably augmented the corps of Raymond, of the nature and principles of which I have given a description in my Letter No I (The corps of Raymond now forms the great force of the Nizam's army, and although very deficient in point of discipline and skill when compared with our troops, is stated to be more capable of performing useful service in the field than the whole aimy furnished to us by his Highness in the late war with Tippoo On the other hand, perhaps the existence of this coips, united as it is in the cause of Fiance, connected with Tippoo, and animated by that spirit of intrigue which would lead it to mix in every distraction of the state, if not to disturb the internal peace of the country by originating the causes of confusion, may be considered as a cucumstance of positive weakness in the frame of the Nizam's government Azım ul Omıa certainly has felt the force of this argument, and by consenting to the introduction of the coips of Boyd and Finglass, appeared to be aware that the corps of Raymond might eventually gain the ascendancy, which it might be difficult to reduce within any bounds of moderation, and which might hereafter overthiow the power of a minister, or dictate the succession to the throne itself

But with respect to our alliance, and to the value of the guarantee under the treaty of Paangul, the altered state of the Nizam's aimy places him in a condition woise than that of absolute mefficiency In a war with Tippoo, or in the still more aggravated case of a war with him and France, the forces of the Nizam must become useless (if not dangerous) to us, precisely in proportion to the exigency of the case in which our cause should demand the aid of our allies. I have stated this argument aheady in my Letter No. I , to which I refer you, with this additional observation, that I cannot conceive the case in which we could take the Nizam's French troops with us into the field, without the utmost hazard of treachery, not the case in which we could leave them behind us, without providing an equal force to watch their movements.) Recollecting that this corps is the only military force of any kind of efficiency which we can expect from the Nizam in the event of a wai with Tippoo and France, you will judge without difficulty what answer should be given to the question which I have proposed upon this part of the subject

I have already observed how much the posture of the Nizam's affairs is altered with relation to the balance of power between him and the Mahiatta states, and how much he has been weakened and degraded by the Treaty of Khurdlah, and by the manner in which it has been carried into execution In this view it has been a favourable circumstance to the Nizam, (and is perhaps that cause to which alone he is indebted for the preservation of any degree of strength, or even of his throne.) that the distractions of the Mahratta empire have so shaken the power of the Peishwa. and disturbed the unity of the confederation of the principal chiefs, as to have very much impaned then means of carrying on any considerable joint military operation? Notwithstanding this circumstance, I still consider the Nizam to be in a much weaker state, even with relation to the Mahrattas. divided and broken as then power now is, than he was at the conclusion of the peace of Seringapatam

This leads me to submit to your consideration my ideas on the actual condition of the Mahratta empire I am aware that some opinions have been thrown out from very respectable quarters, the tendency of which appears to lead towards a sentiment approaching to satisfaction in the dissentions and divisions which have lately taken place among the Mahrattas. I always considered the precise situation in which the Mahratta empire stood, after the peace of Seiingapatam, as the most favourable to our interests The powers of the different co-estates were then sufficiently balanced amongst each other to prevent any danger of that degree of union which could at any time bring the whole of their force to operate in one consolidated mass against the British possessions On the other hand, the influence of the Peishwa, or head of the co-estates, and of his minister Nana, was such as to enable them to bring into the field a respectable force, whenever their engagements with us might require such an effort. This appears to me to be the position in which we ought to endeayour to maintain the Mahratta states, in which neither the government of Poonah, not any branch of the empire, should obtain such an ascendancy as might enable it to concenter the formidable strength of the whole against us, while the head of this great body should still preserve such a degree of power over several of the leading chiefs, as to become a respectable ally to us in the moment of necessity The present posture of the Mahratta power is directly the reverse in one respect of that which I have described (Fortunately no one of the co-estates, nor the head of the empire, has yet acquired the means of wielding the united force of the whole body, but while some of the chiefs have made great and valuable acquisitions of dominion, and considerably increased their military strength, the authority and influence of the Peishwa has rapidly declined, and it could not now be expected that any respectable body of chiefs would be disposed to prosecute, under his direction, any common view or joint operation with any degree of zeal or vigoup! This has been the effect produced by the late senies of revolutions at Poonah Looking to the most important question for our consideration-namely, the extent of the assistance which we may expect from the Mahiattas, if we should have occasion to call for their aid under the engagement subsisting between us, I have viewed those revolutions with regret, and I cannot now see their consequences in any more favourable light, as fan as they regard us, than that of a positive dimunution of the stiength of those barners which it was the policy of the Treaty of Seingapatam to raise against the power of Tippoo I have avoided entering into a detailed account of the respective positions of each of the great Mahnitat chiefs, wishing to call your attention to the more essential and pressing part of the subject. But I believe you will find the circumstances of each branch of the Mahratta power to have varied since the year 1793 nearly according to the following statement.—

(Sendah has made large acquisitions of territory, and improved the discipline of his troops; he has also acquired great influence at Poonah, but it may be doubted whether the death of Mahdajee Scindiah has not been a greater loss to the power of this bianch of the empire than will be compensated by any of these advantages. The character of Dowlut Row Scindiah and of his ministes is such as to render the power of this branch much less formidable than it was in the lifetime of Mahdajee Scindiah.

The Rajah of Betat has made some progress in power since the peace of Seringapatam, at the expense of the Peishwa, of the Nizam, and of some Patan princes in Malwa His strength and consideration are said to be upon the increase

Tuccojee Holkar's power was on the decline even before his death, since that period the political weight of this family has been greatly dimmished by intestine divisions between the successors of Tuccoiee

The chiefship of Puiseram Bhow is extinct, and that of Hurry Pundit has lost the greater part of its credit and power.

I have alteady spoken of the Petshwa, the events which have reduced his importance are familiar to you I will only add this remark, that the jealousy which must naturally subsist between the present Peishwa and his minister Nana (who at one period of the late revolutions at Poonah supported Chimma Appa, the younger son of Bajerow, the present Peishwa) is a circumstance likely to present additional obstacles to any vigorous evention of the force of the government of Poonah, if it does not produce some new convulsions in its frame. I believe it may justly be said, that since the foundation of the government the power of the Peishwa never was so inconsiderable in the general scale of the Mahratta states as it is at this moment

Having thus stated to you my reasons for apprehending that the efficiency of both the allies on whom we are to depend for aid in any future contest with Tippoo is so much impaired since the year 1793, that we could not look to them at this junctime for the same degree of assistance (whatever that may have been) which Loid Connwallis derived from their cooperation in the late was with that primee I now beg leave to call your attention to certain encumstances in our situation, intimately connected with our political weight in India, and with our means of encountering again, at any early period, the pressure of war.

(The despatches which accompany this letter will inform you of the death of the Nabob Viziei Azoph ul Dowla, and of the very extraordinary scenes which have passed in Oude since that event. The event itself I should have considered in the abstract as highly favourable to our interests, being persuaded that under the reign of Azoph ul Dowla it would ever have been impracticable to have carried into permanent effect any reform in the disordered finances and undisciplined army of that prince With the assistance of Tofuzul Hussein Khan, the new minister of Oude, it might have been hoped that the succession of a new prince might have opened more favourable prospects But the strange and unfortunate cucomstances attending the succession of Viziei Ali seem to lead to a situation of affairs in Oude which, for some time, must impair the strength of that frontier, and render the country more open to the impression of a foreign enemy Almas Alı is said to be ready to take the field with a very respectable force, and the Rohilla chiefs, of whose persevering sprit we have had a recent experience, are also mentioned as being upon the point of an insurrection the whole country is represented to be in a state to require the presence of a large military force, for the maintenance of internal neace and good order This state of our affairs in Oude must be deemed a positive diminution of our disposable force, I trust that the activity (perhaps even the mere presence of our troops) may reduce the insurgents to submission But while any ambiguity remains respecting the permanency of the settlement made in favour of Vizier Ali-while the same turbulent spirit shall exist among the Robillas, and the military nower of Almas Alı continues undiminished, it can never be safe to withdraw our troops, and it must be remarked that the danger of withdrawing them would be increased exactly in proportion to the pressure of the necessity of employing them against any foreign enemy You will find that the Governor-General states his conviction, without reserve, that the approach of Zemaun Shah towards the frontier of Onde would become the signal of general revolt and plunder in that province In the meanwhile I cannot consider the call for the employment of our troops in quelling the spirit of insurjection in another quarter to be yet so little urgent as to leave us free to act against an enemy on that side without apprehension of our own subjects. I allude to the present state of the coast of Malabar I find that a treaty has been signed with the Pyche Raiah, but as far as I can collect from the despatches, it does not appear to me that his submission has been so complete, or his power so broken, as to warrant a sentiment of security either in his weakness or in his sincerity This circumstance again must operate as a diversion of our force in the event of war With respect to our financial resources I refer you to the same despatches for an account of the general embanassment both of public and private credit, and the difficulty of raising money for public credit, even at the exorbitant interest of 12 per cent, with the combined advantage of a remittance The great expense of the long intended and suddenly relinquished expedition to Manilla, must of necessity increase both the difficulty and the exigency of laising further loans To this view of our situation must be added the state of our dependencies of Arcot and Tanjore, as represented by the Madras government, both with respect to the disaffection and refractory spunt of the Nabob and Rajah, and to the decline of the permanent sources of public revenue. I hope I shall not be suspected of wishing to draw a gloomy or exaggeated pictime of the altered aspect of our affains since the peace of Seingapatam, my only wish is to fit your attention, as I have fixed my own, on the time position of our weakness, for the purpose of considering the specifiest means of recovering our strength. I know that the fortunate events of this most glorious war have given us an ascendancy over every European nation in India, such as we never before possessed, but I cannot shut my eyes to the diminution which our weight in the scale of the country powers has suffered, and is likely to suffer still more, if the means of checking the progress of the evil be much longer neglected Nor can I refuse my assent to the truth of a proposition which I now think it my duty to urge to you with great earnestness, that unless effectual and vigorous measures be taken for quelling the disturbances in our own provinces and in those of our dependencies. I do not see how we can again be prepared to meet an enemy of any respectable force in the field To the distress of our finances I am persuaded your most anxious attention will be given without delay, and you may rely on seceiving from me the most ample communications on that subject upon my arrival in India

In reviewing our political situation in India, particularly with regard to our comparative power of curbing the attempts of Tippoo, I ought not to omit the consideration of the relative strength of that prince as it exists in the present moment, and as it stood at the conclusion of the peace of Seringantam.

Since that peuod of time he has enjoyed perfect internal tranguility. While our allies all around him have been distracted and exhausted by domestic rebellions, successive revolutions, and mutual wars, he has been employed in recruiting the sources of his strength, improving his revenues, and invigorating the discipline of his aimies. It is true that he must now have nearly lost all hope of assistance. If now all the form any other European power, but that hope was long cherished by him, and it encouraged him to the great exertions which have unquestionably added to his miltary strength (He has been very active for some time past in his applications to the Courts of the Native Powers, endeavouring to sit them up against us. He certainly applied for that purpose to the Nizam, and (during the absence of Azim ul

Its true there were no Fiench Troops disposable at the Mauritius, and France seemed at that time too much engaged in Europe to spare toops for the East, but Tippoo was not aware of these circumstances, and had sent Ambassadois to the Mauritius at this very period, of which Lord Mornington could not then be apprised

Omra at Poonah) he made a very strong impression upon the politics of the Court of Hydensbad, where he now has a Vakeel, and where he certainly has many partizans, as well in the coips of Raymond as in the service of Unjud ud Dowla, a cher of a considerable faction called the Paungah party, and in that of Imitiaz ud Dowlah, nephew to the Nizam. Thypo has also sent Vakeels to Poonah, with the same object of raising a spirit of hostility against us His success, I beheve, has not answered his wishes in that quatter.

But the most remarkable step which Tippoo has lately taken, is his communication with Zemaun Shah. The declared projects of Zemaun Shah, added to the attempts which he has recently made towards carrying them into execution, must, in then general impression and effect, be considered as an accession of strength to the cause of Tippoo If an invasion of Hindostan should ever seriously be attempted by Zemaun Shah, the diversion of our force, which would be occasioned by such an event, would offer the most favourable opportunity to an attack from Tippoo on our possessions in the Peninsula No mode of carrying on war against us could be more vexatious or more distressing to our resources than a combined attack upon Oude and the Carnatic It is not impossible that the late intercourse between Tippoo and Zemaun Shah had for its object, on the part of the former at least, some such plan of joint operation I know that it is the fashion to treat the projects of Zemaun Shah very lightly In the despatches you will see an account of his force, and you will find a detail of all the intelligence obtained respecting his future intentions, as well as of the causes likely to obstruct then execution. The result of an examination of these materials upon my mind is a conviction that Zemaun Shah has not abandoned his project of invading Hindostan, and that the safest means of rendering that project abortive will be to consider it as practicable, and to take the best precautions against it which the advantages of our situation and the interval of time can furnish. The fact is that Zemaun Shah was able to advance to Lahore without opposition from the Seiks whatever circumstances recalled him into his own dominions, the above-mentioned fact well deserves attention, because it contradicts all the conjectures and opinions which had been so confidently formed with respect to the obstacles which Zemann Shah would meet in his passage from his own dominions to ours. The nation of the Seiks was said to be the first barrier against him, and it was asserted this bairier alone would be insuperable. He contrived, however, to pass through the country of the Serks unmolested, and, if I am rightly informed, he has since endeavoused, not without success, to negociate a treaty with some of the leaders of the various factions which distract that nation Should be succeed in establishing an amicable intercourse with any large body of the Seiks, it would greatly facilitate the success of his supposed project of invasion Between the country of the Seiks and the frontier of Oude no obstacle remains but the Mahratta Power It is perfectly well known that when Zemaun Shah reached Lahore the Mahiattas were by no means in a condition to check his progress They had no army in that quarter which could have been opposed to him in the field Scindiah was at that time at Poonah with the greater part of his force deeply engaged in the intrigues and revolutions of which that place has been so long the scene If Zemaun Shah had not been recalled by some domestic cause (of which the true nature does not seem yet to be thoroughly understood), there cannot be a doubt that he might have penetrated through the possessions of Scindiah, in the neighbourhood of Delhi and Agra, without difficulty, if not without opposition From the accounts which I have received of the military force of Scindish. I do not believe that he alone would be able to cope with the army of Zemaun Shah, and therefore I do not feel that we should be secure at any time if we relied on his single efforts to check the approach of the invading force. With the experience of this critical state of affairs in my mind, I cannot consider the idea of an invasion from Cabul as a mere visionary dan-It does not appear to have been so considered by the present Government of Bengal, who have stated it as one of the leading cucumstances which called for an augmentation of their native infantry

To recur, therefore, to the view of the political balance of power in India, which I was endeavouring to submit to you, I think myself compelled to estimate the force of Trippoo with reference to the projects of Zemann Shah, and to the possession.

bility of then (at least limited) success, and on this ground I must conclude that Tippoo's consideration has received additional weight since the year 1793)

If the facts be true which I have stated on both sides of this enumeration of the comparative circumstances of our situation in India, and of those which affect the situation of Tippoo, it must be admitted that he has rather gained than lost weight in the period of time described, and that the consistency, unity, and efficiency of our side of the balance has suffered no inconsiderable degree of diminution Letter No I, from this place, I have opened to you some parts of the general outline of those measures which appear to me to be best calculated to restore the Native Powers of India and ourselves to the same position in which we stood in 1793, as far as the change of times and circumstances will admit So far from viewing any plan tending to this object, as an innovation upon our system of Indian government, I feel it to be my duty to state such a plan, in conformity to the instructions which I had received from you at the time of my departure, and to every principle which I have at any time imbled from you on this interesting subject of nower in India no longer exists upon the same footing on which it was placed by the peace of Seringapatam question therefore must arise, how it may best be brought back again to that state, in which you have directed me to maintain it

(My piesent view of the subject is, that the wisest course would be to strengthen the Mahiattas and the Nizam, by entering into a defensive alliance with the former against Zemain Shah, and by affording to the latter an addition of military strength, and the means of extricating himself from the control of the French party at Hydeiabad

In framing a treaty of defensive alliance against Zemaum Shah, the object to be sought would be the securing an efficient force to be in the field in due time to check the progress of Zemaun Shah in the Mahratta territory of Delhi, or at least of Agra the danger to be avoided would be the drawing our troops farther beyond the hie of the frontier of Oude than might be necessary for securing the fain common objects of the alliance. To this treaty I would make the Nizam a party. The treaty should not contain a hostile word against

Zemann Shah, excepting only with reference to the single case of his projects of invasion, and it should be communcated to him with assurances of our determination never to molest him in his own dominions, nor to suffer him to approach ours. Ji have sufficiently stated all that relates to the Nizam in my Letter No I, to which I refer you also for my opinion of the possibility of iemoving the grounds of jealousy between him and the Mahautas, or at least of checking the hostile attempts of either party upon the power of the other

You will perceive that the course of my opinions would also lead me to take every step consistent with the rules of caution and moderation for restoring to the Peisliwa such a degree of power as might render lim able to fulfil the subsisting engagements between us and the Mahiatta empire.

The most pressing part of the whole subject seems to be the state of Oude, of the coast of Malabar, of the Carnatic, and of Tanjoie (With respect to the disturbances in Oude I trust that the exertions of Lord Teignmouth and of Sir Alured Clarke will have done a meat deal before my arrival. I think this the occasion to remark to you, that I have met no person who does not complain of the insufficiency of our force in cavalry in Bengal and Oude Our new native regiments are yet scarcely formed, and there is but one regiment of European diagoons in that quarter, which also is nearly mefficient, from having been imprudently and unnecessarily exposed to the violence of the heat There is a very good and more than complete regiment of dragoons here (the 8th), which, having been here for near two years, is well seasoned for the Indian service It would be a very acceptable guest in Bengal, and might become very useful, not only in the event of any attempt of Zemaun Shah, but also in quelling the disturbances in Oude, and in serving as a model to our newly-raised native cavalry I confess, that under all the present cucumstances of India, I should be glad to see one or two more King's regiments of infantity in Bengal There is a very fine regiment now here (the 84th), which has been thoroughly seasoned, and is extremely strong in point of numbers At all events I hope you will reinforce our cavalry without delay, and at the same time send us some good cavalry officer to form the new corps >

With respect to the coast of Malabai I shall never think our affairs safe in that quarter until the whole tribe of peculators and plunderers has been severely punished, and until the Pyche Raiah has been reduced to unconditional submission Our possessions on the coast of Malabai will become an incumbiance to us if they are not speedily brought into some condition of order A more active and vigorous contiol is necessary I cannot speak of Aicot and Tamore until I have been upon the spot You will find by the despatches, that in consequence of a failure in the payment of his kists, a part of the Rajah's country is fallen into our hands The present state of India does not perhaps, on the whole, offer the most favourable occasion for the new settlement of the Musnud of Tanjore If I should see cause for delay I shall not hesitate to postpone the deposition of the present Rajah to a more convenient time, according to the discretionary powers vested in me by the orders of the Secret Committee

The only point which remains for consideration is the conduct to be observed towards Tuppoo You will find in the despatches that the Supreme Government still retain their opinion respecting our right to the district of Wynaad, but as they have directed that an anneable inquiry should take place on that question, the execution of your orders will become more easy *

I have adveited in this Letter to the mereased assidinty with which Tippoo has endeavoured to raise animosities against us among the Native Powers, and to his intercourse with Zemaun Shah. I wish to know from you, whether we ought to suffer, without ammadveision and spinited representation, such open acts of hostility on the part of Tippoo, My ideas on this subject are, that as on the one hand we ought never to use any high language towards Tippoo, no ever attempt to deny him the smallest point of his just rights, so on the other, where we have distinct proofs of his machinations against us, we ought to let him know that his teachery does not escape our observation, and to make him feel that he is within the reach of our vigilance (At present it appears to me that he is permitted to excite ill will against us wherever he pleases, without the least attempt on our part to reprehend either him for the suggestion, or the Court, to whom he applies, for listening to it.

^{*} Mr Dundas's verbal orders to Lord Monnington (given at Walmer Castle, in presence of Mr Pitt, in October 1797) were to restore Wynaad to Tippoo without requiring any equivalent

This examination of the political state of India leads me to look at the situation in which we should find ourselves in that quarter in the event of the speedy conclusion of a peace with France

The best peace we can expect will restore to the French all, and to the Dutch (whom I conceive as French under another name) a great part of their former possessions in India The condition of the several Native Powers, both with relation to each other and to our interests, is more favourable to the success of French intrigue than it has been at any period since the peace of Seingapatam. We must therefore expect to be assailed on all sides by the combined operations of every species of instrument which can be set to work for the purpose of undermining the foundations of our credit, character, and power You can best judge whether it may be possible to introduce into the Treaty of Peace any restrictions which shall tend to check, in any degree, the violence of this evil But if there be truth in the views which I take of the state of India, and of the probable conduct of the French whenever they shall again obtain even their former footing in that country, how powerful an argument arises against permitting them to receive any addition of strength which might render them more respectable in the general scale of Indian power I am persuaded that the possession of Ceylon, either in the hands of France or of her bond-slave Holland, would enable the French interests in India to rise, within a very short period, to a degree of formidable strength never before possessed by them. On this subject I find no difference of opinion in the minds of any person acquainted with India The possession of Ceylon is universally held to be indispensable to the preservation both of our power on the Continent and of our commerce on the seas of India

I am led by this observation to add a very few words with relation to this place —

Before my arrival here I had formed very high ideas of the intrinsic value of the Cane as a colony, but I had not estimated so highly its value with reference to the defence of our trade to the East, and of our territories in India

You will have received from Lord Macartney such ample details with respect to the real value of this colony in point of revenue, and of every species of resource, that I shall say no more than that I am convinced it would require a long tract of time to render the Cape an object of any consideration in this view You must consider it as a possession which cannot furnish the means of maintaining its own expense, and you must look for its value in the positive advantages it would afford to the enemy as a military and naval station for offensive purposes against you, and in the relative advantages which can be magned to a power compelled to maintain a large European force in India The climate is remarkably healthy. so much so that the appearance both of the officers and soldiers stationed here bears striking testimony to the fact: you will hardly see regiments in England of so healthy an appearance as those which have been here for any time The heat is however frequently very severe, so that a soldier who has been here for a year or two is well accustomed to be exposed to a very ardent sun, and receives a sort of preparation for the climate of India The advantage of this circumstance has lately been proved in India, where the regiments which had passed through the seasoning of this climate have airived and continued in much better health than those which proceeded thither directly from Europe, or which remained here but for a very short period of time As a depot, therefore, for the maintenance of a military force in India, the Cape is invaluable, and to the enemy, in this view, it would furnish easy means of pouring in troops either upon the coast of Coromandel or of Malabar, in such a state of health as to be able to encounter at once all the inconveniences of an Indian cli-With this opinion you may judge with what serious apprehension I should see this place in the hands of the enemy, to whose political consideration in India such a possession would always be a powerful accession, but at no time so formidable as in the present disturbed state of the Native Powers

As a naval station I look upon the Cape to be still more important. Many ships in the Indian and China trade make the land upon the outward, and all upon the homeward-bound, passage The course of those even which keep far thest to the southward never is more distant from the Cave than two or three degrees of latitude An enemy's squadron stationed at the Cape, could not fail to intercept the greater part of our trade to and from the East, without being under the necessity of making any very distant cruizes We should find it impossible to check the operations of such a squadion, unless we could continue to send out with every trading fleet from Europe a convoy of such considerable force as must compel us greatly to increase our present naval establishments The expense of fitting out such large fleets of ships of war, victualled and stored for the whole voyage to India or China, would be enormous, and here, in my opinion, is the point of the question upon which the whole argument must tuin-which would be the heavier expense? to retain the Cape. keeping up a large naval and military establishment here, and using it as an outpost to your Indian empire, or to leave the Cape in the hands of the enemy, and by so doing incur the necessity of increasing to a vast amount the protecting naval force requisite for the defence of your Indian and China trade? The expense of the Cape in our hands, however large, must not be estimated at so much positive loss There are two points of view in which that loss may be considered to be compensated by a proportional diminution of expense in other establishments. The army stationed at the Cape might always be looked upon as a part of the Indian force. and a correspondent saving ought to be made in the expense of your European army in India Your Indian and China ships might, under proper regulations, be victualled at the Cape at a much cheaper rate than in Europe, consequently, then valuable cargoes both outward and homeward might be increased in proportion to the smaller quantity of tonnage occupied by their provisions Instead of taking six months' provisions from Asia or Europe, they need not take more than three, and the vacant tonnage might serve for an augmentation of their cargoes of merchandize. In this view a great advantage would result to the East India Company from the possession of the Cape The whole of this comparative statement might be reduced to calculation, and it would not be difficult for you at once to estimate the several articles of expense which must be incurred by the public in either event, of retaining the Cape or of abandoning it to France

But I doubt whether, with the Cape in the hands of the enemy, it would be possible to you to maintain you Indian taids or empire, unless you could acquire some other settlement on the southern continent of Africa. This I know to be Loid Macaitney's opinion, and if this opinion be just, the question of the expense of maintaining the Cape will be materially varied.

To bring back this discussion to the point from which it proceeded, I trust you will bean in mind the state of the Native Powers in India at this moment, and recollecting that the greatest advantage which we now possess in the present deranged condition of those interests, which had been so wisely and judiciously balanced by the Treaty of Seningapatam, is the utter exclusion of any preponderant European Power from the scale of Indian politics, you will contend stiemuously against any concession in the peace with France which may place the security of our Eastern trade and empire at hei mercy

Believe me, dear Sn, &c &c

Mornington

P S On reading over my letter I find that I have omitted to state one consideration relating to the value of the Cape as a military station. I believe the necessity of retaining Ceylon is now admitted universally. With the Cape in the hands of an enemy, would it be possible to retain Ceylon for any long period of time?

No IV

Lord Mornington to the Nabob of Arcot

April 27th, 1798

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HIGHNESS,

It has given me great satisfaction to learn from General Harris that you Highness enjoys a good state of health My flist enquiries upon my arrival at Fort St George were respecting your Highness's welfare.

I return your Highness many thanks for the several obliging messages which I have had the honor to receive from you

I am very anxious to take the earliest opportunity of paying you my respects in person, and of presenting to you several lettles which I am charged to delive to you from his Majesty the King of Great Bittam, from II R H the Plince of Wales, H R H the Duke of York, and the Marquess Counwallis

I will wait upon your Highness with great pleasure at any hour that you will be pleased to appoint on to-morrow, or any day that may be agreeable to you

I have the honor to be, &c

Morningion

I date this letter from one of your Highness's houses in which Gen Hamis has placed me

No V

The Prince of Waler to the Nabob of Arcot

Carlton House, October 14, 1797

The Nobleman who will deliver this Letter to your Highness, it is with the greatest satisfaction I infoim you, is a paiticular firend of my own—he is justify celebiated for his great talents, and his private character being that of honour, moderation and mildness, must necessarily recommend him to the confidence and good opinion of your Highness

I could say much more upon this subject, but when I acquaint you, that his Majesty had previously bestowed upon him the most eminent marks of royal favour, I am sure it must be deemed useless to suggest any other proof how acceptable such a nomination must be to the interests of your Highness.

I shall conclude with expressing a hope that your Highness may long continue to enjoy that health and prosperity to which your exalted rank and character entitles you

> I am your affectionate Friend, G. P. W.

No VI.

Marquess Cornwallis to the Nubob of Arcot

Whitehall, 17th October, 1797

This letter will be delivered to your Highness by Lord Moinington, who is appointed Governor General, and who will pass some days at Madras on his way to Bengal

Lord Monington is my friend, and as I know that he entertains the same sentiments with myself especting the affairs of India, I can venture to promise that he will behave towards you with kindness, and endeavour to promote your welfare and happiness.

Your Highness must remember the many conversations that we had on the situation of your father and your family, and the condition of your country, and how strongly I represented to you the distresses which your father had brought upon himself by histening to the advice of those Europeans who flattered him only to serve their own purposes, instead of trusting to the firendship and honor of the Company's Government.

I have frequently heard you confess that no European evercame to Chepauk House, but with an intention to take your father's money, and you gave me ieason to believe that when you succeeded to the sovereignty of the country, you would endeavour to secure yourself from the attempts of a similar nature by iemoving to a greater distance from the scene of intrigue and coil uption

Whatever your present determination may be, I recommend to you to speak your mind openly and freely to Lord Morimutton, whom you may safely trust, and who has no object in view but your interest and that of the Company, which in the opinion of all men who wish well to both parties, must

I am your Highness's sincere Friend, Cornwallis.

No VII

George III to the Nabob of Arcot

George the Third, by the Grace of God King of Great Butam, France, and Lieland, Defendeu of the Christian Fauth, Duke of Brumswick and Lunenburgh, Arch Treasurer and Prince Elector of the Holy Roman Empire, &c.,—To his Highness the Nawaub Omdatul Omah Mayeen ul Mink, Assad-ud Dowlah, Hussein Ally Cawn Bahawdei Zulfstear—A Jung Sepah Sundaß, Sovereign of the Cannatic, Payenghaut, and Ballandphaut

You Highness's letter of the 19th of March, 1796, has been safely delivered to us by our fathful servant Admiral Sir George Keith Elphinstone, and we are convinced you Highness will learn with pleasure that, in order to give this excellent office a proof of our entire satisfaction with the services he had rendered to our Crown, to your Highness, and to the E ist India Company during his command in India, we have conferred upon him a mark of our Royal favor by raising him to the dignity of the peerage in our langdom of Iteland.

The happiness we at all times derive from your Highness's friendly correspondence has been on this occasion deeply affected on observing the differences which appear to exist between your Highness and our faithful servant Loid Hobait, who, whatever momentary moonvenience your Highness may have experienced from his conduct, we are confident could be actuated by no other motive than an anxious desire to ensure the permanent welfare and honor of your Highness, and the happiness and prosperity of your people

These important considerations we well know to be also the grounds of your Highness's conduct, and we earnestly recommend to you to be assured that the Counsels of our Mimsters at home, and the wishes of the East India Company and its Servants, are even directed to these objects. The East India Company has appointed our right trusty and right well beloved Cousin and Councillor, Richard, Earl of Mornington, in our kingdom of Ireland, Baron Wellesley in our kingdom of Great Britam, and Knight of the most Illustrious Order of Samt Patrick, to be Governor General in India

Out experience of his conciliatory temper, and many eminent virtues and abilities in various offices he has held for many years under our Crown, induced us to recommend him to this high and important station. These distinguished qualities are so many pledges to us, that the exercise of the power vested in him will be such as to concluste your Highness's entire confidence and esteem, and that your Highness's will endeavour on all occasions to cultivate his friendship and good will, by co-operating with him in all his salutary views for the happiness of your Highness, and of your subjects, and for the happiness of your Highness, and of your subjects, and for strengthening and confirming the engagements of amity and union subsisting between your Highness and the East India Company.

From our experience of the fehicity derived from our constant paternal love and care of all our subjects, we are persuaded your Highness will best promote your individual happiness and tanquality, by shewing yourself on all occasions just, benevolent and mei criful to all those whom the Almighty has placed under your protection, by calling to His presence your angust Father, His forms servant

This hie of conduct, an inviolable fidelity in all your engagements, and an unreserved confidence in, and support of, the measures the wisdom of the Earl of Morinigton may suggest, cannot fail to ensure to your Highness the continuance of the most sincere friendship on the part of the East India Company, and of our alliance and protection

We embrace this opportunity of infoiming your Highness that, on the 11th of this month, one of our fleets obtained a most buillant and decisive victory over the grand fleet of Holland, of which more than one half was taken and is brought into our poits. An event so gloious to our aims, and of such importance to the security of all our possessions, and of India in particular, will, we are persuaded, afford your Highness great satisfaction.

We have only further to assure you of the lively interest

we take in every thing that concerns your Highness, and the happiness we at all times feel when your Highness's friendly letters are delivered into our hands

And so we bid you farewell.

No VIII

Memorandum at Fort St George

Fort St George, May 8, 1798

His Highness the Nabob of the Carnatic, having expressed his desire, that a new arrangement should take place with respect to the Polygars, and to several other points, communicated by his Highness in conversation and in writing to Lord Moinington, and his Highness having also complained. that under the present arrangement of his monthly payments, he was compelled at a particular period of every year to laise money upon assignments of the revenues of the country, which forms the security for the payment of the Company's military subsidy, Loid Moinington declared his cordial disposition to enter upon the consideration of his Highnesses propositions, provided his Highness would consent to permit the servants of the Company, to become the managers of the several districts in the Carnatic mortgage for the payment of the annual military subsidy This condition Lord Mornington proposed, as the only effectual nemedy which could be applied to the injurious system of anticipating the revenues of the mortgaged districts by loans and Tunkhwahs, or other modes of assignment, a system, which the Honorable the Court of Directors has declared to be contrary to the letter, and subversive of the spirit of the treaty of 1792

No IX

From Governor Duncan

My Lord,

Bombay, 23rd May, 1798

I beg leave, on the occasion of this first communication, to assure your lordship that it's not having been earlier has certanly proceeded from no other motive than a reluctance to appear forwardly intures on your lodship's time, having otherwise little else to impart than what will have much sooner reached you through the correspondence of the Commissioners in Malabar and of the Board here, with the Government of Fort St. George, and with the acting Governor-General, nor have our lastest advices from the coast tended hitherto to throw any satisfactory light on what may be the Sultan's intentions, but should he have been induced to more peaceable councils, so fortunate a change must, no doubt, have been the happy effect of the influence of your lordship's opportune arrival, and of its consequences

Being still, however, uncertain here as to the event, I think your loidship may consider as meriting some degree of attention, the following memoranda, collected from such information as could be furnished by Captain Smedley and the officers of the Raymond, from the opportunities they had whilst in company with their captors of deriving insight into the views of the Fiench as connected with Tippoo, all which seems but too comoborative of the other indications on the same subject, which were such as to have induced us very earnestly to convey all the knowledge we possessed on the subject to the Admial, with the hope of thereby flustrating the arrival of succours to Tippoo by the way of Mangalore, as might, no doubt, have been ensured but for the early departure of the Suffolk and Allogant to the other coast, which was immediately followed by the surprise and capture of our Indiamen, the loss from which to the Company will not, including the Amelia destroyed by fire, exceed four lacks and thuty thousand supees, instead of the very large amount which by the newspapers it appears to have been understood to amount to on the other side of India, and we have taken measures to provide against the recurrence of such a misfortune by fixing the seat of the commercial residency at Cannanore, under the guns of which fortiess several Indiamen may at a time, or separately, find effectual protection from any enemy

With the best wishes for the success and honour of your lordship's administration, and the sincerest desire to contribute towards it by every exertion that in my station I can make, as well as thence to ment and enjoy the gratification of your lordship's correspondence and advice

I have the honor to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's very obedient humble servant,
The Rt Hon the Earl of Mornington, K P John Duncan

&c &ι &c, Bengal

[The Memoranda gives the evidence of some English pursoners on boad La Pieneaue Fiench fligate, as to a copy of the proceedings at the Isle of France, in reference to Tippoo Sultam's embassy having been hung up in the state cabin of La Pieneaue, whose officers repeatedly inquired whether Tippoo had not already declared war against the East India Company]

Minute of the Governor-General on Trayore 31st of May, 1798

I take this early opportunity of communicating to the Board the annexed Letter, delivered to me by the Secret Committee of the Honourable the Court of Duectors, contaming the final judgment of the Government at home upon the important question of the succession to the Musnud of Tanjore, together with the orders to the Government of Fort St George, and to myself to executing that judgment Upon my arrival at Fort St George I had the satisfaction to learn that the general state of India in relation to the internal situation of our possessions, as well as to external politics, was such as would admit of the immediate execution of the orders of the Secret Committee, but other material considerations occurred to my mind which led me to conclude that some modiffication in the manner of carrying those orders into effect was necessary, for the purpose of securing the attainment of the substantial ends of justice, to which the views of the Secret Committee were principally directed

By the annexed despatch the appointment of a Commission to examine and report the real state of the country of Tanjore is ordered, as a step preparatory to the ultimate measure of blacing Serfosee upon the Musmud From the best information which I could collect during my stay at Madass, I am convinced that while a large portion of the country shall remain in the hands of the present Rajah, and while his authority shall be acknowledged to be lawful, the inquiries of such a Commission would be embarrassed in every shape, and fuststated in the end, and that the final result would prove equally prejudicial to the interests of Serfogee, and highly mjurious to the prosperity and happiness of the neonle of Tanjote

To enable the Commission to prosecute their inquinies with any prospect of success, it would be necessary that they should have access to all the accounts of the Palace, and that they should have powers to require the attendance of all persons whom they might deem capable of furnishing them with information respecting the real state of the country

It could not be expected that the present Rajah would willingly give his consent to an inquiry which must terminate in exposing his evil administration, or that, if he could be prevalled upon to acquisesce in such a measure, he would not oppose to its progress obstacles which no difference or acturity could overcome, and which must render the whole investigation abortive

The report of a Commission so embarrassed must have proved msufficient to answer the views entertained by the Secret Committee of founding upon it the basis of a new settlement for the county of Tanjone

In addition to this consideration, it would have been impossible to expect that a Commission under such circumstances could have produced a report within any short period of time. The information which I seceived at Madias convinced me that no sepont could be made by such a Commission within a shorter space of time than ten or twelve months, a degree of delay as contrary to the spirit of the orders of the Secret Committee as to the substantial purposes of justice.

It could never have been in the contemplation of the Government at home, after the solemn adjudication of the Musmud to Serfogee, to postpone to so distant a day, by an act of then own, his final restoration to his acknowledged rights,

For so long a period of time it would not have been possible, by any degree of vigilance, to have concealed the real object of the inquity from the anxious mind of the present

Under such encumstances Amei Sing would no longen have felt any interest in the welfare of the country, or in fulfilling the stipulations of the Treaty of 1798 with regard to his payments to the Company, and it cannot be doubted that he and his adhieuents would have endeavoured, by every means in their power, to protract the investigation, in order to avail themselves of the interval for the purposes of extortion and embezzlement.

The consequences to the interests of Serfogee, to those of the Company, and to the welfare of the people of Tanjore, are evident

To have appointed a Commission without the consent of the piesent Rajah, and to have empowed them to act independently of his authority, would have been considered by him, as well as by the other powers of India, as a violation of the Theaty of 1792, to which we are bound to adhere so long as we continue to recognize him as the lawful Prince of Taniote.

To obviate these difficulties, I determined previously to my departure from Fort St George to place Serfogee upon the Musmud with all practicable dispatch, and to direct that the necessary inquiries into the state of the country should be made after his accession, when I have no doubt that they may be prosecuted with facultry, and may frumals materials for a final arrangement of the affairs of Tanjore conformable to the orders of the Secret Committee, and equally beneficial to all parties

The inquiry into the relative rights of Serfogee and Amer. Sing having been prosecuted principally at this residency, and it being necessary for the honour and reputation of the Bittish name to accompany the deposition of the latter with a full explanation of the grounds on which so important a measure was determined, I did not think it advisable to issue my final orders to the Government of Fort St George until I had been enabled, by a reference to those who had been employed in the conduct of the migury in Bengal, to finame a distinct statement of its nature and object.

Accordingly I have postponed my ultimate instructions to the Government of Fort St George until the present moment, it is now my intention to direct that Government to place Serfogee upon the Musnud of Tanjore without further delay

I propose to leave it to that Government to make such arangements as they may deem advisable for caliying this measure into execution in the most expeditious manner, and for guarding against any disturbance or insult to the Rajah, Amer Sing, or his family I trust, however, there are no reasons to apprehend any such event.

It will be proper, notwithstanding, before the present Rajah is apprised of the intentions of Government, that pre-cautions should be taken for preventing the removal of any of the public treasure, jewels, or papers from the Palace, and I think it advisable that the resident, the commanding officer of the troops, and any other persons whom the Government of Fort SF George may direct to accompany the Resident for that purpose, should be ordered to fix them seals on the apartments in which such papers or effects are oldered, until Serfosce shall be established on the Musmud

No time should be lost in removing Amer Sing from Tanjoic to whatever place the Government of Fort St George may think proper, and a suitable guard should be stationed with him for his protection his future place of residence will be determined by circumstances

I have prepared for the Rajah, Amer. Sing, to be delivered to him on announcing the decision of the Company, a letter, communicating the grounds of the judgment in favour of the right of Serfogee, and assuring him that his person shall be protected; and that whatever shall be adjudged to be his private property, and not to belong to the Sucan, shall be secured to him, together with a suitable provision for his maintenance so long as he shall conduct himself in all respects to the satisfaction of the Government of Fort St. George

Immediately after Serfogee shall have been placed upon the Musnud, it will be proper to cause a proclamation (of which I now lay a copy before the Boaid), with translations in all the country languages, and copies of all the questions stated to the Pundits teganding the succession both here and at Foit St George, to be fixed up in the most public places in Tanjose

A letter has also been prepared, to be delivered to Serfogee on communcating to him the decision in favour of his right to the Musinud, and the Government of Fort St George shall be instructed to require, at the same time, his assent to the following stipulations, which, however they may be authorized to modify in case any circumstance of which I may not at present be apprised, should render such modification necessary—

First, That he will acquiesce in the appointment of a Commission, to consist of Company's servants, for the purpose of inquiring into the present state and resources of Tanjore

Secondly, That he will allow the Commission to have access to all the public accounts and records of the country, whether deposited in the Palace or elsewhere

Thudly, That he will cause the attendance of all persons whom the Commission may require to appear before them for the purposes of their inquiry, and that he will afford them every assistance in his power for the speedy and successful accomplishment of it

Fourthly, That until the Commission shall have closed the proposed inquiry, and until the airangements which may be agreed upon in consequence shall have been carried into effect, the Treaty of 1793 shall continue in full force, in the same manner as if no change had taken place in the succession, and consequently the servants of the Company shall retain the management of the Soubalis, which have been assumed in consequence of the failure of Amer Sing in the payment of his kists

Fifthly, That whenever the Commission shall have terminated the proposed inquiry, he will consent to such arnaigements as the Government of Foit St George, with the sanction of the Governon-General in Council, may deem expedient for the better management of his country, and particularly for the due administration of justice, and also for securing to the Company the more regular discharge of their existing and future demands on Tanjore

Sixthly, That he, jointly with the Government of Fort St George, will engage to affort full protection to the persons of Amei Sing and his family, and that he will secure to Amer Sing such property as that Government may determine not to belong to the Sincai, and also that he will pay to Amei Sing junctually, thi ough the Government of Fort St. George, such sum for his maintenance as that Government may think reasonable, so long as Amer Sing shall conduct himself in every respect to their satisfaction.

Considering the disorders that have prevailed in Taniore since the accession of Amei Sing, the little experience which Serfogee can be supposed to possess with respect to the management of his affairs, and his want of proper officers for the conduct of busmess, added to the heavy demands which he must discharge immediately upon his accession, I am convinced that it would be equally conducive to his interests. and to those of the Company, that in addition to the several stroulations which I have now detailed, Serfogee should consent to transfer the entire charge of the country of Tanjore to the Government of Fort St George for a period of one or more years after his accession, that Government engaging to be accountable to him for whatever should be collected from the country beyond the amount of the annual sum due to the Company under the Treaty of 1792, and also affording him a sufficient allowance for the maintenance of his rank

I do not however think it proper to direct the Government of Fort St. George to make any proposition to him to this effect. The Secret Committee have most justly remarked, that as it is our duty to interfere in the settlement of the succession to the Musmid of Tanjore, for the purpose of remedying that injustice which originated in our former interference, so it would afford just cause of reproach against us, if, after such a lapse of time, the Native Powers of India wene to observe us interfering in the present instance in one to carry into effect any forfeiture in our own favour. I deem it of the greatest importance to the national honour, that no grounds should be afforded for suspicion, that the change in the succession had been dictated by a desine to extend our influence in the country, or by any other motives than those of a strict regard to justice

Should, however, the Rajah be sensible of his mability to enter on the immediate arrangement of the country, and express a desine to the Government of Fort St George that they should for that leason assume the temporary charge of it, that Government will have my sanction to acquiesce in his wishes on the terms I have already stated

Should the Rajah determine to undertake the charge of the part of the country which has not been assumed under the Treaty of 1792, I am of opmion that every midulgence ought to be shown to him with legald to his flist payments, and that the provisions of the Treaty of 1792, for cases of failure, should not be put in force against him until he has had adequate time to effect his payments from the resources of the country.

To this indulgence, however, I think it will be proper to amex a condition, that the Rajah shall pay due attention to the recommendation of the Commission in the selection of his ministers, and of his other principal officers, as the only means of convincing us that the indulgence will not be abused

I am also of opmon that, if it should be found necessary, the Govenment of Fort St George should assist the new Rajah, by guaranteeing to the Soucas the repayment of such pecumary advances as they should make to him for the cultivation of the country, provided that the amount of such advances be limited and applied by the advice and under the superintendance of the Commission. The Commission should also be empowered to require from the Rajah such security as they may deem sufficient to preclude the difficulties that might arise from the failure of the Rajah in the repayment of any sum advanced to him by the Soucars upon the credit of the Commany.

I recommend that the Commission should consist of three persons, and as I am satisfied that the Government of Fort St George are equally sensible with myself how deeply the honoun of the Company and of the British nation is conceined in repairing the injuries which the country of Tanjore and its lawful pinice have sustained by the usurpation of Ames Sing, and how much the attainment of this important object must depend on the conduct of the Commission, I have the fullest confidence that they will select for it those seivants of their establishment who are best qualified to discharge so sincred a trust

The Govenment of Fort St George will firmsh the Commission with such detailed instructions as they may think proper. I recommend to their particular attention the following points, which appear to me of essential importance, but which I would authorise that Government to adopt, with such alterations as they may think the circumstances require

Besides obtaining the most exact information of the state and resources of the country, the attention of the Commissioners should be directed to lay a foundation for its future improvement

For this purpose they should endeavour to recall the inhabitants, who are said to have emigated from Tanjue during the administration of Amer Sing, by offers of pecuniary and or by such other measures as they may deem most hiely to prove effectual, but above all their attention should be directed to the repair of the mounds and water-courses, and other works of a similar nature

All oppressive taxes and exactions, and other abuses which may have been introduced under the administration of Amer Sing should be abolished, and such arrangements as local encumstances will admit, should be made for defining, as far as may be practicable, the rights of the cultivators of the lands, and of all other persons, from whom the revenues of the country of whatever nature may be collected

I trust that little difficulty will arise in introducing these arrangements into the districts already under the charge of the servants of the Company, or in obtaining the Rajah's consent to the extension of them to the Soubahs which have not been assumed, should the Rajah retain those Soubahs under his charge

With a view of securing to the people the benefit of those arrangements, and the advantages of effectual protection in their persons and properties, the attention of the Commission should be directed by the instructions of the Government of Fort St George to the speedy establishment of Courts for the Administration of Justice in civil and climinal cases Upon this subject, which I deem to be one of the most important branches of the powers to be delegated to the Commission, it does not appear to me at present proper, or indeed practicable, to give any detailed orders, but I shall take the callest opportunity, after the receipt of the report of the commission, to lay before the Board such a system for the better administration of justice in Tangone as shall appear suitable to the circumstances of that country, and to the manners and customs of the inhabitants.

VOL I

With regard to the nature of the further security which it may be proper to require from the Rajah for the more regular discharge of his payments, I am not at present prepared to offer any decided opinion on this important subject until I shall have received the report of the Commission to be appointed for ascertaining the real extent and nature of the resources of Tanjore This subject must, however, form one of the early objects of the attention of the Commission, and I shall be anyons to receive their sentiments, with the opinion of the Government of Fort St. George, respecting it

My inquiries during my continuance at Fort St George were directed through every channel of information which I could discover, to ascertain how far the expectations of the Secret Committee with respect to the improvement of the revenues of Taniore, and to the consequent augmentation of the Raiah's annual payments to the Company, were likely to be fulfilled. The result of this investigation, which, however, was necessarily incomplete, leads me to apprehend that the Secret Committee have formed rather too sanguing a calculation of the expected produce of the revenues of Tanjore The amount of those revenues depends entirely upon the annual price of grain, which fluctuates every year, according to the state of the crops in Taniore, and to the necessities of other countries In 1793, the year upon which the Committee found then calculation, the effects of war, and famine in the neighbouring countries, had caused an extraordinary demand for the exportation of grain, which necessarily raised the price in Taniore far beyond the usual average Whatever increase may be expected from future improvements in the management of the country, I cannot found, upon the produce of the year 1793, an expectation of a permanent augmentation of revenue to the extent supposed by the Secret Committee

I think it my duty to suggest these doubts with respect to the probability of any considerable increase of recepts from the Raqah of Tanjore, for the purpose of calling the attention of the Board to a subject which has anxiously engaged that of the Seciet Committee, and which will demand the most ample investigation whenever the report of the Commission shall have furnished sufficient information to enable me to pursue it with effect

No XI

To the Earl of Morning ton

10 110 2000 $ 2000 8

My DEAR LORD, Bombay, 3d June, 1798

As I left England on the 18th of February, this letter, and those which accompany it, will probably give you the first information of my intended nomination to the Government of Cevlon I can call it as yet no more than intended, as I received orders from Mr Dundas to take my departure on board of the first fleet that should sail, and to wait for my commission and instructions at Bombay What that commission and those instructions may be, I cannot positively say, I am pretty well assured that Mr. Dundas's intention is to avoid, as much as possible, the inconvenience of giving up the island at present to the Company, and the very great one of rendering it entirely independent of the Company's Government, but in what manner these ends will be accomplished, I cannot pretend to guess By a debate in the India House, which your Lordship will read in the papers, and which took place since I left London, it seems as if Mi Dundas had given a promise, that in case the island should be preserved at the peace, the Crown would resign it to the Company, but for this supposition I have no authority but the newspapers, and my private opinion of the propriety of the measure All that I know is, that when I left London. three weeks before my embarkation Mr. Dundas had decided that my nomination and that of the other political and military servants of the Government should derive from the Crown, but that at the same time I should be put under the direction and controll of the Governor General. The revenues of the island were to be given immediately to the Company, so that in respect to the administration of them. I should be precisely in the situation of the Presidents of Madas and Bombay, but without a Council Such being (as I hope it will) the spuit of my instructions, the words of my commission can signify very little For I am so perfectly convinced of the necessity of all the parts of the Great Indo-British Empire being actuated by one spirit, that I shall consider myself exactly in the same situation with the Governments of Madras and Bombay, not only in effect, but even in form, as far as the consciences of the Crown lawyers, and the King's Ministers will allow In all probability (whether we keep the island or no), I shall be the last King's Governor of it, and as I hope to remain all that time under your direction, I trust that the anomalous nature of my situation will not occasion any microvenence to either of us

I have the honour in the meantime to remain, with the greatest respect and regard,

My dear Lord,
Your most obedient and faithful Servant,
Frideric North

No XII

To the Earl of Mornington

MY DEAR LORD, Bombay, 5th June, 1798 I have written another private letter to the Governor General, who, I suppose, will wish to account for the arrival in India of a person unhouseled, unappointed, unannealed as I am, with seven or eight more of his Majesty's Servants in embryo, who, like myself, have as yet no security for their employment but the word of Ministers, a sea voyage of four months, and the expense of necessary preparations From a conversation which I had with you last summer, I should magine that my appointment to the government of Ceylon would not surprise you Mr Dundas, however, did not communicate his intentions on that subject to me till very late in November Too favourable an idea of the resources of that island had at that time made him resolve on keeping it entirely in the King's hands, of which system, however, more mature reflection made him see the inexpediency and, as it was thought impossible to treat about a possession already ceded to the Company, he at length determined to retain the government and the sovereignty for the Crown, but he gave up to the Company the entire administration and disposal of the sevenue, instructing at the same time the future Governor to consider himself as under the direction of the Governor General How this was to be accomplished was taken ad referendum, but the unfortunate person destined to that employment, together with the Secretary to the Government, and the Clerks in the office, was obliged to set out from London in January, and from the Isle of Wight in February, under the assurance of finding commissions and instructions at Bombay As our passage has been rather a short one. I am not surprised at the non-arrival of those very necessary paners, and as, in the short time of my service. I have had many proofs of the spurt of patience and long suffering with which the public officers are blessed, from the chiefs to the lowest clerks, in respect to the expedition of instruments, which vulgar minds would have prepared, written, and dispatched in half an hour, I cannot say that I shall be much astonished if I do not receive them these three months. What I am more anxious about is the substance and nature of them. There are so many objections to be made to every arrangement hitherto proposed, and such considerable changes appear to have taken place in the intentions of Government, (if one may judge from the speeches of then friends in the India House) since I left London, that I am perfectly uncertain how the business will be settled At the same time I have the satisfaction of knowing that I have taken every step in my power to render every possible arrangement easy and simple My appointments are to be ten thousand a-year, commencing from the day of my embarkation. which was the thirty-first of January Those of Mr Cleghoin three thousand, and those of the other gentlemen employed, altogether fourteen hundred and fifty The Commander-in-Chief is, I hope, to be Lieutenant Governor, but that is not quite certain I own that I think the sending out more Europeans than necessary to a Government so little likely to remain with the Crown, may occasion much inconvenience, and I took care in my recommendations to avoid, as much as possible, any incumbiance to the Crown or the Company on that head

Loud Clive was expected to leave England in March of April I am glad to find that India has so many chaims besides the beaux youx de la cassetta, that men with sixteen thousand a-year in possession, and two and twenty thousand in expectancy are enamoured of het, and I am very glad that those charms were not discovered sooner lest my poor little sland of cinnamon should have been carried off by some more powerful sutto than an indigent younger brother. But what really gives me great pleasure is that Loid Clive is a very good-natured, right-headed, sensible man, and exactly the person we could wish for—you, as a tributary Prince, I as a new bloom we Petentature.

I have little public news to tell you, and that little by no means comfortable, every body engaged in abusing the assessed taxes or the modifications in them. Threats of invasion on 1 afts of half a mile long by a quanter broad, which all but sailors think impossible, the first peer of the realm toasting the sovenegatly of the people at a Jacobin meeting, and a great depression of spints (God knows why) throughout the country, are what I left in England. Since that a Portuguese ship we spoke with near the Canaries, informed us that the Spanish fleet was at sea, and Loid St Vincent's gone after it

You dear county, Ireland, is as toublesome as ever, though the new Commander-in-Chief seems to be hked both by castle and country It is reported that the Chancellor and the Government there are no longer very cordial, but I do not absolutely know the tuth of that report

In Fiance a new Finatida was every moment expected, in which Bailas and Fiançois de Neufehateau, the new Modeiantsts, would probably be sent to Guiana Switzeiland had been invaded, made peace with, and invaded again, and Rome was on the point of being devoured by an intuption of Cispadanes, and Fiance, on a pietence of a not at Rome executed by themselves, in which a French General was invaled, the fate of the Genman Empire was uncertain, so was the disposition of the new King of Plussia. At first it had a favourable appealance, but politics are so profligate at present, that a shale of plunder may overtuin the wisest and bonestest determinations.

Believe me ever with the sincerest regard,
My dear Lord,
Your most obedient faithful Servant,
FREDERIC NORTH

No XIII

To General Harris

MY DEAR SIR,

Fort William, 9th June, 1798

Although I magine that the enclosed Proclamation must have reached you. I think it most advisable to transmit a copy of it to you There seems to be so little doubt that the Pioclamation really was published at the Mauritius, that it must become a matter of serious discussion between this Government and Tippoo How such a discussion may terminate it is utterly impossible to say Perhaps the result of it may be to move that M Malartic has exaggerated, or wholly misrepresented the intentions of Tippoo, but on the other hand. if Tippoo should choose to avow the objects of his embassy to have been such as are described in the Proclamation, the consequences may be very serious, and may ultimately involve us in the calamity of war I wish you to be apprised of my apprehensions on this subject, and to prepare your mind for the possible event You will, therefore, turn your attention to the means of collecting a force, if necessity should unfortunately require it, but it is not my desire that you should proceed to take any public steps towards the assembling of the army before you receive some further intimation from me I have the honour, &c.

MORNINGTON

No XIV

Extract from a Minute of the Gov General, [Financial] 12th June, 1798

In ugang the necessity of attempting the reduction of our expences, I do not mean to recommend that species of improvident economy which in this country, above all others, would ultimately prove real profusion, and the source of every abuse I do not mean to deprive persons holding laborious and responsible stations of the liberal reward to which they are justly entitled, and which ought upon every ground, both of policy and justice, to furnish them with the means of acquiring a competent fortune, and of returning to their native country within a modetate period of service. This principle in my opinion is the foundation of the present system of government in India, and it should always be held sacied and involable in every attempt to levise the Indian establishments. On the other hand, it is difficult to believe, that establishments of such magnitude and intrincacy as those of the Butish Empire in India, should not in the course of time require frequent invision.

Without therefore pledging myself to the amount of any saving which may ultimately appear piactcable. I propose immediately to commence a general revision of all public establishments of Bengal, and to duret the adoption of a similal measure at Madias and Bombay, as well as at all our subordinate settlements, and in all our recent acquisitions from the enemy

My intention is that the revision of the Civil Establishment of Bengal, should be made under my own numediate superintendence, with the assistance of the acting President of the Board of Revenue, Mi Beblo, noe of the Members of the Board of Trade, and the Accountant General, &c Mr Tucker sub-secretary in the Judicial and Revenue Department

These gentlemen, I propose to appoint to be a committee for the purpose aheady mentioned, Mr Tucker to act as Secretary to the Committee

The proceedings of the Committee may be laid before the Board, either when the enquiry shall be completed, or occasionally, as encumstances may require

No bette punciples can I think be prescribed for the conduct of the proposed measure, than those laid down in the munte of Lond Conwalls, recorded on the proceedings (v No 13) in the secret and separate department of the 31st January, 1788, when the last general revision of the Establishments under this Presidency took place

I recommend, therefore, that the Committee shall be funnished with such parts of those proceedings as relate to the Civil Establishments, together with copies of all papers relating to the alterations which have been subsequently made on them, in order that the Committee may know the grounds on which all the existing Establishments have been formed, and consequently may be able to judge, how fair change of cucumstances or any other cause, may have ren-

deted any alteration necessary, either in the constitution of any Department of Government, on the allowances annexed to any existing office. Any relief in the Military branch of our expences, must arise either from reductions in the effective stiength of the Aimy, or in the number of Troops on field allowances, or from the reform of any Offices on Official Establishments, which may be found superfluous

A reduction of our effective strength, attended with any object. On the other hand, whenever it shall appear, that the circumstances which led to the late augmentation of our Military Establishments no longer exist, and that no new causes have arisen to require the maintenance of so large a force, it will be our duty to reheve the finances of this Government from that part of our heavy Military charge

It will be my care to watch with the utmost degree of anxiety, the favourable moment when this desirable measure may be adopted, without menuing that itsk, which might defeat its expected effects

Without entering into any minute detail of the actual state of the Political system of India, it will be sufficient to observe. that, although I perceive no circumstance either in the present disposition, or in the actual strength and condition of the Native Powers, which should afford leason to applehend the approach of hostilities from any quarter, I do not think it consistent with prudence to reduce our Aimy, until we shall have been enabled to ascertain with more accuracy the designs of Tippoo Sultan, and of Zemaun Shah, and until the settlement of the Province of Oude shall have accounted more vigour and consistency In the mean while, however, I request that the Commander in Chief, will undertake on the principles prescribed by Lord Cornwallis in the minute of the 31st January, 1788, the revision of such parts of the Mihtary Establishments as are neither connected with the effective strength of the Army, not with the pay and allowances of the different Ranks fixed by the Honorable the Court of Directors, and by this Government

At present, I shall propose to reduce merely two articles of our Military Charges, which rest on grounds entirely distinct from any to which I have adverted

The first, the regiment of Hindostannee cavalry, purchased for two lacs of rupees from Mr De Borgne, in February, 1796, which I propose to transfer to the Nabob Vizier on the same terms

I am awaie that it is desirable to reduce rather than to augment the foice of the Viziei. Whatevei troops, howevei, it may be thought advisable for him to maintain, should be capable of effective service, this regiment may be substituted in the 100m of any other corps that he may be induced to dishand

The troops now quatered in the Fort of Allahabad, are I understand at present upon the Vizzer's allowances, and the Commander in Chief has stated to me sufficient reasons, for continuing that indulgence to them until the 1st August next, but from that period I think it would be advasable (and I have the satisfaction to state the concurrent opinion of the Commander-in-Chief, as will appear by his minute upon this subject), that those allowances should cease, and that in future the garison of Allahabad, should receive the same allowances with that of China. Quarties will of course be provided for the European troops at Allahabad, and no reason can exist against placing them in every respect on the same footing with those attached to the garison of Chunal

The revision of the several bianches of our revenue may very properly be referred to the same Committee appointed to revise our Civil Establishments under my inspection. It is not possible to form any accurate estimate of the improvement of our resources which may be the result of such an inquiry, I am awaie that the demand of Government on the landholders is fixed in perpetuity, and consequently that no addition can be made to the land revenue. Even under different cucumstances, I would not recommend any additional assessment, considering the land to be already taxed as highly as is consistent with the interests of the Company and the prosperity of the country. Perhaps, however, regulations for accelerating the recovery of outstanding balances might be devised, without mjury or oppression to the landholders, or to the cultivation of the soil.

The customs, the stamp duties and the tax on spirituous liquois, may admit of considerable improvements either in the mode of collection, or by the variation of the rates, and other sources of revenue may be devised without injury to the country

In ducting the extension of these measures to the Presidences of Fort St George and Bombay, I shall propose the regulations of their civil and military establishments on the same principles of justice and liberality which constitute the rules of this Government. It will also be a leading object of my propositions on this part of the subject to connect with the reform of the Civil Establishments of Fort St George and Bombay, and of our tentiones upon the coast of Malabar, the introduction of the system of internal administration of justice and collection of revenue established in Bengal with so much advantage to the Government and to the people

The extension of this system to our possessions upon the coast is an object of great anxiety to the authorities in England

Under all the encumstances of the present moment, I do not think it would be advisable to propose the reduction of any part of the effective strength of our armies on the Coast of Coromandel or Malabar

The Govenments of Fort St George and of Bombay should be directed to revise the several branches of their revenue in the same manner as shall be adopted at this Presidency, I trust that I shall find in the Goveniments of Fort St George and of Bombay, as well as in their Seivants selected for the execution of these important measures, the same degree of zeal for the public interests and of alacuity in promoting their improvement, which I have had the satisfaction to observe in every department of the Company's Service in Bengal The situation of our affains, although happily exempt from any mimediate danger of the calamity of war, demands the most spinted exentions of every upright Service vant of the Company, as well as the coulds co-operation of of every sincere friend to the prosperity of the British interests in India

MORNINGTON

No XV

To Tippoo Sultaun - Written the 14th June, 1798

Immediately on my arrival in Bengal Sn Aluned Clarke communicated to me youn fleudily letter to lum, stating that some people of the Coorgali country, having descended from the woods and mountains, list fixed their residence in the willages of Kauntamunghe and Coloon bogee, &c

[Recapitulate the contents of the letter]

Sn Alured Clarke has also communicated to me your answer to the letter from the late Governor-General, Sir John Shore, respecting the claims of the Company and of your Highness to the district of Wynaad, bordering on Tambercherry Being anxious to afford you every proof in my power of my sincere desire to maintain the good understanding which had so long subsisted between your Highness and the Company, I made it one of the first objects of my attention to examine all the papers existing on the Company's recolds, as well respecting Wynaad as the district of Sauleah. in which it appears that Kaustamungle and Coloorbasee are situated From these papers I find that not only the right to the districts of Wynaad and Sauleah has remained in doubt, but also to the district of Amerah, and Ersawaraseemy. and to some other considerable territories on the side of Your Highness is well aware that it is a maxim among states who are sincerely disposed to maintain the relations of amity and peace, to bring all contested points of this nature to a speedy determination. A seasonable and temperate discussion of those differences of opinion, which must occasionally arise between Powers of the most pacific disposition, tends to prevent quairels between their subordinate officers, and to obviate the misrepresentations which each party is apt in such cases to make to the respective Governments This is the most friendly as well as the most piudent course, and will always defeat the views of interested and designing persons, who may wish to foment jealousy, and to disturb the blessing of peace For this object Lord Cornwallis, the Nawah Nizam Ali Khaun, and the Peishwa Pundit Peid'haun wisely provided in the treaty of peace concluded with your Highness at Seringapatam, by establishing a regular mode of binging to an anucable adjustment, with the knowledge and approbation of all paties, any questions which might hereafter arise between you. Highness and any of the allies respecting the boundaries of your adjacent territories. I am persuaded that its your Highness' disposition to maintain faithfully your public engagements with the Company. On my part you will always meet with a religious adherence to every aitcle of the treaties subsisting between us. On this occasion, therefore, it is my intention to depute a respectable and discreet present to meet, upon your fontier, such of your officers as your Highness may please to name, for the purpose of conferring together, of discussing the grounds of the respective claims, and of satisfying each other on all points respecting which any doubts may be entertained on eithe side

It would not be consistent with your Highness's high 1eputation for justice and good faith to refuse to enter into this candid investigation. I therefore entertain no doubt that as soon as you shall have fully understood the nature of this remesentation you will afford every facility to the conduct of the necessary inquiries, and will use your endeavours to bune them to a speedy determination, and for this purpose that you will, without delay, direct your officers at Koual Bunder (or Mangalore) to enter into conference with those deputed by the managers of the Honourable Company's affans on the coast of Malabar The result of the conterences will be communicated to me by the Government of Bombay with all practicable dispatch, and you may rely upon it, that after regular discussion shall have taken place. according to the established law of nations, and to the practice uniformly observed on every occasion of disputed boundary which has ausen between your Highness and the allies since the conclusion of the Treaty of Seringapatam, I will not suspend for one moment the full acknowledgment of whatever shall appear to be your just right

In the meantime, as the districts of Ameral and Souleah have been in the possession of the Coorgali Rajah for several years, your Highness will no doubt see the propilety and justice of recalling the troops sent into the neighbourhood of Souleah. You Highness must be sensible that until I have been satisfied of the justice of your claims in a regulat and amicable manner, I will never suffer any of the Company's allies or dependants, whose country and interests I consider to be in every respect the same as those of the Company, to be forcibly deprived of territories of which they have so long held possession With the most cordial disposition to maintain the intercourse of friendship with your Highness, I trust that I shall always meet an equal return on your part, and therefore I cannot but lament that your Highness did not immediately resort to the established channels of peaceable negociation, in place of stationing a military force upon the fiontiers of the territory possessed by an ally of the Company Confident, however, that your Highness, upon a full neview of all the circumstances of the case, will be equally inclined with myself to conform to the dictates of justice, I am satisfied that after our respective officers shall have conferred together, and explained to each other all matters that remain in doubt, we shall have no difficulty in terminating these long depending questions to our mutual satisfaction

(A true copy) Mornington

N B EDMONSTONE, Persian Translator to Gov

No XVI

Extract of Letter from the Secret Committee of the Court of Directors, to the Governor-General in Council of Bengal, dated 18th June, 1798

"We take the eathest opportunity of acquanting you that we have received information from His Majesty's ministers that a very large amament of ships, toops, military stores, &c has been lately fitted out at Toulon, and that it sailed from thence on the 19th til Although the ultimate object of this amament has not been ascertained, it is not improbable, from many circumstances that have transpined, and from the spirit of dating adventure by which the French have been actuated during the present war, that its destination may be for India, either (having first taken possession of Egypt) by way of the Red Sea, or by Bussona His Majesty's ministers have therefore informed us, that immediate measures.

^{*} Received by the Governor General in Sept. 1798.

will be taken for a considerable augmentation of the European force in the East Indies, you may therefore expect that not less than 4,000 seasoned and disciplined troops, and penhaps a largen number may be sent to the Company's settlements with all possible expedition, part of which will, we trust, teach India not many months after the receipt of this despatch. Should the expedition, notwithstanding the measures taken by Ihis Majesty's Government to intercept and defeat it in the Mediterianean, teach Egypt, and be destined for India by etter of the routes we have mentioned, a part of His Majesty's fleet, consisting of two men of war and probably a shop, now under dispatch for India, will be ordered to be stationed in the Staats of Babelmandel, and in the Gulph of Persia, for the purpose of intercepting any force that may be proceeding to India that way.

"A copy of a Pioclamation, issued at the Mauritus in the month of Maich last, has been transmitted to our several presidences by Mi. Pingle, the Company's agent at the Cape of Good Hope. We are unable to judge whether this Pioclamation be in reality what its import declares it to be, and Tippoo has really conceived any hostile designs against the Bitish empire in India, or intended merely as a femt, with a twee to embol us with that prince. Our respective Governments will, of course, have taken such precautionary measures in consequence as appeared to them necessary and applicable to existing cucumstances.

"Out empine in the East has ever been an object of jealousy to the Fiench, and we know that then forme Government entertained sanguine hopes of being able to reach India by a shoter passage than round the Cape of Good Hope, and we have no doubt that the present Government would risk a great deal, and even adopt measures of a most enterpuising and uncommon nature, for the chance of reducing, if not annihalating, the British power and consequence in that quater of the world To effect this, without the aid and previous concert of one of the Indian Powers, seems almost impossible, and would scaucely be attempted In the present situation of India, Tippoo appears to be the fittest instrument to be employed in the furtherance of such ambitious projects

"It is highly improbable that Tippoo should have entered into any league with the French without some apparent pieparation on his part of an hostile nature in furtherance of their designs If such, therefore, shall have been the case, it would be neither prudent nor politic to wait for actual hostilities on his part We therefore recommend, that if you shall not have adopted the necessary measures for bringing Tippoo to a satisfactory explanation before the receipt of this despatch, that you should immediately take the proper steps for so doing, accompanying this inquiry with such a disposition of your force as may give effect to it, and should you judge. either from his answers, or from the steps he is taking, that his designs are such as the French Proclamation represents, and that he is making preparations to act hostilely against us, we think it will be more advisable not to wait for such an attack, but to take the most immediate and most decisive measures to carry our arms into our enemy's country, not failing at the same time to make known to the Powers in alliance with us the necessity of such measure, and that we have not in view a wanton attack upon our inveterate enemy with a design to augment our own power, but a necessary and justifiable defence of our own possessions, and calling upon them for the assistance they are under engagements to furnish us

" But although we have thus recommended energy, firmness, and decision in your conduct towards Tippoo, we rely upon your using the latitude allowed you in the preceding paragraph with the utmost discretion, that we may not be involved in a wai in India without the most inevitable necessity, of which necessity we leave you to be the sole judges And as it is impossible for us to conjecture, should either the Proclamation cuculated at the Mauritius be founded, or the force now in the Meditei ranean be really destined for India, what measures the implacable revenge and rash enterprise of the French may induce them to undertake against the British power in India, we can only exhort our several Governments to be constantly upon then guard, and watchful against surprise, by not only keeping the troops in perfect order for action, and our forts and garrisons in constant preparations of defence, but if it shall appear necessary, by encouraging military associations amongst our civil servants and others, as in this country, which may be prepared to act on any emergency, and in carefully keeping in view every channel through which it may be possible for France to get an European force out to India, and taking precautionary measures to prevent it

"We have transmitted copies of this despatch to our Govenments of Madias and Bombav "

No XVII

To General Harris

MY DEAR SIR. Fort William, June 20, 1798

You have before this time received my letter inclosing M Malattic's Proclamation, and advising you of the probability of my being under the necessity of making a serious representation to Tippoo Sultaun on that subject I now take the earliest opportunity of acquainting you with my final determination I mean to call upon the allies without delay, and to assemble the army upon the coast with all possible expedition You will receive my public instructions in the course of a few days Until you have received them it will not be proper to take any public steps for the assembling of the aimy, but whatever can be done without a disclosure of the ultimate object, I authorise you to do immediately, intending to apprise you by this letter that it is my positive resolution to assemble the army upon the coast I wish to necesve from you, by express, a state of the force which you can put in motion immediately, and within what time you can make any large additions to it

By the same express you will also have the goodness to inform me what station you deem the best for assembling a force with a view of marching directly to Seringapatam, and at what period the aimy must move for that purpose, so as to reach Seimgapatam before the coast of Malabar shall become safe for the approach of any naval force I will send you, as soon as possible, the largest supply in specie which I can procure If you could dispatch your answers to my questions by any fast-sailing vessel, and could send with your answers any intelligent officer, who might be capable of entering into all the details of your force, of the seasons, and all other circumstances connected with the object of striking a sudden blow against Tippoo before he can receive any for reign aid, you would greatly assist me in the arrangement of my measures upon this serious occasion

You may rely upon my uniemitting attention to whatever communications you may make to me, and upon my most condial support in all your exertions

You will of course feel the absolute necessity of keeping the contents of this letter secret

MORNINGTON

No XVIII

From General Harris to the Earl of Mornington

My Dear Lord, Madras, 23rd June, 1798

Your lordship's favour of the 9th is just received

Sir Hugh Christian sent the Proclamation to this Government by the same opportunity as to yours, and we had the honour to forward your lordship our answer to Sn Hugh the 7th instant

For my own part I have no doubt (as matters now stand with the French) but Tippoo will explain away our just grounds of complaints, although I am convinced he has committed himself to the full extent of the Proclamation.

His inveteracy to us will only end with his life, and he will always seize any opportunity that offers to annoy us, but, notwithstanding this, and that the political circumstances of India are now much in our favour, it perhaps still remains a matter of serious consideration whether, in our very great want of cash, and the effect our being engaged in wai in this country may have on the affans in Europe, it would not be better that he should be allowed to make the amende honorable if he be so inclined, than that we should avail our selves of the error he has run into, and endeavour to punish him for his insolence On my part your loidship may depend on my following your instructions most implicitly. In respect of my secrecy on the point, and until I hear further from you I shall only quietly move a battalion or two towards the point of assembly, and one of which was predetermined for the place it now will go to The 36th might move from Pondicherry to Aince, as we have in the latter unoccupied barracks for Emopeans, but for this I must wait Sir Alured Claike's final determination on that corps A supply of giant to our gailsons is actually in forwardness according to regulation, and it will be very easy to make additions where necessary, without any suspections aissing

It was very pleasing to hear that your lordship has some cash to send us, but it is necessary you should understand, that the whole mentioned will not more than make up our known deficiency to the end of September, and our debts are so nyurous to our celeft, that until something is done in hquidation of them, we cannot expect to laise a lupee by loan

With the greatest respect and esteem, &c &c
George Harris

No XIX

The Earl of Mornington to General Harris

My Dear Sir, Fort William, 26th June, 1798

You will have received my public and private letters respecting the late conduct of Tippoo Sultaun, and the steps to be taken in consequence I wish you would furnish to me, without delay, any intelligence which you may have received respecting the publication of the Proclamation at the Mauritius, or the conduct of the ambassadors of Tippoo during their residence in that island I also wish to receive your latest advices respecting the state of Tippoo's force, and of his actual preparations for war. I am some that your Government should have addressed to Admiral Rainier a letter which my public duty compels me to disapprove. You know the sincerity of my wish to support the authority and dignity of the Government of Fort St. George, which I consider to be intimately and inseparably connected with my own. But the general protection of India belongs to me, and forms one of the most material branches of my arduous responsibility In the discharge of this duty I shall always expect to be assisted by the co-operation of the other presidencies, but if they offer opinions to the commanders of His Majesty's squadions with respect to the distributions of the naval force for the general purposes of defence, without reference to me, or any previous knowledge of my intentions, the utmost degree of confusion must be the result, and my views for the public safety must be wholly defeated. The public letter which I have sent to you in Council upon this occasion is intended as a general rule for the conduct of the Government of Fort St George on all similar occasions, and I trust that you will have the goodness to recommend the observance of this rule both to your Council and your suc-Without full previous communication on all points of this nature, there can be no hope of our serving the public with advantage or ciedit. Nothing could have given me more pain than the necessity of authorising a word in any of my public letters which might bear the appearance of a sentiment of disapprobation of the conduct of the Government of Fort St. George, under your administration, but I felt it the more necessary, by a public expression of my opinion, to prevent the measure to which I have adverted. from becoming a precedent. You will not suppose that such a feeling of public duty can be at all connected with any diminution of my respect and esteem for you; sentiments which I shall always retain, and which I am happy on every occasion to avow

MORNINGTON

No XX

General Harris to the Earl of Mornington

MY DEAR LORD,

ord, Madias, 6th July, 1798

I received your Lodship's favour of 20th ult late on Tuesday evening, the 3d mst, and I must confess that the momentous importance and magnitude of the subject created reflections which for a time totally absorbed every other consideration. Adverting, however, to your Lordship's wish of speedy communication, and really myself thinking it of infinite consequence, my first step was to countermand the Bombay frigate, on the eve of sailing as convoy to a transport with stores for the fleet, and which the Victorous took charge of

I then directed my thoughts to find such a description of person as your Loidship was desirous should accompany my answer, and did not hesitate in fixing on Major Beatson as particularly qualified to give your Lordship the fullest satisfaction on every point that you may refer to his judgment. Revolving the subject of the 20th June in my mind most part of the night, the magnitude of the difficulties to be encountered in an attempt to strike a sudden blow before he can receive any foreign aid, by the cessation of the monsoon. on the other coast, occurred to me so forcibly, and have by subsequent reflection become so deeply impressed upon my mind, that I should think myself culpable if I did not mention my thoughts on the subject, even though your Loidship had not requested information from me Although the same points have unquestionably occurred to your Lordship, vet the practical experience of them may readily be supposed to have made stronger unpressions on my mind than any idea of them that could have been conveyed by a different way to your Lordship

The dilatonness, indecision, and cowardice of our allies are beyond behef to those who have not been eye-witness to these qualities in them, and there is a moral assurance that not one of them will take the field, or be of the least use to us, even admitting that then own situation presented no obstacle to then joining us at any period, until we have secured a position to cover them advance, or gamed a decaded advantage over Tippoo Thus they acted with Lord Cornwalls, and as that conduct was governed by principles which have undergone no change, a repetition of it must be expected

From these data it is to be argued that any sudden blow must proceed entirely from ourselves, and this cannot, I conceive, be attempted without a very large reinforcement from Bengal, aided by the Bombay aimy. When the teinforcement from our Presidency could join us I need not speak of, but the Bombay aimy could not begin to assemble until the cessation of the monsoon on the other coast, the period at which I understand that your Lodship had hoped the important object in view would be in an advanced state of accomplishment. The last is a difficulty that might perhaps be rendered of less importance by your Lodship's exertion in despatching a more ample toice from Bengal, but the difficulties which piess here are, I fear, insuperable-Diaft and carriage cattle, even for the defensive aimy, in

Statement, No. I, cannot be collected, to enable us to do more than merely teach the Baramahal before the monsoon in October, or to repel the incursion of an enemy No. 2, from Mr. Cockburn, the best informed man, perhaps, in India on this subject, fixes nearly the same period for the equipment of the detensive aimy, but such a force as should be capable of undertaking the siege of Seingapatam with a reasonable prospect of success, could not in all probability teach the place before the 1st of February

The last point I have to observe on is certainly the most material,—the feeding the army when it has arrived at the point we wish. This difficulty obliged Lord Conwalls to relinquish the idea of besieging Seringapatam the first time he maiched against it, and but for the almost despaned of co-operation of the Mahrattas, it would have been doubtful whether he would even have been able to retuin to it again

These considerations, the little dependence to be placed on our allies, and the facility of communication with the Bombay aimy by Puligautchery, with the importance of possessing the Combatore country, incline me at present to be of opinion, that when we engage in this momentous undertaking, it will be advisable to do it to the southward. by attempting the Cauverypoiam Pass, but this point, and the seasons for the junction of the armies of the different coasts, and for the final enterprize to be undertaken,-how far the aid of the Nizam and Mahrattas, or one or other, may be essential to our success in the attack?--whether it may be practicable to subsist an aimy during the siege without any assistance from those Native Powers?-what posts should be selected for magazines, so as to have the shortest and most secure line of communication by which to receive supplies?-and the grand subject of Binjanes, whether the Native Powers assist us or not?-are considerations on which there is not now any time for me to enlarge further, but on which I can with confidence refer your Lordship to Major Beatson for solid information Your Lordship will also find great assistance from Lieut-Colonel Scott, and on the subject of feeding and carriage, I know no one who can give more correct information than Captain Sandys, or on whom more dependence can be placed for honest execution of orders in that line Nothwithstanding, however, the shortness of time, and the aid your Lordship will otherwise have from the practical knowledge of the three gentlemen I have named. I should have felt it incumbent on me to have stated my sentiments in a more detailed and connected manner, on a subject of such moment to the national interests, if your Lordship had not the advantage of Sir Alured's complete knowledge of this aimy, and the resources of the Carnatic Upon the latter subject your Lordship is also perfectly informed, from the pressing representations of this Government and the letter I had before the pleasure to write to you. and both must have convinced you that the whole expense of the war must be bonne by your Presidency Your Lordship may perhaps be inclined to send the Bombay back immediately with treasure. if not, I think it necessary to mention that we had intended to send her for Bombay when the season for making a favourable passage should arrive, in consequence of a communication from Mi Duncan, representing how much they required her assistance on that coast Now. my Lord, having taken such a range of the subject as I trust you will not be displeased with receiving, I have only to assure you that, however I may think it right to point out difficulties, there can be none in such of your orders as it may be my part to perform, which I shall not cheerfully and zealously attempt to overcome I should not, however, close this letter without informing your Lordship that I have applized Admiral Ramier of the importance of preventing any communication of the French with the Malabai coast The various subjects which press upon my mind in deliberating upon this serious undertaking, and the urgent necessity of a prompt communication, render it far from improbable but that some points may have been imperfectly stated, if however, upon more mature consideration, any maccuracy shall appear to have crept m, your Lordship may depend that I shall have candour immediately to acknowledge and correct the enter

Be assured, my dear Lord,
I am with esteem,
Your Lordship's faithful and obedient Seivant,

GEO HARRIS.

P S.—For your Lordshp's further information I send Colonel Close's answer to the questions I put to him connected with this subject, to which I have subjoined such observations as have appeared to me necessary*

I also send a memorandum I have just received from M1 Webbe, in consequence of my request that he would state his sentiments in writing upon the possible event of a war with the Sultan, owing to the Mauritius Pioclamation, and upon the practicability of striking a sudden blow against hum before he could receive any foreign aid. From the hurned penusal which I have made of it, I observe that he has taken too partial a view of a question of too great a magnitude to be decided by our present limited means of knowledge That he has assumed as a fact that the choice of peace for some time to come, or war at the present period, rests with us, not adverting to the probability if Azim ul Omra be really disaffected towards us, of his hereafter joining Tippoo and the Fiench, and the equal chance of the Mahiattas being induced, when they are able, to unite in the league against us, scarcely noticing the strong circumstance that the Islands can now afford him no farther aid, passing over the immense benefits that will be secured by success, and the advantage with which we shall enter upon a war having a perfect knowledge of his country, and possessing a strong chain of posts on our frontiers, with a faithful country in the rear, and, lastly, that the French, at the conclusion of a peace, will possess the desire they now feel of subverting our Indian Empire, and that the Sultan will at that period be fully prepared to assist their purposes, if he should not be now arrested in his progress These, however, are considerations which belong to your Lordship's better judgment to decide, and I should not have troubled you with the memorandum if I did not feel an anxiety that you should be prepared to meet all the arguments which will be stated with so much virulence by the opposition at home against the author of the war, if unfortunately we should be compelled to that calamity.

^{*} See Appendix

No XXI

From Mr Jonas Webbe, Secretary to the Government of Mudras
6th July, 1798)

Memorandum for General Hanns, in consequence of his late conversation upon the possibility of an early nupture with Tippoo Sultaun

That M Malartrés Proclamation is genuine I have no doubt, because it is a termination perfectly consistent with an intrigue which, from respectable intelligence at the time, there was reason to believe on foot previous to the departure of his ambissadors for the Mauritus, but whether we should take measures at this period for punishing or preventing the effect of this negociation, is the most momentous question which can be proposed in this place. Upon this question which can be proposed in this place. Upon this question it is certainly my duty to state my ideas, but the shortness of time does not admit of any a rangement.

As all questions of national was should, I suppose, be deterimined by the national interest, it is natural to advert to the state in which India was placed by the Treaty of Setingapatam, because that state was considered at the time we had the means of changing it, as most advantageous to the British interests. The principle of our policy then was, the preservation of Tippoo as a Power of India, and the balance between him, the Mahiattas, and the Nizam by our superior influence and force. Whether this principle has been superseded by other notions in Europe I know not, but whether any attempt can now be made to introduce a new order of things without a greater danger of evil than a chance of good, I doubt Tippoo, if he has not advanced in actual strength, has centainly the vantage ground the three other Powers have certainly receded from the condition they were in at the Treatry of Seringapatam. The shock which the balance between the Nizam and the Mahantats sustained from the warfare that was allowed to terminate in the Treatry of Kurdlah has diven him from his position, and the distractions which have since prevailed at Poonah, incapacitate them from hold-ing their oldmary sphere, while the force of the English is checked and retailed by the pressure of the French war.

In the discussions which took place upon the political state of India, when the expedition against Manilla was under contemplation, it was, I believe, acknowledged that the confusion at that time in the Mahiatta empire was such as to render any exection of their strength improbable, or at least not formidable The subsequent confinement of Nana Furnavees. the eccentric megularity of young Scindia, and the want of nower in the Peishwa, certainly corroborated that notion. which, if it then left us little to apprehend from their enmity. can now give us little to expect from then friendship. The only respectable part of the Nizam's force is under the uncontrolled command of the French party that influence has increased, and whether our mention during the contest hetween his Highness and the Mahiattas may have alienated the disposition which his ministers once manifested towards ours, whether it is the natural consequence of a prevailme interest inimical to us, we have much reason, from Captain Kirkpatrick's late correspondence, to apprehend that our weight at Hyderabad is not great. The Nizam's irregular troops proved, during the last war, one of our serious impediments his efficient force could hardly be employed, certamly not trusted, under the command of Perron In respect to ourselves, a very large proportion of the coast army is detached, our means of resource curtailed by the war in Europe, and our credit in this country, at least upon this coast, bankrupt If, therefore, with all the advantages we possessed in the year 1790, with the hearty and effectual co-operation of the Mahrattas, and with the friendship of the Nizam, our operations against Tippoo were not made successful without the greatest difficulty, I am fearful that, under the general change of cucumstances which I have mentioned, and which I believe to be correct, an attack upon him now is more likely to end in discomfiture than victory

But let us descend to more particular considerations Although we have every reason to be satisfied that Tippoo's amy has been kept in a state efficient and prepared to meet the events, which these might be reason to expect from the general appearance of convulsion thoughout India, yet in the same discussions on the subject of the Manilla expedition, both Sn J Shoic and Loid Hobait were of opinion that he was not likely to hazard a rupture without a very large reinforcement from the French Whatever may be the object of Tippoo's embassy to the Mauntius, or whatever may be the event of it in Europe, the late intelligence from the islands, which leaves us no room to doubt that the military have been sent to France, and the French manne dispessed, satisfies me that no immediate co-operation can take place, and consequently, that no rupture is to be apprehended but by our own provocation

This argument I urge in the perfect conviction that during this unprecedented contest in Europe, peace in India is indispensably necessary, and that it ought not to be risked without the prospect of positive advantage If, however, it should be argued, that this very conjunction of circumstances which I have mentioned, should impel us to make an immediate effort against Tippoo, I answer that all our former united and unexampled exertions were made against Tippoo single, and unsupported by the French, but, single and unsupported as he was, except by the natural obstacles which oppose our progress, the exertions of the allies were only successful For this I refer to the chance by which Rangalore fell, to the condition of Lord Cornwallis's aimy before the junction of the Mahiattas, in May 1791, to the difficulty with which the battering train was advanced to Seringapatam in the second campaign, to the condition of the Bombay army, and to the state in which our own army returned after the conclusion of peace With the war well advanced, with our preparations and arrangements on foot for twelve months before, and with such a combined alliance as may be now despaired of, it still cost Lord Coinwallis two campaigns before he could besiege Seringapatam

From the mitriques at Seringapatam, and the consequent embassy to the Isle of France, I have no doubt that the French emissaties were employed in persuading Tippoo to hostilities with us, under promises of immediate assistance. This the Sultan appears to have considered msufficient ground to provoke a wai, but if he should be provoked to wai by us, I conceive these would be a material difference of cruciusstances, for though the French might find great difficulty in persuading hum to war, from the great difficulty of famishing the force he requires, yet if he should be absolutely plunged into a wai, they would find it easily practical to foment and keep it alive Hostility with Tippoo, if it should be known before the conclusion of peace, would inevitably tend to protact the war in Europe, or even to revive it if peace should have been made The French, despaning penhaps of any successful attempt upon England itself, would levive nothing unattempted to subvert, or at least cuttail, our Indian empire This argument is of the more force, because a very small increase of French soldiers is a very material addition to Tippoo's strength.

In the event of hostility, I take it for granted the object will be to make it a war of alliance against Tippoo I doubt that it is practicable to obtain the assistance of the Mahrattas the present disumon of the chiefs renders a hearty co-operation impossible) The assistance of any party, if even it could be persuaded to risk the danger of absence from its own territories, might have the natural effect of throwing its adversaues into the opposite scale (If such an event should take place, the Mahiattas would remain, as they now are, balanced against each other, while Tippoo, freed from the apprehension of their united force, would be at liberty to employ his whole cavalry against us) It is known to every officer in the field, that during the last war the Nizam's cavalry were a heavy incumbrance to us, and if, notwithstanding the apparent change in Azim ul Omrah's dispositions towards us, we should be disposed to rely on the fidelity of his Royal Highness's infantry under the command of M Perron, it is not extravagant to anticipate an event which has aheady happened, that marching into the Mysore country with his Highness in alliance, we were compelled to march back again with his Highness in alliance against us (In respect both to the Mahrattas and the Nizam, I think there is no reasonable ground to expect effectual assistance from either until we should strike some signal blow. Neither of them were hearty in the cause during the last war before the fall of Bangalore.

Not to dwell upon the possible predicament in which we should be placed by a refusal of the allies to execute their engagements, let us look to our own means of equipping a fonce sufficient to support a remonstrance to Tippoo upon his embassy to M Malatric It must never be forgotten that the army under General Medows in the month of November. 1790, consisted of about 5,500 European and 18,400 native seasoned men, and that even this aimy was augmented by troops from Bengal before it marched against Bangalore the returns you have now received, a body of about 14,000 men can be drawn together, including Lascars and pioneers. a force so madequate to an offensive war, that you could not venture to quit the Carnatic. From Ceylon you could draw no temforcements, but, on the contrary, might be called upon to mcrease the force on that island in the event of our army invading the Mysore country The whole reinforcement must he sent from Bengal, of what extent it could be we have no means of judging, but it is obvious that it must be so large as to place its anival here at a very remote distance The superiority of Tippoo in cavalry, and the greater rapidity with which he moves, would render it impracticable to proceed to the attack of Senngapatam without establishing a systematic chain of posts for depôts of stores and provisions That he has endeavoured to frustrate this is evident from his policy in the destruction of Ossoor and Bangalore. and in making Seringapatam his only or principal fortification By the former it is his intention to increase the difficulty of our approach by lengthening the line of our operation, and by the latter to oppose such impediments as to make the capture of Sermgapatam impracticable in the course of one campaign The Cauverypoiam pass is yet unexploied, but I understand that the route from thence to Sermgapatam lies through a barren country, so much interspersed with jungle as to be extremely adverse to the march of an army Gugulhelt pass is no longer thought of As nothing therefore short of the capture of Seringapatam can justly be considered as striking an effectual blow against Tippoo, the achievement of any immediate success appears to me to be utterly impracticable

This idea, then, of striking an immediate blow being abandoned, let us look to the slow and legulal equipment of an army for the mussion of Mysore The different corps could, I believe, be assembled at Walajahbad in about two months from the time of then being ordered to march. The equipment of bullocks for the army, with its tanof field attillery.

could not, according to my estimation, be accomplished before the month of January, but in respect to a train of battering guns, sufficient for the siege of Seringapatam, I can form no notion, not do I believe Mr Cockburn can, of the time when at could be furnished with cattle This period of the season (January) is, by the experience of Lord Cornwallis's campagen, too late for the establishment of a depôt at Bangalore and the siege of Seiingapatam in the same season, for though we should be able to put Bangalore in a state to admit of its becoming a depôt, we could not avoid being overtaken at Seringapatam by the monsoon, which sets in in May Hence the necessity of a second season, and probably of a second equipment of bullocks, before an efficient army could invest Seringapatam Supposing it however there, and joined by the Bombay aimy (the difficulty of which it is here unnecessary to consider), I doubt whether there are any wellorounded expectations that they could feed themselves The expenience of Lord Cornwallis's aimy proves that we were unable to supply ourselves, or to open our rear for the admission of Briniagies until we had been joined by the Mahiatta aimy, and the whole country embraced

At piesent there is no gram at Annee or Vellou, and I beheve no considerable quantity could be stored in the forts of the Baia-Mahal before the harvests of November. The vessels which bring gram from the northein ports and from Bengal do not arrive here before the months of September and October

Upon the whole there are sufficient grounds for concluding that the whole of the coast amy which could be assembled would be meapable of offensive operations, and that they could not be put in motion before the month of January How fai, and at what period, they may be m a condition to make a senious attack upon Tippoo must depend upon the extent and time of reinforcements from Bengal, and as nothing of consequence could be undeitaken without them, the time of our making any serious impression must be proportionably delayed

(Meanwhile the movement of our troops and military preparations could not escape the vigilance of Tippoo his resources are always more prompt than our own, and, as great part of his aimy is said to be in a state of field equipment, our attempt to strike a blow at him is likely to produce an invasion of the Canantic before we are in a stuation to resist him, for, as Tippoo can, in my opinion, have nothing to apprehend from the Mahiattas, his whole attention will be directed to us) A comparison between his own and his father's was, with the late experience of his own misfortunes, has taught him that our strength depends upon our supplies. The crops of the Bara-Mahal would be his flist object, and the consequences of such a policy, which he has manifested by the demoliton of Bangalore and Ossooi, might fix the war in the Canantic, until by the consumption of our supplies, and the failure of our resources, we should be compelled to accept his terms of peace

When the war of 1790 begun, the funded debt of this Presidency was 17 lacks of pagodas, the Company's credit high, and the rate of interest low. Very large subscriptions were in consequence made within the course of a few days to a 12 per cent loan, large supplies of dollars brought hither in the Canton ships, and intended for the China investment, were converted to the purposes of the war, and immense remittances were made from Bengal, as well in specie as by bills (At present the funded debt of this Presidency is 51 lacks of pagodas, the Company's credit so low, that then eight per cent, paper bears a discount of 18 and 20 per cent, and the scarcity of money so great, that their 12 per cent bonds do not pass but at a discount of 4 per cent Every mode has been tried without effect to raise money at this Piesidency our only means of supply is from Bengal The bills which we have in consequence been long compelled to substitute for ready money payments have overstocked the market, and consequently pass at a discount After repeated and ungent applications for money, we have been disappointed for want of funds in Bengal, and at this very moment, when the expenses of the military establishment for the ensuing months cannot be provided for without specie from thence, the only sum which we can confidently expect is, as I understand. immaterial in comparison with our wants

The deficit in the present resources of this government is at least 18 lacks of pagodas the expense of an army of

14,000 men in the field is, pag* * , and the expense of providing carriage for them, pag* 34,700 per month

Nothing can be more urgent than our representations to Bengal upon the state of our finances, except the necessities which produced them It is a fact, that without assistance in money in om thence, our military expenses, upon the peace establishment, cannot be provided for beyond the month of September U am and ad, therefore, that far from being in a state to equip an army for the field, we shall scarcely have the means of maiching the different corps to Walajahbad, while the state of the treasury rendes it utterly impracticable to make any suitable advance for draft and carriage cattle!

I have not studied to exaggerate any part of this memoiandum, but seeing that but resources have, by the mere operation of the war in Europe, been reduced to a state of the greatest embarrassment and having no hope of effectual lebels but in peace, I can anticipate none but the most baneful consequences from a war with Tippoo (If this war is to be a vindication of our national lights, it is clear that we cannot undertake it in less than six months) and this delay, with a reference to our national interests, may probably admit of its being postponed till we attain sufficient strength to prosecute it with vigour (But if wan is meritable, and the piesent are judged the most advantageous circumstances under which it can commence, I fear that our situation is bad beyond the hope of remedy)

This memorandum only reaches to that period at which your military inquiries commence, they will require no less secious reflection, and must occupy the thoughts of those who are to direct as well as of those who are to execute the operations of the war. For myself, I ought to spologize for the freedom of these opinions, but the desultory manner in which they are stated, will acquir me of all premeditated intention to give offence, and time does not admit of any amendment.

J WEBBE

[·] Blank in the original

(No. XXII

The Earl of Morning ton to the Right Hon Henry Dundas, &c &c &c My Dear Sir, Fort William, July 6, 1798

With my Letter, No 5, dispatched overland, I transmitted to you a conv of the Proclamation issued by the Governor of the Isle of France, so long ago as the month of February last . The first appearance of this Proclamation at Calcutta was in a newspaper of the 8th June, and the apparent impudence and lashness of divulging to the world the matter which the Proclamation contains, induced me to doubt its authenticity, until within a few days of the date of my last despatch to you, when I received authentic copies of the Proclamation from Lord Macartney and from Sn Hugh Christian at the Cane Even in the state of incertainty which preceded the receipt of the despatch from the Cape. I thought it advisable, by a private letter, dated 9th June. to call the attention of the Governor of Fort St George to the possibility of my being compelled to assemble the aimy upon the coast at an early period

Since that time I have received information, the correctness of which being corroborated from various quarters, enables me to state the nature and circumstances of Tippoo's late conduct in a connected form.

Typpoo dispatched two Ambassadors to the Isle of France, who airrived at that island at the close of the month of January, housted Tippoo's colours upon entering the halbour of Poit Nord Ouest, were received publicly by the French Government with every mask of distinction, and entertained at the public expense during their continuance in the island Phevious to their airval, no idea existed in the island of the piobability of a was between Tippoo and the Company, nor the least rumour of an intended levy of men to be made for Tippoo in that quarter

The Proclamaton assued two days after the arrival of the Ambassadors, was assultously cruculated through the town of Port Nord Ouest, and publicly distributed at the house inhabited by the Ambassadors One of the Ambassadors spoke the French language, and they were accompanied by a petson in the Turkish diess who spoke French and English with uncommon confectness and fluency, and also appeared to be master of most of the country languages. This person had been known at Bussonah under the name of Abdoolah, at Surat under that of Deivish, and at the Maunitus passed under that of Tallamas he appeared to answer the description of one of the Agents of Fiance mentioned by Mr. Wickham. The Ambassadors openly and on every public occasion avowed the propositions contained in the Proclamation, and Talamas's conversation, though with more appearance of caution and mystery, conversioned on insustance with theirs.

[·] See Appendix

An universal belief pievailed in the Isle of Fiance, subsequent to the aniival of the Ambassadors, that Tippoo would make an immediate attack on the British possessions in India, but the temerity of his design was the subject of general indicule.

You will observe in the Proclamation a direct reference made to the nowers of the Ambassadors with respect to settling the pay and final discharge of the recruits to be raised The Ambassadors publicly acted under this reference, and concluded engagements with the recruits in the name of Tippoo Propositions were also made to a large body of the regular troops of France to enter into the service of Tippoo This was rejected, and these troops some time afterwards were embarked for France, "in consequence of the disturbances which prevailed in the island. But notwithstanding the rejection of the proposition made to the main body of the French force in the island, one hundred officers (few of much experience or skill) and fifty privates of the lowest class of the democratic rabble of the island, were actually inlisted under the Proclamation. With this force the Ambassadors embarked on the 7th March, under every public honour from the Government, on board the French frigate, La Preneuse, declaims an intention of proceeding to the Island of Bourbon for the purpose of obtaining additional levies of men. The force so taised has since been landed at Mangalore, about the middle of April Accounts vary with respect to then number, but the most probable intelligence is, that it does not exceed two hundred Whatever may be its amount, the whole force has been received into Tippoo's service with public marks of favour and honour.

^{*} Batavia was then subsequent destination

But whatever construction may be put upon the policy of M Malatten this extraordinary measure, the intentions of Tippoo Sultan admit of no question / He has entered into offensive and defensive engagements with the French, collected a force under those engagements, sufficient that fonce to land in his country, admitted it into his service, and declared publicly through his Ambassadors that his preparations of war are complete, and that their object is the entire sulversion of the Buttale mune in India)

That he has not yet obtained a force equal to the magnitude of his design is a fortunate on cumstance for our interests, but no justification of his aggression. The iashness, imbecility, and consequent ill success of his councils can never be admitted to palliate the unqualified hostility of his actions, and on every pinneighe of public faith, and of the law of nations, it cannot be demed that he has violated the subsisting teaties between him and the Company, and that his proceedings have been convalent to a declaration of war

Under such circumstances it became not only my light but my duty to take advantage of the moment of his actual weakness, and to strike an immediate blow against his possessions, for the pulpose of frustrating his preparations for war before he could receive the succouls which it appears by the Proclamation he had demanded from the Executive Duectory of France, as well as from the Government of Manyting.

The objects which appeared to me the most desirable, as well as the most easily attanable, ever, first, to seize the whole maritime tenitory remaining in his possession below the Ghauts, on the coast of Malabar, in order to preclude him from all further communication by sea with his French alhies Secondly, by matching the aimy from the coast of Malabar has capital, to compel him to purchase peace by a formal cession of the territory seized on the coast of Malabar

Thirdly, to compel him to defray our whole expense in the wai, and thus to secure the double advantage of indemnifying us for the expense occasioned by his aggression, and of reducing his resources, with a view to our future security.

Fourthly, to compel him to admit permanent residents at his court from us and from our allies, a measure which would enable us at all times to check his operations, and to counteract the intricacies of his tieachery

Fifthly, to make the expulsion of all the natives of Fiance now in his service, and the perpetual exclusion of all Frenchmen, both from his army and from his dominions, conditions of any treaty of peace with him

(Levely motive of justice and policy appeared, and still appears, to me to demand the adoption of this or of some similar plan for reducing the power of Tippoo to such a condition as shall render him unable to avail himself of the solicited assistance of Finance, or of any other collateral and which the course of fittine circumstances may offer to him, for the prosecution of his declared design of expelling the British nation from India. The measure is not less necessary for the purpose of applying a seasonable check to the rising influence of Fiance in India)

The present state of our army in the opinion of all military men, leaves no doubt of the ultimate success of the plan which I have stated, and if its speedy accomplishment had appeared to me as certain as its ultimate success, I should not have hesitated one moment in ordering the movement of the troops for that purpose But upon consulting the persons most conversant with military details, I found that the actual state of the frontier fortifications of the Carnatic, of the train of artillery, and of the stores of grain and other provisions, was such, as not to admit of any sudden movement of a large force, although it appeared certain that such a force might be collected within a very short space of time. I also found that the expense of making the necessary preparations would be very heavy, and that the result was likely to lead to a protracted and expensive, although, according to every opinion, a successful war

(The present reduced state of the counts at Poonah and Hyderabad admitted no hope of immediate assistance from either of those powers, and the embarrassment of our finances, which had so lately engaged my most serious attention, now pressed with accumulated weight upon my mind. Under all these encumstances, I felt with the utmost degree of pan and regret, that the moment was unfavourable to the adoption of the only measure which promises effectual and permanent security to the territories committed to my charge, and that such a step was absolutely impracticable without a considerable reduction of the commercial investment, attended by all the destinctive consequences which such a blow must produce upon the trade of the Company, upon then pecuniary affairs at home, upon the welfare of then subjects in India, and finally, upon the general situation of the public revenue and credit of Great Britain) I was also aware of the evil effects which the mee fact of a was breaking out in this quarter might produce in England, under all the anxiety and pressure of the usesnit moment

[.] This was the language of Tippoo's circular to the Princes of India

These reflections led me to the determination of relinquishing the idea of making an immediate attack upon the possessions of Tippoo, but I still felt that our reputation and honour, as well as our future security, demanded that I should not suffer his late proceedings to pass without notice. and I am persuaded that you will agree with me, that our tacit submission, under an insult and injury of so offensive and aggravated a nature, would greatly elevate the credit and hopes of Tippoo and of France, and occasion a proportionate depression of our influence and consideration in the eves of our allies, and of all the Native Powers of India On the other hand, the result of his embassy having only served to expose his treachery, and the weakness of the enemy in this part of the world, a remonstrance of a firm but temperate spirit will be sufficient to satisfy our honour, and to convince the Native Powers that our moderation alone mduces us to abstain from that more rigorous course of which his conduct would furnish the ample justification, and of which our strength insures the certain success. I have therefore called upon Tippoo to make a public disayowal of the proceedings of his Ambassadors, to declare distinctly the nature of his intentions towards us and our allies, and particularly to explain, without disguise, the destination of the force raised in the Isle of France, and lately landed at Mangalore

I have communicated the Pioclamation in question, together with a statement of all the circumstances attending the transaction, to the courts of Poonsh and Hydenshad, and I have claimed their concurrence in the representation to be made to Tippoo, and the co-operation of their respective forces in the event of Tippoo's refusing to listen to the joint remonstrance of the allnes, and of his compelling us to resort to aims

The experience of Tippoo's recent conduct evidently proves that we may be deceived, if we found our calculation of his movements upon the ordinary principles of prudence and discretion It is therefore possible that he may reject our moderate requisition, and suddenly involve us in a war. I have therefore thought it prudent to direct the army to be assembled upon the coast of Coromandel, and similar measures of preparation to be taken at Bombay, but with no intention of employing any part of the force in active operations, unless Tippoo should either refuse to make the required explanation, or should at once commence war against our possessions The nature of the present crisis appears, howeven, both to demand and to favour the execution of further measures of precaution, which will afford additional security to us in the event of war, and which may contribute to avert that calamity

In my Letters, Nos 1 & 2, dispatched by Admiral Pringle from the Cape of Good Hope, I submitted to you my apprehensions with respect to the declining state of our alliances in India, to the unfavourable change which had taken place in the relative situations of the several states of India with reference to our interests, and above all, I warned you of the growing influence of France in the armies and councils of the Native Powers I now feel the full weight of the evil which I then anticipated With a due confidence in the single strength of our own arms, we must acknowledge that, without the co-operation of the Mahrattas and the Nizam. and particularly of the latter, at least to the extent of facilitating our convoys of provisions and stores, a protracted campaign in Mysooi would be attended with great difficulty, if not with danger The situation of the courts of Poonah and Hyderabad is become much more alarming than I stated it to be in my letters from the Cape / If Tippoo were to attack us in the present moment, we could derive no assistance whatever, either from the Nizam or from the Peishwa, both those powers, in their actual condition, being utterly disqualified from fulfilling their defensive engagements with us Semdah, who, with the greater part of his army, has been for a long time in the neighbourhood of Poonah, has impressioned Nana Furnavese, has usuiped the whole authority of the Peishwa, leaving however his person at liberty, and at the same time has threatened the dominions of the Nizam

In the meanwhile the French army at Hyderabad has been augmented to the number of 14,000 men kand although the death of M Raymond, and the resumption of the Jaghue granted for the maintenance of the army, have to a certain degree reduced the political power of this faction, yet the command having been conferred on another Frenchman, and the number of the corps greatly increased and its discipline considerable improved, the French party at Hyderabad cannot be said to be in any degree less formidable to the independance of the Nizam, or to our interests, than I represented it to be in my letters from the Cape, and I learn by letters secesved this day from the Resident at Hyderabad, that since M. Perion has taken the command, numbers of French officers have been added to it, and more are expected, although the routes by which they are introduced into the Deccan are as yet unknown / The danger to be apprehended from this party is much aggravated by two circumstances which have recently happened, the one that Scindiah has placed the corps lately commanded by M De Borgne in the hands of a Frenchman, the other, that Tippoo Sultan (who was supposed to have been apprenhensive of the growth of a French faction at Seringapatam) has manifested a disposition to admit French officers and privates to an unlimited extent into his service. It is probable the expectation of crushing the Nizam and the Peishwa, by a co-operation with the French officers in the armies of the Nizam and Scindish. as well as the hope of founding upon the ruins of the Courts of Poonah and Hyderabad an influence which might rival if not destroy the British power, may have reconciled Tropoo to the perilous experiment of cultivating French principles in an Asiatic counts Azim ul Omra, the Nizam's minister, is fully aware of the present danger of the Nizam's dominions exposed to the attack of Scindiah on the one side, and to the intrigues of the French faction on the other, and he has repeatedly applied for an increase of the British detachment serving with the Nizam, promising that our agreement to that increase shall be immediately followed by the dismission of the whole of Penjon's coups. A common apprehension of the designs of Scindiah has produced an union of interests between the Courts of Hyderabad and Poonah, and negotiations have been in agitation, with a view to their mutual security against that danger which threatens equal destruction to both. On the other hand, the Peishwa has expressed his desne to enter into new engagements with us, and the Resident at Poonah has declared that if, under the circumstances of Tippoo's preparations, it were thought advisable to send a British detachment to Poonah, Scindiah could not on any just ground object to such a movement, and that the mere presence of a Butish force would effectually restore the power and authority of the Peishwa There can be no doubt that the mefficient state of our alliances has been one main ground of Tippoo's late proceedings, and this cicumstance may account in some degree for the audacious and confident spirit which marks the character of those measures. In the present posture of affairs, the position of Scindiah's aimy operates as an effectual check upon the motions of both our Allies, and prevents either from affording us the assistance to which we are entitled by treaty Thus Scindiah in reality renders the most useful service to Tippoo, and frustrates the whole object of our defensive alliance, in the meanwhile dissensions have broken out in the army of Scindiah, whose violence, impetuosity, and injustice have disgusted all the ancient connections of his family (His dominions upon the north-western frontier of India are in a state approaching to general revolt, and, although in the present weakness of the internal governments of the Nizam and the Peishwa, Scindiah is viewed with terror by both, there is no doubt that he is not in a condition to oppose any measures which we might think necessary to take for restoring the consideration and strength of either, and it is more than probable that the result of such measures would be to restrain his projects of aggrandizement and ambition, and to induce him to return peaceably into his own dominions.) In this conjuncture, therefore, neither the Nizam nor the Peishwa are likely to view with any jealousy the assistance which we might chuse to afford to either, while any opposition to such an ariangement on the part of Scindiah would be wholly unjustifiable and ineffectual. The enlargement of our subsidiary ariangements with the Nizam, and the conclusion of similar engagements with the Peishwa under similar restrictions, confined to the case of defence against Tippoo, would have been justifiable measures under any cincumstances, but the aggression of Tippoo places the ariangement on the most impregnable grounds of justice with respect to Scindiah or any other Power, while the accidental concludence of the interests of the Peishwa and of the Nizam affords a reasonable expectation of success.

Under all these cucumstances, I have thought it advasable to give to the Residents at Poonah and Hyderabad a power of requiring a body of troops from Bombay and from Madras, directing that the disunssion of the French aimy at Hyderabad should be a necessary condition of the increase of the British detachment at the Nizam's court, and connecting the British detachment at the Nizam's court, and connecting the Whole airangement with various advantages which we may hope to secure by a new system of treaty, both with the Nizam and with the Posliwa And I have further ordered that no step towards a new airangement should be taken at either Court without the previous consent and approbation of the other, and without their mitual acceptance of my arbitration for the final adjustment of all subsisting diffregeneous between them

{ It was necessary on this occasion to instruct the Resident at Hyderabad, with respect to the succession to the Nizam's thome in the event of his death. As the Nizam has lately admitted Secunder Jah, his eldest son, to the personal exercise of centam acts of sovereignty, which admission is deemed at that Court a virtual nomination to the succession, as Secunder Jah is a friend to the British interests, and as none of the younger sons can reach the thinous by any other means than by the assistance of the French and Tippoo (with whom they are intimately connected,) and by the total destruction of our influence, I have directed the Resident to support the right of Secunder Jah. The detail of the principles of this decision will be forwarded to you by the next despatch?

Overtures of the most friendly nature have been made to his Govenment by the Rajah of Beiai, who has entered no engagements with the Nizan foi the puipose of restaining the ambition of Scindiah) without deeding at present how as it may be advisable to cultivate a closer connection with the Rajah of Beiai, it is my intention to send an Ambassado to his Court, with the double view of ascertaining his pre-isse objects, and of checking the motions of Scindiah, who will take alarm whenever the news shall leach him of any intercourse being established between this Government and the Rajah of Beian

I have lately received a letter from Zemann Shah, containing a declaration of his intention to invade Hindostan, and a peremptory demand of the assistance of the Nabob Vizier and of mine, for the purpose of delivering Shah Aulum from the hands of the Mahiattas, of restoring him to the throne of Dellu, and of expelling the Mahrattas from then acquisitions on the north-western frontier of India very difficult to form a conjecture with respect to the probability of Zenaun Shah's being able to execute his iomantic design That he entertains such a design is unquestionable, and whatever may be the result, it is prudent to be on our suard, and in the meanwhile to derive every collateral advantage from his declaration. I have therefore transmitted the Shah's letter to Scindiah through the Resident at Poonah, with the view of suggesting to Scindiah the possible danger of his heieditary dominions, and I have expressed my entire disapprobation of the ambitious projects of Zemaun Shah, and my disposition to enter into defensive engagements with Scindiah, for the purpose of frustrating the threatened invasion, declaring to Scindiah that, whenever he shall return into his own dominions, he will find the British Resident at his durbar prepared to conclude such a defensive treaty, in which it is my wish to include all the Allies of the British Government)

I have also signified to Scindiah, in the most amicable terms, my desine to witness his prosperity within the limits of this own dominions. As Scindiah must be perfectly aware of the disturbed state of his dominions, and must know that we hold his fate in our hands, I have every reason to hope that my endeavours to restore our Allies to the power of fulfilling then engagements with us, will not be delayed by any opposition from him / But feeling the great importance of meventing the destruction of the power of the Pershwa and of the Nizam, whose dominions, in the event of Scindiah's success, would immediately be divided between Scindish. Tippoo, and the French, and whose rum would furnish the most solid foundation for the power of the latter. I have directed the Resident at Poonah, if pacific representations should be rejected by Scindish, to inform him that the British force will be employed for the protection and support of the authority of the Peishwa, and if necessity should demand, the employment of the force for those purposes, I have authorized that measure, provided, in the opinion of the commanding officer of the detachment, the force should be deemed adequate to the service required I trust, however, that no such necessity will occur, and that Scindiah's sense of his perilous situation and real interest, added to the state of his aimy and of his dominions, will induce him to abandon his project of annihilating our allies, and I therefore hope that, in the course of a few months, I shall have the satisfaction to find, that the result of these arrangements will have produced a considerable check to the growing influence of the French in India, will have effected the re-establishment of our allies in some degree of credit and efficiency, and will have restored the general balance of power upon the foundations on which it stood at the conclusion of the Treaty of Seningapatam In any view, the effect of such a change in the face of affans must be favourable to us, it may induce Tippoo to postpone the execution of his comprehensive plans of vengeance, or if not, it will enable us to frustrate them with more facility and dispatch)

A full detail of my communication with Tippoo, with Scindahi, and with the Courts of Hydeiabad and Poonals together with a more particular statement of the punciples upon which the whole ariangement is founded, will be dispatched overland by express to the Secret Committee in the course of a few days, in the meanwhile I thought it would afford you satisfaction to receive, by the caliest opportunity, the general outline of the system which I have deemed it my duty to pursue.

While Tippoo shall possess the means of a ready intercourse with the French by sea, our possessions in India must for ever be exposed to alarm and danger, unless we are always careful to maintain our preparations for war in such an advanced state, as will at any time afford us the facility of sudden and rapid movements of our military force. I have therefore directed the government of Fort St George to take immediate measures for placing in a respectable posture of defence such of the frontier for tresses as Lord Cornwallis duected to be maintained, and I have ordered that a provision of grain, sufficient for a large army in the field for three months, be constantly stored in these fortresses, and that monthly returns of their state be forwarded to me. I have also ordered that a large train of artillery be immediately provided, and constantly kept in readiness for use in the field, either at Ainee or Vellore, and that periodical reports of the condition of this tram of artillery be made to me. I propose that these two regulations, although they must be the source of considerable expense, should be permanent. until some material alteration shall take place, either in the appearance of affairs in Europe or in India

Having thus submitted to you the general view of the steps which I have taken for providing against the event of a war with Tippoo, I should think myself guilty of a breach, both of public duty and of private friendship, if I withheld my conscientious opinion, that the interests of the Company in India can never be secure while Tippoo Sultaun shall retain the ready means of intercourse by sea with the French Government His remaining territory on the coast of Malabar is his most powerful instrument of war, and in my decided judgment, it would be the most economical policy which could be adopted to seize the first just occasion of depriving him of so formidable an engine of hostility, even at the sacrifice of a temporary suspension of the investment, and of a considerable present expense Upon this important subject I wish to receive your instructions without delay If the was should continue in Europe, there is little doubt that the impetuosity of Tippoo will afford frequent justifiable opportunities to this Government of reducing his power My wish is to know distinctly whether the Company be prepared to encounter the temporary inconvenience which must be endured before they can obtain permanent security for their possessions in India

The orders of the Court of Driectors, and the opinions of this Government, have uniformly concurred in declaring, that "the landing of any considerable French force in Trippoo's country must be the signal for an attack upon him"

I wish to know exactly, whether the term "considerable," when I observe is constantly used, is to be constitued as a limitation of my discretion. It appears to me that the landing of any French force in Tippoo's country is a sufficient ground of war, upon every primciple both of justice and of policy, but more especially, after the public declaration which he has made of his designs against our possessions. Any other construction will compel this Government to remain an mactive spectator of his preparations for war in conjunction with France, provided only that these preparations be made gradually, and that the French force be introduced into his country in small detachments.

The systemate introduction of French officers into the service of all the Native Powers of India, which Mi Wickham describes as the fixed policy of France, has been puristed with unremitting assiduity and extensive success, if Tippoo should at any time be enabled to derive succoust from France, his movements might be seconded by the general co-operation of large bodies of French adventurers, who are known to maintain a concert in all parts of India

The destruction of the French army at Hyderabad would certainly operate as a considerable check to the growth of this foundable out the corps of Perion being the mainspring of all the designs of the French party in India But the only effectual barrier against the nruption of France into India would be our possession of the whole of Tippoo's maintime territory

I am, &c

Mornington

No XXIII

General Harris to the Earl of Mornington

My LORD.

6th July, 6 o'Clock, P M

At the instant of our closing the packet, a letter is arrived from Mr Torin, saying that the Rajah agrees to the treaty of 1792, and to such other arrangements as may be mutually agreed upon for the honour and interest of both parties

After this the Rajah adverted to his youth and inexperience, to the difficulties he should have to encounter, and expressed a wish for assistance for a time from the Honourable Company

Mi Toun informed the Rajah, that upon that subject, as no interference could take place but what was formally and explicitly specified by himself, he, Mi Toun would postpone the subject for a few days, as the Company would wish this application to spining from his full conviction of the benefit to be derived from t

> Yours, faithfully, Geo Harris

No XXIV

Hon Frederic North to the Earl of Mornington

My Dear Lord, Bombay, 7th July, 1798

I have not as yet received any letters from England, at which I am more angry and afflicted than surprized, as I know, and you will find, that business in our offices at home loses its importance in proportion to its distance I am, however, much less uneasy than I could imagine I should be in a state at once so uncertain, so embarrassed, and so ridiculous Governor Duncan keeps me most hospitably in his house, and I find many objects of amusement in the languages and customs of the people here How much more interesting must they be in your great capital, where so many men of learning and genius are employed in elucidating them M1 Duncan tells me that the celebrated Captain Willford. now at Benaies, has prepared for the press a long and very learned dissertation on the knowledge which the Hindoos had of geography, and that he proves from the Puranas that they had an intimate acquaintance with Britestan of Britain, with the livers Thames and Severn, and with the history of the Island as given by Geoffery of Monmouth As Captain Willford is extremely modest, and wants encouragement to produce the fruits of his labours. Mr Duncan is afraid that the departure of Lord Teignmouth, who was his declared pation, may have reduced him to silence, but I took the liberty of assuring him that such a man as Captain Willford, and such a production as his, will certainly be encouraged and protected by your Lordship

Your most faithful and obedient humble Servant, FREDERIC NORTH

No. XXV

The Earl of Mornington to J A Kis kpatrich, Esq Acting Resident at Hyderabad

(Secret)

Str., Fort William, 8th July 1798

I transmit to you an authentic copy of a Proclamation published by the Governio General of the Isle of France, during the residence of two Ambassadors from Trippo Sultaun on that Island — The Proclamation purports to be a declaration of certam propositions communicated to the French Government, in the name of Trippoo Sultaun, by his Ambassadors, then on the spot

It enumerates those propositions with a particularity of detail which would not have been hazarded in the presence of the Ambassadors, had it not corresponded with the substance of the communications made by them to the French Government

In addition to the asymments founded in the nature of the Proclamation, and in the facts of its publication under the eyes of the Ambassadors, I am in possession of evidence which leaves no doubt upon my mind of the concurience of the Ambassadors in every pair of the Proclamation, and I cannot suppose that they would have ventured to exceed the limits of their institutions from Tippoo Sultaum in a matter of such serious importance as the conclusion of offensive and defensive engagements with the French Government Under this Proclamation, 150 officers and privates were actually raised in the Isle of France for the service of Tippoo, and for the purposes avowed in the Proclamation, and that force has since been landed at Mangalore, and received into Tippoo's atmy with peculian marks of honour and distinction

4. This circumstance is sufficient to prove that the proceedings of the Ambassadois have obtained the sanction of then Sovereign, who has thus confirmed and avowed the propositions made through them to the enemy, by a solemn, public, and personal act. Having thus entered into an offensive and defensive alliance with the French Government, having collected, in conjunction with that Government, a force openly destined to act against the British possessions, having avowed, through his public Ambassadors, that he has actually made preparations of war for the express purpose of attempting the subversion of the British power in India, and having declared that he only waits the effectual assistance of France to prosecute his design, Tippoo Sultaun has violated the teaties of peace and friendship subsisting between him and the Allies, and has committed a direct act of hostility against the British Government in India

That he has yet obtained no foundable assistance from the enemy, is undoubtedly a fortunate cincumstance for the British interests, but the tementy and consequent ill success of his councils, in no degree palliates the offensive nature of an aggression so unprovoked, and of a volation of faith so public and undisguised. It is not improbable, that he may still expect to receive a more effectual succoun from Fiance, but there is every reason to hope, that any attempt to furnish him with assistance from that quarter, would be fustiated by the vigilance and superior power of his Majesty's feets

It is, however, difficult to ascertain the piecise motives which may stimulate the violence of his temper to action, and his late embassy to the Isle of Fiance is a sufficient proof, that revenge against the British Nation in India, is an object which he is capable of pursuing with more zeal than disaction

Under such circumstances, it is piudent to be prepared to repel the attack which he has openly menaced, and as our future security, our reputation, and our honor, demand that he should be reduced to the alternative, either of making such satisfaction to the allies, as they may hereafter require for the impury which he has committed, or of risking another contest with the British power, it is advisable to aim for the purpose of supporting whatever requisition we may deem it necessary to make to him, when our respective preparations shall be sufficiently advanced to enable us to act with effect

The 10th and 13th articles of treaties of alliance between the Company, the Nizam, and the Peishwa, provide that "if Tippoo should molest or attack either of the contracting parties, the others shall join to punish him, the modes and conditions of which, shall be hereafter settled by the three contracting patters"

I desire that you will immediately communicate to Azim ul Oma in a formal manner the accompanying proclamation, and explain to bim the nature of the propositions which it contains, you will also notify to him the landing of the French force at Mangalore, and declare to him in my name, that I consider the whole transaction as a violation of treaty, and a direct act of hostility on the part of Trippoo, and that I claim the assistance and co-operation of the Nizam under the 10th Article of the Treaty of Paungul You will, hovever, add, that although I should feel myself completely justified in making an immediate attack upon the tenitory of Trippoo, my disposition to preserve the tranquility of India, induces me in the flust instance to affood hum an opportunity of rest aming the evcess of his violence, before it shall have involved him in the calamity of war.

With this view you will apply to Azim ul Oma to signify to the Nizam my wish that he should now expises his disposition to concur with the Peishwa, and with me, in making a demand of satisfaction from Tippoo Sultaum. The nature and extent of the demand, as well as the time of making it, to be heteafter conceited between the allies. You will mform Azim ul Omar that a similar application has been made to the Peishwa the Resident at Poonah will be directed to communicate to you the progress of his proceedings at that court under the instructions which he will have received from me. As soon as you shall have received from Poonah the notification of the Peishwa's concurrence in the propositions made to him on this part of the subject, you will send me immediate advice of it.

If Tippoo Sultaun, in the cateer of his ungovernable passions, should refuse to make the satisfaction which shall be demanded of him by the allies, hostilities will become inevitable, and you will signify to Azim ul Omia that I have already taken the necessary precaution of assembling the fonces of the Company with a view to that event, entertaining no doubt that in such a contingency, the Nizam will be ready to afford to the common cause of the allies, the effectual cooperation of his force

Although I have thought it expedient to communicate my instructions to you in the foregoing order, I am sensible that their effectual execution will be impracticable, unless some previous measures be taken for restoring the independence of the Nizam's government, by delivering it from the influence of the French party, and from the hostilities menaced by Scindiah, as well as from the danger of future attacks on the part of the Mahnattas.

The present crisis demands a serious and dispassionate review of the relative interests of the powers united by treaty for the purpose of securing an effectual barrier against the mordinate ambition and implacable revenge of Trippo Sultaun

It has been painful to observe that since the conclusion of the Treaty of Seingapatam, two great branches of the triple Alliance have been engaged in mutual contests, of which the result has terminated in their mutual weakness, whilst the common enemy has nemained at test, improved his resources, and increased his stiength. The unfortunate ammostry between the Courts of Poonah and Hydeiabad, while it has tended to foment and aggravate the distractions in the former Court has contributed to reduce the latter to the lowest degree of weakness and humilation. In the meanwhile the French faction at the Court at Hyderabad has grown to such a formdable degree of power, as to control on many serious occasions the councils of that state, and to menace an ascendant influence in the eventual succession to the throne of the Nizero.

Although the death of Mons Raymond, and the resumption of the Jaghine which had been granted to him, have in some degree reduced the political influence of the French aimy at Hydeiabad, it now foins the only efficient part of the Nizam's military strength, its numbers have been lately increased, its disorphine considerably improved and it possesses sufficient activity and power to attempt and accomplish objects of the most prejudicial nature to the independence of the Court of Hyderabad, to the common interests of the Nizam and of the Peishwa, as well as to those of the British nation in India. In the event of a war with Mysore, there can be no doubt that the wishes and interests of this part of VOL L. the Nizam's army must be favorable to the cause of Tippoo Sultaun, more especially under the actual circumstances of this having concluded an allance with France, and having admitted [a body of French toops into his service. If the French troops of the Nizam did not afford Tippoo open assistance, at least they could not be brought into the field against him without the utmost danger to the cause of the allies, nor could they be suffered to remain in the Deccan during the continuance of the contest, unless checked by the presence of an equally powerful force, which must in that case be diverted from the common objects of the war, and must operate as a positive diministron of our effective strength in the field

It appears, however, nearly certain, that in the present weak state of the Nizam's government, the French corps in his service would openly join Tippoo Sultaun, and by a sudden blow endeavour to seize the Nizam's territories, and to secure them to the dominion of France, under an alliance offensive and defensive with Tippoo Sultaun

It is scarcely necessary to observe that the success of such a design must be highly injurious to the interests of the Court of Poonah, especially when it is considered that it must be the interest and inclination of Scindiah (who entertains a large body of infantry in his service, under the command of a French officer), to engage with Tippoo Sultaun and the French upon conditions fatal to the existence of the Peishwa's authority, and even of his office The junction which might thus be effected between the French officers with their seve-1al corps in the respective services of the Nizam, of Scindish. and of Tippoo, might establish the power of France and India upon the 1um of the states of Poonah and of the Deccan. The Court of Hyderabad, therefore, in its present condition, is more likely to prove the source of additional strength to the common lenemy of the Nızam, of the Peishwa, and of the Company, than to afford useful assistance to any branch of the timle alliance.

From my letter to the Resident at Poonah, of which I enclose you a copy, you will observe that I have instructed him to state to the Peishwa, the arguments of piudence and policy which should induce him to view the setsotation of the Nizam to a just degree of consideration and power, as an object intimately connected with the Peishwa's own emancipation from the undue influence by which he is now oppiessed, as well as with his future security against the violence of Tippoo Sultaun, and of Scindiah

I refer you to the same letter for the particulars of my instructions to Colonel Palmer, and of the measures which I have authorised him to puisue for enabling the Peishwa to fulfil his engagements under the triple alliance

I am persuaded that the Azum ul Omna will at once perceive the advantages which must result to the interest of the Nizam from the restoration of the due authority of the Peishwa, accompanied by the airangements which I have proposed Under those airangements the power of the Peishwa would operate as a constant restraint upon the motions of Scindiah, of Tippoo, and of the Friench, who are equally the enemies of the Peishwa and of the Nizam, and who menace equal danger to the tranquillity and independence of both

Immediately upon icceiving this despatch you will communcate to Azm ul Oma the whole of the proposed an iangements with respect to the Courts of Hyderabad and Poonah, as detailed in this letter, and in that additessed to Colonel Palmer, and you will explain to lim fully the principles upon which the arrangement is founded, the various objects which it embraces, the means by which it is to be carried into effect, and the ends which it is intended to accomplish, with relation to the interests of all the parties concerned.

You will at the same time apprise him without disguise, that the execution of the whole and of every part of the plan must depend upon the mutual consent of the Nizam and of the Pesihwa You will futther expires to Azim il Omra that although I have viewed with great concern and anxiety the piogress of the calamities which have disturbed the transquility of the two courts, it is now a matter of cordula satisfaction to me to perceive that the issuit of those misfortunes promises an union of sentiment between the Nizam and the Peishwa, and affords a prospect of ie-establishing the triple alliance on its original basis. You will also urge to Azim ul Omra the credit and honor which it would reflect on his administration, if through his means the Nizam and the Peishwa should be enabled to delive reciprocal advantage and permanent security from a state of confusion which appeared to threaten their common ruin

I rely upon your ability and zeal for the public service to state the details of these important measures to Azim ul Orma with every circumstance of advantage. Your communication should be unequivocal and unreserved, no part either of the principles or details of the arrangement requires any degree of concealment, my object being to unite all parties on the film ground of their genuine interests.

You will at the same time declare to Azim ul Omia, that the recent conduct of Tippoo Sultam having rendered it my night and duty, in confoinnty with the laws of my country, to take effectual measures in concert with the allies for the mutual defence of our respective possessions, I am now at liberty to express my sincere disposition to attend to the propositions which he has so frequently made for the extension of our subsidiary engagements with his Highness, and you will signify my anytous desire to interpose the friendly mediation of the Company for the adjustment of the unfortunate differences which have so long subsisted between the Counts of Poonah and Hyderabad and Dowlut Rao Scindiah

You will further state, that I have authorised you to enter into an immediate negotiation with Azim ul Omra for increasing our present detachment with his Highness to the number of six thousand men, including those now serving with his Highness, under the following conditions —

1 That the services of the increased detachment, be

- subject to the same conditions of limitation and restriction as the present detacliment, unless the Peishwa, at the instance of the British Government, should hereafter consent to any variations in those conditions
- n That satisfactory and effectual provision be made for the regular payment of the detachment, and that the anieats of the Peishwa on the part of the Company be regularly balanced against the arrears of Subsidy on the part of his Highness
- III That the whole corps officered by Frenchmen, and which was named the corps of Raymond, and is now commanded by Monsseur Phon, be immediately disbanded The French officers and pirvates to be conveyed to Europe at the expense of the Company, in ships to be provided for that purpose by the Government of Fort St George, at a convenient port, to be named by that Government For this purpose the officers and privates are to proceed to the place appointed by that Government, which will stipulate to treat them with every degree of consideration due to their rank they will not be subject to any further restraint than such as is absolutely necessary for effecting the purpose of conveying them to Europe A stipulation to be entered into by the Resident in my name, that the officers and privates so embarked shall be sent to France as soon as possible after then arrival in any port in Great Britain, and not be detained for any cartel or exchange of prisoners, nor be considered as prisoners to any other effect than the security of their return to then native country Such of the native officers and privates as the Nizam may wish to retain in his service to be drafted into the corps of Mr Finglass, or into any other corps in his Highness's service under the command of British, or of officers of any country but France The European and native deseiters from the Company's aimy on the coast to be excepted from this part of the arrangement, and to be delivered up to the Government of Fort St George

IV His Highness to stipulate for himself, his hens and successors, that the natives of France, shall be for ever excluded from his armies and dominions

You will uige to Azim ul Omia in the strongest terms, the necessity of his taking every precaution to prevent the propositions for the dismission of the French party from transpring, and you will suggest to him, the propriety of dispersing the cop is m small parties, for the purpose of facilitating its final reduction, and of preventing the officers and privates from passing into the service of Tippoo or of Scindian If the French officers should obtain information of the measures in signation with respect to them, and should be allowed to unter themselves into one body, there is every reason to apprehend, that they would endeavour to excite commotion, or that they would attempt to retire with their corps into the service of the enemies of the Nizam.

You will consider the Nizam's acceptance of my abbtration, between the Courts of Poonah and Hyderabad, and Semdush, upon the principles stated in my letter to Colonel Palmei, as well as his Highness's consent to the proposed arrangements at Poonah, and to the several conditions stated in paragraph No 24, of his despatch, to be necessary preliminaries to the measures, which I have authorized you to take for delivering the Nizam from the power of the French faction established in his dominions. Should Azim ul Omia consent in the name of the Nizam, to the proposed conditions, you will then require the match of the troops fro-Foit St George, or from such station as the Government of that Pleadency shall have appointed for the detachment, with a view to its speedy match to Hyderabad

It would be useful to me to leain your sentiments, with respect to a new treaty of general defence with the Nizam and to any new objects which it might embrace with relation to our interests at the Court of Hyderabad, to this treaty I should wish the Peishwa to be a party

You will inform Azim ul Omra, that under the circumstances of Tippoo's preparations of war against us, and of the hostilities with which Scindial menaces the dominions of the Nizam, the British detachment at Hyderabad, will have orders to protect his Highness's person, and to support his authority against any atttack which Scindiah may make upon either, as well as against any attempts of the French party, and you will understand it to be my intention, to vest you with full powers to direct the employment of the troops in both cases, in such manner as circumstances may render advisable, provided that in the opinion of the commanding officer, the strength of the detachment shall be deemed adequate to the performance of the service required You will however apprize Azım ul Omra, that it is my wish to mediate between Scindiah, and the Courts of Poonah and Hyderabad. under the condition detailed in my letter to Colonel Palmer. and you will consider the provisional agreement of the Nizam to this offer of mediation, between his Highness and Scindiah, as another necessary preliminary to the increase of the Butish detachment at Hyderabad

The whole scope of my views, is to re-establish our means of defence against the avowed designs of Tippoo, by restoning to our allies that degree of consideration and strength, which they possessed at the conclusion of the treaty of Sermgapatam, and which it was the object of that treaty to secure on solid and permanent foundations, an object insepanably connected with the security of the British possessions in India

Since the conclusion of the peace of Seringapatam, a material change has taken place in the situation of almost all the states of India, both with relation to each other, and to the interests of the Bittish Government. The revolutional at Poonah, have impaned the influence of the constitutional head of the Mahiatta empire, and deranged the whole system of the balanced powers and interests of the several confided are Mahiatta states.

Both the Pesshwa and the Nizam, whose respective power it was the object of the treaty of Seringapatam to stengthen and uphold, are now depressed and weakened, the former by the intuision of Seindah, and the latter by the threatened hostitutes of the same chieffam, and by the establishment of a French faction in the center of the Decani-The co-operation of these two members of the triple alliance has been rendered impracticable by the progress of their mutual contention and intrigues, while-the internal convulsions of each state have duminished the resources of both

In this scene of general confusion, the power of Tippoo Sultaun alone (to restrain which, was the policy of all our alliances and treaties) has remained undisturbed and unmounted, if it has not been augmented and improved.

The final result to the Buttsh Govenment, as the enture loss of the benefit of the treaty of tuple alliance against Tippoo Sultaun, and the establishment of a French amy of fourteen thousand men, in the dominion of one of our allies, in the vicinity of the territories of Tippoo Sultaun, and on the confines of the Cainatic, and of the Northein Chiests

It is now become an uigent duty to make an effort for the arrangement of a system, the disorder of which already menaces our safety, by exposing us to the hazard of a war without the aid of an Ally, while on the other hand the influence of France acquires daily stenight in every quarter of India, under the progressive system of mitoducing Freinch officies into the aimes of all the Native Powers The principles of justice, good faith, and moderation, enjoined by Parliament and by the orders of the Honourable the Court of Directors, must form the basis of those comprehensive measures, the execution of which is demanded by the exigency of our present situation, and is favoured by the peculiar cucumstances of the moment Pursuing no schemes of conquest or extension of dominion, and entertaining no projects of ambition or aggrandizement, either for ourselves or for our Alhes, it is both our right and our duty to give vigour and effect to our subsisting alliances and treaties, by restoring to our Allies the power of fulfilling then defensive engagements with us Through the means of moderate and pacific representations, confirmed by the force of our own example, it must also be our policy to convince the several powers of India that then real interest consists in respecting the rights of then neighbours, and in cultivating then own resources within the limits of their several territories. To these efforts we must add a firm resistance against the intrusion of any foreign power which shall endeavour (to the prejudice of our alliances and interests) to acquire a preponderant influence in the scale of Indian politics, either by force or intrigue, but the primary object of all our vigilance and care must be the destruction of every seed of the French party, already grown to so dangerous a height, and still increasing in the armies and councils of the Nizam, of Scindiah, and of Tippoo The exclusion of the influence of France from the dominions of the native states, is not more necessary to the preservation of our own power, than to the happiness and prosperity of this part of the would

In this first communication with you, I have thought it advisable to applie you of the leading principles which will regulate my conduct towards the native powers, and I have taken a general view of the actual state of our political relations, in order to enable you to act with more confidence and dispatch upon such questions of detail, as may occasionally call for the exercise of your judgement, in promoting the objects of your mission

In pursuing the various topics connected with the subject of this despatch, I shall add my instructions, with regard to the conduct to be observed by the British detachment, in the event of the death of the Nizam

If the question involved nothing more than the performance of our obligations under our subsidiary engagements with the Nizam, it would be sufficient to direct that the detachment should remain neuter until the succession should be finally decided, and that it should then be placed under the orders of the Prince who might establish himself on the

But in the present state of India, our interests and those of our allies, are materially concerned in the principles and connections of the person upon whom the succession to his Highness may devolve, and consequently no time should be lost in determining the part which we shall take on the occasion of the Nizam's decease

The cases for which it is necessary to provide, may be reduced to four

- $\scriptstyle 1$ The formal nomination of Secunder Jah to the succession
- n The death of the Nizam without any formal nomination of a successor
- in An attempt (in either of the preceding cases) of one of his Highness's younger sons, or of any other competitor to usure the musual in exclusion of Secunder Jah
- iv An actual or asserted nomination of any of his Highness's younger sons to the exclusion of Secunder Jah
- In the first, second, and thild cases, the right of Secunder Jah, would be indisputable.

From the natural right of Secundes Jah, founded on the priority of his birth, added to his having been admitted by the Nizam to the personal exercise of a portion of the sovereign authority, under encunstances equivalent to a virtual nomination, I tust their is hittle apprichension of a nomination, of any of the younger sons, whilst his Highness shall retarn the full possession of his faculties

It is fat from improbable, however, that the enemies of Secundie Jah, of Azm ul Oma, and of the Butish interests at Hyderabad, awaie of the importance of inducing his Highness to nominate a successor of their selection, may avail themselves of the weakness of his last moments to prevail on him by misrepresentation or other acts, to nominate one of his younger sons, or in the event of his Highness's death during the absence of Azm ul Omia, and of the friends of Secundie Jah, the enemies of Secundie Jah, may assert that his Highness had made a nomination of one of the younger sons, and under such circumstances, the falsehood of that assection may be difficult of proof.

43 It is not my wish to interfere in the succession to the thione of the Nizam, in repugnance to the established laws or customs of India On the other hand, I hold it to be my absolute duty, to prevent the regular order of the succession from being disturbed, either by domestic faction, or by foreign intrigue or force, to the prejudice of a Prince, the establishment of whose right is so intimately connected with the security of the British interests in India

Although paimogenture may not be considered to give the same absolute and evclusive right to succession in India, as it does in Europe, it is invariably deemed the strongest title, and is raiely superseded excepting in the cases of disaffection, or of positive disqualification

So far from these, or any other grounds of objection being applicable to Secunden Jah, it is well known that his Highness has given the strongest indications of his favorable intentions towards Secunder Jah, by entiusing that Prince with his seal, and empowering him to perform certain acts which are reserved exclusively to the sovereign

Sufficient proof has already appeared of the interest which Tippoo, and the French take in the exclusion of Secunder Jah, and of then determination to interfere in the succession to the thione of the Nizam During the absence of Azım ul Omra at Poonah, when the French army at Hyderabad was neither so formidable in point of numbers or of discipline as in the present moment, Monsieur Raymond obtained the most decided influence over the councils of the Ministers then in power, a permanent establishment was given to the French in the Deccan by the giant of a large Jachne to Mons Raymond, the British detachment was dismissed, and a considerable body of Tippoo's troops was encamped on the Nizam's frontier, a close correspondence was established between Tippoo and Imtiaz ud Dowlah through Medma Saheb, the enemies of Secunder Jah openly sought the assistance of Tippoo, and of the French, with a view of influencing the succession, and according to the opinion of the Resident at Hyderabad, the event of the Nizam's death in that crisis would have left the thione absolutely at the disposal of M Raymond

A similar plan may be again attempted, and its success would necessarily involve the destruction of Azim ul Omra and of Secunder Jah, together with the consequent annihilation of the British influence at Hyderabad all hope or re-establishing the balance of power in India as it existed a the peace of Seiingapatam would then be precluded. The countries of the Nizam would in such an event become ir effect a dependency of Fiance, and the partizans of that nation, in conjunction with Tippoo and with the body of them countrymen lately icceived into his pay, would have the means of endangeiing the existence of the British power in India

That danger would be greatly aggravated by the approach of Zemaun Shah, who has formally announced to me his intention of invading Hindostan

The moment is anived when we must either detenmine to support the nights of Secundie Jah, founded on pitotty of birth and on the vitual nomination of the Nizam in full possession of his faculties, against any actual or asserted nomination of any of the younger sons, under all the circumstances of suspicion which must attend such a transaction, or we must submit to the certam establishment of the influence of Tippoo and of Flance in the Deccan, and to the equally certam dest uction of our you

I have therefore no hesitation in declaring my firm determination to support the succession of Secunder Jah, as being essentially connected with the security of all the interests committed to my change. The execution of this determination will be attended with little difficulty should be Highness's death be protracted until after the proposed augmentation of the subsidiary engagements with him shall have taken place. The French party at Hyderabad will then be no longer in existence, and so powerful a body of our troops as will then be in the service of his Highness, will be sufficient to preclude either foreign or domestic opposition

It is more than probable, however, that his Highness's death will take place before the proposed engagements can be carried into effect

With a view to the probability of this case, I have resolved to direct the Government of Fort St. George immediately to station a foice, consisting of not less than two regiments, in whatever position may be deemed most eligible for affording you the necessary assistance in supporting the right of Secunder Jah, and I authorize you, in the event of the death of the Nizam, or whenever you may understand from Azim ul Omia that the death of his Highness is likely to take place within a very short period of time, to order the commanding officer of this force (who will be directed to obey you instituctions) to manch directly to Hyderabad

Considerable advantages might ause from your communicating this determination to Azim il Oma, but as it is to be appielemeded that he would avail himself of such a communication to serve his private purposes, and as a disclosure of my determination on this point, either to the Nizam himself, or to the Mahaitas, or to Tippoo, might lead to very serious inconvenences, you will take every possible precaution to prevent this part of my instructions from transpuring until the death of the Nizam, or the certainty of the near approach of that event, shall render it necessary to impact my determination to Azim ul Omia

Having seceived overtures of a very friendly nature from the Rajah of Berai, who has sequested the presence of a British Resident at his Court, I have despatched an Λimbassadoi to Nagpore with full powers to ascertain the precise nature of the Rajah's views. You will make such use of your knowledge of this circumstance as you may think most advantageous in the present state of affairs, without deciding what benefits to the common cause of the Alhes may result ultimately from this Embassy, it may be expected that the appearance of an established intercouse between this Government and that of Berrai, may lead Scindiah to form serious effections upon his own situation, and may tend to give additional confidence to the adherents of the Peishwa and of the Nizzan.

Although the pierous consent of the Peishwa to thear-rangements intended to be made at Hydeabad is highly desirable, and is therefore in the flist instance to be stated to Azim il Omra as a necessary pieliminary to the increase of our detachment, yet should Col Palmer inform you that the plan detailed in this letter has failed at the Court of Poonah, either from the Peishwa's rejection of the proposed conditions, or from the success of Seindah's operations in that quarter, or from any other cause, you will notwithstanding proceed with all practicable dispatch to carry into effect such parts of these instructions as shall appear to you practucable at the Court of Hyderabad Reserving always to the Peishwa the power of acceding hereafter to the new system of alliance, and with that view continuing in the new subsidiary treaty with the Nizam the restrictive terms of our present substanty engagements with his Highness. The ariangement will indeed be very incomplete without the restoration of the Peishwa's authority, accompanied by his full concurrence in the measures to be taken at Hydenabad, but as the great danger to be averted is the growth of the milence of Tippoo and of France in India, it is evident that the failure of the proposed plan at Poonah would increase the necessity of providing for the existence of the Nizam, and of destroying the French party at his Court

From your reply to the further information required of you respecting your passport for Hybut Rao, I am not altogether certain whether you considered this Government as pledged to exempt him and his followers from the payment of the duties at Gva, if you should be of opinion that this indulgence would materially conduce to conciliate his son. Ragotim Rao, and to render him favorable to the British interests at Hyderabad, I authorize you to assure Ragotim Rao that Hybut Rao's payments, on account of the persons who actually accompanied him, shall be returned to him at Hyderabad as soon as the amount of those payments can be ascertained I selv upon you, however, to sender this concession the source of advantage with respect to the proposed arrangements, and also to provide effectually against any future attempt to convert so peculiar an indulgence into a precedent for further applications of a similar nature

I entirely approve of your repeated representations to the Court of Hyderabad on the subject of the sumender of the deserters, in the present moment, however, it would not be advasable to agitate this question, otherwise than as it is connected with the instructions already detailed in this despatch, but if the proposed engagements with his Highness should not take effect, I desire you will, without delay, insist peremptorily on the surrender of all the deserters if om our army, whether Europeans or Natives, now entertained in the service of his Highness

Having your whole correspondence now under my consideration, I shall shortly furnish you with orders on such points of detail as require a reply

MORNINGTON

No XXVI

The Earl of Mornington to Jonathan Duncan, Esq.

SIR.

Fort William, July 8th, 1798

I tetum you many thanks for your two obliging letters, the first upon the subject of my arrival at this preadency, and the second, transmitting a packet of letters from Europe I am fully persuaded, that my endeavours to promote the public interest, will be cordulally seconded by your acknowledged experience, ability, and integrity On the other hand, I trust you will always act with the fullest confidence of my unqualified support, and that you will on all occasions be persuaded, that I place a relance on your character, which will induce me by every possible means to give strength, energy, and dispatch to the operations of the Government committed to your patricular charge

You have aheady received my instructions with regard to Tippoo Sultaun In a few days, I shall communicate to you a copy of the representation, which I propose to make to him in conjunction with our allies, and also of my letters to the Presidents at Poonah and Hyderabad My first object will be to enable the allies to fulfill their engagements with us For this purpose, I mean to empower the Resident at Poonah to require from your Presidency as large a force as you can spare, not exceeding two regiments of native and one of European infantiv, and one company of aitillery There can be no danger in the present moment of an attack upon Bombay, therefore, this force may safely be spared If it should appear necessary, however, you may draw one Native regiment from the coast of Malabar, which may be replaced by one from that of Coromandel. You will inform the Government of Fort St George of your intentions in this respect. for their guidance in the execution of the conditional orders. which they will have received from me purvate information, in order that you may be better prepared to receive the instructions, which will be dispatched to you in a few days. I request that you will use every degree of caution, to prevent the nature of my intentions from transpung, until the moment of putting them into execution shall arrive, you may, however, impart the contents of this letter to the Commander-in-Chief, requesting that no measure may be taken, which may indicate the destination of the force. You may also shew this letter to my friend Mi. North, and communicate to him such further despatches, as you shall receive from me upon this important subject. The documents which I propose to have the honor of transmitting to you in a few days, will fully explain to you the whole extent and nature of my present views, as well as the principles from which they mocced.

I have communicated these suggestions to you, for your

Notwithstanding present appearances, I trust we shall not be involved in war with any power in India, and my object is to prevent that calamity by every possible effort

MORNINGTON

No XXVII

The Earl of Morning ton to Colonel William Palmer, Resident at Poonah

(Private)

Sir,

Fort William, 8th July, 1798

I am very much flattered by the obliging expressions contained in your private letter of the 12th June You may be assured that it is a matter of real satisfaction to me that the affans of this Government at the Court of Poonah should be in the hands of a person of your talents and experience in a moment the most critical to our interests. You will learn by my public instructions, the nature and extent of the general system of policy with respect to our alliances, which in my judgment the present crisis absolutely demands. I have the fullest confidence in your zeal for promoting the success of a plan which is founded on principles of justice and moderation, and intended to conciliate the real interests of all parties to be affected by its execution. There are only a few points which have been omitted in my public instructions, as being more properly the subjects of a private communication If any opportunity should offer of restoring Nana on conditions favourable to our interests, and consistent with the general tenor of my instructions, I think that such an event might tend to secure the permanent advantages of the proposed plan, but I feel that it would be difficult to reconcile the Peishwa to this measure, and that Azim ul Omra would probably view it with jealousy Notwithstanding these objections, I am persuaded that the experience and wisdom of the person in question would give great vigour to the new arrangements, could be be induced to consider them as connected with his own interests. If you should concur with me in this opinion, you will meet with my support and approbation in any steps which you may take for the restoration of Nana You will observe in the detailed instructions, that I have deducted one Native regiment from the force which I supposed you might immediately obtain from Bombay This is a matter of necessity arising from a fuller investigation of the subject Should you apprehend that the force which I now offer may not prove equal to the proposed object, you will of course make no application to Bombay, and you will signify your determination in this respect by express to me, to Bombay, and to Hyderabad -I have just now received your letter of the 23d June, and entuely approve all the steps you have taken, and propose to take Nothing in that letter appears to me to require any further observations from me With the most implicit reliance on your faithful and diligent discharge of the duty which the present circumstances impose upon vou

I have the honor to be, &c

MORNINGTON

P S In the abstract of this despatch, I cautioned you against making any communication to the Peishwa of my intention with respect to the French aimy at Hyderabad. It was necessary to observe caution until measures could be taken at Hyderabad for dispersing the French aimy in small parties, as it is probable that such a dispersion will have taken place before you can receive this despatch, I have given you full therety to apprize the Peishwa of the nature of the airangement to be adopted at Hyderabad, feeling that it would be very improper to use any concealment at Poonah or at Hyderabad with respect to the real object of the negotiations at either Court. The deficient enclosures will be forwarded by the next dawle.

No XXVIII

The Earl of Morning ton to Colonel William Palmer, Resident at Poonah Sir., 8th July, 1798

I transmit to you an authentic copy of a Proclamation published by the Governor General of the Isle of France, during the residence of two Ambassadors from Trippoo Sultaun on that island

It is difficult to ascertain the piecise motives which may stimulate the violence of Tippoo Sulfaun's temper to action, and his late embassy to the Isle of Finnce is a sufficient proof that revenge against the Butish nation in India is an object which he is capable of pursuing with more zeal than discretion.

Under such cacumstances, it is pudent to be prepared to repel the attack, which he has openly menaced, and as our future security, our reputation, and our honour demand that he should be reduced to the alternative, either of making such satisfaction to the Allies as they may hereafter require for the injury which he has committed, or of risking another contest with the British Power, it is advisable to aim for the purpose of supporting whatever requisition we may deem it necessary to make to him, when our respective preparations shall be sufficiently advanced to enable us to act with effect

The 13th Attele of the Treaty of Poonah provides that "If Typos should molest on attack ethies of the contracting parties, the others shall join to punish him, the modes and conditions of which shall be hereafter settled by the three contracting parties." And the declaration of the Durbar of Poonah of the 3d of July, 1793, explanatory of this article, states "if a braceh of engagement occurs on the part of Tuppo with respect to either of the Allies, let that Ally advise the other Allies thereof, when having understood the said breach of engagement we will admonish him, and if he does not attend to the admonition, then let the States act agreeably to the treaties which have been formed."

Adventing to your letter of the 1st June, I take this occasion to declare that Baayy Rao would not be justified in attempting to evade the obligation contracted by the Peishwa under this article. The defensive stipulations in the Treaty of Triple Alliance must be presumed to have been intended by the contracting powers to operate, not as personal but as real engagements, bunding the three states, and not meetly the peisons whose names are inserted in the treaty. Upon established punciples of public faith, the obligation of the aticle in question must therefore be deemed to pass to the Peishwa for the time being, although the treaty does not expressly include the heirs and successors of the primee whose signature it beats. In 1796, when an application for cooperation against Tippoe was made under the same atticle by this Government to Chimna Appa, then holding the office of Peishwa, the idea of the defensive obligations of the treaty being merely personal to Madha Rao was never suggested, and Chimna Appa united, without hesitation, in the joint remesentation them made to Timoo by the Allies

VOL I

The objection, therefore, is unsupported by the practice of the Court of Poonah, in the only case which has yet arisen with relation to that Court under the article in question, but even if the practice of the Court of Poonah had been different in this instance, it never would be admitted to decogate from a known and fundamental maxim of the law of nations. "That treaties of a defensive nature (unless limited in express terms) are not merely personal contracts with the reigning prince, but permanent obligations binding the faith of the State, into whatever hands the supreme power may devolve" I therefore desire that you will immediately communicate to the Peishwa, in a formal manner, the accompanying Proclamation, and explain to him the nature of the propositions which it contains, you will also notify to him the landing of the French force at Mangalore, and declare to him in my name that I consider the whole transaction as a violation of treaty, and a direct act of hostility on the part of Tippoo, and that I claim the assistance and co-operation of the Peishwa under the 13th article of the Treaty of Poonah You will, however, add, that although I should feel myself completely justified in making an immediate attack upon the territory of Tippoo, my disposition to preserve the tranquillity of India induces me in the first instance to afford to him an opportunity of restraining the excess of his violence, before it shall have involved him in the calamity of war With this view you will signify to the Peishwa my wish that he should now express his disposition to concur with the Nizam and with me in making a demand of satisfaction from Tippoo Sultaun the nature and extent of the demand, as well as the time of making it, to be hereafter concerted between the Allies You will inform him that a similar application has been made to the Nizam., and as soon as the Peishwa shall have signified his concurrence in the proposition made to him on this part of the subject, you will notify that event by express to the Resident at Hyderabad The Resident at Hyderabad will be directed to communicate to you the progress of his proceedings at that Court under the instructions which he will have received from me For your full information and guidance I transmit to you a copy of those instructions If Tippoo Sultaun, in the career of his ungovernable passions, should refuse to make the satisfaction which shall be demanded of him by the allies, hostilities will become mevitable, and you will signify to the Peishwa, that I have already taken the necessary precaution of assembling the forces of the Company with a view to that event, entertaming no doubt that in such a contingency, the Peishwa will be ready to afford to the common cause of the allies the effectual co-operation of the Mahiatta force

Although I have thought it expedient to communeate my mstructions to you in the foregoing order, I am sensible that their effectual execution will be impracticable, unless some previous measures be taken for re-establishing the Government of Poonah in that degree of power which it possessed before the death of the late Peishwa, and I entirely concur with you in lamenting the distractions which "by dividing and weakening that state, have subjected at to the undue influence of Soindiah, and nearly disqualified it for affording us the assistance which we are entitled to claim by treaty in any war with Tippoo"

In considering the actual situation of the Government of Poonah, it is necessary to advert also to that of the other ally, whose co-operation it was equally the object of the same treaty to secure to us in the same event

The present crisis demands a serious and dispassionate review of the relative interests of the powers united by treaty for the purpose of securing an effectual barrier against the mordinate ambition and implacable revenge of Tippoo Sulfaun

It has been painful to observe, that since the conclusion of the treaty of Seringapatam, two great branches of the tuple alliance have been engaged in mutual contests, of which the result has terminated in their mutual weakness, while the common enemy has remained at rest, improved his resources. and increased his strength. The unfortunate animosity between the Courts of Poonah and Hyderabad, while it has tended to foment and aggravate the distractions in the former Court, has contributed to reduce the latter to the lowest degree of weakness and humiliation. In the meanwhile the French faction at the Court of Hyderabad has grown to such a formidable degree of power as to control, on many important occasions, the councils of that state, and to menace an ascendant influence in the eventual succession to the throne of the Nizam. Although the death of M Raymond and the resumption of the Jaghne, which had been granted to him, have in some degree reduced the political influence of the French army at Hyderabad, it now forms the only efficient part of the Nizam's military strength, its numbers have been lately increased, its discipline considerably improved, and it possesses sufficient activity and power to attempt and to accomplish objects of the most prejudicial nature to the independence of the Court of Hyderabad, to the common interests of the Nizam, and of the Peishwa, as well as to those of the British nation in India

In the event of a war with Mysone, these can be no doubt that the washes and interests of this pair of the Nizan's aimy must be favorable to the cause of Tippoo Sultain, more especially under the actual encumstance of his having concluded an alliance with Fiance, and having admitted a body of Fiench toops into his service

If the French troops of the Nizam did not afford Tippoo open assistance, at least they could not be brought into the field against him without the utmost danger to the cause of the allies, not could they be suffered to remain in the Deccan during the continuance of the contest, unless checked by the presence of an equally powerful force, which must in that case be directed from the common objects of the war, and must operate as a positive diminution of our effec-

It appears, however, nearly certain, that in the present weak state of the Nizam's Government, the French corps in his service would openly join Tippoo Sultaun, and by a sudden blow endeavour to seize the Nizam's territories, and to secure them to the dominion of France under an alliance offensive and defensive with Tippoo Sultaun It is scarcely necessary to observe, that the success of such a design must be highly injurious to the interests of the Court of Poonah, especially when it is considered, that it must be the interest and inclination of Scindiah (who entertains a large body of infantiv in his service under the command of a French officer) to engage with Tippoo Sultaun and the French upon conditions fatal to the existence of the Peishwa's authority, and even of his office The junction which might thus be effected between the French officers with then several corps in the respective services of the Nizam, of Scindiah, and of Tippoo, might establish the power of France in India upon the rums of the states of Poonah, and of the Deccan The Court of Hyderabad therefore in its present condition is more likely to prove the source of additional strength to the common enemy of the Nizam, of the Peishwa, and of the Company, than to afford useful assistance to any branch of the triple alliance.

I rely upon your ability, experience and zeal for the public service to state with every degree of advantage, the arguments of prudence and policy which should induce the Peishwa to riew the iestoration of the Nizam to a just degree of consideration and power, as an object intimately connected with the Peishwa's own emanicipation from the undue influence by which he is now oppressed, as well as with his future security against the violence both of Tippoo Sultaun and of Seindah

If the Peishwa can be made sensible of his real interest in the destruction of the French party at Hyderabad, he cannot view with jealousy or suspicion any assistance which I may think it advisable to afford to the Court of Hyderabad for that destrable purpose

The same train of reflection will lead him to acknowledge the benefit which must result to all parties from accepting my arbitration between the Courts of Poonah and Hyderabad and Scindiah, for the amicable adjustment of all subsisting differences upon the permanent basis of reciprocal interests and mutual advantage

In your letter, No 17, dated on the 1st of June, you state your opinion that "the authority of the Peishwa would be restored by the appearance of a strong British force at Poonah, and that Scindiah under the circumstance of Tippoo's recent aggression could on no pretence object to such a movement of our troops, nor in his present condition be able to oppose it " It is not my intention either to give any just cause of offence to Scindiah, or to assist the Peishwa in any hostile attempt against him, however I may disapprove his late violent and oppressive measures, and lament their injurious consequences to the strength of our ally But it must be an essential part of our preparations for counteracting the avowed hostility of Tippoo, to place our allies in a condition to fulfil then engagements with us, and if the presence of a British force at Poonah be necessary to the accomplishment of this object as far as respects the Pershwa, it is my strict right to furnish him with such assistance, nor can Scindiah, with any colour of justice resist this step, although the consequence of it must be to compel him to retire from Poonah for he cannot be ignorant that his present position obstructs the operation of the triple alliance, and thereby affords the most effectual and to the cause of Tippoo

I therefore empower you to mform the Peishwa that you have my authority to funnsh him with a strong fonce from Bombay, wheneve he shall require their presence at Poonsh, provided he shall stipulate to secure the regular discharge of the pay of the detachment, in a manner satisfactory to you, and shall agree to certam other conditions stated in a subsequent part of this despatch.

I have directed the Government of Bombay to order the thoops to match as soon as they shall receive a requisition from you to that effect. You will state to the Government of Bombay the strength of the force necessary to secure the proposed objects, and if the force required should not exceed one regiment of native infantity, each battalion completed to one thousand men, a company of artillery, and one regiment of Europeans, I should hope, assistance to that event might be immediately finished from that Presidency. To this force they would probably be able to add another native regiment after the breaking up of the monsoon The commanding officer will be ordered to obey your directions respecting the employment of the troops when airived at Poonah

Before, however, you engage to furnish the Pershwa with the proposed force, you will take care to explain to him that it is my intention to increase the British detachment now in the service of the Nizam with a similar view of enabling that Prince to fulfil his engagements with us in the event of a war with Tippoo You will add, that the additional force to be furnished to the Nizam, will be subject to the same restrictions and limitations with regard to its employment, as the detachment now in his Highness' service, and that no enlargement or alteration of those restrictions or limitations will be made without the previous knowledge and consent of the Peishwa You will also make a formal tender to the Peishwa in my name of my arbitration between the Courts of Poonah and Hyderabad, and Scindiah, and you will declare to him my decided opinion that his own authority can neither be 1estored, nor ultimately secured, without a cordial union between the two Courts, nor can that union be firmly cemented by any other means than the arbitration of the British Government, which must always feel an equal interest in the welfare, dignity, honor and strength of both parties You will further state to the Peishwa, the advantages which he would derive from a settlement of all contested points between him and Scindiah under my mediation. You will also declare my wish that he should bind himself by treaty to exclude for ever all natives of France from his armies, and from his dominions, a measure essentially necessary to the preservation of his own authority, which would be exposed to perpetual hazard from the admission of the agents of French intrigue The state of the Nizam's Government has for some time past afforded a sufficient example of the danger to be apprehended from the introduction of the natives of France into an Asiatic Court After having fully explained all these points to the Peishwa, you will consider his consent to the increase of the British detachment in the service of the Nizam, to my arbitration of the subsisting differences between the Courts of Poonah and Hyderabad and Scindiah, and to the exclusion of the French from his aimies and dominions, as a necessary preliminary to the measures which I have authorised you to take for restoring the Pershwa to his due authority and power in the Mahratta Empue I have aheady observed, that the present position of the army of Soundiah operates as an effectual assistance to the cause of Tuppoo Sultaun, if an alliance offensive and defensive had been formally concluded between those two powers. Scindiah could not render a more acceptable service to Tippoo, than he now ner forms by holding in check both the allies of the Comnany You will, however, omit no endeavour to conciliate the mind of Dowlut Rao Scindiah to the measures which I have empowered you to take for restoring the authority of the Peishwa, and you will assure Dowlut Rao Scindiah that I feel the most sincere desne to maintain and improve the relations of amity and peace with him, and that it will always give me pleasure to receive accounts of his prosperity within his own dominions, and to witness the stability of his just authority and power over his own subjects

At the same time you will represent to him that the continuance of his amy in its present position renders our allies, the Pershwa and the Nizam (especially the former), unable to fulfil their defensive engagements with us in the actual crisis of Tippoo Sultam's pieparations for offensive war, and that it would therefore be esteemed a testimony of frendship and good will towards this Government if Dowlut Rao Sendiah would return within the limits of his own dominous

You will at the same time deliver to Scindiah the accompanying letter from me communicating a paper lately received by the Resident at Lucknow from a Vakeel of Zemaun Shah. I forward to you a copy of my letter to Scindiah, and of that paper, by which you will perceive, that Zemaun Shah has announced his intention of invading Hindostan, and has demanded the cooperation of this Government and of the Nabob Vizues for the purpose of delivering Shah Allum from the hands of the Mahiattas, and of expelling them from their possessions on the north-western frontier of Hindostan

I authorize you to assure Scindiah that I will use every effort to counteract the designs of Zemaun Shah, being resolved to resist to the utmost extent of the power vested in me, the attempts of any invader, who shall endeavour to disturb the established States of India in their actual possessions You will further suggest to Scindiah that as soon as he shall arrive in his own dominions, he will find the British Resident at his Durbar prepared to enter into defensive engagements with him for the mutual protection of his territories, of those of the Nabob Viziei, and of the Company against the threatened invasion of Zemaun Shah, and that it is my intention to propose a similar defensive treaty to all the British allies in India You will inform Scindiah that if contrary to my expectations he should not return to Hindostan for the purpose of assisting in person in the protection of his dominions against the menaced attack of Zemaun Shah. I will take no concern in the security of a country abandoned by its own sovereign, and I will limit the operations of the British troops exclusively to the defence of our own territories and of those of the Vizier In addition to whatever Scindish may apprehend from Zemaun Shah, he must be sensible, that in the present disturbed state of his dominions and of his aimy, his fate is in our hands, but it would not be proper to make any direct intimation to him of our sense either of his danger, or of our own power with relation to the internal condition of his Civil and Military Government This instruction is not meant to apply to the cases of Scindiah's obstructing the march of the Butish detachment from Bombay, or of his entering into engagements with Tippoo either against the Peishwa or the Company In any of those cases, I empower you to state distinctly to Scindish that I shall deem myself justified in acting offensively against his dominions in Hindostan

The proposition to be made to Dowlit Rao Scindial appears to be so reasonable, that I have found a strong expectation of its success. If he should be induced by you representations to retue flom Poonah, it is my intention upon his airival in his own dominions to offict to him my mediation between him, the Peishwa, and the Nizam, for the purpose of establishing peace between those powers. You will appire him of my intentions in this respect, at the moment which shall appear to you most favorable to such a communication. I now proceed to give you my instituctions with respect to the employment of the force which I have autho uzed you to require from Bombay If Scindiah should dis regard the representations which I have directed you to make to him, you will applize him in the first instance that voi have power to employ the Butish force for the protection of the Peishwa's person, and for the support of his authority. Accordingly, if Scindial should attempt to obstruct the march of the Butish detachment from Bombay to Poonah, or if after its arrival at Poonah he should not conform to the orders of the Peishwa, enforming him to retire to his own territories, or if (according to the suggestion stated in the 11th paragraph of your letter to me, No 19, of the 12th of June) he should manifest an intention of soliciting the succour of Tippoo in the prosecution of hostilities against the Peishwa, or if he should enter into any engagements with Tippoo, of a nature dangerous to our safety, I authorize you, in each of these cases, to employ the British troops in active operations against Scindiah, provided that the force detached from Bombay shall in the judgment of the commanding officer be deemed adequate to the service required

You will communicate my letter to Scindiah to the Peishwa at such time as you may think most proper

Although I have entered into so particular a detail with respect to the communications to be made to Dowlut Rao Seindaih, placing great reliance on your discietion, I authorize you either to vary the mode of those communications or wholly to omit them, and to withhold my letter to Scindaih, according to your judgment, on all the circumstances of the case, and you may look with confidence to my approbation of any measures which you shall puisse for the purpose of removing Dowlut Rao Scindiah from his piesent position, piovided those measures be not inconsistent with the general spinit of my instituctions.

I concur with you in opinion that the treaty of tiple alliance is very defective, masmuch as it does not specify the amount of the aid to be fun inshed by each of the contracting parties in the event of hostilities with Tippoo Sultaun Your letter of the 1st of June states that, "the Peishwa is very desirous of entering into new engagements with us, and that a new theaty with him might comprize many new objects"

I am ready to enter into the consideration of a new treaty with the Peishwa, provided it be founded on the basis of his present engagements with us, that it be consistent with the tenor of our treaties with other powers, and that it contain no stimulation of an offensive tendency, or calculated to disturb the general peace of India But before I can consent to contract any new engagements with the Pershwa, I must require his full and unqualified acknowledgment of the binding force of the treaty of Poonah upon him, and upon that Should be attempt to evade the obligations of that treaty, under the pretence stated in your letter of the 1st of June, I never will place any reliance on his faith, nor will I enter into any engagements with him of any kind But as I am persuaded that you will, without difficulty, convince him of the mustice and danger to his own interests of endeavouring to shake an acknowledged principle of public faith, I trust no obstacle will occur to the commencement of the proposed negociation, which I authorize you to open under the leservations and exceptions already stated

I refer you to the correspondence in the years 1798 and 1793, relative to the guarantee treaty then in agitation between this Government and those of Poonah and Hyderabad, and I desire that you will communicate to me such articles of a new engagement as you think would be either acceptable to the Poishwa, or desnable for us, before you make any formal proposations to the Ministers of the Peishwa

You will understand that I do not mean to prevent you opening conferences for the purpose of collecting the general sentiments of the Court of Poonah respecting a new treaty, but merely to caution you against either making or cecuring any formal propositions of detail before you shall have appuized me of the nature and extent of the Peishwa's views and of your own

There is one point however, upon which you may make a direct offer at the moment which may appear to you most favourable You may inform the Peishwa that I am disposed to enter into the same subsidiary engagements with him, which now exist or shall hereafter be contracted between this Government and the Nizam

You will however take care in negociating any subsidiary treaty not to agree to furnish any European troops, excepting the requisite proportion of attillery men, and also not to demand in any case, not to accept without previous refuence to me any assignment of ternitory, or of revenue for defiajing the payment of the troops to be funnished. It is entirely contrary to the whole object and policy of the aniangement proposed in this letter to extend the territory of the Company at the expense of any of the parties concerned it would be injurious to our character that any circumstance attending the negociation should bettay the symptoms of that species of irregular ambition which is utterly repugnant to the disposition of this Government

It would be desnable that the Nixam should be made a party to any new engagements which we may contract with the Pershwa, the Nizam's participation might facilitate the sestoration of hai mony between the two States, tend to secure their future umon and cooperation, and stiengthen the revived authority of the Peishwa

You will communicate to the Resident at Hyderabad with all practicable dispatch, the result of your endeavours to obtain the Peishwa's consent to the several conditions proposed in this despatch

The Resident at Hyderabad will be directed to govern his conduct by the nature of the information which he shall receive from you with respect to those important points.

The whole scope of my views is to establish our means of defence against the avowed designs of Tippoo, by restoing to our allies that degree of consideration and strength which they possessed at the conclusion of the treaty of Seingapatam, and which it was the object of that treaty to secuie on solid and permanent foundations, an object inseparably connected with the security of the British possessions in India.

Since the conclusion of the peace of Seringapatam a material change has taken place in the situations of almost all the States of India both with relation to each other, and to the interests of the British Government. The revolutions at Poonah have impaired the influence of the constitutional head of the Mahiatta Empire and deranged the whole system of the balanced powers and interests of the several confederate Mahiatta States. Both the Peashwa and the Nixam, whose respective power it was the object of the treaty of Seringapatam to strengthen and uphold, are now depressed and weakened, the former by the intrusion of Semidah, and the latter by the threatened hostilities of the same chieftain and by the establishment of a French faction in the centre of the Deccan The cooperation of these two members of the triple alliance has been rendered impracticable by the progress of then mutual contentions and mitigues, at the same time that the internal convulsions of each State have dimmished the resources of both

In this scene of general confusion, the power of Tippoo Sultann alone (to restrain which was the policy of all our alliances and treaties) has remained undisturbed and unimpaired if it has not been augmented and improved

The final result to the Bittsh Govenment, is the entue loss of the benefit of the treaty of triple allance against Tippoo Sultaun, and the establishment of a French army of fourteen thousand men in the dominons of one of our allies, in the vicinity of the tenitories of Tippoo Sultaun, and on the confines of the Gainatic and of the nothern Cincais

It is now become an uigent duty to make an effort for the arrangement of a system, the disorder of which already menaces our safety by exposing us to the hazard of a war, without the aid of an ally, while on the other hand, the influence of France acquires daily stength in every quanter of India, under the progressive system of introducing French officers into the anness of all the native powers. The pumciple of justice, good faith, and moderation enjoined by Pailsament, and by the orders of the Honorable the Court of Directors, must four the basis of those comprehensive measures, the execution of which is demanded by the exigency of our present situation, and is favored by the peculial circumstances of the moment

Pusung no schemes of conquest or extension of dommon, and entertaining no projects of ambition or aggrandizement either for ourselves or for our allies, it is both our right and our duty to give vigor and effect to our subsisting alliances and treaties, by restoring to our allies the power of fulfilling then defensive engagements with us. Through the means of moderate and pacific representations, confirmed by the force of our own example, it must also be our policy to convince the several powers of India, that then real interest consists in respecting the rights of their neighbours, and in cultivating then own resources within the limits of their several tenitories. To these efforts, we must add a firm resistance against the intrusion of any foreign power, which shall endeavou (to the pequidice of our alliances and interests) to acquire a preponderant influence in the scale of Indian politics, either by force or intigue. But the pinnary object of all our vigilance and care must be, the destruction of every seed of the French party already grown to so damegrous a height, and still enceasing in the aimes and councils of the Nizam, of Scindiah, and of Tippoo The exclusion of the influence of France from the dominions of the native states, is not more necessary to the preservation of our own power, than to the happiness and prosperity of this part of the would

In this first communication with you, I have thought it advisable to applize you of the leading pinciples, which will regulate my conduct towards the native powers, and I have taken a general view of the actual state of our political relations, in order to enable you to act with more confidence and dispatch upon such questions of detail, as may occasionally call for the exercise of your judgment, in promoting the objects of your mission

Having iscensed overtures of a very friendly nature from the Rapia for Beatar, who has requested the presence of a British Resident at his court, I have dispatched an ambassador to Nagpore, with full powers to ascertain the precise nature of the Rapia's views. You will make such use of your knowledge of this encumstance, as you may think most advantageous in the present state of affairs. Without deading what benefits to the common cause of the allies may result ultimately from this embassy it may be expected that the appearance of an established intercourse between this Government and that of Berai, may lead Semdah to form serious reflections upon his own stuation, and may tend to give additional confidence to the adherents of the Peishwa and of the Nizam

You will consider this letter as an answer to all those addressed by you to this Government, down to the date of your despatch of the 19th June,

> I am, &c &c., Mornington

No XXIX

From Tippoo Sultaun to the Governor General

Received 10 July, 1798

You Lodship's fixendly letters containing the agreeable intelligence of you arrival at Calcutta, and you taking charge of the Company's affaus, reached me at the happiest of times, and afforded me a degree of pleasure and satisfaction that cannot be adequately expised upon pape. May the Almighty prospet to you Lordship this event! By the divine grace, the exalted fabric of union and attachment, and the firm foundations of fixendship and haimony between the two states, are inful strength. To adhere to the obligations of existing treaties, is a constant object with me You Lordship is from your heart a friend and well wisher, and I am confident will hold in mind the observance of union and concord. I hope you will continue to gratify me by letters non-fying your welfare

No XXX.

The Earl of Mornington to Lieut -General Stuart

Sir,

Fort William, July 14, 1798

Mi Duncan will have communicated to you the instructions of this Government of the 13th of July Knowing your zeal for the public service, as well as the superiority of your military talents, I have the fullest confidence that you will execute that part of the important air angement in question which shall come within your department, with alacuity, vigour, and dispatch You will soon be applized of the whole extent and tendency of the plan in agitation, until that period I must request you to give me ciedit when I assure you, that I consider its success to be indispensable to the security of our possessions in India.

There is another point which appears to me to call for your vigilant attention, and although it is my intention to forward, by an early opportunity, the directions of this Government on some paits of the subject, I should be glad in the first instance to receive the advantage of your opinion and of M1 Duncan's

[.] The letter alluded to being merely complimentary, is omitted

It appears nearly ocetam, by the last accounts from Europe, that the French will soon either conquer Portugal or compel that power to sign a disgraceful treaty of peace. In either case it is more than probable that the French will endeavour to obtam possession of Gos, either by dinecting a force against it, or by a formal cession, which perhaps may be made a secret attacle of the veace with Portugal

Should Postugal fall into the hands of Flance, either by conquest or by treaty, I have no hesitation in declaining that I would make every effort to secure Goa from the same fate, and with this view I would offer to the Postugueze Governo of that settlement, the same teams proposed to the sevical Dutch Governments in India, if these teams should be rejected, I should immediately attempt the reduction of Goa, provided such a measure appeared practicable

I wish to know whether, you have any reason to hope that the Portugueze Governor would admit a British garisson into Goa, and if he would, what force you think necessary for that purpose, and what means you would suggest for firmishing it I should also wish you to state to me, without reserve, any measure which appears to you likely to firustrate the supposed designs of the Prench against Goa, and what force you would think necessary for the reduction of that place in its present state

I need not urge the importance of the settlement in question to a person of your experience and knowledge in the affans of India

It will give me great satisfaction to have the advantage of your correspondence, and your fice opinion upon every subject within the reach of your observation will be received by me as a personal favour

I have the honour to be, &c

Mornington.

SIR.

Fort William, July 14, 1798

No XXXI

The Earl of Mornington to Colonel William Palmer, Poonah.

(Private)

Sir.

In addition to the suggestions offered in my last letter, I wish to recommend two points to your attention, the flist will be best stated by the following extract from my letter of this date to the Acting Resident at Hyderabad —

"In fiaming the new subsidiary engagements with the "Besshwa, I desine you will endeavour to restrict the employment of the Biritsh toops within his Highness's dominons, to those important cases in which his person or authority shall really be endangered, and that you will provide effectually against the use of the Biritish force in those disgraceful services against petty ienters and Zemindais, which more propelly belong to Sebundy corps "

You will attend to the suggestion, which applies equally to the employment of the British force to be detached to Poonah, if it should continue there under a subsidiary treaty The second point will also be explained by another extract from the same letter.—

"It is very desirable that a body of the Nizam's troops shall be stationed upon the frontier of the Peishwa's dominions, for the pupose of co-operating with our detachment in the restoration of order at Poonah You will urge this measure to Azim ul Omra, but you will not advise the march of the troops until you have learnt from Colonel Palmer that such assistance is both necessary and acceptable to the Peishwa"

This extract requires no comment, you will regulate your conduct according to the intimation which it suggests

I am, &c Mornington

No XXXII

The Earl of Mornington to Captain Kirkpatrick

(Private)

Fort William, July 14, 1798

I return you many thanks for your several private communications, and I am happy to avail myself of an early opvol. I potunity to express my approbation of your diligence and activity in the discharge of the important duties of your mission. I shall always acknowledge with gratitude the assistance which I seewed from the extensive knowledge, experience, talents, and integrity of Major Kirkpatink, during the period of my continuance at the Cape. As he expressed a desire of being near my person, it is my intention to offer him the situation of my Military Secretary whenever he shall arrive in India, and as it is probable that he may touch at Madas, I mean to despatch a letter to meet him at that Piesidency, suggesting to him the service which he might render to the public, by adding the exection of his talents to yours in the present clists of affairs, and by visiting you for a short time, if his health should admit of such a journey.

My detailed instructions to you and to Colonel Palmer, which accompany this letter, will make you fully acquainted with the whole plan, of which the abstract was forwarded to you on the 8th of this month. A few points remain to be re-commended to you attention.

It is very destable that a body of the Nizam's troops should be stationed upon the frontier of the Peishwa's dominions, for the purpose of co-operating with our detachment in the restoration of order at Poonah. You will unge this measure to Azim ul Omia, but you will not advise the maich of the troops until you have learnt from Colonel Palmer that such assistance is both necessary and acceptable to the Peishwa.

In fi aming the new subsidiary engagements with the Nizam, I desue you will endeavour to testuct the employment of the Bitish troops within his Highness's dominions, to those important cases in which his person of authority shall really be endangered, and that you will provide effectually against the use of the Bitish force in those disgraceful services against petty renters and Zemindans, which more propelly belong to Sebundy corps, thus is an essential point. Your own discretion will sufficiently warn you of the caution and secresy to be observed in the flist step towards the proposed general plan. Above all, you must take care to provide for the effectual dispersion of Petron's corps at the eathest possible period. The Government of Fort St. George have my orders to apprize you of the station appointed for assembling the two regiments intended for Hydeiabad The officer who will command the regiments sent from Foit St George will be senio to Lieut-Colonel Hyndman, and will take the command of the whole foice

MORNINGTON

No XXXIII

General Harris to the Earl of Mornington

My Dear Lord, Madras, July 14, 1798

Our preparations are going on with every possible energy consistent with the necessary regard to secreey, which I shall maintain until I can be informed from General Floyd, that the coins south of the Coleroon are prepared to move across mannant must I can be insorted from the relatively of the copy south of the Coleroon are prepared to move across it, and I shall not fail to keep your Lodship constantly advised of the progress of our equipment, and of the effect which it may appear to have on the minds of the enemy

Your Loidship will observe that I have forborne to offer any opinion upon the political pain tof this question, and this not from any disposition to withhold my sentiments upon any subject of importance to the national interests, but from a consciousness of my mability to assist your Loidship's judgment

Amidst the trouble of my present situation, it is indeed a great consolation to me that the momentous duty of determining whether we must endure the calamity of wai or remain peaceful as we now are, does not belong to me, but is entusted to a person so well qualified to deede it. This remark appears a proper introduction to my reply to that part of your Loudship's letter of the 26th ult. which respects the letter written by this Government to Admial Raimer. It had been so customary for Loud Hobart almost to direct the fleet, that the secretary darked the letter, and we passed it as an ordinary occur ence without the most distant idea that we were transgressing the strict line of our duty. In madvertence therefore, not in any degree of infringing upon your Loudship's responsibility, this measure originated, and whilst I shall acknowledge the propiety of the public admonition

we have acceived, I cannot but feel gratified by the sentiments which your Lordship has been pleased to express in your payate explanation

I am, with great regard, Your Lordship's faithful and obedient Servant.

GEO HARRIS

No XXXIV

The East of Mornington to General Hurris

My Dear Sir,

Fort William, 15th July, 1798

I transmit with this letter, a despatch from this Government in the Secret Department, which I must request you not to record until you receive further communications from me The measure directed to be executed in the secret despatch, requires the utmost degree of promptitude, as well as of caution My object is to restore the Nizam to some degree of efficiency and power The measure forms part of a much more extensive plan for the re-establishment of our alliances, previously to the moment when Tippoo may expect to be enabled to attack us The whole of my arrangements will shortly be communicated to you, at present, I shall only recommend to you in the most carnest manner, the speedy and effectual execution of the measure directed in the annexed despatch, as I know your honest zeal for the public service, and the activity which accompanies it, I look with confidence to the accomplishment of my anxious wish for the success of that part of my plan, which is now committed to your charge I magine, that the best position for assembling the troops destined for Hyderabad, would be in the Guntoor Circai You will feel the great importance of selecting a proper officer for this very arduous command The British force at Hyderabad, after the proposed addition, will amount nearly to seven thousand men, officers and artillery included It is my intention if the plan should succeed, to recall the Bengal regiment, and to draw the whole detachment for Hyderabad from Fort St George This will preserve a unity of discipline, as well as prevent jealousies in the detachment You will at once feel, that such a command, is an object for the ambition of your most distinguished officers

I need not recommend the most strict attention to secresy in the whole of this proceeding, the least intimation of my desion, would instantly set the whole French faction at Hyderabad in motion, and frustrate the whole of my views It will be necessary to apprize the acting Resident at Hyderahad. of the intended station of the troops, in order that he may communicate with the commanding officer I repeat my rehance on you for the expeditious and effectual performance of this service, of which the unportance in my estimation is so high, that in addition to my applause on public grounds, I shall consider your cordial co-operation as a great claim on my private gratitude I take this opportunity of suggesting to you, the expediency of as great an attention to economy in the mode of assembling the aimy, as may be consistent with the great object of persuading Tippoo Sultaun, that we are really prepared to repel his menaced attack, or to demand such satisfaction for his late conduct, as we may deem just The objects of economy and effectual preparation would be perhaps best combined, by ordering native troops only to take the field, and drawing the Europeans into the frontier garnsons with all necessary equipments. I do not mean to disarm. until I shall have effected all my objects of jenewing the efficacy of our alliances, and of obtaining satisfaction from Tippoo, I think, however, that I shall be able to accomplish all my measures without a war, and the ultimate effect of them will be, either wholly to avert that calamity for a considerable period of time, or to enable us to meet it with increased strength

You will soon secure my ideas with respect to a penmanent plan for the defence of the Canante, by constantly keeping considerable stores of grain in the fiontnes fortnesses, and by establishing a train of attillery at Ainee and Vellore, to be always maintained in a state of seadiness for the field. I am awaie of the expense of the measures of precuntion, but I am persuaded that if we do not provide the permanent means of moving our aimy suddenly into Mysore, as the occasion may require, we never shall be safe in the Canantic

Î have received your letter with an account of your orders to the Resident at Tanjoie, which I entirely approve You will perceive that I had anticipated the want of the questions and answers of the Pundit, and that I despatched the ornginals to you on the 16th of June You will communicate the whole proceeding to the Residents at Poonah and Hyder-bad for their information only, and not to be imparted to their respective Courts I am 5013 that Mr Cockburn does not go to Tanjore, and very anxious to know the names of your Committee, on whose report much will depend

I am, &c Mornington.

There can be no objection to the public mention of your expectation of the 331d* legiment, I should even be glad that the news teached Tippoo, as it would convince him that I am in earnest. Should Tippoo desire from you any explanation of our piepatations, you will be so good as to refei him to me for an answer. If you should be of opinion, that he not encamping the European forces will be hiely to leave Tippoo to doubt the seriousness of my intentions, I beg you will not attend to my suggestions, with respect to the measure of stationing the English regiments in the fonties gainsons, my object being to impress the mind of Tippoo with serious apprehension.

No XXXV

The Earl of Mornington to Colonel William Palmer

(Private)

Sir,

Fort William, 18th July, 1798

The mtelligence conveyed in your letter, No 28, of the 27th June, leads me to apprehend that the contest between Semdah and the Peishwa may have terminated unfavourably to the latter before you can have ieceived my instructions of the 8th instant.

If that event should unfoatmately have taken place, it is still my wish that you should endeavou to execute such parts of those mstructions as appear to you to be practicable, and for this puipose you will concert measures with the Government of Bombay and the Acting Resident at Hyderabad

I despatch this letter to you by express, lest in the event which I apprehend, you should be induced to suppose that it might be my intention to abandon all hope of carrying into effect any part of the general arrangement communicated to

Then at Fort William, Bengal, Colonel Wellesley being Licutenant Colonel, and ordered to Madras by Lord Mornington

You will have observed from my letter of the 8th instant to the Acting Resident at Hyderabad that even the total failure of the negociation at Poonah will not prevent me from making an effort to recover the power and authority of the Nizam I am, &c

MORNINGTON

No XXXVI

The Earl of Mornington to General Harris

My DEAR SIR,

Fort William, 18th July, 1798

I seturn you many thanks for the despatch received by the Bombay figate yested ay at 4 o'clock r m. The figate met with such bad weather on hel passage that she could not touch at Masuhpatam, and she arrived here without Major Beatson, and so much disabled that she will equue a repair at Diamond Harboun before she can return to sea

The information with which you have furnished me is sufficient for my present purpose, and I cannot express, in terms equal to my real sentiments, my cordial approbation of the zeal with which you have entered into all my views for the public service, and of the alacrity, diligence and correctness with which you have executed all the commissions which I entrusted to your charge. I perceive however that the object and principle of my late directions to your presidency, are not thoroughly understood, for your satisfaction therefore I will state very shortly a summary view of both I have obtained the fullest evidence of the nature of Tippoo's design against the British power in India, and I have been apprized that in conformity to the public declaration of his Ambassadors he has actually made preparations for carrying that design into effect.* At what moment he may think fit to strike the blow which he has openly menaced, must always be a matter of conjecture, the interests and wishes of France are decidedly in his favor, the precise period of time when she may be able to afford him assistance must be uncertain, it is equally uncertain whether the impetuosity of his temper will suffer him to wait for that assistance, various events in India might offer opportunities which he might deem (and penhaps with reason) favorable to the success of his hostile projects, and without pretending to estimate the considerations which may govern his conduct, it is evident that while we remain without a soldier prepared to take the field in the Carnator, and without an ally to assist our operations, we yield to this implacable adversary the decided advantage of selecting the time and mode of his long meditated attack against our defenceless nessessions.

[·] See Appendix

Under these circumstances I have never considered that the option between temporary peace and unmediate war resided in our own hands, the motionless condition of our aimy on the coast, contrasted with the advanced state of Tippoo's preparations, places in his hands not only that option, but the choice of the moment of conquest, for in our present weakness, his first assault must be successful, whatever might afterwards be regained by our persevenance and resolution

The true state of the question therefore is, whether by continuing unarmed and unallied we shall abandon the issues of peace, war, and certain victory, to the discretion of a vindictive enemy, or whether by resuming the power of meeting him in the field, we shall place in our hands the advantages now possessed by him

With this view of the subject, the assembling our forces, and the placing ourselves in a state of preparation for war at least equal to that of the enemy, appeared to me from the first moment of the authentication of the proclamation to be measures not of choice, but of irresistible necessity, and of indispensable duty But I did not stop at this point, my decided opinion was and is, that every practicable reduction of the power of Tippoo is wairanted by the principles of justice, and demanded by those of policy and I therefore determmed, in the first instance, to endeavour to anticipate the execution of his projects of vengeance by attacking him on all sides without delay, and thus intercepting his means of availing himself of the solicited aid of the French or of any other assistance, which might be presented to him by the variable course of Indian politics But I never proposed to undertake any attack upon him, of which the success would be doubtful in the judgment of those, whose opinions must always govern my discretion on every question of military detail, and although my judgment remains unaltered with respect to the justice, policy, and even indispensable necessity of an effectual reduction of Tippo's power, I have not undervalued the practical difficulties of such an attempt in the present moment

The delay which must attend any movement of the amy upon the coast, and the immense expense of protracted multury operations had made a considerable impression on my mind, previously to the receipt of your letter, despatched by the Bombay firgate, and I had in consequence of that impression, relinquished all hope of effecting, within any short period, the only operation which can afford perimanent security to our possessions on the coast

You letter, together with the opimon of Colonel Close.* confirmed the decision which I had aheady taken, and proved that any effectual blow against the power of Tippoo must be deemed utterly impracticable under the present circumstances of the army at you Presidency

But the orders which I originally gave for assembling the aimy upon the coast, although pointed more particularly at the object of an immediate attack upon Seringapatam, were founded (as I have already stated) upon principles independent of the judgment which I might hereafter form of the practicability of that object. The measure of assembling the practicability of that object. The measure of assembling the army and of continuing it, if not in the field, at least in a state of forward preparation, is indispensable to the present defence of the Caniatic, the security of which it is my duty to establish upon foundations more solid than can be found in the folbearance of Tippoo Sultaun. In addition to this most pressing object, my views at every period of this crisis have been extended to other general measures essentially connected with the security of our power in India, and with our means of restaining the emmity of Tippoo. I have always known that

These letters presented the state of the Madras amy na very alarming point of vew,—namely, as not being capable of defending the E I Company's territories, much less of carrying on offensive operations, particularly in a country like Mysore, protected by an almost impregnable fortress as Seriagnatian was considered an offensive war of any long duration in Mysore would be difficult if not impracticable, without the co-operation of the Pusins, and of the Nizam, at least to the extent of facilitating the supplies of provision to our aimy in the field. A principal branch therefore of the piecautions, which from the first moment I proposed to take for our general defence, was the restoration of those two members of the triple alliance to the power of fulfilling their engagements with us. And it was always my intention that a negociation, accompanied with other measures for that purpose, should piecede any attack upon Tippoo. This part of my plan I have not abandoned, it is now in than with every fair prospect of success.

I have annexed to this despatch copies of several letters from the Residents at Poonah and Hyderabad, and off my recent instructions to them. These papers will furnish you with a complete knowledge of the actual dispositions and meterests of the two Courts, as well as of the nature of the system which I have framed for the purpose of uniting them with us upon the original basis of our subsisting treaties of defence against Tippoo

You will observe that my views have also been directed to aveit another danget which I have long considered with great apprehension and which is now aggravated by the inclination which Tippoo has manifested to admit large bodies of Frenchmen into his armies.

The growth of a French party in the councils and aimies of the several native powers of India had attracted my attention before I left Europe, this evil has now reached an alaming height, and if not checked, will soon produce convilsions in the system of Indian politics, which may facilitate the introduction of the power and influence of France, and expose ours to imminent hazard. The French army at Hyderabad is the main root of this mischief, and I feel it to be a most urgent point of my duty to extripate it without delay

In considering the annexed papers, you will perceive what erroneous notions have been formed at Madras of the temper and views of Azm ul Oma and the Mahnattas, as well with respect to the recupiocal relations of the two Courts towards each other, as to their common disposition towards the British Government. The moment is very favorable for adjusting their mutual differences, and for reconclining both parties to co-operate with us against Tippoo I do not expect that Scindiah will be able to oppose any effectual obstacle to the success of a plan founded on the real interests of all parties, and calculated to conciliate the approbation of all the ancient friends of his family, and of all who possess any degree of personal influence in his armies or dominions It would be impossible to carry this plan into execution, without accompanying it by a respectable state of menalation in the Carnatic, as it cannot be supposed that Tippoo would remain an inactive spectator of our negociations at Poonah and Hyderabad, unless he were checked by an appearance of our ability to move upon his frontiers. Our preparations ate the necessary consequences of those which he has made. and it would neither be rational nor just in him to consider them as provocations of war If the fear of an attack from him in the early stage of our preparations, is absolutely to preclude us from making them, we are indeed upon most unequal terms with him, and we must then at once determine to leave our fate at his disposal Foi it will then appear that we dare not take the common precautions of defence, while he with impunity enters into an offensive alliance with the French, for the declared purpose of expelling the British nation from India Having already stated to you, that I no longer entertain any idea of an immediate attack upon Tippoo. it will follow that my objects must for the present be limited to those measures of general preparation and defence, which are absolutely necessary for enabling us to recover the efficiency of our alliances, to repel any attack which Tippoo may make upon us, or eventually to support any representation, which we may hereafter judge it advisable to make to

him

It is not my intention to forward any despatch to Tippoo until the allies shall have concurred in it,—shall be ready to second our demand, and until our preparations shall be considerably advanced. The nature of our remonstrance to Tippoo, will be determined by the circumstances of the moment when it shall be made.

I now proceed to state to you another part of my general plan for the protection of the Carnatic The result of my earliest enquiries into the nature and condition of the miltary establishments on the coast, convinced me, that there existed a radical defect in them, which rendered them pecuharly ill adapted to secure the principal object of then institution, more especially in the actual state of Tippoo's pienaiations, of his temper, and of his power It is impossible for any human for esight to ascertain the precise time when an attack from Tippoo may be expected, but it is a matter of public notonety that he will attack the Carnatic, whenever circumstances shall appear to favor his declared design teract such a design, and to avert the dreadful evils which must attend even the most limited practical execution of it. the character of the enemy, and the nature of his force reoure that our motecting force should be so constituted, as to be capable of sudden and rapid movements at a short But the want of an establishment of draft bullocks. the want of a regular system for the speedy collection of the carriage bullocks from the country, the madequate stores of gram and other supplies necessary for the provision of our army in the field, the defects in the regulations for providing camp equipage, and lastly, the want of a regularly established train of artillery with all its proper equipments, nearly disqualify the army upon the coast for any speedy operation. even of a defensive nature

This was my opmion previous to the receipt of your despatch, from the perusal of which, and of the paper accompanying it, I am compelled to declare that I have received the most slaring impressions of the totally defenceless state of the Carnatic, in the present condition of our aimy, as well as of the utter inefficiency of that force, for any present purposes even of the most limited nature of mere defence. The report of your Adjutant General, states distinctly, that the army in the Carnatic under its present circumstances cannot be put in motion, even for the purpose of defending that valuable possession, under a shorter notice than six months. A body as tardy in its operations, cannot be deemed a sufficient check upon the rapid and active movements, which are supposed to form the characteristic qualities of the adversary to whom it is opposed

If the opinion of your Adjutant General is to be deemed correct, I have no hesitation in declaring that the army upon the coast, notwithstanding its high state of discipline, and the acknowledged gallantry, activity and skill of its officers. must be considered as an useless burthen upon the finances of the Company, being from its constitution, wholly unserviceable in the emergency of that species of war, which it must ever expect to encounter, until the character of the enemy and the nature of his force shall be entirely changed It cannot be doubted that if Tippoo in consequence of his alliance with Fiance, had received the aid of one or two regiments, either from the Mauritius or from France, he would immediately have attempted an injuption into the Cainatic with the whole force of his cavalry, which although diminished is still considerable In such an event if the Adjutant General's opinion be correct, your army could have opposed no obstacle to the progress of Tippoo for many months The state of Tippoo's preparations is supposed to be such, as to enable him to move with facility and celerity even for the purposes of offence, while the condition of our protecting force is represented by the Adjutant General to be such, as will not admit of its moving even for the purpose of defence, before the commencement of the ensuing year The acknowledged talents and experience of your Adjutant General, will not allow me to treat his opinion lightly upon a subject so important as that which was submitted to his consideration, I am persuaded, that he is incapable of attempting to exaggerate difficulties, and I can conceive no motive which could induce him to endeavour to impede the progress of measures. which it is his duty to execute with the full exertion of his zeal and ability, yet if I am to receive his judgment imphcitly, I cannot view it in any other light, than that of a sentence of disqualification upon your army, as far as relates to the primary object of its institution, namely, "defence against a sudden invasion of the Cainatic" I am, however, aware that this sentence of disability is mitigated in a considerable degree by your judgment and that of Mr Cockburn, to both of which on every account, I pay the greatest deference and respect But even from the result of your opinion it appears, that it would be nearly three months, before the army could be enabled to move even for operations of a defensive nature. This my dear Sii, is a most serious consideration to me, who am charged with the arduous responsibility of preserving from mury, every part of the British empire in India, I am determined not only to apply an immediate remedy to this evil, but to encounter the expense which I know must be incurred, in providing a permanent security against the future leturn of the peul of our present situation With this view I mean to record my sentiments in the secret department upon the difficulties which obstruct the movements of voin army, this step will be followed by a direction to your Government to report to me in council, the most eligible plan for enabling the army upon the coast to be in constant readiness to take the field expeditiously, upon any sudden emergency On your report, combined with such information as I shall receive from the Commander-in-Chief, and from other authorities here. I propose to ground a permanent system for the necessary purpose already stated In the meanwhile the measure which it is my intention to suggest to you for our present defence, will lay the foundation of a more regular establishment of your means of taking the field in future, and will co-operate in promoting my ultimate object. My wish now is, that you should immediately encamp the native troops in such a position as you may deem most eligible for expelling any invasion of the Carnatic, that you should draw the European force immediately into the frontier garrisons, and if your point of union should be, as I suppose it must be, the Baramahl, that you should encamp the European force also there before the period of the monsoon

You will also immediately procure the necessary draft bullocks for the attillery, it is my opinion that a permanent establishment of these will be absolutely necessary for your future safety

The carnage bullocks must be hired immediately, according to Mr Cockburn's suggestion, some system must hereaften be regularly introduced into the country, in order to facilitate the collection of these upon all future emergencies.

Gram and other necessary provisions must be stored in whatever place shall be judged most proper for such a depôt I am persuaded that means must be found of constantly maintaining upon the frontiers such a store of gram as would serve a large anny for at least aix months in the field.

The train of attillery must be provided without delay, this will serve as a foundation for a permanent establishment of artillery, to be always ready for use, the camp equipage, will be furnished of course, but the best mode of providing articles in future will be a leading object of your report to me

Thus I have endeavoured to open to your view the general outline of my arrangements for frustrating the united efforts of Tippoo and of France My leading objects are-to place your army in a respectable state of preparation for the present, and to enable it to move with alaciity and expedition on any future emergency To restore to our Alhes the power of fulfilling then defensive engagements with us, both now and hereafter, to destroy every seed of the French party, now growing up in the heart of the dominions of one of our principal Allies, and on the confines of our own By the natural and necessary effect of this change in the political state of India, to strengthen our barriers against the resentment and violence of Tippoo Sultaun, and to place in our hands the option of reducing his power according to our discretion, instead of abandoning our tranquillity to his mercy

All these objects appear to me to be attainable, but if they should not be attained, the blame shall not be imputable to any failure of diligence or labour on my part

I am extensely pleased with the accounts from Tanjote, and I flatter myself that the country will at length become a scene of order and affluence, an honour to the government of the Company and of the Rajah, and an increasing source of profit to both

Believe me, &c &c Mornington

No XXXVII

The Earl of Mornington to Captain Kirhpatrich

Sir, Fort William, July 18, 1798

I take the earliest opportunity to acknowledge your two very interesting letters, Nos 57 and 58

The mtelligence which they contain corresponds in a striking manner with the view which I had taken in my instructions to you and to Colonel Palmer of the 8th mst of the actual state of affains at the Courts of Poonah and Hyden abad, and leads me to form a confident expectation that my proposed airangements for restoring to us the benefit of the triple alliance, will be brought to a successful issue, unless my endeavours should unfortunately be flustrated by the success of Senduali's designs upon the power of the Peishwa before Colonel Palmer can have received my despatches of the 8th mst In you letter, No 58, you relate a singular instance of the penetiation of Azim ul Omia, who, as you will have observed, has anticipated nearly the whole principle and object of my instructions of the 8th mst. Although I consider this coincidence of sentiment as a very favourable crumstance in many points of view, I am apprehensive that it may be difficult to convince Azim ul Omia of the fact of my first instructions to Colonel Palmei having been despatched on the same day with those addiessed to you

I think it necessary to authorize you to declare that I have had no correspondence whatever with Colonel Palmer previously to my despatch of the 8th inst. You will naturally observe to Azim ul Oma, that he has foreseen nearly the whole of my plan with this material exception, that the fundamental principle of my mistructions, both to you and Col Palmer, is an unseserved communication to each Court of the propositions to be made to the other, and that the full previous knowledge and consent of all parties forms an essential condition of the whole arrangement. This circumstance will affold sufficient possible motive could be assigned for my preferring the interests of the Peishwa to those of the Nizam, or for my undertaking any negociations at Poonah without his Highleres's patticipation.

But I repeat it, the best answer to any such suspicion is to be found in the whole tenor and spirit of my instructions to you and to Colonel Palmei

I shall want for your reply to my letter of the 8th of July before I furnish you with my instructions upon any other points stated in your last despatches

I have the honour to be, &c

No XXXVIII.

General Harris to the Earl of Mornington

My DEAR LORD. Madas Ju

Mad1as, July 22, 1798

When your Lordship hears of our difficulties from the want of cash, you will not be surprized that we begin to be very anxious to hear from you on this subject

Yesterday we advestized you ten years' psoposal, from not having a betten to offes, but much cannot be expected from it, as in the present state of evchange between the Presidencies it would be a great advantage to purchase you bills, and send them to be placed in you senitance. To equalize the exchange, we must semit the pagoda at mine shillings, which we did not think ourselves authorized to offes

We have also advettsed that proposals will be received for bills on Bengal, and from which I have some expectations, or should be under the necessity of entirely stopping our preparations, and which partially is the case, having stopped a further provision of bullocks (draft) than will move our field tain and some arrack carts. I have not brought the corps from the westward of Wallayawbad out of cantonments, and I had intended to send the 36th into Ainee instead of allowing them to remain on field allowances, but shall wait until I hear firther from your Lordship. A few days will always join the troops from the cantonments of Airoot, Conatore, Arnee, and Vellore, as then carriage and camp equipage are ready

General Floyd informs me the 3d N C (the flist conpended with him) begins to cross the Colescon the 17th or 18th, and will be five or six days in effecting the passage from his having but three boats, his Majesty's 19th dragoons and 12th infantry will follow in about eight days Any one of these corps would enable us to watch Tippoo should he come to see us.

The camp at Wallajawbad will consist of his Majesty's 12th and 36th regiments, 19th dragoons, 3d and 4th N cavahy, 1st B 1st N infantry, with the 74th and two corps of N I in the cantonments

A few days will always join these to the corps at Arnee and Arcot, &c as carriage and camp equipage is now all ready This, from absolute want of cash to make any further preparation, must be the state until your Lordship supplies in I have now, my Lord, to addiess you on the subject of the Fiench pusoners whom I have been much unged to send to Calcutta, but have refused until I know your pleasure—

1 As being well acquainted with the nuisance they would be in Fort William 2 As I am adoubtful whether, under the Capituliation of Pondicherity, we can send them any where but to Europe without being guilty of a breach of it, and which I should instantly have closed with, but that I do not think it safe to despatch them without convoy, for fean of their going to Mangaloic mistend of Old France

I remain, with truth,

Your Lordship's Faithful and obedient Seivant,

GEO HARRIS

P. S We have appointed the Commission for Tanjoie, consisting of Mi Toim, Mi Harris (not even an acquaintance of mine), and Mr Stratton, as youngest member and Secretary Your Lordship has a pretty good notion of the difficulties attending the finding proper members who are not more usefully employed

The above young men have lately conducted themselves very much to their credit, Mr Harris in a business of a similar nature, in the Ramnad country, and Mi Stratton as Secretary to the Count of Cutcherry

Your Lodship's favorites, Messis Cockburne and Lushington are positively against accepting the country from Serfogee, and I join them most codially—but particulars will be forwarded by the Sybelle, and then your Lordship will decide

The amount of fixed pay and allowances of the army now under orders for the Field, is - - Pagodas 91,449

Additional in the Field, - - 1,18,105

2.09.554

No XXXIX

The Earl of Mornington to Colonel William Palmer, Resident at Poonah Sir, Fort William, the 25th July, 1798

From the enclosed copy of my letten to the Resident at Hydenshad, you will observe that I considen it of essential impostance that the part of the proposed engagements with the Peishwa and the Nizam which relates to the dismission of the French from the service of the two Courts, and the future exclusion of all persons of that nation from them respective dominions, should be finally natified with all possible exvedition.

You will accordingly take the necessary steps for obtaining without delay from the Pershwa a separate engagement compusing all the proposed stipulations in my letter of the 8th instant, regarding the French. The engagement should be concluded subject to my approbation, and should be forwarded to me with all practicable despatch for my ratification.

It is not improbable that the apparent reconciliation between Nana and Sendah, has been founded on engagements injurious to the rights and authority of the Pesilwa. Should this conjecture prove well founded, there is little room to expect that Bajee-Row will ever consent to Nana's restoration to his former influence in the administration of affairs, especially when it is considered that the grounds of the enmity between Bajee-row and Nana are of a nature which would appear to preclude any hope of a sincere reconciliation

To use our influence for the restoration of Nana to his former power, in opposition to the Peishwa would be unjust. I have great doubts also of the policy of such a line of conduct. For it could not be expected that Bayes-row would adher to engagements which subjected him to the control of the implacable enemy of his family, and such an an angement might be expected to terminate either in an application to Scindials for his assistance against Nana, or in a connection with Tippo to the piejudice of the triple alliance.

Your communication with the parties will best enable you to judge of the consideration to which these conjectures are entitled. Should you be of opinion that the recent includes which Barce-Row and Nana have mutually sustained.

from Dowlut Rao are likely to induce them to forget their former ammostites, and that Nana can be restored to his former power, or placed in any other situation in the immissity at Poonah without danger to the immediate success of the proposed ariangements, or to their future stability, I shall readily acquiesce in such stipulations as you may make in his favor

You will consider the instructions which I have given to the Acting Resident at Hydershad for forwarding an account of the result of his proceedings under my instructions down to the latest date by the overland despatch which will proceed from Bombay by the 1st September next, as equally intended for your guidance

I am, &c Mornington

No XL

General Harris to the Earl of Mornington

MY DEAR LORD,

July, 29th, One P m 1798

Your Lordshy's private and public letters of 13th inst are this moment received. You may rely that no time shall be lost in giving directions for carrying into effect the orders they convey, the moment I have determined in what manner your intentions will be best effected, and which in the scattered state of our troops to the northward, and owing to the urgent demands for them in other quarters requires much consideration.

July 30th —Having tuned the subject much in my mind last night and this morning. I am come to the resolution to acquaint your Lordship with two or three points by express before I finally determine from whence the force shall be brought

That unless we receive from Bengal a supply of money before the end of August, we positively cannot proceed

That the manne battalion should be sent with every possible expedition to Masulipatam, and the 33d here

That the force you have ordered cannot be assembled in the Guntoon Circai before the end of August, as a battalion, if not two, must go from the centre division, and where, it is to be observed, we have not a man to spare if an attack is made, and lastly, that the execution of your Lordship's orders for sending round the men of the 36th on the arrival of the 33d must be suspended if possible

I sent an odel last mght for steps to be taken for the 11th regiment to be assembled, hoping that the force could have been furnished from the Cincars, but shall stop them for a few days, as I am now convinced half of it must maich from here

Depend on every possible exertion, and that although depressed by want of cash, I do not despond, and am always very faithfully your Lordship's obedient Servant,

GEO HARRIS

No XLI

From Tippoo Sultaun to the Governor-General (Dated 1st Suffer, 1213, or 18th of July,)

[Received 2d of August, 1798]

In happy time I had the pleasure to receive your Lordship's letter, which afforded me great satisfaction, and its friendly contents have been understood-(vide letter written 14th June) Since the time that the country of Nuggun and Koriaul was first subjugated, the Talooks of Ameera and Souleah. in which (latter) Kamtamungle and Coloorbaice are situated. have belonged to Konaul, and this proved and confirmed by the records of a century -The names of the persons who paid the collections of those Talooks to the officers of Koriaul, of those who collected the revenues of them, and the accounts of advances made to the Ryots for the purposes of cultivation, are contained in those records, and from the first establishment of the authority of this Sircar down to the year 1220 of Mohummed, they have been attached to the country of Konsul The Coorga people have had no concern in them. Indeed, between the above Talooks and the Coorga country vast hills interpose By the Treaty of Peace, the Talooks of Ahmednuggui, otherwise called Chucklooi, belongs to my Sucar, and Wynaad (or Wynaur) is a Kurreah (or village with its appertaining lands) among the Kuileahs of Ahmednuggui above the Tambacherry pass. The territory of the Company is below that pass, and the hills form a barrier between

You Lordship has written that "subordinate officers are naturally inclined to make misrepiesentations to their respective goveniments in such tirvial cases, and to foment jealousses and disturbances"—It is certain, then, that in plain and simple cases, the representations of interested people will not have any weight or credit whatever with your Lordship. Nevertheless as you Lordship is desirous of obtaining an explanation and iemoring doubts, odes have been issued to the officers of Koiraul to confee with the persons who may be appointed from the Malabars side, and fairly to ascertain and remove all doubts, a person of rank shall also be deputed by me for this business. By the favour of God the bonds of friendship and union are finily drawn between the two States, and I am to the last degree disposed to give additional strength to the beneficial system of amity and peade-

Believing me giatified by the agreeable intelligence of your Loidship's welfare, I hope you will always continue to rejoice me by your exhilarating letters

A true Copy, N B Edmonstone, Person Franslator to Govt

No XLII

The Hon Jonathan Duncan to the Earl of Morning ton

My Lord,

Bombay, 2d August, 1798

I lose no time in acknowledging the honor and gratification I have experienced in the receipt of your Lodship's communication of the 6th ult, that reached me on the 80th of last month, and from the obliging expressions in which I am encouraged, and shall certainly feel ever yinclination to discharge the particular duties dependent on me in a manner to afford satisfaction to your Lodship, whose instructions and advice, whenever I may be favored with either, can never fall to have their full operation on my conduct

Having imparted to the Commander-in-Chief, as well as to the Hon Mr North, the particulars relative to the measures in delheration respecting Tippoo, the former has furnished me with the state and disposition of our forces, whence it appears that the present garison of Bombay consists of the King's 75th regiment, two companies and a half of artillery, one regiment of native infantry, six companies of the grenadier battalion of N I and about half the maine battalion, composing an effective force of 815 Europeans, and 2,820 Natives, besides 360 gun-lascais, without aims, and of the Sepoys, about seven hundred are at present unift for field service, neither can the maine battalion be relied or reckoned on, as a part of the galison, because their numbers are constantly fluctuating, and are no more than sufficient for their prope duties

Tannah, in Salsette, is garisoned by invalids, and a detachment of two companies of native infantly from Bombay, Suiat, by one company of Europeans from the Company's regiment in Malabai, half a company of aitillery, and the local battalon of Sepovs.

In Malaba, we have the 77th regment, and the Company's European regment (excepting the company detached to Surat, and the detachment on board of the Bombay frigate) three companies of atrillery, and three regments and a half of native infanity, exclusive of the pioneets, gun-lascans and Sebundy cops. Thus by the present distribution of our forces, the fin greater part of our army is in the province of Malabar, and so situated that, from the season, it cannot mediately be called up to service in the nothern quanters.

Under these cucumstances, General Stuart (whose zeal for the service and professional ability I date say your Lordship is fully aware of) thinks that, without much hazaid, so laige a force can hardly be detached from the garrison here, as to the greatest number your Lordship's letter adverts to, or of more than 500 men from the 75th regiment, with one company of artillery and complement of gun-lascars, and also the six companies of the grenadier battalion, making 350 men. with the 2d battalion of the 4th regiment, consisting of 900. composing in all 1250 sepoys, it being at the same time further observed by our Commander-in-Chief, that the emergency of the case could perhaps alone wantant our sparing such a great proportion of the force, which is not even now deemed adequate to the defence of this place were it attacked. and it will consequently be necessary to supply and replace them, without delay, by diafts from Malabar The General also intimating that, in the intermediate time, and until the arrival of the reinforcements (which can hardly be looked to before the end of September or middle of October), he will not be inclined to hold himself responsible for the consequences, in case of any attack on Bombay, which, although not a probable event, seems still within the range of possibility, and desning likewise to notice, for your Lordship's observation, that we should have found less difficulty in sending a force from Malabar, where the greatest part of our army is stationed, and the troops ready for field-service, all, except what must be left in the gail isons of Cannanoie, Cochin, and Paulghaut, with one native regiment (as I calculate) to preserve the peace throughout the districts, to which the Sebundies alone are not adequate, so that I hardly suppose we could safely send from Malabar above 3,000 Native Infantive from the force at present stationed there, whether to come up here, or to act in that quarter in co-operation with the Madras army, and there is certainly more material danger in withdrawing any part of our force from Malabar, at this moment, than might be probably incurred by sending all the 3000 men in question to act against the Sultaun's territories in that quarter, for, whilst the troops were acting within the observition of the Malabai chieftains, these latter would, at least, be quiet, during our successful progress. but if they see the troops withdrawn, as it were altogether, by bringing them up to Bombay, they will be aut to ascribe it to our necessities and weakness, and to presume accordingly, for they one and all continue still uneasy under the voke, we have been endeavouring to impose on them, and are only manageable by policy, aided by the appearance, at least, of a competent military force

Having thus submitted to your Lordship the General's opmon and my own, as it is our duty,—be assured I shall, when your fint ther instructions mirre, leave nothing undone to give them the fullest possible effect, and shall in the mean time, write to Fort St George, as your Lordship has suggested

Your Loudship may in this and in all other instances rely on my secreey, but there will, I fear, be no disguising the object of our preparations, because, the notoriety of Malatite's publication (which I long prevented getting into the newspapers here, and until they were printed in the Bengal ones) leaves but one general belief, that your Loudship must unavoidably adopt the measures now in meditation, and which I do

also most fervently join my own wishes to those of your Lordship, may yet terminate in the confirmation of the public peace

I must still add the faither opinion of General Strait, that, if so giet at diaft of troops be mide from this Plesidency, it will be absolutely necessary to laise another native regiment. He at the same time doubts, whether the Madias Govenment will be able to spaie us a man, in which case, I might perhaps obtain one or two hattakions from the Rajah of Travancore, on the terms of the treaty with him, if your Loudship approves of that evpedient

I have the honor to remain with the utmost consideration, My Loid, your Loidship's

Most obedient and very humble servant, Jonathan Duncan

No XLIII

The Earl of Mornington to the Resident at Lucknow

Sir, Fort William, 6th August, 1798
I have received your letter of the 27th ultimo

Considering the advance of Golaum Mahommed Khan towards Rohlcund without my sanction, as a decisive proof of his intention to create disturbance, I have communicated the intelligence which you have transmitted respecting him to the commanding officers at Futtlehghu and Cawnpore, and have desired them to hold in readness such part of their force as they may judge necessary for suppressing any commotion which may be excited by Golaum Mahommed and his adherents

You will also apply to the Nabob to funmsh a body of his troops to be stationed at Nujeebadad or at whaterer place may be found advisable, and you will, in concert with the Vizies, direct Nussu Ullah Khan to have secouse to every means in his power for preventing any of the Rohillahs from joining Golaum Mahommed Nussus Ullah Khan must be ordered to apprehend and send to Lucknow any persons who may be detected in favoring the views of Golaum Mahommed

You will communicate to Major Generals Craig and Stewart such farther information as you may receive respecting the designs of Golaum Mahommed Khan, and you will concert with those officers and with the Vizier the detail of the measures which may be necessary for preserving the tranquility of the country

In the meanwhile no time should be lost in obtaining the Vizic's consent to the iemoval of the whole of the family of Golsum Mahommed, including his sons, together with any tieasure which the family may have in their possession to Benaies

You will have secured my letter to the Vizier pressing him for the payment of the areas of his subsidy. As I am persuaded his Excellency possesses ample means of discharging the whole areas without waiting the secupit of the collections from the country, I desire that you will uge to him, in the strongest terms, my expectation that he will immediately resort to whatever resources of any description he can command for the purpose of fulfilling his engagement.

My intention of visiting Lucknow has suspended my answer to your several letters, but as I have thought it advisable to postpone my visit to that place for some time, I shall pioceed without delay to the consideration of the various points on which you have desired my instructions

I am, &c. \(\square\) Mornington

No. XLIV

The Earl of Mornington to Tippoo Sultaun

Fort Wilham, 7th August, 1798
Your Highness's Letter gave me great satisfaction, at the same time that it leached me, I leceived from the Commissioners in Malabai, then final opinion upon the subject of Wynaad. After a full examination of every circumstance relating to your rights and to those of the Company, I am now convinced that Wynaad was not ceded to the Company by the treaty of peace, and therefore that it belongs to your Highness As in never will be my wish to contest the smallest paticle of your Highness's lights, I have directed the Commissioners to make a formal acknowledgment of the justice of your claim to Wynaad, which district you will occupy whenever it may suit your pleasure As some doubts however leman whether the Tambacherny Pass be not meluded in the cessions made to the Company, by the treaty of peace, I have directed the offlicers of the Company to confer on that subject, with the person to be appointed by your Highness All question between your Highness and the Company with respect to Wymad, is now brought to a happy conclusion — The right to the Tambacheriy Pass, and to the Talooks of Ameeiah and Souleah and Eisawaissemy still remains for discussion. You will find me sincerely disposed to consider the several questions relating to these districts, with the same impartiality, of which I have endeavoured to afford your Highness an unequivocal testimony in the final settlement of your claims unon Wymad

I have the honour to be, &c.

A true Copy, N B Edmonstone, Persian Translator to Govt

No. XLV

General Harris to the Earl of Mornington

My Dear Lord, Madras, 7th August, 1798

My last letter to your Lordship, of which I now transimt a duplicate, was in a more desponding stam than you were probably prepared to receive, but if it had been my wish to soften the truths which it contained, I should have deemed it treacherous to your Lordship to have done so, for as the tesponsibility of the orders rests exclusively with your Government, it was especially incumbent on me to apprize you of the difficulties which opposed their execution, that you might be enabled to send us early and effectual succour

The situation of a person to command the detachment? has been justly considered an object of the greatest importance, after the fullest enquiry my choice has fallen upon Lieut-Colonel Robarts commanding the 11th native regiment, he was at Hyderabad with it till releved by the Bengal detachment, and gave great satisfaction to the Nizam and his Ministers Lieut-Colonel Daliymple, the brother-in-law of Lieut-Colonel Robats is the second in command, and an

This refers to the pointon of troops which the Governor General ordered to be assembled in the Guntoor Circar (see Map) for the purpose of marching on Hyderabad, in order to disarm the French legion of 11,000 men then in the service of the Nizam with those officers and with the Vizier the detail of the measures which may be necessary for preserving the tranquillity of the country

In the meanwhile no time should be lost m obtaining the Vizer's consent to the removal of the whole of the family of Golsum Mahommed, including his sons, together with any treasure which the family may have in their possession to Benaries

You will have received my letter to the Yizie pressing him for the payment of the ariens of his subsidy. As I am persuaded his Excellency possesses ample means of discharging the whole arrear without waiting the receipt of the collections from the country, I desire that you will mage to him, in the strongest terms, my expectation that he will immediately resort to whatever resources of any description he can command for the purpose of fulfilling his engagements.

My intention of visiting Lucknow has suspended my answer to your several letters, but as I have thought it advisable to postpone my visit to that place for some time, I shall pioceed without delay to the consideration of the various points on which you have desired my instructions.

I am, &c. _____ Morningion.

No XLIV.

The Earl of Mornington to Tippoo Sultaun

Fort William, 7th August, 1798

Your Highness's Letter gave me great satisfaction, at the same time that it leached me, I leceived from the Commissiones in Malabat, their final opinion upon the subject of Wynaad After a full examination of every circumstance relating to your rights and to those of the Company, I am now convinced that Wynaad was not ceded to the Company by the treaty of peace, and therefore that it belongs to your Highness As it never will be my wish to contest the smallest patients of your Highness's rights, I have directed the Commissioners to make a formal acknowledgment of the justice of your claim to Wynaad, which district you will occupy whenever it may suit your pleasure. As some doubts however remain whether the Tambacherry Pass be not included in the cessions made to the Company, by the treaty of peace, I have directed the officers of the Company to confer on that subject, with the person to be appointed by you. Highness All question between you. Highness and the Company with teaperet to Wynad, is now brought to a happy conclusion — The right to the Tambacherry Pass, and to the Talooks of Amecial and Souleah and Eisawanaseemy still remains for discussion. You will find me sincerely disposed to consider the several questions relating to these districts, with the same impartiality, of which I have endeavoured to afford you Highness an unequivocal testimony in the final settlement of your claims upon Wynade.

I have the honour to be, &c.

A true Copy, N B Edmonstone, Persian Translator to Govt

No XLV

General Harris to the Earl of Mornington

My Dear Lord, Madras, 7th August, 1798

My last letter to your Lodship, of which I now transmit a duplicate, was in a more desponding strain than you were probably prepared to receive, but if it had been my wish to soften the truths which it contained, I should have deemed it treacherous to your Loidship to have done so, for as the responsibility of the orders rests exclusively with your Government, it was especially incumbent on me to apprize you of the difficulties which opposed then execution, that you might be enabled to send us early and effectual succoun.

The situation of a person to command the detachment* has been justly considered an object of the greatest importance, after the fullest enquiry my choice has fallen upon Lieut-Colonel Robarts commanding the 11th native regiment, he was at Hyderahad with it till releved by the Bengal detachment, and gave great satisfaction to the Nizam and his Ministers Lieut-Colonel Dahlymple, the botther-in-law of Lieut-Colonel Robarts is the second in command, and an officer of high military character he was also before at Hyderabad, and is the officer who so much distinguished himself at the taking of Raiboi But as Sn Almed Clarke is perfectly acquainted with their characters, I beg to refer your Lordship to him for more particular information appear somewhat extraordinary to your Lordship (upon a perusal of the accompanying minute read in Council the 13th instant, but withdrawn for the present) that the required detachment would have been nearly ready at this time if the want of money had not afforded so serious an objection, and if I had not been much importuned to refrain from the measure, and perhaps convinced that I should have met with much counteraction which in my present temporary situation it would have been troublesome to overcome. The receipt of your instructions placed the measure in a stronger point of view, and yesterday I delivered to the Council the minute No. 2

^{*} This refers to the portion of troops which the Governor General ordered to be assembled in the Guntoor Circai (see Map) for the purpose of marching on Hyderabad, in order to disarm the French legion of 11,000 men then in the service of the Nizam

Objections were, as I expected, enumerated, but as I declared my resolution to take the measure upon myself, and execute it with my own funds if no public money could be obtained, the opposition was silenced, and my arrangements were instantaneously put in execution I must confess to your lordship, that this minute has reheved the disquietude of mind under which I wrote my last letter, because I feel that I have done my duty towards the public and myself, in adverting to the difficulties to which we are exposed, whilst I have at the same time, placed your lordship's wishes in the best possible train of accomplishment, and write this letter under a determination to use my unceasing endeavours for then effectual and speedy completion In the various considerations that will engage your Lordship's mind in deliberating upon the great question, that of the limited powers allowed to the Commander-in-Chief on the coast, will not In the event of hostilities, I should most earnestly wish your lordship to be here, and the Commanderm-Chief in India to be in command of the aimy, for although I have no doubt your Lordship would endeavour to prevent the certain bad consequences of placing me in the command, without an extension of my previous powers, I am thoroughly convinced, that the service would most essentially benefit by your Lordship's presence at Madras

The outline of you Lordship's ideas for the defence of the Carnatic, appears to me perfectly correct, and so sensible am I of the necessity of stoies and a tiam in advance, that you will have a plan immediately laid before you, for putting the Petiah of Kistnagheriy into a state for a depôt. The unusual swelling of the rivers at Trichinopoly, and our total want of preparation in every way, not a boat being leady, and the Nabob's people doing nothing, has caused a delay in that quarter, which might have been most fatal, had Tippoo come down when he first received intelligence of our preparations.

I am my Lord, Your very faithful and obedient servant

No. XLVI.

The Earl of Monnington to Lieut -Col W Palmer, Resident at Poonah Sir. Fort William. 9th August. 1798

Your letter of the 13th July, No 28, is now before me

In the 11th paragraph, you state the probability of the Penshwa's endeavouring to save his person by joining the forces of the Nizam, but you add your apprehension, that he may find it difficult to effect his retreat if Scindiah should detenime to seize him in the city

Under such circumstances, it is possible that the Peishwa might be able to effect his retreat with more facility, if he were to direct his motions towards Bombay, and to join our troops

If therefore the Peishwa shall have consented to the propositions contained in my instructions to you of the 8th July, I authorize you to offer him a retreat at Bombay, and to assure him, that he will be received with every mark of respect and friendship, and that his person will be protected with the most exact attention

You will take care to give sufficient notice to the Government of Bombay, if the Peishwa should be likely to avail himself of this offer, in order that they may prepare for his reception

I am, &c Mornington

No XLVII

The Earl of Mornington to Captain J. A. Kirkpatrick, acting Resident at Huderabad

Sir. Fort William, 11th August, 1798

I have received your letter of the 24th July, to which I now return my answer

By referring to my detailed instructions of the 8th July, you will perceive that the arrangements which I propose, are not limited to a mere enlargement of our existing subsidiary engagements with the Nizam

I collect from your letter, that Azim ul Omra would be likely to require thee conditions in addition to those stated in the abstract of my instructions of the 8th July, before he would consent to accede to my propositions

The first, an engagement to support the succession of Secunder Jah

Secondly, the power of employing the British detachment, in carrying into effect various measures of internal reform in the Nizam's dominions

Thirdly, the extension of my proposed arbitration of the existing differences between the courts of Poonah and Hyderabad, to any cases of difference which may hereafter arise

It is my deceded intention to support the succession of Secunder Jah But I have directed you to conceal that intention from Azim ul Omia for the present, under an apprehension that the disclosure of it might excite suspicion and jealousy in the mind of the Nizam

If, however, you should be of opinion that this communication could be made to Azim ul Omra, without any danger of the nature which I apprehend, I authorize you to act according to your own discretion in this respect

With segaid to the employment of the Bitish detachment within the Nizam's dominions, it appears to me that I have aheady laid down the rule with sufficient clearness in my letter of the 14th July, in which I have disceted, that the employment of the Bitish troops, in his Highness's dominions, shall be restricted to those important cases in which his person or authority shall be endangered, and shall not be extended to those services, which more properly belong to Sebundy cops

This rule would certainly admit of the employment of the detachment in the cases stated in your letter of the 24th July, not am I aware of any objection the use of the British troops, under the direction of the Nizam's ministers, in services connected with the introduction of a system of internal reform into his Highness's dominions

If the Courts of Poonah and Hyderabad, shall concun in accepting my arbitiation of their subsisting differences, there will be every leason to hope, that they would be prepared to receive a similar security against the effects of any disputes which may hereafter arise. It never was my intention to confine my interposition to the circumstances of the present moment, my object being to unite the interests of the two courts, upon a permanent basis.

My wish unquestionably is, that the Company should for the future, be placed in the situation of a mediator between the other two branches of the tuple alliance, and should hereafter by a timely interposition of good offices, prevent their from engaging in contests, which must eventually impair the strength of both parties, and defeat the ends of the triple alliance.

> I am, &c Mornington.

No XLVIII.

[Mmute of the Governor-General in the Secret Department]

The Govennor-General. For Wilham, August 12, 1798
In communicating to the Board an authentic copy of the proclamation issued by the Govennor-General of the Isle of France, during the residence of the Ambassadors of Tippoo Sultaun in that island, I informed the Board that I would prepare the detail of such measures, as appeared to me most advisable for the purpose, of flustrating the united efforts of Tippoo Sultaun and of France Accordingly I have laid before the Board, for that necessary purpose, a number of propositions, connected in their principle as well as in then object, and I have endeavoured to carry the proposed system of measures into execution with every practicable degree of diligence and despatch When it is remembered that I did not take charge of this Government until the 18th of May, that the proclamation did not make its first appearance at this Presidency until the 8th of June. and was not authenticated here until the 18th of June. I trust it will appear that I have proceeded with as much expedition as was compatible with the due consideration of the various and important questions which demanded my decision * Although the leading objects of the several propositions which have been adopted by this Government may be collected from my late correspondence with the Governments of Fort St George and Bombay, and with the Residents at Poonah and Hyderabad, it may be useful to review, with more particularity, the circumstances which have suggested this system of measures to my judgment. My present intention, therefore, is to explain and illustrate the principles upon which that system is founded, the means by which I hope to carry it into effect, and the ends which I expect to accomplish by its ultimate success and permanent establishment In this retrospect of my conduct, I shall disclose, without hesitation or reserve, the whole train of reflections which has passed in my mind during the agitation of this intricate and extensive subject, and I shall avow, without disguise, every successive variation of my opinion, and every instance in which I have reluctantly submitted my unaltered judgment to the pressure of practical difficulties, nor shall I deny that I have ultimately pursued a course, far within the limits of that, to which the sense of my own duty and character, the clearest punciples of justice and of policy, the unquestionable rights and interests of the Company, and the honour of the British name in India, would have directed me, if the obstacles to my progress had not appeared absolutely manumountable

160

The various considerations which have successively engaged my attention may be stated in the following order —

[•] The Minute of the Governor-General, (see p. 64) respecting the financial distress of Indus, bearing date 12th June 1789, demonstrates that fraquired deliberation before increased expenses were to be menured, and it also proves that Lord Mornington had attentively examined the wide question of the pecuniary embarrassments in which his Lordship found the East India Company's territories involved.

First,—The nature and character of the recent proceedings of Tippoo Sultaun

Secondly,-The rights and interests of the Company, and the principles of my duty arising out of those proceedings

Thindly,—The circumstances which might suspend or limit the actual exercise of those nights, the immediate and complete establishment of those interests, and the satisfactory discharge of that duty

Fourthly,—The intermediate precautions which might be adopted during the suspension of more effectual measures, and the securities which might now be provided against the return of our actual danger

The first consideration required an attentive examination of the proclamation issued at the Isle of France, together with all the collateral circumstances accompanying that extraordinary publication. The proclamation made its first appearance at Calcutta in a newspaper of the 8th of June

Upon the first view of the subject, I was much inclined to doubt the authenticity of the proclamation. It seemed incredible that, if the French really entertained a design of furnishing aid to Tippoo, they would publicly declare that design, when no other apparent end could be answered by such a declaration, excepting that of exposing the project in its infancy to the observation of our Governments, both at home and in India, and of preparing both for a timely and effectual resistance It did not appear more probable that Tippoo (whatever might be his secret design) would have risked so public and unguarded an avowal of his hostility. however, even under these circumstances, I thought it advisable to transmit a copy of the proclamation to the Governor of Fort St George, m a private letter of the 9th of June, apprizing him that, if the proclamation should prove authentic, it must lead to a serious remonstrance from this Government to Tippoo, the result of which remonstrance must be uncertain, my letter, therefore, directed him to turn his attention to the means of collecting a force upon the coast, if necessity should unfortunately require such a measure

The first regular authentication of the proclamation which I received was contained in the letter from Lord Macatiney, of 28th March, and in that from Sir Hugh Christian of the same date, received on the 18th of June. It could now no longer be doubted that the proclamation actually had been assued by the Governor General of the Isle of France. Still. however, it might have remained a question whether this step might not have been taken without the concurrence of Tippoo Sultaun, and for the promotion of some separate object of the French Government, unconnected with his interests and unauthorized by his consent From the accounts which I had received of the state of the Isle of France, I was led to behave that the object of Mr Malartic might have been to clear the Island of the adherents to the cause of the present Government of France, rather than to afford any effectual assistance to Tippoo It appears, however, from a more accurate investigation of evidence, that the ship (which first conveyed to the Isle of France those accounts of the last nevolution in France, and of the violent measures projected against the Islas of France and Bourbon, which occasioned the late disturbances at Port Nord Ouest, and the expulsion of the French national troops from thence) did not reach the Isle of France until Tippoo's Ambassadors had departed from thence on then return to Mangalore The assistance afforded to Tippoo cannot therefore have been connected with the necent commotions in the Isle of France However, I do not apprehend, unless some new revolution shall happen in the Isle of France, that Tippoo Sultaun will be able to derive any considerable aid from that quarter But whatever may have been the motives of Monsieur Malartic in this transaction. the object of Tippoo Sultaun was always plain and clear, although, fortunately for our interests, his success has not yet been answerable to the extent of his design. Of the object of that design, I soon possessed ample proof, arising from the best evidence which the nature of the case could admit In the first place it appeared, by the general tenor of the letters from the Cape, as well as by every public account which had been given of the transaction, to be an undisputed fact, that Tippoo despatched two Ambassadors to the Isle of France, and that the proclamation in question was published subsequently to their arrival and during their residence in that island These facts would perhaps have been sufficient, without further inquity, to wairant a strong presumption that this proclamation, purporting to declare the object of the embassy, must have been framed with the consent and knowledge of the Ambassadors of Tippoo, then on the spot, and must have corresponded with then instructions from their sovereign, whose orders they would scancely have ventured to exceed in a matter of such sentous consequence as the conclusion of an allance, offensive and defensive, with the French. In order, however, to obtain the most accurate momentum with respect to the encumstances attending the reception of the embassy, the publication of the proclamation, and the conduct of the Ambassadors, I examined, upon oath, some respectable persons who were present in the Isle of France during the residence of the Ambassadors at Pott Nord Ouest. From the concurrent testimony of these persons, since corroborated by intelligence from various quarters, I obtained a connected account of the whole transaction

VOL I

Tippoo despatched two Ambassadors, who embaiked at Mangalore for the Isle of France, and arrived there at the close of the month of January 1798 They hoisted Tippoo's colours upon entering the harbour of Port Nord Ouest, were received publicly and formally by the French Government with every culcumstance of distinction and respect, and were entertained during their continuance on the Island at the public expense Previously to then arrival, no idea or rumous existed in the Island of any aid to be furnished to Tippoo by the French, or of any prospect of a war between him and the Company The second day after the arrival of the Ambassadors, an advertisement was published of the same purport as the proclamation, and immediately afterwards the proclamation was fixed up in the most public places, and cuculated through the town One of the Ambassadors was perfectly conversant with the French language. A person accompanied the embassy from Mangalore, who was habited in the Turkish diess, who spoke French and English with uncommon correctness and fluency, and who appeared to possess considerable knowledge and talents, and to be well acquainted with most of the country languages of India This person had been known at Bussorah by the name of Abdoolah, at Surat by that of Derwish, and in the Isle of France passed under that of Talamas, under which last name he had also passed in Bengal, where he resided for some years The Ambassadors (far from protesting against the matter or style of the proclamation) held, without reserve, in the most public manner, the same language which it contains with respect to the offensive war to be commenced against the British nossessions in India, they even suffered the proclamation to be publicly distributed at then own house Talamas's conversation, though with more caution and mystery, corresponded in substance with thems In consequence of these cucumstances. an universal behef prevailed in the Island, that Tippoo would make an immediate attack upon the British possessions in India, which opinion had gained so much force, that the persons who gave this evidence, and all those who arrived at that period in India from the Isle of France, expected to find us at was with Tippoo, but they all concurred in declaring, that the temerity of Tippoo's design had excited general ridicule in that Island The Ambassadors were present in the Island when the French Government proceeded to act under the proclamation in question, and they aided and assisted the execution of it, by making promises in the name of Tippoo for the purpose of inducing recruits to enlist, they proposed to levy men to any practicable extent, stating their powers to be unlimited with respect to the numbers of the force to be raised. The Ambassadors aided and assisted in the levy of 150 officers and privates for the service of Tippoo, under the terms and for the purposes of the proclamation Few of the officers are of any experience of skill, and the privates are the refuse of the lowest class of the democratic rabble of the Island Some of them are volunteers, others were taken from the prisons and compelled to embark, several of them are Caffies and people of half-cast With such of these troops as were volunteers, the Ambassadors entered into several stipulations and engagements in the name of Tippoo

On the 7th of Mach, 1798, the Ambassadois embatked on board the French figate La Preneuse, together with the force thus russed, and they publicly declared an intention of proceeding to the Isle of Bourbon, with the hope of obtaining more recruits for the same service

The proclamation, therefore, originated in the arrival of the Ambassados at the Isle of France, was distributed by their agents, was avowed in every part by then own public declaration, and finally was executed according to its tenor by their personal assistance and co-operation

The proclamation itself furnished the most powerful internal evidence of the concurrence of the Ambassadors in all its essential parts, the principal facts stated therein are—

"That Tippoo Sultaun, through two Ambassadors despatched for the purpose to the Isle of France, had addressed letters to the colonial assembly of the Isle of France, to all the Generals employed there, and to the Executive Ducctory of France, and had made the following propositions.

"1st That he desired to form an alliance, offensive and defensive, with the French, and offered to maintain at wexpense, during the continuance of the wai in India, whatever toops should be furnished by the French, and to supply (with the exception of certain stoies) every necessary for carrying on the war

"2d That he had given assurances that all his preparams were already completed, and that the generals and officers would find every thing necessary for carrying on a species of win, to which Europeans have not been accustomed in their contests with the Native Powers in India

"3d That he only wated for the succour of France to declare was against the English, and that it was his aident desire to expel the English from India"

Upon the ground of these facts, the proclamation recommends a general levy of men for the service of Tippoo, and it concludes by assuring "all the citizens who shall enlist, that Tippoo will give them an advantageous rate of pay and allowances, which will be fixed by his Ambassadors, who will also engage, in the name of then sovereign, that the Frenchmen who shall have enlisted in his aimy, shall never be detained there after they shall have expressed a desire of ictuming to their native country.

The avowed puport of this proclamation is to acquain the inhabitants of the Island with the propositions made by Tippo Sultaun, through his Ambassadois then on the spot It enumerates those propositions with a particularity of detail which could never have been hazarded in the presence of the Ambassadois if the facts stated had not been correctly true, or if the propositions enumerated had varied in substance from those communicated by the Ambassadois under the orders of then sovereign. But the last paragraph of the proclamation connected with the conduct of the Ambassadois as already described, establishes in the clearest manner their already described, establishes in the clearest manner their participation in the whole transaction That paragraph contams a direct reference to the powers of the Ambassadors. and engages on then behalf that they shall enter into certain stipulations in the name of their sovereign with respect to the pay and final discharge of such French subjects as shall enlist in his army under the conditions of the proclamation accounts which I have received from the Isle of France concm in stating, that the Ambassadors openly acted under this part of the proclamation, and in the name of Tippoo entered into engagements and stipulations with the recuirts according to the assurances specified in the proclamation Monsicui De Bue, now master attendant at Mangalore, stated to one of the witnesses whom I examined, the whole substance of the engagements which had passed personally between him and the Ambassadors, all of which engagements referred immediately to Tippoo's intention of commencing was upon the Company, with the aid of the French force then about to be levied, and it is certain that without some such engagement not a man would have been raised in the Isle of France for the service of Tippoo It appears from the evidence which I have collected, that the Ambassadors had not brought to the Isle of France a supply of treasure sufficient for advancing bounty money to the recruits It was stated that an apprehension of the English cruizers had prevented the embarkation of treasure for this purpose, and no doubt was entertained that if the Ambassadors had been better provided with money, they might have raised a much greater number of men, who refused to engage on the mere security of promises in the name of Tippoo

The Ambassadors, together with the force this collected during the time of their mission in the 1st of France, landed from the frigate, La Preneuse, at Mangaloie, on the 26th of April, 1798 Accounts vary with respect to the exact number of the force landed, the most probable are that it did not exceed 200 persons Tippoo (fai from manifesting the least symptom of disapprobation of the conduct of his Ambassadors in any part of the transaction) formally received them, and the officers and leading persons so landed with public marks of honour and distinction. One of his Ambassadors resided for some time with the French recruits in a fortiess near Mangalore, and the Sultaun has admitted the whole levy of officers and men into his service. Referring, therefore, to the conduct of the Ambassadous in the Isle of France to their animal at Mangalore with the force levied in consequence of their mission, and finally to the reception of the Ambassadous and of the French recuuts by Tippoo Sultaun, the following conductions appeared to me to be incontrovertibly established.—

First,—That the Ambassadois despatched by Tippoo Sultaun to the Government of the Isle of Finance proposed to that Government an alliance, offensive and defensive, against the Buttsh possessions in India, which alliance was accepted by that Government, and its acceptance formally notified by a public proclamation

Secondly,—That the Ambassadors were charged with letters from Tippoo Sultain to the Executive Directory of Fiance, which letters were stated to contain the same proposition, and that the Ambassadors delivered these letters to the Governor General of the Isle of France for the purpose of transmission to France

Thirdly,—That the Ambassadois, in the name of Tippoo Sultain, gave public assurances that he had actually completed the necessary preparations for commencing immediate hostilities, and that he only waited the arrival of succours from the French to declare was against the Company, for the express purpose of expelling the British nation from India

Fourthly,—That the Ambassadors demanded unlimited mihtary succour from the French, and levied a military force in the Isle of France with the declared object of commencing immediate was against the British nation in India

Fifthly,—That this force has been actually landed in Tippoo's country, and publicly admitted into his service with signal marks of approbation, and that the Ambassadois have been received with similar distinction

Swithly,—That Tippoo Sultain (by receiving with public marks of approbation his Ambassadois, who had concluded in his name an offensive and defensive alliance with the French, and by admitting into his service the military force raised for effecting the objects of that alliance) has personally ratified the engagements contained in the proclamation of the Governor General of the Isle of France, and has proceeded to act under those engagements conformably to the tenor of that proclamation.

Seventhly,—That although the succour actually received by Tippoo Sultaun under his offensive alliance with the French is monosiderable, yet the tento of the proclamation, the proposition made to the French Government for unlimited military aid, &c &c, and the declarations of the Ambassadous prove, that it was the mitention of Tippoo Sultaun, to receive into his service the largest force which he could obtain, for the purpose of commencing a wan of aggression against the Company in India

Having thus entered into offensive and defensive engagements with the enemy, a force openly destined to act against the possessions of the Company, having avowed through his public Ambasados, that he has compleated his picquantons of var for the express purpose of attempting the entire subrersion of the Bittish Empine in India, and having declared that he only waits the effectual succour of the French to prosecute offensive operations, Tippoo Sultaun has violated the treuties of peace and friendship substituting between him and the Company, and has committed an act of direct hostility against the Bittish Government in India.

Before I proceeded to apply the principles of the law of nations to the conduct of Tippoo Sultaun, it appeared proper to enquie what had been the conduct of the Company towards him for some years past, and whether he had received any provocation to justify or to palliate his late proceedings

Since the conclusion of the Treaty of Seingapatam, the Bintish Goveinments in India, have uniformly conducted themselves towards Tippoo Sultam, not only with the most exact attention to the punciples of moderation, justice, and good faith, but have endeavoured by every juacticable means to concluste his confidence, and to mitigate his vindictive spirit. Some differences have occasionally arisen with respect to the boundaries of his senitory bondering upon the confines of our possessions on the coast of Malabar, but the confines of all the British Governments in India will shew, that they always manifested the utnost anxiety to promote the amicable adjustment of every doubtful or disputed pomi; and that Tippoo Sultaun has received the most unequivocal proofs of the constant disposition of the Company to acknowledge and confirm all his just rights, and to iemove every cause of jealousy, which might tend to interrupt the continuance of peace

The servants of the Company in India, have not however been ignorant of the implacable sentiments of revenge, which he has preserved without abatement since the hour of his last defeat It has always been well understood, that Tippoo Sultaun's resentment was not to be appeared by any conciliatory advances on our part, nor by any other means than the recovery of his lost power, the disgrace of the British aims, and the juin of the British interests in India. With such views it was expected that he would eagerly embrace the first favorable occasion of striking a blow against our possessions, and his intrigues at the Courts of Hyderabad and Poonah, together with his Embassy to Zemaun Shah, (although managed with such a degree of caution as to avoid the appearance of direct acts of aggression.) were sufficient indications of an hostile mind. these cucumstances have in any degree affected the conduct of the Company's servants towards him, and the correspondence between him and the late Governor General, and the letters from Bombay on the subject of the district of Wynaad, furnish ample proofs of a sincere desire to bring that question to a fan issue, "with the consent and knowledge of both parties," according to the tenor of the 7th article of the treaty of Seringapatam, I appeal to the letter which I despatched to him soon after my airival in Bengal, proposing an amicable adjustment of the same question, as well as of his recent claims upon certain parts of the district of Coolga, for a testimony of the pacific spirit which has marked my first communication with him, although, perhaps, a less mild representation might have been justified, by his unwarrantable precipitation in stationing a military force on the frontier of Coorga, before he had made any trial of the prescribed and regular channels of negociation Tippoo Sultaun cannot therefore alledge even the pretext of a grievance to palliate the character of his recent acts, he has indeed alledged none, but has constantly professed the most sincere desire to maintain the relations of amity and peace with the Company In his letters to Sn John Shore (written a short time before the return of the Mysorean Ambassadors from the Isle of France, and received at Fort William on the 26th Apul, 1708, the day on which the French force landed at Mangalore) Thypoo declares, "that his fixedly heart is disposed to pay every regard to truth and justice, and to strengthen the foundations of haimony and concord established between the two states." And he signifies his desire that "Sn John Shore would impress Lord Monington, with a sense of the friendship and unaminity so firmly subsisting between the two states."

170

This is not the language of hostility, nor even of discontent. From what disposition in the friendly heart of Tippoo these amicable professions have proceeded, how they are connected with a regard to truth and justice, or calculated to strengthen the foundations of harmony and concord, and to impress me with a sense of the Sultam's fliendship, can now admit of no question, since it is now proved, that these letters were written at the very moment, when Tippoo was in anxious expectation of the hourly arrival of that military succour, which he had solicited from the enemy for the express purpose of commencing a wan of aggression against the Company's possessions

The motive therefore of Tippoo Sultaun, was no other than that avowed in his correspondence with the enemy, and published under the eyes of his own Ambassadors, "an α-dent desire to expel the British nation from Indu"

It appears highly probable, that he was instigated by the pomises and exhortations of the Government of Finnce, (whose emissairs have reached his councils) to hasten the execution of a project, in which every consideration of interest, and every sentiment of passion would induce the Fiench to embalk with a degree of zeal, ardour, and rancour not infeiro to this own

The importance of these possessions to all the most valuable interests of Great Britain, has pointed the painticula attention of the Government of France to the destruction of our empire in India. The prosperity of our settlements in India, has long been the primary and undisguised object of the jealousy of France, avowed by all her immisters in every negociation, and by all her rulers in every stage of her immumerable revolutions, Tippoo their efforce might reasonably hope, that if the cessation of hostilities on the continent of Europe, should at any time enable the French directory to turn their views to the disturbance of the peace of India, such an adventure would be among the earliest of their operations

The conclusion of a peace upon the continent of Europe. the weak state of the internal Governments of Poonah and Hyderabad, the existing dissentions, apparently mechading all co-operation and concert between those two powers, added to the growing strength of a French faction in every part of India, may have appeared both to Tippoo and to the French to offer a favorable opportunity for the prosecution of then joint design The premature disclosure of this design may perhaps be imputed rather to the policy of M Malartic, than to the imprudence of Tippoo, whether the scope of that policy was to involve us in a war with Tippoo, or to expose his treachery to our view, is yet a matter of doubt, but whatever cucumstances occasioned the premature disclosure of the design, whether the design was wisely or rashly conceived, whether it has partially succeeded, or entirely failed, are questions, the solution of which in no degree affects the offensive nature of an aggression so unprovoked, and of a violation of faith so flagrant and unqualified. The history of the world scarcely furnishes an instance, in which any two powers have united in confederacy or alliance precisely with the same motives The party proposing an offensive alliance against the Company, cannot be absolved from the consequences of such an act, by any apparent or real indifference in the party accepting such a proposal. The conduct of Tippoo Sultaun, therefore, cannot be correctly estimated by reference to the supposed motives of Monsieur Malartic. From the application of the acknowledged principles of the law of nations to the facts of this case. I formed my judgment of the 11ghts of the Company, and of my own duties with 1eference to the aggression of Tippoo The course of reasoning which I pursued may be stated in the following manner

The rights of states applicable to every case of contest with foreign powers, are created and limited by the necessity of preserving the public safety, this necessity is the foundation of the reciprocal claim of all nations to explanation of suspicious or ambiguous conduct, to reparation for injuries done, and to security against injuries intended med, or from the evident nature of cucumstances cannot otherwise be obtained, it is the undoubted light of the injured party to resort to aims for the vindication of the public safety, and in such a conjuncture, the right of the state becomes the duty of the Government, unless some material consideration of the public interest should forbid the attempt.

In any of these cases, when just satisfaction has been de-

If the conduct of Trppoo Sultaun had been of a nature which could be termed ambiguous or suspicious, if he had merely increased his force beyond his ordinary establishment, or had stationed it in some position on our confines or on those of our allies, which might justify lealousy of alaim, if he had renewed his secret intrigues at the Courts of Hyderabad. Poonah and Cabul, or even if he had entered into any negociation with France, of which the object was at all obscure, it might be our duty to resort in the first instance to his construction of proceedings, which being of a doubtful character, might admit of a satisfactory explanation But where there is no doubt, there can be no matter for explana-The act of Tippoo's ambassadors, ratified by himself, and accompanied by the landing of a French force in his country, is a public, unqualified and unambiguous declaration A ar act of war, aggravated by an avowal, that the object of the war is neither explanation, reparation, nor security, but the total destruction of the Butish Government in India To affect to misunderstand an insult and mjury of such a complexion would argue a consciousness either of weakness or of fear . no state in India can misconstine the conduct of Tippoo. the correspondence of our Residents at Hyderabad and Poonah sufficiently manifests the construction which it bears at both those Courts, and in so clear and plain a case, our demand of explanation would be justly attributed either to a defect of spnit or of power, the result of such a demand would therefore be, the disgrace of our character, and the diminution of our influence and consideration in the eyes of our allies, and of every power in India. If the moment should appear favourable to the execution of Tippoo's declared design, he would answer such a demand by an immediate attack, if, on the other hand, his preparations should not be sufficiently advanced, he would deny the existence of his engagements with France, would persist in the denial until he had taped the full benefit of them, and finally, after having completed the improvement of his own army, and received the accession of an additional French force, he would turn the combined strength of both against our possessions, with an alienty and confidence inspired by our maction, and with advantages redoubled by our delay. In the present case the idea therefore of demanding explanation must be rejected, as being disgraceful in its principle, and fivolous in its object. The demand of reparation, in the strict sense of the term cannot properly be applied to cases of intended mjury, excepting in those instances, where the nature of the reputation demanded may be essentially connected with security against the injurious intention.

Where a State has unjustly seized the property, or invaded the territory, or violated the rights of another, reparation may be made by restoring what has been unjustly taken, or by a subsequent acknowledgment of the right which has been infringed, but the cause of our complaint against Tippoo Sultann, is not that he has seized a portion of our property which he might restore, or invaded a part of our territory which he might again cede, or violated a right which he might hereafter acknowledge, we complain, that, professing the most amicable disposition, bound by subsisting treaties of peace and friendship, and unprovoked by any offence on our part, he has manifested a design to effect our total destruction, he has prepared the means and instruments of a war of extermination against us, he has solicited and received the aid of our inveterate enemy for the declared purpose of annihilating our Empue and he only waits the arrival of a more effectual succour to stuke a blow against our existence

That he has not yet received the effectual succour which he has solicited, may be ascibled either to the weakness of the Govenment of Mauritus, or to their want of zeal in his cause, or to the rashness and imbeculty of his own Councils, but neither the measure of his hostility, nor of our light to restrain it, nor of our danger from it, are to be estimated by the amount of the force which he has actually obtained, for we know that his demands of military assistance were unlimited, we know that they were addressed not merely to the Government of Mauritus, but to that of France, and we cannot ascertain how soon they may be satisfied to the full ex-med, or from the evident nature of circumstances cannot otherwise be obtained, it is the undoubted right of the injured party to resort to arms for the vindication of the public safety; and m such a conjuncture, the right of the state becomes the duty of the Government, unless some material consideration of the public interest should forbid the attempt.

If the conduct of Tippoo Sultaun had been of a nature which could be termed ambiguous or suspicious; if he had merely increased his force beyond his ordinary establishment, or had stationed it in some position on our confines or on those of our allies, which might justify jealousy or alarm, if he had renewed his secret intrigues at the Courts of Hyderabad. Poonah and Cabul, or even if he had entered into any negociation with France, of which the object was at all obscure: it might be our duty to resort in the first instance to his construction of proceedings, which being of a doubtful character, might admit of a satisfactory explanation. But where there is no doubt, there can be no matter for explanation. The act of Tippoo's ambassadors, ratified by himself, and accompanied by the landing of a French force in his country, is a public, unqualified and unambiguous declaration ar act of war, aggravated by an avowal, that the object of the war is neither explanation, reparation, nor security, but the total destruction of the British Government in India. To affect to misunderstand an insult and injury of such a complexion would argue a consciousness either of weakness or of fear, no state in India can misconstrue the conduct of Tippoo: the correspondence of our Residents at Hyderabad and Poonah sufficiently manifests the construction which it bears at both those Courts; and in so clear and plain a case, our demand of explanation would be justly attributed either to a defect of spirit or of power, the result of such a demand would therefore be, the disgrace of our character, and the diminution of our influence and consideration in the eves of our allies, and of every power in India. If the moment should appear favourable to the execution of Tippoo's declared design. he would answer such a demand by an immediate attack, if, on the other hand, his preparations should not be sufficiently advanced, he would deny the existence of his engagements with France, would persist in the denial until he had reaped the full benefit of them; and finally, after having completed the improvement of his own army, and received the accession of an additional French force, he would turn the combined strength of both against our possessions, with an alacrity and confidence inspired by our inaction, and with advantages redoubled by our delay. In the present case the idea therefore of demanding explanation must be rejected, as being disgraceful in its principle, and frivolous in its object. The demand of reparation, in the strict sense of the term, cannot properly be applied to cases of intended injury, excepting in those instances, where the nature of the reparation demanded may be essentially connected with security against the injurious intention.

Where a State has unjustly seized the property, or invaded the territory, or violated the rights of another, reparation may be made by restoring what has been unjustly taken, or by a subsequent acknowledgment of the right which has been infringed; but the cause of our complaint against Tippoo Sultaun, is not that he has seized a portion of our property which he might restore, or invaded a part of our territory which he might again cede, or violated a right which he might hereafter acknowledge; we complain, that, professing the most amicable disposition, bound by subsisting treaties of peace and friendship, and unprovoked by any offence on our part. he has manifested a design to effect our total destruction; he has prepared the means and instruments of a war of extermination against us; he has solicited and received the aid of our inveterate enemy for the declared purpose of annihilating our Empire: and he only waits the arrival of a more effectual succour to strike a blow against our existence.

That he has not yet received the effectual succour which he has solicited, may be ascribed either to the weakness of the Government of Mauritus, or to their want of zeal in his cause, or to the rashness and imbecility of his own Councils; but neither the measure of his hostility, nor of our right to restrain it, nor of our danger from it, are to be estimated by the amount of the force which he has actually obtained, for we know that his demands of military assistance were unlimited; we know that they were addressed not merely to the Government of Mauritius, but to that of France, and we cannot ascertam how soon they may be satisfied to the full extent of his acknowledged expectations. This, therefore, is not merely the case of an injury to be repaired, but of the public safety to be secured against the present and future designs of an irreconcileable, desperate and treacherous enemy: against an enemy of this description, no effectual security can be obtained otherwise than by such a reduction of his power, as shall not only defeat his actual preparations, but establish a permanent restraint upon his future means of offence.

To this species of security our right is unquestionable, upon the grounds already stated. But it cannot be supposed that Tippoo Sultaun will voluntarily concede to us a security of this nature against the effects of his own resentment, treachery and ambition, and against the success of the most favorite projects of his mind.

Since, therefore, the principles of justice and of the law of nations entitle us to such a security, and since we cannot possibly obtain it by the voluntary concession of Tippoo Sultaun, it is the right of the Company to compel him to yield it, and it is equally my duty to use that compulsion without delay, provided the interests of the Company committed to my charge be not more endangered by the attempt, than by the unrestrained progress of his preparations for war.

In proportion to the continual progress of Tippoo's prepaparations, he will acquire more decisively the advantage of holding in his hands the issues of peace and war, together with the power of selecting the time and mode of his long meditated attack upon our possessions. He has not vet obtained any formidable accession of strength from his alliance with France, nor is it probable that any such accession will reach his country within a short period, certainly not before the close of the monsoon on the coast of Malabar; while he shall retain the ready means of intercourse by sea with the French Government, it cannot be doubted that they will use every endeavour to assist him with military aid, and to instigate him to war. The arrival of one or two French regiments would probably induce Tippoo to commence offensive operations, and the assistance even of so small a body of Frenchmen might become alarming in the actual state of the native armies of India. The systematic introduction of French officers into the service of all the native powers, is described by Mr. Wickham as the fixed policy of France, adopted with a view of establishing the most certain means of subverting the foundation of our power. This system has been pursued in the armies of the Nizam, of Scindiah, and of many other inferior powers with unremitting assiduity, and extensive success. If Tippoo should be allowed to derive from France such succour as would induce him to act offensively against us, his earliest movements would probably be seconded by the general insurrection of the various bodies of French adventurers, who are incorporated in the service of the several native powers, and who maintain a concert and correspondence in every quarter of India. Under such circumstances. it would be prudent to take advantage of the actual crisis. in which the hostile design of Tippoo has been clearly manifested, but the means of accomplishing it have happily disappointed the ardor of his hopes. In this moment of his comparative weakness, of his disappointment, and of his probable dejection, no policy could be more wise than to strike such an instantaneous blow against his possessions, as should effectually flustrate his preparations for war, and should render him unable to avail himself of the aid of France whenever it may arrive.

The inconsiderable amount of the force which he has already received from France, while it cannot limit our just right to reduce his power, affords a strong argument of policy in favour of an immediate attack.

It is therefore evident that the rights and interests of the Company concur to demand from this Government every practicable effort to anticipate the execution of his projects of vengeance by attacking him on all sides without delay. In this train of reasoning I was confirmed by adverting to the general tenor of the orders of the Court of Directors, and of the proceedings of this Government with reference to the contingency of a French force landing at any time in the territories of Tippoo Sultaum.

The orders of the Court of Directors uniformly enjoin that the landing of a French force in Tippoo's country should be "the signal for our attack upon him." The construction of those orders by the late Governor General in his instructions to the President in Council of Fort St. George of 12th September, 1796, appears to have been, that the number of the French force should be considerable in order to justify our attack But I am persuaded that the real intention of the late Governor General in those instructions, could not have been to declare, that the justice or policy of attacking Tippoo was hereafter to be measured solely by the magnitude of any French force landed in his country.

It is certainly true that, on the one hand, the landing of a considerable French force in Tippoo's country would be an unquestionable indication of his hostile intentions against the British power, while on the other hand the landing of a few French officers and privates, and even their admission into the service of Tippoo, might, under certain circumstances, be supposed to manifest nothing more than a disposition to improve the general discipline of his armies, without implying any formed design of war against the Company or their Allies. This, I am persuaded, is the only view in which the tate Governor General in Council could consider the magnitude of the French force landed in Tippoo's country as the foundation of a rule for limiting the discretion of the Company's governments in such a contingency. On the present occasion, the hostile intentions of the Sultaun are unequivocally manifested by the proclamation, by the declarations and conduct of his Ambassadors, and by their demand of French troops to an unlimited extent. Connected with these circumstances, the landing and admission into the Sultaun's armies, even of a less considerable force than that which he has received, would be deemed, under the just construction of the opinions both of the Court of Directors and of this Government, "a signal for our attack upon him."

My determination, therefore, was fixed to attack Tippoo with every degree of practical despatch.

The objects which appeared to me the most desirable, as well as the most easily attainable, were,—First, To seize the whole maritime territory remaining in his possession below the Ghauts on the coast of Malabar, in order to preclude him from all future communications by sea with his French allies.

Secondly, By marching the army from the coast of Coromandel directly upon his capital, to compel him to purchase peace by a formal cession of the territory seized on the coast of Malahar. Thirdly, To compel him to defray our whole expense in the war, and thus to secure the double advantage of indeminfying us for the expense occasioned by his aggression, and of reducing his resources with a view to our future security.

Fourthly, To compel him to admit permanent Residents at his Court from us and from our Allies, a measure which would enable us at all times to check his operations, and to counteract the intricacies of his treachery

Fifthly, That the expulsion of all the natives of France now in his service, and the perpetual exclusion of all Frenchmen, both from his army and dominions, should be made conditions of any treaty of peace with him.

With this plan in view, I directed that the army upon the coasts of Coromandel and Malabar, and at Bombay, should be immediately assembled, and I entertained a very sanguine hope that active operations might have been commenced so early as, with the co-operation of his Majesty's squadron on the coast of Malabar (which Rear-Admiral Ramer had promised), might have secured the effectual reduction of Tippoo's power before any assistance could have reached him from France. But I never pioposed to undertake any attack upon him, of which the success could be doubtful in the judgment of those whose opinions must always govern my discretion in every question of military detail.

The avowed designs of Tippoo, the state of his preparations for war (which, notwithstanding his late disappointment, was certainly forward as far as regarded his own troops), the uncertainty of the motives which might impel the violence of his temper to action, and my knowledge of the indiscreet zeal with which he has frequently pursued his favourite object of revenge against the British power, all concurred to urge the necessity of placing ourselves in a state of preparation for war at least equal to that of his army. These measures appeared to me not matters of choice, but of indispensable duty. I could not suffer the security of the Carnatic to rest on so precarious a foundation as the forbearance of Tippoo Sultaun and of his French allies. To resume the power of meeting him in the field, and to replace in our hands the option which he then possessed, of accommodating the time of attack to circumstances and events, appeared to me to be the most prudent step which could be immediately adopted, whatever might hereafter be the service to which our force might be applied. The orders, therefore, which I gave for assembling the army (although pointed more particularly at the execution of the plan of operations, which I have just now detailed) were founded upon principles independent of the practicability of that plan, and were connected not only with the immediate defence of the Carnatic, but with other comprehensive measures of permanent precaution and security, to which my views have been extended at every period of this crisis.

VOL. I.

When I submitted my ideas of the time and objects of the proposed attack upon Tippoo to those military authorities, which I shall always consider with respect, it seemed to be their opinion, that the state of our army admitted no doubt of the ultimate success of the plan which I had proposed. If its speedy accomplishment had appeared to them as certain as its ultimate success, I should not have hesitated a moment in directing the commencement of offensive operations; but I found that, instead of deriving to the interests of the Company the inestimable advantages of a sudden and rapid reduction of Tippoo's means of offence, the result of such an attempt was likely to lead to a tedious, protracted, and expensive, although ultimately successful, war. The obstacles which arose were of a nature not to be surmounted by any degree of present activity or resolution, although they originated in causes which I trust may be removed by future diligence and perseverance.

The result of my earliest inquiries convinced me that radical defects existed in the military establishments on the coast of Coromandel, which would render it impossible to put our army in that quarter in motion soon enough to effect the object which I proposed. The opinions which I received from military authorities here, with respect to the impossibility of making any sudden or speedy military movement on the coast of Coromandel, were afterwards confirmed by the concurrent testimony of the Governor of Fort St. George, and of the Adjutant General of that establishment. I have entered into a particular consideration of this testimony in a Minute recorded in the Secret Department of the 20th July, to which I desire to refer on this part of the subject. The letter* of the Government of Fort St. George of the 10th of July proceeds far beyond the limits of any opinion which I had ever formed or heard with respect to the difficulty of restraining the hostility of Tippoo; in that letter the President in Council even deprecates the ordinary precautions of defence, lest they should draw down the resentment of the Sultaun upon our unprotected possessions.

^{*} See Appendex

The expense of a protracted war, and the evil effects which such a calamity must produce on the trade of the Company. upon their pecuniary affairs at home, upon the welfare of their subjects in India, and upon the general state of the public revenue and credit of Great Britain, now pressed with great weight upon my mind, and the embarrassment of our finances aggravated all the difficulties of my situation. The question was now entirely changed; the plan which I had originally had in contemplation was nothing more than a military expedition of short duration, of no heavy expense, and of certain success, with the additional advantage that success would certainly exonerate our finances, and throw the whole expense of the undertaking upon the enemy, who had provoked it. But it now appeared that I could not hope to effect any of my proposed objects without encountering the expense and inconvenience of a long war.

In this state of the question, the condition of our Allies occurred as an insuperable obstacle to our progress. Although the assistance of the Peishwa and of the Nizam might not have been deemed indispensable in an expedition of the nature which I have described; I have always been apprized that an offensive war of any long duration in Mysore would be difficult, if not impracticable, without the effectual aid of the Peishwa and of the Nizam, in facilitating the supplies of provision to our army in the field.

The state of the Courts of Hyderabad and of Poonah afforded no hope of their early cooperation with us; and although I had determined to take the most expeditious measures for restoring both our Allies to the power of fulfilling their defensive engagements with us, I could not expect to derive any benefit from those measures for a considerable period of time; and it would have been imprudent to have undertaken offensive operations, with the prospect of a continued war, until the efficiency of our alliances had been previously secured. Under the accumulated pressure of all these difficulties, I felt, with the utmost degree of disappointment and regret, that the moment was unfavourable to the adoption of the only measure which appeared to me sufficient to satisfy the rights and interests of the Company and the exigencies of my own duty, I was therefore compelled to relinquish the idea of striking an immediate blow against the possessions of Tippoo Sultaun. But the circumstances which thus suspended the actual exercise of the rights and the immediate establishment of the interests of the Company, could not absolve me from the duty of providing, without delay, every degree of intermediate security which might now be attainable, by adopting such a system of preparation and defence as might enable us to repel any attack which Tippoo might make upon us, or to support any demand of satisfaction, which we may eventually deem it advisable, in concert with our Allies, to make to him.

The sense of this duty induced me to propose to the Board the several orders and instructions which have been forwarded to the Governments of Fort St. George and Bombay, and to the Residents at Poonah and Hyderabad, from the Sth of July to the present time.

The principles upon which these instructions and orders are founded will be best illustrated by referring to the nature of our actual danger, as well as to the causes which have contributed to produce it.

No comprehensive or satisfactory view can be taken of this subject without adverting to the whole system of our defensive alliances with the Native States, and to the various circumstances which have affected or which now influence the general balance of power in India.

The primary objects of the Treaties of Poonah and Paungul, combined with the Treaty of Seingapatam, were to diminish Tippoo Sultaun's means of future aggression, by reducing his resources and territory, and to provide an efficient defence against him by strengthening the Peishwa and the Nizam, by uniting their interests with ours, and by securing their cooperation in any future war with Mysore. On the other hand, a part of the policy of the Treaty of Seringapatam seems to have been to preserve to Tippoo Sultaun that degree of power which might enable him to maintain a balance with the Mahrattas and the Nizam in such a manner that the interposition of our force might always turn the scale.

It is evident that the policy of this system has been entirely frustrated by the course of recent events, and that neither the Peishwa, the Nizam, nor Tippoo Sultaun now retain the same relative position which they held at the conclusion of the Treaty of Seringapatam, either with respect to one another or to our interests.

Since the conclusion of the peace of Seringapatam, the power and resources of the Court of Hyderabad have been constantly declining. The disgrace which fell upon the Nizam's arms in the unfortunate contest with the Mahrattas at Kurdlah reduced the military character of the Court of Hyderabad to the lowest point of degradation. The treaty in which that defeat terminated completed the humiliation of the Nizam; he was compelled to sacrifice a large portion of territory, to engage to pay a fine of three crores of rupees, and to submit to the captivity of his minister, Azim ul Omra, who was carried a prisoner to Poonah. Azim ul Omra resided at Poonah during the late convulsions in the Mahratta Government, and, although a prisoner, bore a very distinguished part in supporting Nana through the various revolutions which followed the sudden death of the Peishwa. Mahda Row. For these services Nana agreed to relinquish all the benefits acquired by the Peishwa against the Nizam, under the Treaty of Kurdlah.

But the Peishwa, Bajee-row, having called in the assistance of Scindiah to check the overgrown power of Nana, Scindiah persuaded the Peishwa to violate the engagements concluded with Azim ul Omra, and the event has been, that the Peishwa has insisted upon and obtained from the Nizam a cession of one-fourth part of the territory, and the payment of one-fourth pait of the fine stipulated by the Treaty of Kurdlah.

In addition to so heavy a loss, both of power and honour, the internal resources of the Nizam's Government have not yet recovered the derangement occasioned by the rebellions of Ali Jah, and the son of Dara Jah; by the unfortunate contest with the Mahrattas; and by the detention of Azim ul Omra at Poonah.

The effect of these causes has necessarily been to reduce the consideration of the Nizam in the scale of the neighbouring states; and in this weak and degraded condition he has been for some time past menaced by the army of Scindiah, stationed in the neighbourhood of Poonah. But the most striking feature of change in the state of the Nizam's affairs since 1793, is the alteration which has taken place in his military establishment. The Nizam, since the peace of Seringapatam, has greatly reduced his cavalry and other troops, and considerably augmented the body of infantiv commanded by French officers, and known by the name of Raymond's corps. The corps of Raymond had been in the service of the Nizam before the last war with Tippoo Sultaun, and in 1792, when it served with Lord Cornwallis's army, its strength was not greater than 1.500 men at the highest estimation, and its discipline very defective. At the battle of Kurdlah, in 1795, its strength amounted to about 11,000 men. During the rebellion of Ali Jah, and in a variety of service in which the corps has since been employed, it has acquired experience and skill, and it is now composed of thirteen regiments of two battalions each, amounting in the whole to upwards of 14,000 men. Its discipline, according to every recent account, is very considerably improved, insomuch that, although inferior to our native force, it is said to be superior, in nearly an equal proportion, to the ordinary scale of the infantry in the service of any of the Native Powers. Besides field pieces to each regiment, a park of 40 pieces of ordnance, chiefly brass, from 12 to 36 pounders, with a well trained body of artillery men (including a number of Europeans) is attached to the corps. A foundation has also been laid for raising a body of cavalry to act with the corps of infantry. The chief officers of this corps are all Frenchmen of the most virulent principles of jacobinism; many of the privates served originally with the French native force at Pondicherry, and the whole corps constitutes an armed French party of great power, zeal, and activity. The efforts of this party are continually employed to magnify the power, resources and success of France, and to depreciate the character, force, and credit of Great Britain in the eyes of the Court at Hyderabad, and it appears by authentic intelligence, that wherever any detachment of this corps has been stationed for any considerable time, a most unfavourable impression has been produced against the character of the British nation.

The death of Monsieur Raymond, which happened a few months past, appeared likely to impair the influence of this corps at the Court of Hyderabad, and accordingly Azim ul Omra took that opportunity to resume the large Jagbire which had been allotted for the pay and maintenance of the corps, but another Frenchman of the name of Peron has succeeded to the command his disposition is described to be violent and brutal, and his principles do not appear to differ essentially from those of Raymond. The corps, as now constituted, forms the most considerable and only efficient part of the Nizam's military establishment, and retains such a degree of ascendancy over the councils of the Nizam, as to be an object of serious alarm to Azim ul Omra.* This corps has been recruited, in the proportion of one-third of its total numbers from our territories, and from those of the Nabob of Arcot, and partly from deserters abandoning our service.

Distinct proof has been given of the assiduity and success of the emissaries employed by Monsieur Baptiste (the second in command to Monsieur Peron, and stated to be of a very designing and artful character) for the purpose of exciting mutiny and sedition, and of inviting desertion amongst our sepoys stationed on the frontier of the Nizam's dominions. A considerable desertion of our troops took place in that quarter some time ago, and nearly 500 men, with several native officers, who deserted on that occasion, are now serving in Monsieur Peron's corps. The repeated applications of our Resident for the surrender of these deserters have hitherto been frustrated by the prevailing influence of Monsieur Peron and of his army, and by the weakness of the Nizam's Government, which Azim ul Omra has declared to be unable to control the overbearing spirit and formidable power of the After a protracted negociation, Azım ul French faction. Omra has at length, with much difficulty, and by an extraordinary effort, obtained the surrender of two Subadars, who were the principal contrivers of the desertion.

Monsieur Peron and his officers maintain a correspondence with a faction at the Nızam's Court denominated the Paugah

^{*} In addition to the command of this coips, M Raymond had the entire conduct of the Nizam's Oidnance, with an allowance of 50,000 rupes monthly, the Oidnance has since been placed under the command of M Peion, and he derives great influence from so important a charge party, being composed principally of the officers of his Highness's body guard of cavalry.

The Paugah party has long been connected with Tippoo Sultaun, and is entirely adverse to Azim ul Omra, and to all the friends of the British interests at the Court of Hyderabad.

It must not be forgotten, that in the year 1796, during the detention of Azım ul Omra at Poonah, the French faction, with the assistance of the Paugah party, prevailed upon the Nizam to dismiss the British detachment, and took such measures in concert with Tippoo (a large body of whose army marched in this crisis to the frontier of the Nizam's domimons) as would have enabled them to dispose of the succession to the Musnud according to their pleasure, if the Nizam's death had happened in that critical conjuncture. At this period of time, the French contrived to obtain the grant of the large Jaghire, since resumed; this grant (which comprized the district of Maiduck, containing # 2,142 square British miles, situated to the northward of Hyderabad, and producing an annual revenue of eighteen lacs of rupees) may be considered as the first step towards the establishment of a territorial revenue, and there can be no doubt that it would have led to that necessary foundation of European power in India, if the death of Monsieur Raymond had not enabled Azım ul Omra to frustrate the project. The French officers at Hyderabad maintain a direct correspondence with their countrymen in the service of Tippoo Sultaun, and of Scindiah. The latest accounts from the Resident at Hyderabad state, that French officers and adventurers arrive continually at Hyderabad to reinforce Monsieur Peron's corps, although the routes by which they gain access to the Deccan are as yet unknown

This French party, connected as it is with the prevailing factions in the Court of the Nizam, corresponding with Tippoo Sultaun, zealous in the cause of France, and actuated by a spirit of intrigue, which would lead it to mix in every distraction of the State, if not to originate internal confusion, must be considered as a circumstance of positive weakness in the frame of the Government of Hyderabad. Azim ul Omra is fully aware of the magnitude of this evil, and dreads the growth of a party which he can no longer restrain within any bounds of moderation, and which already threatens to subvert his power, and to disturb the regular order of succession, if not to destroy the throne itself. With respect to our interests, and to the value of our defensive alliance under the treaty of Pangul, the change in the Nizam's military establishments places him in a condition worse than that of absolute inefficiency, and renders the Court of Hyderabad a source of additional strength to our enemies, rather than of useful assistance to any branch of the Triple Alliance. The dangers to be apprehended from the existence of Peron's corps are not to be estimated merely by the actual state of its discipline, of its numbers, or of its influence over the councils of the Nizam. our views of this danger must be extended beyond the present moment. The French army at Hyderabad must be considered not only as a powerful aid to the cause of France in the present crisis, but as the basis of a permanent French faction in India; on which, according to the opportunities of fortune, and the variation of circumstances and of events, the activity of the enemy may establish a strength of the most formidable kind, either in peace or war.

^{*} The Company's Jaghire in the Cainatic contains 2,436 square British miles

It requires no labour of argument to prove the benefits which must be derived to the cause of France, even in time of peace, from the establishment of an army of 14,000 men, commanded by natives of France, in the heart of the dominions of one of our principal allies, in the vicinity of our most active enemy among the native powers, and on the borders of a vulnerable part of our own dominions. In the event of peace, no more convenient channel could be provided for the intrigues of France, no more useful point of union for the numerous adherents to her principles, and emissaries of her designs. And it cannot be doubted, that the natural effect of the unchecked and rapid growth of such an army at the Court of the Nizam must be, to detach that Court from our interests, and to fix it absolutely in those of our enemy.

But in the event of a war with Tippoo Sultaun, or in the still more aggravated case of a war with him, aided by a French force, what assistance can we expect from the Nizam, the main body of whose army is commanded by the correspondents of Tippoo, natives of France, distinguished by their zeal in the cause of that country, and united with the whole body of French adventurers now established in India?

Under such circumstances, the force of the Nizam would become useless and even dangerous to us, precisely in proportion to the exigency of the case, in which we should require its services.

If the French troops of the Nizam did not afford Tippoo open assistance, at least they could not be brought into the field against him without the utmost danger to our cause; nor could they be suffered to remain in the Deccan during the continuance of the contest, unless checked by the presence of an equally powerful force, which must, in that case, be diverted from the objects of the war, and must operate as a positive diminution of our effective strength in the field. It appears however nearly certain, that in the present weak state of the Nizam's Government, the French corps in his service would openly join Tippoo Sultaun, and by a sudden blow, endeavour to seize the Nizam's territories, and to secure them to the dominion of France, under an alliance offensive and defensive with Tippoo Sultaun. This danger is aggravated by the present position of Scindiah's army, and by the disposition and present views of that Chief; he now entertains a large body of infantry in his service under the command of a French officer; and it might be expected that he would readily engage with Tippoo Sultaun (with whom he is supposed to have lately opened a negociation) and with the French, upon the conditions of a partition of the territories and authority of the Peishwa and of the Nizam. The junction which might thus be effected by the French officers in the several armies of the Nizam, of Scindiah, and of Tippoo, might establish the power of France in India upon the ruins of the States of Poonah and of the Deccan. Under all these circumstances therefore it is evident, that the Court of Hvderabad in its present condition (whatever may be its disposition to use every effort for our assistance) is not only disqualified from cooperating with us as an ally against Tippoo, but furnishes him with powerful means of prosecuting his designs against us, and offers every temptation to the ambition of France.

Such being the condition of the Nizam, it will be found that the Peishwa, who forms another branch of the triple alliance against Tippoo Sultaun, is not more able to fulfill his defensive engagements with us.

The precise situation in which the Mahratta Empire stood after the peace of Seringapatam, was the most favourable to our interests: the several co-estates were then so equally balanced as to prevent any danger of that degree of union which might concenter the formidable force of the whole in one consolidated mass, either against the British possessions, or against any other established power in India, nor had any one member of the Empire attained such a degree of strength as to be able singly to encounter our force. On the other hand, the Peishwa, the acknowledged and constitutional head of this extensive confederation, aided by the abilities of his Minister Nana Furnavese, possessed a sufficient influence over several of the leading Chiefs to render him a respectable ally, and to furnish him with the means of bringing a considerable force into the field.

From the period of the peace of Seringapatam to that of the death of Mahda Row, the danger appears to have been, that the address of Nana might have drawn too great a weight into the scale of the Peishwa's power, and have enabled the Government of Poonah to wield the united force of the whole Mahratta Empire. At the battle of Kurdlah the Peishwa was assisted against the Nizam by the contingents of most of the confederate chieftains of the Mahratta Empire; and the power of the Nızam was greatly endangered in that state of the Peishwa's authority and force. But Nana's ambition or jealousy having induced him, upon the sudden death of Mahda Row, to attempt the disturbance of the regular order of succession by intruding an adopted child upon the throne, opened the way to those successive intrigues and revolutions which for some time past have distracted the Mahratta Empire. Without pursuing the various changes and convulsions of the Government of Poonah during the period described, it is sufficient to observe, that their progress naturally tended to weaken the Sovereign power, and has terminated in the imprisonment of Nana, in the ruin of his influence, and in the suspension of the power and authority of the reigning Peishwa, under circumstances which menace the abolition of his office.

Scindiah, who in this changeable scene has alternately taken part with the present Peishwa and with Nana, has at length overpowered both, and has been for some time past so far master of the Government of Poonah, that the Pershwa could not, in his present condition, command the cooperation of any considerable body of the Mahratta chieftains, nor afford us any assistance against Tippoo Sultaun.

During the course of the events which have contributed to weaken and degrade the Governments of Poonah and Hyderabad, their mutual animosities and opposition of interests have risen to such a height as to render all cooperation between them utterly impracticable. The efficiency of our system of defensive alliance against Tippoo Sultaun has therefore been impaired, not only by the respective weakness of each of our allies, but by the difficulty of uniting them in any common view or joint operation.

In the meanwhile Tippoo Sultaun has enjoyed a state of internal tranquillity nearly uninterrupted. While our allies have been distracted and exhausted by faction, rebellion, revolution and war, he has been employed in improving the discipline of his armies, and in repairing the vigour of his resources, he has alternately endeavoured, but without success, to gain the Peishwa and the Nizam to his cause; he however possesses a considerable influence at the Court of Hyderabad, in consequence of his connections with the corps of Raymond, and with other factions adverse to the British interests at that Court. It is also known, that he despatched an embassy to Zemaun Shah, whose design of invading Hindostan has been recently announced in a formal manner to this Government, and to the Nabob Vizier.

That Zemaun Shah really entertains the romantic project of invading Hindostan cannot admit of a doubt; this was the opinion of the late Governor General, in which I entirely concur.

It has been supposed that Zemaun Shah, in his late march towards Hindostan, was recalled from Lahore into his own dominions, either by some domestic dissention, or by the apprehension of an attack from some of the States in the neighbourhood of his Kingdom. And it was hoped that the same causes might for some time obstruct the execution of his declared project, but the last despatches from the Acting

Resident at the Court of Scindiah state a report, that Zemaun Shah is now relieved from all apprehensions, either of internal rebellion or of foreign invasion; and his inclination as well as his ability, to move his army towards the frontier of Hindostan, at the close of the rainy season, are now universally credited. It must be recollected, that upon a recent occasion, Zemaun Shah advanced to Lahore without meeting any formidable opposition from the Seiks; although it had formerly been asserted, that the country of the Seiks would always prove an insuperable obstacle to his progress. Between the country of the Seiks and the frontier of Oude no barrier exists to check the motions of the Shah, excepting the power of Scindiah. The dominions of Scindiah at present are so weakened by internal dissentions as to be in a state nearly defenceless, while Scindiah continues at Poonah with the main body of his army, and while his tributary Chiefs, remaining in Hindostan, are notoriously disaffected to his cause, and are prepared to seize any favourable opportunity of annihilating his power.

Zemaun Shah cannot be ignorant of these advantages, and if they should tempt him to invade Hindostan, the diversion of our force which would be occasioned by such an event, would offer the most favorable opportunity to an attack from Tippoo upon the Carnatic, it is not improbable that the object of the intercourse between Tippoo and Zemaun Shah was, (on the part of the former at least) some such plan of joint operation.

The present position of Dowlut Rao Sundiah's aimy, operates as a double advantage to the cause of Tippoo. The absence of Scindiah from his dominions in Hindostan, invites the invasion of Zemaun Shah and favours its success, while the presence of Scindiah's army at Poonah holds both our allies in check. The weight of Tippoo's power in the general balance, must therefore be considered to have received an augmentation, not only by the declared projects of Zemaun Shah, and by the possibility of their (at least limited) success, but by the operations of Scindiah in addition to all the other events which have concurred to impair the efficiency of our defensive alliance

In the mean while, the Government of Foit St. George, whose peculiar duty it is to watch the operations of Tippoo Sultaun, and to communicate to me every circumstance relating to the growth of his power, have distinctly stated in their letter of the 10th of July, that "his resources are more prompt than our own, and that a great part of his aimy is supposed to have long been in a state of field equipment." So sensible indeed is the Government of Fort St. George to the terror of Tippoo Sultaun's arms, as to be apprehensive of making any effort for resisting their progress, lest Tippoo should anticipate the tardiness of our preparations by the rapidity of his own, and should overrun the Carnatic, before our army could even move for its defence.

It is difficult to describe the pain and regret, which that letter from the Government of Fort St. George occasioned in my mind: nor can I conceive that it is calculated to raise any other emotions in the mind of any friend to the prosperity of the British interests, or to the honour of the British name in India. If the facts and arguments stated in that letter be correct, it must now be admitted, that the glorious successes of the last war in Mysore, the wisdom which balanced the relative interests and forces of the belligerent powers at the conclusion of Peace, and finally the great expense incurred by the Company in the progressive increase of their military establishments on the coast, have terminated in no better result, than to render Tippoo's power absolutely invincible, and to place the disposal of our fate in his hands. For if the sentiments of the Government of Fort St. George, be founded upon a just estimate of the relative conditions of Tippoo Sultaun and of the Company in India, he possesses the ready means of attack, while we cannot venture to resort even to those of defence; but, with a full knowledge of his hostility, of his offensive alliance publicly concluded with the enemy, and of his continual and advanced preparations for war; we must submit to remain unarmed, because any attempt to counteract his design might possibly accelerate its execution. This argument against the prudence of preparing for our defence would become stronger every day in proportion to the progress of Tippoo's hostile preparations; until at length, we should be reduced to the alternative either of implicit submission, or of incurring a much greater risk than any, which can now be apprehended from assembling our defensive force. Although I am not disposed to adopt the sentiments of the Government of Fort St. George on this subject, I acknowledge with great concern those defects in the military establishments on the coast, which will not admit any large proportion of that army to move for several months; those defects certainly constitute so many additional advantages in the scale of Trippoo's power, and in this view, they become objects of the most serious consideration, and form a principal feature of the danger which it is the duty of this Government to avert, by counsels of another spirit, than that of despondency, and by measures of another character, than that of inaction, or of implicit submission to the will of the enemy.

I have now examined the principal causes of that danger, as they are to be traced in the variable course of events since the peace of Seringapatam, the nature of our actual situation, arising from the combined effects of these causes, will best appear, by a summary review of the facts which I have already enumerated in detail.

Tippoo Sultaun having manifested the most hostile intentions towards us, possesses an army of which a considerable portion is now in readiness to take the field for purposes of offence, he has increased the number of his French officers, and has solicited, and may possibly receive further assistance from the French, he may also receive assistance from the several corps commanded by French officers in the service of the Nizam, of Scindiah, and of many other native powers. He may be assisted by the invasion of Zemaun Shah, and by the direct cooperation of Scindiah. On the other hand, our protecting force upon the coast of Coromandel cannot be put in motion within a shorter period than three, (or according to the Adjutant General Lieutenant Colonel Close, than six) months, even for the purpose of defending the Carnatic, our allies in the mean while, are utterly unable to fulfil their defensive engagements with us; the Peishwa being depressed and kept in check by the intrusion of Scindiah, and the Nizam by the vicinity of that chieftain's army, and by the overbearing influence of an army commanded by French officers, and established in the center of the Deccan. While we remain in this situation, without a soldier prepared to take the field in the Carnatic, and without an ally to assist our operations in the event of an attack from Tippoo, we leave the fate of the Carnatic to the discretion of Tippoo; we suffer the cause of France to acquire hourly accessions of 192 MINUTE OF August, strength in every quarter of India, we abandon our allies the Nizam and the Peishwa to the mercy of Tippoo and of Scindiah in conjunction with the French, and we leave to France the ready means of obtaining a large territorial revenue, and a permanent establishment in the Deccan, founded upon the destruction of our alliances.

Under all these circumstances the situation of the British empire in India is, without doubt, extremely critical, but in my opinion, by no means alarming. For in the very difficulties of our actual situation are to be found the means, not only of averting the danger of the present moment, but of providing permanent security against the future return of a similar crisis A common apprehension of the designs of Scindiah has fortunately produced an union of interests between the Governments of Poonah and Hyderabad: and notwithstanding some occasional symptoms of that spirit of duplicity and intrigue which marks the character of every Asiatic Court, Azım ul Omra and the ministers of the Peishwa seem to be sincerely convinced, that a renewal of amicable engagements between the Peishwa and the Nizam is equally necessary to the safety of both. On the one hand it appears, that the Peishwa cannot expect to be speedily emancipated, or effectually defended from the undue influence of Scindiah, without the assistance of the Nizam; and on the other hand, it is evident, that the restoration of the just power and authority of the Peishwa would operate as a constant restraint on the designs of Scindiah, of Tippoo, and of the French against the independence of the Court of Hyderabad. Under these circumstances it appeared to me that neither the Peishwa nor the Nizam, would be likely to view with jealousy any assistance which we might think it advisable to afford to either, for the purpose of reviving the triple alliance against Tippoo on its original basis, and of enabling the contracting parties to fulfil their respective engagements. This expectation constituted a fundamental principle of my instructions to the residents at Poonah and Hyderabad, of the 8th of July. Their subsequent correspondence has furnished abundant proof, that my view of the disposition of the two courts was not enoneous, since it appears, that while I was occupied in framing a system of measures for uniting the Nizam and the Peishwa upon the firm ground of their reciprocal interests, a treaty was actually concluded between those two powers at Poonah, with a view to the same object, the ratification of this treaty on the part of the Nizam, has been delayed by Azim ul Omra, but there appears every reason to hope, that the interposition of our arbitration will accommodate every point of difference Our arbitration has already been earnestly solicited by both parties, and I am persuaded that it will be both acceptable and efficacious whenever it shall be interposed.

The encreasing alarm excited at the Court of Hyderabad, by the intemperate conduct of M. Piron and of the French army, would dispose Azim ul Omra to receive with gratitude any offer of assistance towards the destruction of so powerful and dangerous a faction, and the existing jealousies between the French officers, would facilitate the dismission of the corps. Azun ul Omra has recently expressed in the strongest terms his wish of being enabled by our assistance, to accomplish this most desirable measure. The only obstacles which appear likely to occur to a general accommodation, are the impetuosity and violence of Dowlut Rao Scindiah, whose continuance in his present position would operate as an effectual assistance to Tippoo, and would preclude the possibility of restoring either the Peishwa or the Nizam to any degree of efficiency or consideration. But the absence of Scindiah from his own dominions, and the ungovernable excesses of his temper, (however to be lamented as having contributed to those events which have impaired the power of our allies,) have at the same time weakened the sources of his own power, have occasioned a spirit of faction and revolt in his own dominions, and have disgusted all the ancient friends and connections of his family, together with every respectable adherent to his cause. His violence towards the female relations of his family has raised a considerable party against him amongst his own followers; and his signal treachery in the imprisonment of Nana, from which he hoped to derive the free use of Nana's treasure, has terminated in rendering that resource inaccessible to him; at the very moment when it is most indispensable to his necessities. He is therefore now surrounded by an army clamorous for pay, is destitute of pecuniary resource, and is unsupported by any one respectable friend. His principal minister, a person of considerable experience, and bearing the highest character of any of his followers, has expressed to the Resident at Poonah in the most distinct terms an entire disapprobation of Scindiah's late conduct, and an earnest wish for an accommodation between Sendiah and the Peishwa through our mediation, and for the peaceable return of Scindials to his dominions in Hindostan . Scindiah himself has manifested no disinchination to 1eceive the advice of the Resident at Poonah, whose discretion has hitherto limited the extent of his interference, but from what has aheady passed, it is leasonable to hope, that Soundiah, in the present distressed state of his affairs, will give a favorable attention to any just and moderate proposition, urged with the full authority of his Government. In the mean while, the threatened invasion of Zemaun Shah, offers a new motive to recal Scindials to the protection of his own dominions, and he must be sensible not only that his security, in the event of such an invasion must depend in a great measure on the co-operation of the British troops, but that in the present disturbed condition of his possessions and of his army, we hold his fate in our hands

In this posture of affairs, any opposition to our interference for the ic-establishment of our alliances, would be equally meffectual and unjustifiable on the past of Sendiah, and various considerations of policy and interest will concur to render him cautious of taking any step, which might afford us just cause of offence The last despatches from Poonah afford a hope that Nana, Funaveses and the Peishwa, may find it then interest to forget their mutual animosity, any accommodation between them would lead greatly to facilitate an ariangement, embracing the respective interests of the Peishwa, of Scindiah, and of the Nizam

Such are the cucumstances of the present moment, which appear to me to favor the execution of that comprehensive system of piccaution and defence demanded by the exigency of our actual situation. The mode in which I have endeavoured to carry this system into effect has been suggested by the following considerations. The Court of Hyderabad has repeatedly and earnestly soluted an increase of the British detachment in the service of the Nizam, under an assurance that the French coips of Pinon would be dismissed from liss High-ness's service immediately upon the arrival of the additional British force This proposition has hither to been embarrassed by conditions of a nature incompatible with our engagements at Poonah, and the late dissentions between the Nizam and the Peishwa have precluded all hope of any amicable adjustment of this difficulty. It was their effore thought advisable by the late Governor-General in Conneil to resort to the expedient of encouraging the introduction of British adventures into the service of the Nizam, for the purpose of counterbalancing in some measure the influence of the French aimy at Hyderabad. With this view, the corps commanded by Mi Finglass has received the protection and encouragement of the Acting Resident, and has been augmented to the number of 8,000 men.

The policy of this expedient always appeared to me very doubtful, and I have entertained scrooms apprehensions that the measure might ultimately furnish additional iceruits to the cause of France, instead of counteracting her influence. In the most favorable view, however, this expedient could only be considered as a palliative of the evil it could not be expected that such a force as that of Mr Impliass would enable the Nizam to disband the copy of Pron, it must therefore have been evident at all times, that nothing less than a considerable and perimanent increase of our regular subsidiary force at Hyderabad could empower the Nizam to extricate himself from the hands of the French faction, so solidly established in his dominions

I have already stated my reasons for thinking that the uncrease of the British detachment at Hyderabad would no longer afford any cause of jealousy to the Peusliwa, and under all these cucumstances, I have availed myself of the late conduct of Tippoo and of Scindiah, to propose that measure, subject in the first instance to the previous consent of the Court of Poonah I have accompanied this proposition with a conduction, that the arbitation of this Government shall be accepted for the final adjustment of the points of difference still remaining between the two Courts These points are now so few, and the regulations of the Court of Hyderabad of a nature so just and moderate, that I entertain a confident expectation of effecting an accommodation upon pinciples equally advantageous to both parties

I have already observed that one of the most dangerous

cucumstances attending the establishment of the French party at Hyderabad, is the influence which they are likely to possess in directing the succession to the throne, whenever it shall become vacant by the death of the Nizam

19%

Secunder Jah, the eldest son of the Nizam, would be the natural successor, unless the regular order of succession should be disturbed by domestic faction, foreign intrigue, or force, for, although priority of birth may not be considered to give the same absolute and exclusive right to succession in India as it does in Europe, it is invariably deemed the strongest title, and is raiely superseded excepting in case of disaffection, or of positive disqualification. So far from these or any other objections being applicable to the title of Secunder Jah, it is well known that the Nizam has given the strongest indications of his favorable intentions towards Secunder Jah, by entrusting that Prince with the custody of his Seal, and by empowering him to perform certain acts which are reserved exclusively for the Sovereign This admission to the personal exercise of a portion of the sovereign authority during the life of the Nizam is deemed equivalent to a virtial nomination to the throne; and there is no reason to sunpose that the Nizam will nominate any of his younger sons to the exclusion of the hen apparent, unless his Highness should be prevailed upon in the weakness of his last moments to commit an act of such flagrant impolicy and injustice

Secunder Jah is connected by marriage with the family of Azım ul Omra, and his establishment upon the thione would give great additional security to the British interests at the Count of Hyderabad on the other hand, none of the younger sons can hope to reach the throne by any other assistance than that of the French party, and of Tippoo Sultaun Sufficient proof has been stated of the interest which Tippoo and the French take in the exclusion of Secunder Jah, and of the attempts which they have already made to interfere in governing the succession. These attempts may be renewed, and their success would necessarily involve the destruction of Azim ul Omra and of Secunder Jah, together with the consequent annihilation of the British influence at Hyderabad, all hope of re-establishing the balance of power in India as it existed at the peace of Seringapatam, would then be precluded, the countries of the Nizam would in such an event become in effect a dependency of France, and the partizans of that nation, in conjunction with Tippoo, and with the body of their countiymen lately received into his pay, would have the means of endangering the British power in India

Under all these circumstances, the same principles which suggested the necessity of mereasing the Butish detachment at Hyderabad, demanded that it should be employed to support the succession of Secunder Jah, as being essentially connected with the pennanency of our influence at Hyderabad, and with the effectual exclusion of the interference of Tippoo and of France

I have therefore authorised the Resident at Hyderabad to employ the Brutah noops in this service, if their assistance should hereafter become necessary, but I am persuaded that the mere presence of our force, accompanied by the knowledge of my firm determination to support the regular order of succession, will preclude every movement either of foreign or domestic opposition

The arrangements proposed for the service of the Nizam will be very incomplete, unless connected with the restoration of the Peishwa to a due degree of authority and power, and preceded by the cordial approbation of the Court of Poonah. But the great danger to be averted is the growth of the influence of Tippoo and of France in India It is therefore evident, that the failure of the proposed plan at Poonah would merease the necessity of providing for the safety of the Nizam, and of destroying the French party at his Court If, therefore, the Peishwa should either refuse his assent to the propositions to be made to him, or if from the success of Scindiah's operations, or from any other cause, those measmes which relate to the Court of Poonah should be fivetrated. I have still deemed it advisable to direct the Acting Resident at Hyderabad to carry into effect the increase of the British detachment, and such other parts of my instructions as may appear practicable, reserving always to the Peishwa the power of acceding hereafter to any treaty which we may conclude with the Nizam, and continuing with that view the restrictive terms of our present subsidiary engagements with the latter, as far as they relate to the interests of the Peishwa The dismission of the Fiench corps at Hyderabad would not fully answer the views with which I have proposed that measure, if the officers or European privates were permitted to enter into the service of any other native power although I should think them less dangerous m any service than in that of the Nizam I have endeayoured not only to secure the expulsion of the French from Hyderabad, but also then unmediate return to then native country I have therefore required that the French officers and privates should be delivered up to the Government of Fort St George, in order that they may be immediately conveyed to Europe, the Nizam is under no engagements either with the Government of France or with the French officers to continue them in his service, and he possesses the full right to dismiss them whenever he shall think fit The exorbitant power which M Piton and his aimy have acquired at Hyderabad, as well as then immoderate abuse of it, will justify the Nizam in taking whatever measures may appear most effectual for the purpose of securing himself against a faction so formidable not only to the independence of his Government, but to the safety of his own person, and to the existence of his throne With the same view, I have made it a preliminary condition of the whole plan, that the Nizam, his heirs and successors shall for ever exclude the French from then armies and dominions

The corps of M1 Finglass, after the establishment of a considerable British force at Hyderabad, will no longer be hable to the full force of the objections which I have stated against the policy of encouraging such a body of adventurers in the service of the Nizam, this question, however, does not require an immediate decision, we shall possess ample means of deciding it according to our discretion, if our propositions to the Court of Hyderabad should be attended with success The consent of the Nizam to such parts of the proposed arrangements as relate to the re-establishment of the Government of Poonah is required as a necessary preliminary to the increase of the British detachment at Hyderabad tions being to take no step in the first instance at either Court without the full knowledge and concurrence of the other, a principle, the strict observance of which to every degree of practicable extent, appears to me to be the only effectual mode of removing all causes of realousy, of uniting the confidence of both parties, and of bringing them to a dispassionate consideration of their mutual interests

The pats of the proposed allangement which relate to the in-establishment of the Government of Poonah were suggested by Colonel Palmei's letter of 1st of June, in which he states "that the authority of the Peishwa would be restored by the appearance of a strong Bittish force at Poonah, and that Scindiah, under the circumstances of Tippoo's recent aggression, could on no just pretence object to such a movement of our troops, nor in his present condition be able to oppose it."

The whole tenot of the subsequent advices from Poonah tended to confirm this opinion for while it appeared evidently impossible that the authority of the Peishwa could be restored otherwise than by foreign assistance, there seemed to be every rational ground of expectation, that the mere appearance of our troops would induce all the leading Chieftans of the Mahnatta empire to unter in support of the Peishwa, and that such an event would not be unacceptable even to the followers of Scindiah The Peishwa himself has earnestly soluted the aid of a body of our troops, and has expressed the fullest sense of the necessity, as well as reliance on the efficacy of such a measure for the restoration of his authority and for the protection of his person

On the other hand, the danger of the Pesslwa meeased from day to day, the assistance which he had solicited from the Nizam was not likely to leach him before his fate had been decided, and the expectation even of any assistance from the Court of Hyderabad, notwithstanding the conclusion of the late treaty, appeared to rest on a very precarious foundation. In this situation, the direct interposition of this Government by moving a detachment of troops to Poonsh was the only measure on which we could rely with any degree of certainty for aveiting the immediate destruction of our interests at that Court.

The Resident at Poonah was therefore authorized to require a detachment of troops from Bombay, but pierously to so decided a step, it was deemed proper that the Resident should require of the Peishwa his consent to the increase of the Bitish detachment at Hydeiabad, his acceptance of our arbitration between the Courts of Poonah and Hyderabad, and his exclusion of the French from his armies and dominions

With a view of securing the lasting benefit of this ariangement at the Court of Poonsh, it is intended that a proposal shall be made to the Penshwa to enter into permanent subsidiary engagements with us of a similar nature and extent with those which shall be concluded at the Court of Hyderabad

With the same view, the Resident at Poonah has been directed to take such measures as may appear to him most likely to interest Nana Furnaveese in the success of this general arrangement of the affairs of the two Courts

The last despatches from Poonah afford every reason to hope, that the abilities and experience of Nana may be successfully employed by Colonel Palmer in effecting the return of Sendah to his own dominons, and the consequent restoration of the Pershwa

The impediments which Scindiah opposes to the success of this arrangement will probably disappear whenever the union of the two Courts, cemented by our interposition, shall become a matter of public notoniety

The tressure of Nana is the only resource in which Scindials can find the means of appeasing the clamours of his discontented a my; and Colonel Palmer will avail himself of any favorable opportunity of connecting the interests of Nana with those of Scindials and of the Peishwa, in such a mannet as shall enable Scindials to retire with safety into his own dominions, without affording him the power of effecting any other military movement

Being desirous of conciliating the real interests of all parties, I have instructed Colonel Palmer to make the most anneable propositions to Scindiah, and to turge the policy of his return to his own dominions by pointing out their actual danger during his absence, by offering our co-operation against the menaced invision of Zemaun Shah, and our mediation with the Courts of Poonah and Hyderabad, and I have made the consent of those Courts to our mediation of then respective differences with Scindiah an indispensable preliminary of the air rangements which regard the restoration of their own independence. Scindiah cannot reject our propositions on any ground which would not immediately place him in the rank of a declared enemy to us, and of an avowed auxiliary to Tippoo Sultaun

In this case, therefore, we must have recourse to compulsion, and I have authorized the Resident at Poonah to use it in the last and, I trust improbable, extremity

Such are the measures which I have proposed, with a view to restore the efficiency of our alhances, and to check the growth of the French party in the Deccan

I have already stated the reasons which convinced me (against the opinion of the Government of Fort St George) that the assembling the aimy on the coasts of Coromandel and Malabai, and at Bombay, was absolutely indispensable to the defence of the Cainstic, under the circumstance of Tippo's declared designs and acknowledged preparations for war.

The fatal policy of neglecting to keep pace with the forwardness of the enemy's equipments has been felt more than once on the coast of Coronnadel, and, I repeat it, I cannot, consistently with any sentiment of duty, consent to rest the security of the Canante, in the present ciss, on any other foundation than a state of active and early preparation for war But if I had looked only to the success of those measures which are now depending at the Courts of Poonah and Hyderabad (measures essentially involving our present and future means of checking the implacable enuity of Tippoo, I should on that ground alone have proposed to assemble the army upon the coast of Coronnadel, at Bombay, and upon the coast of Malabar

It is impossible to suppose that Tippoo would not employ every effort to prevent the revival of our defensive alliances, and it would, therefore, be nearly certain that his advanced state of preparation for war, and his renewed connection with the French, would tempt him to interfere in the affains of the Nizam and of the Peishwa, and to assist the views of Scindian at Poonah, and of M Pinon's army at Hyderabad. It therefore became necessary to check the motions of Tippoo Sultaun, by assembling an aimy upon his fiontica during the continuance of our negociations with our alles.

I have adverted, in the course of this Minute, to those defects in the constitution of the army upon the coast which have impeded its early movement in the present critical conjuncture. The measures which I have proposed for the correction of those defects are absolutely necessary, in my judgment, to our future security in the Camatic The detail of those measures will appear in my Minute in the Secret Department of the 20th July, and in the letter to the Government of Fort St George of the same date?

August,

I am fully aware of the expense to be incurred in establishing any improved system, which shall enable the army on the coast to keep pace with the pi ompitude of Tippoo's i esouices, and to move with an alacity and expedition equal to his.

If, however, the proposed increase of our subsidiary engagements at Hyderabad should take place, it is my intention that the whole detachment, consisting of three regiments, should be furnished from the establishment of Fort St. George The force thus stationed at Hyderabad will afford an effectual security to the northern Cucars against Tippoo Sultaun, or against any other foreign enemy The duty of the Circars will then require no larger a proportion of troops than may be sufficient to maintain the internal police and good order of the country It will not therefore be requisite, in the event of peace, to laise more than than one regiment at Fort St George, to replace those serving with the Nizam This arrangement will operate as a saving of the expense of two regiments upon the establishment of Fort St. George, and will furnish a fund at least adequate to the permanent charges of the new establishments of artillery, draft cattle and grain, which our recent experience has proved to be indispensable for the purpose of enabling the army on the coast to take the field expeditiously, on any sudden emergency

In this view, the restoration of our defensive alliances against Tippoo is essentially connected with the improvement of our system of defence in the Canatto, and the assistance afforded to the Nizam will become (without any increase of expense) the source of additional vigous and activity to our aimy upon the coast

Desply as I lament the obstacles which have prevented us from striking an instantaneous blow against the possessions of Tippoo, I expect to derive considerable advantage from the success of that system of piecaution and defence which I have been compelled to substitute in place of an immediate war

These measures are detailed in the Governor-General's letter to General Harris, of the 18th July, 1798—See page 135

The enlargement of our subsidiary engagements at the Court of Hyderabad, combined with the establishment of similar engagements at the Court of Poonah, will become a great augmentation of our strength, attended by no increase of charge, and possibly by a diminution of our inditary expenses

The two detachments will form a considerable amy, stationed on the most vulnerable part of Trippoo Sultaun's frontier, in a position which will at all times facilitate our approach to his capital, by securing the protection of our convoys of prosions. A force so stationed will operate as a perpetual restraint upon any movements which Trippoo might be disposed to make towards the frontier, either of the Canatac, of the Northern Cucais, or of Malabar. It will also impede any cooperation between the animes of Scindiah and of Tippoo, and will induce the former to remain within his own dominions, where his motions will again be checked by the vicinity of our namy on the frontier to Touch.

In such encumstances, it must always be the interest of Scindiah to cultivate our friendship in preference to that of the French, or of any native power. Thus he may become an useful ally to us in the event of Zemaun Shah's approach to the frontier of Hindostan, and the prospect of that event must rendet him anxious to secure our protection. On the other hand, the success of his present ambitious and unjusticable views against the Peishwa would fix him in the interests of Tippoo Sultaun and of France, with the accession of whatever strength he might be able to collect from the remnants of the empire which he would have overthrown

The influence which we shall naturally derive, both at Hydenabad and Poonah, from the presence of so large a body of our troops, will enable us to prevent any aggression on either side, by the constant interposition of our good offices with both patnes, to restain every symptom of a revival of then former spirit of jealousy and contention

Our endeavous may then be successfully directed to the desirable object of pieses unin unimpaired the strength and resources of the two powers, on whose cooperation we must rely for assistance in the event of any wai with the state of Mysore, and while we prevent our allies from weakening themselves by repeated contests, we may expect that such an interference in the disputes of the native powers, so far from tending to foment divisions, and to occasion war, will prove the best security for the general tanquality of India, as well as the most solid pledge of our disposition to preserve that blessing from interruption

However comprehensive and intricate the proposed system may appear at the first view, it will soon be evident to all the powers of India, that the fundamental principle of our policy is invariably repugnant to every scheme of conquest, extension of dominion, aggrandisement, or ambition, either for ourselves or for our allies Consistently with this principle. it is our right and duty to restore the vigour and efficiency of our defensive alliances, but beyond the limits of this principle, we entertain no project of altering the condition, of reducing or of raising the power of any established state in India On the other hand, the same principle justifies and demands our firm resistance to the intrusion of any foreign power which shall attempt to acquire a preponderant influence in the scale of Indian politics, to the prejudice of our defensive alliances, and of our just interests. The establishment of our subsidized force at Poonah and Hyderabad will afford effectual means of guarding, not only against any such intiusion, but against the undue growth of any native power While we possess so formidable a force in the center of India, no such event can happen without our knowledge and consent

The last question which remains for consideration is, what shall be the natine and extent of that demand of satisfaction which we shall make from Tippoo Sultain, whenever we shall have completed the system now depending at the Courts of our Allies, and shall have brought our aimy in the Cainatic to a state of preparation for the field?

It is evident from the facts which have come under my observation in the course of this discussion, that our safety requires a further reduction of the relative power of Tippoo Sultaun

The policy of the Treaty of Seingapatam certaully was not to maintain Tippoo's power upon such a scale as should leave him a constant object of alaim and apprehension to the Company. That he has been so for some years past cannot be denied by any person acquainted with the records either of this Government or of that of Foit St George The present is the second crisis within the last two years, in which this Government has thought it necessary to assemble the army on the coast, for the sole purpose of checking his motions

The vague and unaccurate nature of our intelligence with respect to the extent of his force and to the state of his preputations, added to the facility which he possesses of receiving emissaires and succours from France by Sea, have contributed to encease the anxiety of the Company's Governments, and our intercourse with him has been of an unsettled and ill defined character, destricte of the advantages either of peace or of war. Under such circumstances, the continuance of Tippoo's power in its actual state, must prove to the Company a perpetual source of slatin, vexation and expense

The reduction of his means of offence might be effected, either by a posture diminution of his territory and issources, or by a proportionate increase of power and efficiency on our side of the balance, accompanied by such additional securities as might enable us to ascertain at all times the nature of his intentions, as well as his power of carrying them into effect, and to restrain, if not wholly to picclude, his intercourse with Fiance

The diminution of his territory on the coast of Malabar, would certainly be the most effectual mode of precluding his mercouse with France, as well as of preventing his movements towards the Carnatic But it does not appeal probable that this most desirable security can ever be obtained by the mere terror of our aims. It must be purchased at the expense and hazard of war. Any considerable reduction of his resources must probably be purchased at the same price.

I have already stated the nature and tendency of those steps which have been taken, for confining the power of Tippoo within nairower limits by the operation of the proposed system of alliance, of subsidiary engagements, and of improvement of out defences in the Canato

The success of this system will unquestionably operate as an effectual testaint upon the power of Tippoo, and will so strengthen out barriers against lim as to afford a rational expectation, that we may be enabled to obtain from him without mourning the heazard of war, a very considerable augmentation of security with respect to all those points, which now form the most alarming features of his power

206

I have already stated those points to be, the secresy of his operations, his continual intercourse with the French, and constant state of equipment for war

Our demand of satisfaction for his late infraction of treaty, should be so famed as to apply consectives to each of these erils, and such a demand might be founded on principles of moderation and justice so clear and indisputable, as would place the refined of Tippoo in the most odous light, and in that event prove to all India the necessity of our resorting to

We might distinctly state to Tippoo, that we entertain no view of encouching upon his territory or of diminishing his resonuces, and we might appeal to the late restoration of the district of Wynaad, for an unequivocal proof of this disposition

We might declare, that after a most unprovoked violation of treaty on his part, we do not intend to demand any cession of dominion or payment of money, but will content ourselves with obtaining those ordinary pledges of an intention to abstain from hostilities, which all civilized nations in a state of neace, are in the established habit of requiring reciprocally from one another, we might insist on an unequivocal and final explanation of the real nature of our relation with him . declaring, that we will no longer submit to that ambiguous and anxious state, in which the allies have been placed by his conduct for some years past, we might signify our determined resolution, either to establish with him a real and effectual peace, accompanied by the customary intercourse, by the mutual exchange of good offices, and by all other securities which maintain the continuance of that blessing, or to wage war upon him, until we have removed the causes of our apprehension and danger by the entire destruction of his

This declaration might be made jointly by all the allies, and it might be followed by requiring Tippoo to receive at his Court an established Ambassador from each of the allies, according to the practise of all civilized nations in a state of peace, offering at the same time to admit Ambassadors from him on equal terms

The force levied by him under his offensive alliance with France, having been liaised for the express purpose of agression upon the Company, can be considered in no other light than that of a signal of hostility, while it shall remain in his service. He must therefore be required to disband it without delay, and to remove it from his dominions

The anxious desire of the French to destroy the Bitish power in India, the nature of Tippoo's acknowledged connection with them, and the interest which they must always feel in mistigating him to wai, demand the further requisition, that he should enter into an engagement for himself, his hens and successors, to exclude the French from his aimies and dominions for ever

The advantages resulting from these concessions on the part of Tippoo, would be very considerable

The residence of an Ambassador at his Court, would not only restrain the execution of any hostile designs which he might hereafter form, but would provide an authentic source of intelligence, from which we might always derive timely information of his motions. This measure might also ultimately lead to the establishment of an amicable intercourse with Mysore, for Tippoo may perhaps at length be convinced, that his wisest policy would be to rest satisfied with the undistribed possession of his present dominions, rather than to risk the loss of what he still retains, by attempting to regain what he has lost

The dismission of the French coips i assed at Maintinus would discourage other adventurers of that nation from attempting to engage in the service of the Sultain, and with a British Ambassador on the spot, it would be difficult for him to evade the engagements by which he would have bound himself to exclude the French from his a times and dominions.

The combined effect of these two measures would therefore be, if not wholly to preclude, at least to embarrass to a very great degree his intercourse with our enemy. He may also at length perceive that he never can hope to make any lasting impression upon the British power, without the aid of a large French force, and that he never can admit such a force into his dominions, without the utmost danger to his own independence in the field, and the presence of a part of the Bitish squadron on the coast of Malabai, will probably incline Tippoo to histen to requisitions of this nature. He will soon perceive that we possess ample means of annihilating his military force, and I tiust he will also be convinced, that we have no object in view beyond our own security, and that we are really desnous of maintaining the relations of amity and peace with min, as long as he shall rest contented with his present dominons, and shall relinquish his vindictive projects against ours.

The revival of our alliances, the appearance of our armies

If Tuppoo should accede to the substance of the requisitions which I have suggested, I entertain a sanguine hope, that with the efficiency of the triple alliance not only restored but considerably strengthened, with a large army at Hyderahad, and another at Poonah, with a Resident established at Seingapatam, and with the exclusion of the Fiench from the dominions of Tippoo Sultaun, of the Nizam, and of the Peishwa, we may be enabled to look confidently to a long continuance of tranquility in India. The growth of the French power in India, would no longer be a matter of apprehension. Scindiah (or whoever shall succeed to his domimons in Hindostan), would become an useful auxiliary against the threatened uruption of Zemaun Shah, the military charges on the coast of Coromandel, might then safely admit of reduction; this Government would not then be perpetually alarmed with rumours of Tippoo's equipments, and of impending invasions of the Carnatic We should no longer suffer in time of peace all the solicitude, and hazard, and much of the expense of war, and the continuance of tranquillity would be ensured not more by the predominance of our power, than by the moderation manifested in using it for the sole purpose of obtaining permanent security, and genuine peace *

I am, &c Mornington

[•] The letter from the Government of Fort St George of the 10th July, 1798, (referred to at page 178) is grounded on Mr Webbe's memorandum of the 6th July, (neo page 72) namely, that the Madias aimy was incapable of any offensive operations, and barely adequate to the defence of our own territory, it depressable also any demonstration which might induce Tippoo to invade the Carnatic The letter is inserted as a note at page 214

No XLIX

The Earl of Mornington to Cantain Kirkpatrick

a - ----

Sir, Fort William, 14th August, 1798

I have acceived your private letter of the 30th ult. Your communications relating to Colonel Kn kpatrick give me gicat pleasure, and I am happy to find that the situation in my family which I have left open for him is likely to prove acceptable to him.

Azum ul Omna's icception of my propositious has afforded me the highest satisfaction, noi could it be expected that he should pledge himself to a greater extent on the first communication of a plan embracing so many complicated interests

In directing the Government of Foit St George to hold two regiments in leadiness to maich at you requisition to Hyderabad, I desired that those regiments might be accompanied by the ordinary proportion of field artillery, and my intention is, that the attillery which may be sent with those regiments shall be permanently stationed with the Nizam, he of course paying the charge attending it If the proportion of attillery sent with the detachment from Fort St. George should appear insufficient, Azim ul Omia will find me sincerely disposed to accommodate that point to his wishes, by making any addition which may be deemed requisite

I shall hereafter take into consideration your observation especting the exchange at which the pay of the Bengal toops serving at Hyderabad is now issued. I think it proper at the same time to acquaint you, that it is my intention ultimately, that the corps stationed with the Nizam shall be composed entirely of thoops from the establishment of Fort St. George

The total mability of the Nizam to extricate himself from the power of the French party without our assistance formed one of the primary considerations, which induced me to propose to him the extension of our subsidiary engagements

The anxiety with which Azim ul Omra piesses for the arrival of the additional subsidiary force from Fort St. George as an indispensable pieliminary to the destruction of the French party, is a sufficient confirmation of the opinions which I had formed of the dangeous strength of that party, and of the absolute necessity of our interference for the purpose of restraining its overbearing influence

It could never have been expected by me that the Minister should take any other step towards the dismission of Peron's army previously to the arrival of our regiments, than that of dispersing the corps of which it is composed, so as to prevent then forming a junction either with a view of exciting a commotion in his Highness's dominions, or of icting into the territories of any other power. It is indispensably necessary indeed that the intended dismission of the French party should be kept secret until the Minister shall possess the means of attempting it with a certainty of success With the aid of the additional force which we have agreed to furnish, I should hope that he will be enabled to carry this part of the plan into execution without any material difficulty Perhaps even a smaller British force might be deemed adequate to this service, if you should be of opinion that it can be successfully accomplished by the Bengal troops now serving at Hyderabad, and a part of the additional force ordered to march thither on your requisition, (supposing that any unforeseen obstacle should impede the immediate march of the whole of the two regiments from Fort St George) you have my sanction to make the attempt with the smaller force.

For the reasons however stated an my letter to you of the 25th ultimo, it is indispensably necessary, at all events, that the Nizam should, without delay, formally bind himself by a written engagement to my propositions is especting the French party, as well as to every other picliminary condition of the proposed arrangements, leaving the mode and time of carrying those an angements into effect to be determined by the arrival of our additional subsidiary force

I consider such pielminary atiticles to be the basis of a definitive treaty which shall comprehend the general interests of each branch of the Triple Alliance On the signature of such at ticles you must insist, before you despatch your orders, for the mach of the additional detachment The actual disbanding of Penoris corps will, of course, follow the establishment of our troops at Hydieabad

The nature of these measures requires great despatch, the ordinary delays of an Asiatic Court would defeat the whole system.

I am, &c

MORNINGTON

No L

The Earl of Morning ton to General Harris

MY DEAR SIR.

Fort William, 16th August, 1798

I have just now received your express of the 30th July, to

The despatch of the La Virginie has been delayed by the

The despatch of the La Friginic has been delayed by the sudden death of my poor firend Captain Hunt, who died to the unspeakable guief of all his acquaintance, on Friday last, after an illness of a few days

The charge of the ship is entitisted to M. Evans, the first leutenant, who will sail in the course of two or three days at farthest, and will convey to you a supply of money to the amount of not less than ten not more than fifteen lacs of rupees I trust that this supply will reach you within fifteen days from the departure of La Virginue

A part of the 33rd regiment, with my brother, Colonel Wellesley, embarked the day before yesterday for Fort St George, and the remainder is to follow to-morrow

If the force which I have directed to be assembled shall really be ready to move from the Chears towards Hyderabad before the end of August, I tust it will be in time to accomplish the important objects which I have in contemplation

The Marine battalion will be embarked for Masuhpatam, partly on board the Bombay fligate, and partly on a ship fleighted for the purpose on the 25th of this month

Upon consulting with the Commander-in-Chief, we are of opinion that the defence of these provinces, under all the circumstances of the present moment, absolutely requires that the men of the 36th regiment should be embalked for Foit Wilham immediately upon the anival of the 38th at Foit St George, and I therefore request that the execution of this suggestion may not be suspended, but as I am anxious to afford you every possible assistance, I this day signified in Council my intention to authorize you to detain the 39th regiment of diagoons, which must soon arrive at you Presidency from England, you will not attempt to mount the men, but I trust that you will find this regiment in its dismounted state useful for the purpose of garrison duty

You will consider this as a formal authority for the detention of the 29th regiment I take this opportunity of replying to such parts of your letters of the 12th and 14th July as have not been noticed in my public despatches

The mode of obviating the moonvenience likely to alise from the number of your Fiench prisoners has been anticipated by my proposition made through Mi Wellesley, and I trust you may alteady have found some means of conveying them to Europe

I do not think that the regiment of Memon would be a very safe guest in Bengal if its disposition should be what you apprehend, should your apprehension prove well founded, I would recommend it to you to devise some means of sending it to Europe

The 29th will make a very safe part of the garuson of Fort St George

Your letter of the 14th July suggests some doubts of Tippoo's participation in the proclamation issued in the Isle of France. I have had the means of ascertaining from a variety of respectable evidence, as well as from an examination of the collateral encumerances of the case, that Tippoo was unquestionably a party to the proclamation.

The motives of Monsieu Malaitic are more ambiguous, but I am persuaded you will not think this circumstance any palliation of the conduct of Tippoo

Tippoo certainly expected very considerable assistance from the Isle of France, and he would probably have obtained it if his Ambassadors had carried with them a sufficient treasure to advance bounty money to a large number of recruits. but an apprehension of the English cruizers prevented the embarkation of treasure, and to this defect more than any other is to be imputed the failure of the whole plan. The ship which conveyed to the Mauritius the first intelligence of the last revolution in France, and of the violence intended against that Island, did not arrive until after the departure of Tippoo's vakeels This intelligence occasioned the disturbance in the Island, the proclamation, therefore, did not originate in any intention to quell those disturbances by relieving the Island of the restless spirits concerned in them It is an incontrovertible fact (on which I leave you to make your own comment) that no rumour or notion of a war between Tippoo and the Company, or of a levy of men for his service, existed in the Island of Mauritus previously to the arrival of Tippoo's Ambassadors, and that the proclamation issued a few days after their arrival

I have detailed the whole of this argument in a minute recorded in the Secret Department, which I will forward to you for your private perusal, and for that of Lord Clive *

Tippoo's letters to the Executive Directory of France, soheiting then aid against the Company, were despatched from the Mauritius in the month of March, you are aware that the general expectation in that Island is, that a force will soon be sent from France for the purpose of reducing the Island to obedience. Such an expedition may easily be connected with the plan of affording succour to Tippoo, and I think it highly probable that a part of the great naval preparations now making in France may be destined for this rauonal purpose, rather than to the impacticable project of invading England, in this opinion Su Hugh Christian and Lord Macartine ventuely concur with me.

Captam Malcolm's seport of the state of Tippoo's preparations leaves no doubt on my mind that the Sultan expected to have derived from the French such succour as would have enabled him immediately to commence active operations against us It does not appear to me that the Sultan yet despairs of the aid of Flance

With regard to the effect which our preparations may have upon Trippoo's mind I have sufficiently expressed my opinion in my private letter to you of the 16th July That opinion has been confirmed by every subsequent event, and I should be ashamed to hold for one hour the post which I now fill, if I had been so weak as to suffer any vague apprehension of the possible effect of our preparations on the capticious temper of the Sultan, to deter me from taking effectual measures for our permanent security against his declared deagns

Your letter of the 6th July enclosed a memorandum,† which I should not have thought deserving of my notice if you had not called my particula attention to it, as containing the arguments which were likely to be urged with virulence by the opposition at home, in the event of our being engaged in a wai with Tippoo

^{*} Vide Minute of the 12th August, 1798, p 159

Although no man accepts with more gratitude any correction of his own opinions, I feel an instinctive repugnance to any remarks evidently originating in a spirit of discontent and faction, I therefore lead in a very cuisory manner the memorandium which you had so justly described, I leave you then to judge with what astomishment and concein I found the whole substance of that memorandium recalled to my memory by youn public letter of the 10th July, *t othat letter my pub-

* The following is the letter referred to -

From the Secret Department to the Earl of Mornington, KB

My Lord, Fort St George, 10th July, 1798

We have had the honour to receive your Lordship's letter of the 20th litting, directing us to take measures, with the utmost degree of expedition, for assembling the army, under this Government, at such a attation as we may judge nost convenent for its marching against Seringapatam, if such a measure should, hereafter, be found necessary.

Upon this most momentous question we shall wait, with the utmost solicitude, the result of your Lordship's final deliberation Mean while, we beg to assure you of our most cordul cooperation, in any system of measures which you may judge expedient, to frustrate the designs of the enemy

With this view, we have taken the measures immediately necessary for assembling such part of our troops, as can be spared from the defence of our forts, and the protection of our districts, of this force we inclose a return amounting to 14,144 rank and file, including gun Lascars and pioneers

The Commander-in-Chief has recommended Walajahbad, as the most convenient place at which to assemble the army, with a riew either to offensive or defensive operations, and, in compliance with his recommendation, we have accordingly fixed upon that situation, as the general rendeavous of the troops

We shall save nimediate orders for providing a sufficient quantity of draft and carrange cattle for the caup equipage, and held tran of the sarmy, but as the equipment of a battering tran, sufficient for the nego of Sungapatam, must be attended with an immediate very heavy exponce, we shall postpone any orders for this purpose, until we receive your farther directions.

In the mean time, we consider it our duty to suggest the ideas to which the immediate performance of your orders has given rise

The army which it is possible for us to draw together, is incapable of offensive operations, and must receive very large runiforcements from Bengal, before it can be in a condition to make any serious statek upon the Mysore country. The time and extent of those supplies depend upon your Lordship in council, but the assistance which we require in troops

he duty compelled me to return an answer which it was very painful to me to dictate I can only repeat my sincere assurances already offered to you on a similar occasion, that no unfavourable impression of your intentions, nor abatement of

is so great, as must necessarily fix the period of our offensive operations to a very distant day, and, as the demolition of Sosors and Bangalore, leave us no object of intermediate sitack, we can have no means of making any formulable impression upon Tippoe Sultana, but by the sege of the capital itself. This from the circumstance we have already stated, as well as from the experience of the last war, must, inevitably, be a work of time.

Mean while our preparations shall go on, with every precaution to preent the discovery of their object, yet we cannot be sangume that a matter of such necessary publicity as the march and equipment of an army, which can have no object but hostility against Tippoo, could escape that prince's rigidance

If, upon this discovery, he should pursue the line of policy pointed out by his fither, (and there is too much reason to expect, from the doubtion of Bangalore and Ossoor, that this will be his future system of warface) we apprehend that an immediate invasion of the Carnate may be expected, and, as his resources are much more prompt than our own, and as a great part of his army is supposed to have long been in a state of field equipment, we fear that his strack upon us may be expected, before we shall be in a condition to meet him

Our own army, when equipped, can, from its number, be only defenave, and its operations confined to the Company's territories, which enemy, from the inputity of his movements, and the superority of his cavalry, will carry deveration throughout the Carratic, until we may be able to fix his attention to his own dominons. Meanwhile the loss of revenue in our curtal districts and the Barusanial is mentable, which the rawage of the country, in the neighbourhood of this presidency, with the destruction of the November copp in the Baranahal, will oppose very serious obstacles to the equipment of our troops for the invasion of Mysore

Having made the most urgent and repeated applications to you, upon the state of our finances, it is nuncessary to reapitulate the support here, but in the discussion of war, a matter of so much moment as money, cannot be omitted. It is out duty the acfor to appuze you, in the most explicit manner, that we must rely, solely and unequivocally, upon your Government, for supplies in spoce. The other action of the work which you have been already furnished, shew any considerable defect in our resources compared with our expenses, for the current year, and any diministron of our current revenue, by the depredations of the enemy, must be followed by the utnost inconvenience, the discount upon every species of our paper leaves us to expect no assistance, upon our own credit, and the scarcity of money here, compels us to repeat, in the most unequivocal manner, that our means for equipmping, as well as for personal regard and esteem for you, suggested my answer to your public letter of the 10th July.

I beg you will return my thanks to Captain Malcolm for his very able and satisfactory report respecting the state of Tippoo Sultain's force and preparations for war.*

I must also request you to express my gratitude to Major Allan for the valuable communications which I have received from him on the subject of the passes into the Carnatic

Majo. Beatson has been here for some time, I have received great satisfaction from his knowledge and ability, and I feel very much obliged to you for having afforded me the opportunity of foriming so useful and annable an acquaintance

I am very sonly that it will not be in my power to spare the Bombay fingate for the purpose mentioned to you by Adminal Ramie. That ship will be employed in convoying the troops to Masulipatam, and when that service shall have been accomplished, my intention is to order het to ctuize in company with the Nonzuch off the Sand heads, for the protection of the trade of Bengal during the north-east monsoon

I shall give an early consideration to the affairs of Tanjore, I have not yet been able to form my opinion on that subject

I have the honour to be, &c

Mornington

paying the army, must depend upon the supplies of treasure which your Lordship in council may be able to send from Bengal

We shall do ourselves the honour of enclosing, for your information, as soon as it can be prepared, a statement of the monthly expense of our own army in the field, together with a statement of the balance of cash in our treasury

Though we have thought it our duty to represent the difficulties in which we may be involved, by the immediate execution of your Lordship's orders, we beg leave to repeat our assurances of the most heavity cooperation, in any plan which you may determine to adopt, in the present conjuncture

We have the honour to be,

My Lord, your Lordship's, Most obedient, humble servants,

GEORGE HARRIS
EDWARD SAUNDERS
E H FALLOFIELD

^{*} Sec Appendix

No LI

The Earl of Mornington to General Harris

My DEAR SIR.

Fort William, 19th August, 1798

I have just now received your letter of the 7th of August,* with the extracts inclosed, † and I am anxious to avail myself

* See page 155

+ The following is the Minute of General Harris, referred to -

Secret Department, 31st July, 1798

The President lays before the Board a letter from Bengal, which he recommends may not at present be entered on the records, directing that immediate orders may be issued for assembling, with all practicable despatch, two native regiments of infantity, with field pieces, each battalion completed to the war strength of 1,000 men, and intimating that it is probable this force will shortly be required for the service of the Nizam

The President delivers in the following Minute -

If the present order had been given after the receipt of our letter to the Supreme Government of the 10th instant, there would have been no cause to doubt what conduct we ought to pursue, because the Governor General in Council would have issued his directions under a knowledge of the difficulties in which we should be involved by the execution of his first instructions for assembling the coast army, with the ultimate view of marching to Seringapatain

In that letter we stated our utter mability to undertake any offensive operation, that our whole collected force was barely sufficient to repel any invasion of our own territories, and that, without large and immediate supplies of money, we could not put it in a state of field equipment, it follows, then, that by preparing and detaching so large a part of our army (and which it is probable will shortly be entirely withdrawn from out protection) as 4,000 effective native infantry, with their complement of field artillery, that a very serious reduction is made from our means of defence, and that the very measure which we were before scarcely in a condition to repel is proportionably provoked

The question, therefore, for our consideration is, whether these consequences shall be risked by the execution of the present order

If I believed that the stipulated force was required only for the ordinary service of the Nizam, I would not hesitate to recommend that the execution of the order should be suspended until a reply was received to the representation which has been made to the Supreme Government of our difficulties, but, judging from the very pressing private request of the Earl of Mornington, that the detachment may be equipped with the utmost promptitude and caution, that its formation is of great importance to the British interests in India, I should deem myself culpable if I thwarted any general plan which may have been formed by the Supreme Government, by delaying, for a moment, to propose to the Board the mode of the earliest opportunity to return you my most cordial thanks for the zeal and resolution with which you have carned my suggestions into effect, my letter of the 16th July will have informed you how essential a plan to the very existence of the Butish empue in India would have been defeated if your honorable firmness had not overcome the suggestions of an opposition, which would have persuaded you to violate the law under the specious pietence of executing the spirit by disobeying the letter of the orders of the Governor-General in Council This opposition I am resolved to clush, I possess sufficient powers to do so, and I will exert those powers to the extreme point of their extent, rather than suffer the smallest particle of my plans for the public service to be frustrated by such unworthy means With this view, my earnest request to you is, that you will communicate to me without delay the names of those who have arrogated to themselves the power of governing the empire committed to my charge the ignorance and weakness of this self-created government have already appeared to you from the papers which I transmitted to you on the 18th July In addition to that information, I have now the satisfaction to tell you, that the Nizam has agreed unequivocally to cooperate with us in the event of a war with Tippoo, and has also cordially united in all the measures which I have proposed for the relief of the Peishwa In the meanwhile a revolt in the army of Scindish has so reduced his power, that there remains no doubt of the complete restoration of the Peishwa, and consequently of the immediate nevival of our defensive alliances against Tippoo in (at least)

which I deem most proper for the speedy and effectual accomplishment of the part with which we are charged

I am aware that difficultes of great magnitude oppose the ariangement I shall propose, but feeling that they ought to yield to the more immediate object in view, it would be superflowed to dwell upon them, and calpable to shrink from the responsibility which may attach to us in meeting

The public and private promise of a supply from Bragal in spone. Beasen my apprehensions on this secount, and as I have again, in the most urgent terms, presed the immediate necessity of its performance, I am condident that he Lordship in Council will be as forward to differ effectual relief to our particular difficulties, as we may be to maintest a cordula cooperation in in plans for the general sight.

their original vigour. The dismission of the Fiench corps at Hydeiabad will take place immediately after the arrival of our increased subsidiary force. I leave it to you to judge whether this state of the Courts of Poonah and Hydeiabad, cemented by my authority and power, is more likely to tempt. Tippoo to move into the Carnatic, or to turn his eyes seriously to the danger of his own dominions. It is extremely necessary that you should not divulge this information, until I am enabled to transmit you a mone exact state of our negociations, which I will not fail to do by the first favourable opportunity. The Verginua will sail to-morrow on the next day with about 13 on 14 lacs of rupees. The marine battalion will embalk in a day or two. You may rely on my employing every exertion to send you a finither supply of treasure and of men. if the latter should become necessary.

I am not aware of having omitted any point of importance on which you appear to desine my opinion, excepting that part of you letter which relates to the necessity of the Commander-in-Chief and myself visiting Foit St George in the event of a war, the Commander-in-Chief long ago expressed to me his intention to take the command on the coast in that event, and I shall not heistate one moment (if necessity should require such a step) in carrying to the coast such power as shall soon repress the faction, which I perceive is aheady formed for the purpose of embairassing my Government Indeed I will not wait the moment of war (which I trust is distant), if the spurit which has ansen at Madras should appear to gain strength, the activity of that spirit will very soon bring me to Foit St George

I am, &c.

MORNINGTON

No LII

The Earl of Mornington to Colonel William Palmer

Sir, August 19th 1798

Your letter No 31, dated the 26th July, reached me yesterday The present attuation of Scindiah, will probably dispose him to consider our interposition rather in the light of a friendly and seasonable assistance, than in that of an authoritative act of compulsion.

Under such circumstances, which I am persuaded you will improve to the utmost possible degree of advantage, I think it might be piacticable to enter into details with respect to the precautions, which become every day more necessary for the defence of Scindiah's dominions, against the threatened invasion of Zemaun Shah You are aware, that the injustice and violence of Scindiah have disgusted the Raiahs of Jvnagur and Joodipout, and other Chiefs of the Raiahpoot tube, who would form most useful allies to Scindiah and to the Company, in the event of the Shah's approach I wish you to endeavour to convince Scindiah of his deep interest in making such early concessions to the Raiahpoots, as may conciliate them towards him, at present I am afraid that his outrages have thrown them into the scale of their natural enemy Zemaun Shah, and have entirely separated them from the Mahiatta interest, to which they are attached by every natural tie I enclose a paper of intelligence respecting Zemann Shah, which appears more authentic than any which has hitherto reached me By a copy which I have received of the Persian paper, delivered by Captain Kirkpatrick to Azım ul Omra, I find that Captain Kirkpatrick has departed very widely both from the spirit and letter of my instructions to him Not having yet received from him any explanation of the motives of his conduct, I cannot yet form my judgment upon it, but it is necessary that you should take the earliest precautions against the effect to be apprehended from two passages in the Peisian paper, to which I have adverted The first relates to Tippoo Sultaun, with whom it would be supposed from the tenor of that paper, that war was in my opinion become not only inevitable, but desnable. The piimary object of all my present measures is to prevent war, by convincing Tippoo on the one hand, that we are perfectly prepared to meet him in the field, and on the other, that we are equally ready to accept of a just and moderate satisfaction for his late infraction of treaty

The second passage in Captam Kirkpatrick's paper, from which I apprehend mischief, is that, which states in such strong terms, my deterimination to use compulsory measures against Scindiah, my mistructions on this head appear to me to be sufficiently intelligible. My wish and expectation always has been, that measures of conclustion might effect all that I require from Scindiah, with considerable advantage to his own genuine interests, and I have authorized you to resort to compulsion in the last, and I trust improbable, extremity

You will bear these observations in your mind, in whatever conversations or papers shall pass during the course of this negociation

I have the honour to be, &c
Mornington

PS I have just now received Captam Kirkpatrick's account of his motives for varying and extending my propositions. He has judged rightly in extending the exclusion of the French to all Europeans excepting the British You will advert to this circumstance with reference to the state of Poonah

No LIII

(By Express)

The Earl of Mornington to Captain Kirkpatrick

Str., Fort William, 20th August, 1798

I have received your letters of the 31st July, and 2nd of August

I shall forward to you by the next post, a public letter containing my observations on their contents But I cannot delay the communication of my anxiety on some points, contained in the Peissan paper, delivered by you to Azim ul Omra

From the tenor of that paper, it would be supposed, that war with Tippoo was in my opinion, become not only inevitable but desirable

The pumary object of all my present measures is to prevent war, by convincing Tippoo, on the one hand, that we are perfectly prepared to meet him in the field, and on the other, that we are equally ready to accept of a just and moderate satisfaction for his late infraction of treaty

The manner in which that paper states my determination to use compulsory measures against Scindiah, is very different from the spirit of my instructions to Colonel Palmer My wish and expectation always has been, that measures of conclustion might effect all that I require from Scindiah, with considerable advantage to his own geniume interests, and I have authorized Colonel Palmer to resort to compulsion in the last, and I trust improbable, extremity But from your Persian paper it would be inferred, that I expected a contest with Scindiah, and that I was not desirous of conclusing that Clief

You will bear these observations in mind, and you will endeavour to remove impressions from which I apprehend the most serious mischief

Without at present adverting to the propriety of your having made any alteration in the propositions, which I directed you to make to Azim ii Omia, I shall confine myself to appirang you, that I do not feel any material objection to any alterations which you have made in the substance of those propositions, excepting that which respects the perimanency of the new subsidiary engagements. Such a proposition appears to me likely to create jealousy in the mind of the Nizam, without securing any possible advantage to us. You will therefore withdraw it, if it should have occasioned any objection

I do not yet think it prudent to disclose the nature of the demand of satisfaction, which I have it in contemplation to make from Tippoo, and I am therefore anxious, that you should take an early occasion of removing any impression, which may have been made by your suggestions on that subject

You will not delay your application for the force from Fort St George, in consequence of any difficulty which may have arisen, respecting the security for the pay of the new subsidiary force, the great object is to effect the dismission of the French force as speedly as possible

I am, &c Mornington

No LIV.

Lord Clive to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord,

222

Fort St George, 22 August, 1798

Having barely had time, under the circumstances of my recent arrival, to read your Lordship's confidential letters of the 16th ultimo, to General Harris, and of 29th* to myself, I shall not now presume to enter upon the very important

* The following is an extract from the letter referred to -

The Earl of Mornington to Lord Clive

(Most private and confidential)
My Lorp. Fort William

Fort William, July 29th, 1798

Although I have not the honour of your Lordship's personal acquaintance, I trust that my public situation and my analety to discharge its duties in a satisfactory manner will be a sufficient apology for the liberty which I take in troubling you with this letter

I leant the multilgence of your Lordshy's appointment to the Government of Fort St George with very great pleasure, being convinced that the affairs of that Presidency require the vigouous control of a person of your Lordshy's rank and character, and that you will have it in your power (as I am persuaded it is your unclination) to reader essential service to the interests of the Company, and to confer considerable benefits unon the zenole committed to vour peculiar charge.

For the system of measures which I think it advasable to adopt in the present crass with regard to the defence of the Carnatic, and to the restoration of our alliances, I refer your Lordship to my private correspondence with General Harris, and to the papers accompanying my last letter to him

Having frequently considered the state of the Presidency of Foit 8: George personally to my departure from Europe, and having had the George personally to my departure from Europe, and having had the poportunity of correcting, by personal observation, the opinions which I had formed as those, I thus it my duty to be perfore your Lordship, without reserve, the final result of my deliberate judgment upon assubject equality interesting to yourself and to me In pursuing the various topine connected with this subject, I shall communicate my ideas to your Lordship with the same degree of condictual freedom which I should use to my most intimate friend, being satisfied that your Lordship will not my most intimate friend, being satisfied that your Lordship will not suffer communications of so secret a nature to pass beyond your own mind, and being assured that you will receive them as the most unequired to the contraction of the production of

The Civil service of the Presidency of Fort St. George is unfortunately in a condition very far removed from perfection, and inferior in every respect to that of Bengal

The deficiency of most of the Civil servants at Madras, in the departments of revenue, is to be accorded in a great measure to the system so long prevalent of administering the revenues through provincial Chiefs and Councils, whose policy it was to confine the means of acquiring a knowledge of the nature of the collections within the most arrow channels, and who were themselves almost universally under the dominion of the Native agents and servants. The whole administration of the Revenue

224 LORD CLIVE TO August,

topics they contain, but content myself for the present, with expressing the grateful sense I entertain of the friendly and was a scheme of mystery, calculated to embarrass inquiry, and to skreen peculation from justice

The provision of the commercial investment upon the coast of Coromandel has also been managed almost exclusively by Native agents and contractors, and while their management shall continue, it cannot be expected that the servants of the Company will become conversant with the details of the several manufactures, or with the minute cucumstances which affect the quality of the different fabrics. This defective mode of administering the revenue and commerce of the Company on the coast rendered the study of the languages, customs and laws of the country a superfluous, if not an useless, labour, since a servant of the Company might reach the most arduous trusts, and might discharge them with as much credit as his predecessors had ever enjoyed, without the previous application necessary for acquiring any of those branches of knowledge On the other hand, the agnorance of the Company's civil servants necessarily threw them into the hands of the native Dubashes, whose destructive influence soon produced embarrassments, which led to the sacrifice of public trust and duty, and ultimately to the utter subversion of every principle of integrity and honour. To these causes must be added the continual operation of the intrigues of the Durbars of the Nabob of Arcot and of the Rajah of Tanjore The junior servants I trust, under your Lordship's superintendence, may be encouraged in the study of the native languages, a knowledge of which is indispensably necessary to enable them to discharge any important public trust with advantage to their employers, or with honour to themselves With this view, I most earnestly recommend it to your Lordship to direct your most vigilant attention to the conduct of the junior writers from the earliest period of their arrival at Madras Too many of them fall into early habits of extravagance, in which they are encouraged by the native Dubashes, and I declare to your Lordship my deliberate conviction, that this evil cannot be remedied in any other manner than by the personal exertions of the Governor himself Lord Cornwallis watched over the conduct and morals of the numer

Lord Convenies waterest over the consider term to mote of the justice servants of the Company in Bengal with the anxiety and subcitude of a parent, and the beneficial effects of his landable care are now viable in a newty department of this Government. To person of your Lordship's trade of the contract of the contrac unreserved manner, in which you have done me the honour to open your correspondence, and with assuring your Lord-

Medias is to be discovered in the original condition of the writers sent out from Europe, and that from the same source must be derived any permanent system of improvement

I should have observed to your Lordship, that I believe a proper public building for the reception of the writers upon their first arrival at Madras, would be a very desirable object, the buildings at present used for that purpose are extremely contracted, and, as I was informed, absolutely uninhabitable by any but those of the most vigorous constitution I would also suggest to your Lordship's consideration, whether it might not be proper to increase the salaries of the present offices of Mahratta and Persian Translator, and to found offices of a similar description for the translation of the various languages, in which the public business is transacted in different parts of the country subject to your Presidency A measure of this nature would operate as a great encouragement to the study of the native languages upon the coast Your Lordship will perceive by the directions which I shall speedily forward to you in Council, that it is my wish to introduce, in all those countries subject to your Government, which are now in a state to receive such an improvement, that system of permanent settlement of revenue, connected with a speedy and regular administration of justice, from which such essential benefits have been derived in Bengal I conversed very fully with all the Members of the Board of Revenue at Fort St George on this most interesting subject, m which the prosperity and happiness of the whole people committed to your particular charge is deeply concerned, and I was convinced by the information I received from those respectable Gentlemen, that the system, to which I have adverted, might immediately be introduced into almost every part of your Lordship's Government with infinite advantage, not only to the Native inhabitants, but to the civil service of the Company I am aware that, at the first institution of the courts of justice, it may be very difficult, in the present state of the civil service of Fort St George, to find a sufficient number of persons properly qualified for the several judicial offices, but, on the other hand, the institution of such offices will open new channels for the ambition, industry and talents of your civil servants The study of the manners, languages, customs, and laws of the natives will then become general, and the beneficial effects of such an additional incitement to the activity of your servants will soon be widely extended, and will gradually produce a supply of persons equal to all the duties of the Company's civil service

Before I quit the subject of the state of the civil service at Madras, I must beg leave to call your Lordship's attention to the revision of your civil establishments, as directed in my letter in Council of this date, addressed to the President in Council of Fort St. George Livery practicable reduction of your expenses and augmentation of your revenue will be of importance in the present distressed at ite of the finances of the Company in India. If my information be correct, the proposed a tablishment of LORD CLIVE, TO August, ship that I am entering upon the important duties of my station, with a mind fully impressed of the great advantage

226

the courts of justice will not ultimately prove any additional buithen upon your finances

With respect to the military establishments at Fort St. George, I have the states fixton to declare to your Loudship, that I do not believe there exists in any part of the world an atmy more distinguished for its high state of discipline, or for the activity, gallanty, and skill of its officers, than that which will be under your immediate direction

In the ranks of Colonel, Lieutenant-Colonel, and those still inferior, you will find many excellent officers

The defects in your mittany establishments, which impede the power of putting any considerable postion of your aimy in motion at a short notice, are considered in my letter to your Presidency of the 20th July, and in my minute, recorded in the Secret Department at Fort Williams of the same date, of which I will soon transmir a copy to your Lordship

I most carnestly entreat your early and serous attention to the very alamming considerations which ares from the view which I have taken of this important subject. Your Lordship will receive a more full detail of my sentiments on this head from General Harris, who will communicate to you all my private correspondence relating to it. I must also take the liberty of requesting that you will allow my brother, Colonel Wellesley, (whose regiments is now under orders for Fort St. George, to have bonour of stating to your Lordship at large my opinions with respect to the defence of the Garnatic

Your Lordship will have learnt previously to your departure from Europe, that I was charged by the Court of Directors to attempt, by means of persuasion and advice, to induce his Highness the Nabob of the Cainatic to agree to the same modification of the treaty of 1792, which had been proposed to him by Lord Hobart General Harris, and Mr Lushington, who acted as my interpreter, will state to your Lordship the means which I employed to endeavour to accomplish the object of my commission, in which I entirely failed I was equally unsuccessful in my endeavours to prevail upon his Highness to make provision for the liquidation of any part of his debt to the Company, I am persuaded that it will ever be wholly impracticable to induce his Highness the Nabob (by means of conciliation) to surrender the management of any part of his country into the hands of the Company, and I am satisfied that any other means would be as foreign to your Lordship's disposition as they are to mine My fixed rule during my continuance at Madras was, to treat the Nabob with the respect due to his rank, with the kindness due to the uncient friendship between his family and the Company, and with the delicacy demanded by his dependent situation. At the same time I avoided all familiarity with him, and I animadverted very fully upon the defects of lus administration, and upon the extreme impropriety of his late conduct with relation to the interests of the Company I never allowed him to utter any invective against Lord Hobart, notwithstanding his various atwhich must result from mutual confidence and co-operation, and with the intention of shewing the highest deference, and tempts, both in public and private, to induce me to listen to a vein of abuse, in which his Highness is too apt to indulge himself on that subnect You will find his Highness's disposition to be very far from amiable or respectable, he is insincere, mean, and timid; he is however said to be humane in his temper. although Lord Hobart has recorded instances. which impute to him the guilt of very great cruelty. He is by no means deficient in his understanding, I have met with few men who possess more address, his abilities however were always exhibited to me in the form of low cunning, artifice, and subterfuge You will find a most vii ulent party formed against his Highness amongst a certain description of the Company's servants, civil and military, at Madras The persons concerned in this party preserve no bounds of moderation or of decency in their public language concerning his Highness's conduct and character. and if then opinion were suffered to guide the councils of the Government of Fort St George, there is no degree of public humiliation or disgrace to which his Highness would not be subjected, and scarcely an excess of compulsion and violence, which would not be attempted, to extort the surrender of his country from him I must here take the occasion of assuring your Lordship, that the character of those measures is wholly inconsistent with the acknowledged temper and disposition of Loid Hobart, whom I have known with the utmost degree of intimacy for many years I shall forward to your Lordship shortly copies of the papers which passed between me and the Nabob, together with my observations upon them In the meanwhile, I offer it as my sincere advice to your Lordship, not to attempt any immediate negociation with his Highness for the surrender of his country, I found his mind in a state of great irritation and alarm, and although I flatter myself that those emotions were in some degree abated by my intercourse with him, I can hardly expect that he is yet inclined to give favourable attention to any proposition for a modification of the treaty of 1792 For my own part, notwithstanding the anxiety of the Court of Directors upon the subject, I entertain very serious doubts whether the Company would gain considerably by the surrender of the mortgaged districts. This however is a point, upon which I have not yet formed a decided opinion I must therefore entreat your Lordship to turn your attention to it, and as I am persuaded that you will consider the question without passion or prejudice, and that no virulence of party will be suffered to warp your judgment. I expect to derive considerable advantage from receiving the honour of your opinion

With segard to the Nabol's debt to the Company, I think the present moment of general voluntary contribution might offer a favourable opportunity for persuading his Highness to pay the whole or part of the new caraly loan, and I shall speedly forward to your Lordship is letter for his Highness, suggesting the propriety of so seasonable a step in the picsent moment

I should here observe, that his Highness expressed great anxiety to be giving the most coidial support to the measures of the supreme Government With great consideration and esteem,

My Lord, &c CLIVE

allowed to correspond privately with me, but I declined the proposition, and you Lordship may be assured, that I will admit of no other mode of communication between his Highness and me than the regular channel of your Government

It is very necessary that we should be prepared to decide the eventual question of the succession to the Nabobship in the probable event of his Highness's early death Your Lordship will have the goodness to ascertain, with as much accuracy as possible, the respective pretensions of those who might lay claim to the Musnud in such an event Upon such information as I shall receive from you, we may be enabled to anticipate the mischiefs of a disputed succession, and to avoid the disgrace of adopting a premature decision, which we might afterwards be compelled to revoke General Harris will have communicated to you the directions of this Government with respect to the succession to the Musnud of Tanjoie, and you will have learnt the manner in which those directions have been executed I shall be extremely anxious to receive the report of the commission, which is to be appointed for enquiring into the real state of Tanfore Untill that report shall be received, it will be impossible to form a permanent system for the unprovement of the interests of the Raiah or of the Company in that fertile, but hairassed country I think it necessary however to apprize your Lordship, that such information, as I have already been enabled to obtain upon this subject, leads me to hope that the most advantageous arrangement for the interests of the Company will prove to be that, which would evidently most redound to their honour. and would place the character of their justice on the most substantial foundation. Your Lordship will have anticipated my idea, that the restoration of the whole country to Seriogee under an improved system of management, chicked by the superintendence of the Government of Port St George, would produce the most beneficial permanent consequences to both parties It was with this express view that I suggested the policy of endeavouring to persuade Serfogee to make a temporary cession of his Kingdom to our management, in order that we might provide for him (during our temporary possession,) not only such a permanent system of administration, as should enable him hereafter to govern his people with justice and mildness, but also such funds, as should admit of his making the necessary advances for the cultivation of the country, and of his securing the regular discharge of his subsidy to the Company

I now proceed to that part of my communication with your Lordship, which, although the most delicate and inviduous, is perhaps the most urgently demanded by my public duty, and by the real interest which I take an the success of your Lordship's administration

With these sentiments, I shall deliver my unreserved opinion of the characters of such persons as I had an opportunity of knowing at Mudias, and I must observe that, although my continuance at Madias was but short, I had very frequent opportunities of seeing all the persons of whom I shall sneak to your Lordshin

Mr Webbe, the Secretary of the Government, appeared to me to be a man of talents and knowledge, his integrity I believe to be unblemished

Your Lordship will find all the Members of the Board of Revenue worthy of confidence, Mi Cockhun howered deserves particular notice, he bears the highest reputation for integrity, talents, and knowledge of the business of the country, and I found him fully answerable to his general character. I have very seldow met with a more valuable man in any put of the world, and I take the hierary of recommending him most esinically to your Lordship's attention, as a person upon whom you may rely for the most accurate information, and for the soundest and most bound opinions, entirely exempt from any taint of passion, prejudice, or selfinterest.

Mr White is a very deserving and useful man, I understand that he is not likely to remain at Madias beyond the present season

Mr Harrington is a gentleman of the highest character for integrity and dhipeane. You Lordship will find him a rey valuable public servant. His brother is the ablest office in the Court of Suddet Dewannee Adaulut in Bengal, and a person who possesses just pretenanous to an enument station in the Judicial Department at this Presidency. Mr Luthington, Secretary to the Board of Revenue, and Private Secretary to General Harris, although a very young man, ought to the patiential mentioned to your Lordship, as possessing very considerable talents and knowledge, unted with an uncommon degree of discretion and judence, and with a peculiar propiety of manners. He has paid great attention to the study of the Persian language, in which he as a considerable proficient. He is without exception the most promising young man I saw at Madras, and as far as I could judge from containal natercourse with him during my stay there, I believe him to possess the soundest principles of mitegrity and bonour

Mi. Nathamel Kundersley's charactes for unteguts, ability, and general howledge, is universally established. He appeared to me to stand uset to Mr. Cockburn in point of consideration as Fort St. George. He has however lately adopted the business of agency and private trude, and thesefore has relamptashed to a cettum degree the service of the Company, and has relaxed that minute attention to the details of business, which you will find to be the peculiar characteristic of M. Occkburn

Colonel Close, the Adjutant-General, is a very whit and intelligent man, and is perfectly conversant with the Persana language. He is reputed to be of a vehement and ardeat temper, and inclined to promote measures of that character, but I saw no symptom of any such disposition in him. The reputation of his integritive is unblemship.

Captain Malcolm, the Town Major, descrives every degree of countenance and protection. He is an officer of great worth, of extremely good sense, and will acquainted with the country languages, he has turned his attention particularly to the study of the political system of India, and to the relative situations and intenests of the several native powers, on this subject he scapable of furmaling your Lordship with useful information, and you will find him remarkably diligent, active, and zealous in the execution of any service with which you may entrust him. He has also the advantage of very ulessing and antable manner.

advantage of very pleasing and amisoic manners

In this place I take the liberty of mentioning to your Lordship the name of Captain Montgomery, who commands your body guard, he is a very worthy and intelligent man

Major Allan was a particular friend of Lord Hobart, and I believe him to be an intelligent and honourable man

The administration of the Company's Jaghre, under Mi. Loosel Place, has been a subject of great animostry and party at Port St. George, Tour Lordship's notice will, of course, be immediately directed to it. Mi. Place (whom I did not see as Madras) as I am informed, is a man of considerable tailents, and of great diagence and zeal in the public service. Ho certainly has been engaged in a most invitious and difficult ditty, in the execution of which he has encountered with great spatt and perservance the combined influence of all the Dubashes of Madras, and has succeeded in effecting 4 considerable sugarentation of the produce of the Jaghre On the other hand, I should apprize your Lordship, that increated complaints were stated to me of his ingroves treatment of the ienters and cultivators of the soil subject to his authority, and doubts were suggested with respect to the justice of his settlement of the land revenue

I had not sufficient time at Madras to enable me to enter into the investigation of the charges against Mr Place, and my intention in what I have said upon this subject is merely to draw your Lordship's notice to it The general impression upon my mind is, that the introduction of the Mocurrery system of land revenue would be more desirable, as well as more speedily practicable in the Jaghue, than in any other part of the Company's territories on the coast Having troubled your Lordship with so much detail upon the subject of the internal Government of Fort St George, I shall proceed to state some considerations with regard to the nature of the relation between that Government and the Governor General in Council of Bengal Your Lordship is, I doubt not, perfectly conversant with the provisions of the law on this point, I shall therefore advert merely to the practical principles resulting from those provisions, and I am anxious to explain my sentiments to your Lordship upon this head in the earliest period of your Government, not only because the greatest inconveniences have resulted to the public service from misunderstandings of the distinct practical duties of the two Governments, but because I know that a faction exists at Madras, whose constant endeavour has been and will be assiduously employed to foment those misunderstandings into a systematic spirit of jealousy and contention

All measures relating to the general defence and protection of India, to the system of our alliances, and of our negociations or interconstant with the native powers, to the lerying war or making peace, to the general administration of the revenues of all the Prendencies, to the employed of the anistray force, and finally to every point affecting the general interests whether civil, unitary, or political of the Company's possession. form the exclusive duties arising out of the superintending power of the Governor General in Council For all measures of this description, he alone is responsible, and therefore the duty of the other Presidencies, with regard to such measures, consists in a cordual cooperation in the execution of that, which it is the peculiar province of the Governor Geneial in Council to determine The Governor General being in possession of the whole superintendence and control, as well as of the means of comprehending in one view the entire state of the Company's empire and trade, and of all the various considerations and circumstances which may affect either, must frequently issue instructions, the fundamental principles and final scope of which cannot at first sight be fully understood by the other Presidencies in such cases (as well indeed as in any of those already described), I am persuaded that your Lordship will concur with me in thinking that the duty of the other Presidencies can never be to mix direct or indirect censures with their formal obedience to the legal authority of the Governor-General in Council Still less can it be then duty, to anticipate his decisions by the premature interposition of their opinions and advice in any quarter, where such interference may counteract the success of his general plans, and may introduce all the mischiefs and confusion of divided councils, and of conflicting authority The examination of the records of the late Government of Fort St George, will manifest to your Lordship a constant tendency towards this fatal error, and even since my arrival in Bengal, I have found it necessary to restrain the symptoms of the same disposition in two instances, the one a letter written to Admiral Rainier, without any previous concert with me, suggesting a plan of operations for his Majesty's squadron entirely incompatible with my views for the general protection of our possessions The other, a letter to me in Council, containing both direct and indirect censures of the orders which I have lately issued for assembling the aimy on the coast, a measure indispensably necessary, and founded on a variety of reasons, of which the Government of Fort St George could not at that time comprehend either the nature or extent

Under your Lordship's administration, I am confident that no such embarrassment can ever occur. With the same freedom which I have used throughout this letter, I will state to you distinctly the mode in which I propose to conduct the intercourse between the two Governments, with a view to secue their cordial cooperation, and to preclude the possibility of distinction. Every endeavou shall be used on my part to communicate to your Lordship the fallest and cathest intelligence of the nature and object of any measure which I may have in contemplication, other with relation to your particular flower ment, to it the general interests of the whole British Empire in India. These communications will be made to your Lordship through the channel of my private cortexpondence. On the other hand, I make it my earnest request to your Lordship, that whenever any such communication shall be delayed, you will attribute the delay eithe to the absolute necessity of the case, of to my wrows of the public serice, and that you will therefore have the goodness to prevent the Government of Fort St. George from proceeding to take any steps upon matters belonging to my exclusive responsibility. without a full previous communication with me, and without being apprised of my concurrence. In your Lordship's private correspondence, I trust that your Lordship will permit me to hope for the advantage of your unreserved oninion, not only with respect to all matters within your own neculiar charge, but to any point which you may think essential to the general interests of the British Empire in India, and I assure your Lordship most succeedy that I shall always receive your private suggestions as personal favours In regulating your public correspondence, I request that your Lordship will advert to the suggestions contained in this letter, and that you will exclude from the public records every indication of realousy and counteraction. On my part you will always find a sincere disposition in every transaction, both public and private, to consider your Lordship's authority as a part of my own, and to repel every attempt to disunite the two Governments

By these means I flatter myself that I may be emabled to contribute effectual assistance to you Lordship in promoting those important interests, in the prosperity of which you must feel a natural and heachitant occored. It would give me great estanfaction to have the honour of a personal internew with you in the early period of your government, such an event would greatly contribute to forward the public service. Perhaps your Lordship may feel a disposition to visit Plassey during the approaching old season in Bengal, if you should find yourself at leasure to make such an expedition, I can assure your Lordship that you will be received here by the whole settlement and by myself with the marks of distinction and respect to which you are on every account entitled, and that you will find in the mind of all those entrued with the administration of these opulent and flourshing provinces, a grateful remembrance of the exertions to which the Company is indicated for this valuable possession.

This letter has been copied from my original draft by my brothet,* who is my private secretary. I would not entrust a paper of so confidential and secret a nature to any other hand

I have the honour to be, with great respect and esteem, My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient and faithful Servant, Mornington

Mr. Henry Wellesley

No LV

The Earl of Morning ton to the Honourable the Court of Directors

Hon Sirs, Fort William, 23d August, 1798

I have the honout to inform you, that I have addiesed to Mi Secietary Ramsey by this despatch, for the use of your Honomable Court, several printed copies of the proceedings of a meeting of the British inhabitants at Calcutta, assembled on the 17th July, for the purpose of expressing, in an humble and dutiful addiess to his Majesty, then loyalty and attachment to his 10xal person and government at this important crisis, and also of considering the best mode of promoting voluntary contributions in these provinces and their dependences, and of remuting the same to Great Britain, in order that the amount thereof may be there applied to the public service, in such manner as Parlament may diest?

In addition to the meeting which has taken place at Calcutta, I have the satisfaction to acquaint you Honourable Court, that a similar spirit has manifested itself in every part of these provinces, not only amongst his Majestr's troops and every description of your ovil and military servants, but amongst all the Europeans residing under the protection of the Company

Several of the most respectable native inhabitants of Calcutta having signified an earnest desire to take this opportunity of proving their attachment to the intenests of the British empire, I did not oppose the public expression of sentiments so honounable to the reputation of your Governments in India. At the same time I think it necessary to assure you that the subscription of the natives originated in their own spontaneous solicitude for the safety of the Butish empire, and was not suggested by any interference of your

^{*} Among the sums subscribed on this occasion at and above 1,000.
Sin Chinnburg, Mr J Harr, Mr W A Booke, Su J Cang, Magor G R Stuntt, 1,000 each, Sir Charles Cockerell, Mr P Spide, Mr W Johnson (for W Cowper), Mr Stephen Bayard, 1,0001 cansully during the war. Sackis Johannes, 1,2001, Corps of Engueers, 1,2501 cansully during the war. Least-General Sir A Claike, 2,0001 and the Governo General 3,0001 cansully during the war. Subscriptions into 5001 mountly during the war. Native as well as Europeans, the total amount being 130,7861. The Presidencies of Mudias and Bombay exhibited a similal sum to noble and astrotic feeling.

Being persuaded that you would feel great satisfaction in receiving these unequivocal testimonies of the loyalty and public spint of every class and description of the inhabitants of these provinces, I thought it my duity to avail myself of the can lest opportunity of forwarding an account of the whole transaction in the most convenient form. It is my intention to transmit the original address to His Majesty by the ship, Eurydice, which will be despatched in a few days. By that opportunity I propose to submit to you Honourable Count a more detailed report of all the encumstances relating to the subject of this letter.

You Honourable Court will probably have received from Fort St George, and from Bombay, accounts of the proceednags relative to a voluntary contribution at those Presidences, at both of which it has given me great pleasure to observe the prevalence of the same laudable disposition which exists in every part of these Promices

I have, &c
Mornington

No LVI

To the Government of Fort St George

Fort William, 29th August, 1798

We have received your letter of the 3rd instant, in reply to our orders of the 13th ultimo,* for assembling a detachment of four thousand men for the service of the Nizam.

Our Secretary has also laid before us your Secretary's let-

* The following is the order from the Governor-General in Council —

To the Government of Fort St. George

Fort William, 13th July, 1798

We think it proper to acquaint you that we deem it probable that a military force will shouly be required from your establishment for the service of the Nizam, in addition to the Bengal regiment now stationed at Hyderabad

You will accordingly give immediate orders for assembling, with all practicable dispatch, two native regiments of infantity, with field pieces, each battalion completed to the war establishment of 1,000 men

We must particularly request that an able and experienced officer may be selected for the command of this force ter to him of the same date, enclosing a copy of a minute from your President on the subject of that detachment.

The zeal and public spirit which distinguish the sentiments of your President, in expressing his anxiety for the speedy execution of our orders, demand our warmest acknowledgements

The force should be collected in whatever station in the Company's territories you may deem most eligible for enabling it to reach Hyderabad with all possible expedition

It is at the same time desirable that the station to be selected for assembling the toops should be such as, consistently with the consideration stated in the pieceding paragraph, may be least likely to excite any suspicion of their destination

We have empowered the Acting Resident at Hyderabad to call for this force whenever he may judge it expedient, and you will instruct the officer who may be appointed to command it, to hold it in constant readness to match to Hyderabad at the requisition of the Acting Resident symiled to the Commanding Officer

On the arrival of the detachment in his Highness's territories, Lieut-Colonel Hyndman will place himself under the orders of the Commanding Officer, who will, of course, be a senior officer to Colonel Hyndman

The Commanding Officer is to be instructed to conform to all such further directions as he may receive from the Acting Resident, as soon as the troops shall have entered his Highness's territories

It is of the greatest importance that the object of collecting this force should not transpire, you will therefore take such precautions for this purpose as you may judge advisable

In the event of the two regiments being called for by the Acting Resident, we authorize you to take immediate steps for raising two additional native regiments of infantity at your Presidency Should you have reason to apprehend any difficulty in furnishing a sufficient force for the performance of the local multary duties in the northern Circars during the interval of time which must elapse pieviously to the completion of the new regiments, you will apprize us of your opinions in this respect, and if you should express a wish for an additional military force, we propose to despatch our marine battalion by sea to the northern Circars you will inform us at what port, in such case, the corps could most conveniently be landed It is likewise our intention to embark his Majesty's 33d regiment for your Presidency, and we direct that you take the earliest opportunity after its arrival of sending the men of the 36th regiment to Bengal to be drafted into the 76th. It is our intention to communicate to you, by an early opportunity, the circumstances which have induced us to issue the orders contained in this despatch

We are, &c

MORNINGTON ALURED CLARKE P Spear W Cowper It is matter of great satisfaction to us that the result of your deliberations terminated in the necessary steps for assembling the force which we had directed you to detach to the not them Circuis, as any delay in the execution of our orders might have occasioned consequences injurious to the British interests in India.

We are, however, concerned to remark the terms in which you have expressed your letter of the 3d instant, and particularly the 5th paragraph* In our letter of the 10th

* The following is the letter -

From the Secret Department to the Earl of Mornington, KP

My LORD. Fort St. George, 3rd August, 1798

We have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, dated 13th uit, containing your orders for assembling 1,000 men, in such a situation as we may judge most convenient for their marching to Hyderabad, upon the recuisition of the Acting Resident

If the representation which we have judged it our duty to make, in our letter of the 10th uit, upon the state of our means to mittare equipment could have come under your Lordship's consideration, before the assue of or the present orders, we should have been relieved from a very consideration, the consideration of the consideration of the present orders, we should have been relieved from a very consideration with your directions.

By your Lordshup's letter of the 50th June, we are duested to assemble the arm under this Presidency, with a rowt to offensive operations against Tippoo Sultaun, in our ruply to that letter, we have shewn that the whole force we can assemble in basely equal to defensive operations, in the event of a war with Tippoo, and that we are destitute of means for equipingia, without large supplies from Bengal

By your Lordship's present orders, we are directed to assemble a body of 4,000 men in the Guntoni Circar, which we have not the means of doing without detaching a very considerable proportion of our defensive army

On the one hand we have your Leidship's posture orders for assembling a many for defeating the hostile designs of Tippon, for the executions of which he appears to the Supreme Government to have taken preliminary measures, or the other, we have also your Lorichary's posture orders for furnishing a large proportion of our force for the service of his Highness the Nizam. A soyur Lorichary's last orders do not advert to the object of the first, we conclude you look upon them as distinct objects, but, being committed to the first by the deagns of the enemy, as well as our own preparations, we are reduced to the necessity either of crippling those preparations, which cannot be done without conndeable danger, of disobeying your positive orders, and theirly defenting perhaps your object in equipment of Auchement for Plydeclabal

If we believed that this force was required only for the ordinary service

mstant, we have already declared our determination to exclude from the correspondence between the two Governments all of the Ni/am, we should not have hesitated to postpone the execution of your orders until you should have determined upon our representation of the 10th riliumo, but having reason to believe, from the urgency with which our Present informs up, that Loud Mornington has pressed the equipment of this detachment, that the formation of it is of great importance to the Britain interests in India, and being satisfied, at the same time, upon the opinion of Leutenant General Harris, that our remaining force is still equal to cope with the aimy of Tippoo in the field, we have chosen to risk the diminution of that force, rather than disappoint your Loudship's arrangements of the Soubakl's Court.

We have accordingly assend the necessary orders for assembling from buttainoss of native infanty completely equipped for field service, in the neighbourhood of Innacondida in the Giuntoor Cincer, which situation we have selected as most stude to the directions of your Lordship in Council, and as soon as it may be in a condition to more, we shall sent the further orders required to the control of the control

Having this complied with the orders of your Lordship in Council, we doesn it on duty to apprize you that the axingments which have consequence become necessary, have deprived us of three hotatalions of native infinity which we had detuned for field service, in event of way with Tippo Sultain, and which we have not the immediate means of replacing, we shall hereafter forward an exact terum of the trops which are about to assemble as Walliaphad, for the formation of our defensive army, as soon as at can be prepared.

Having repeatedly and unequivocally urged upon your Lordahny's consideration our financial embairssments, we shall not now revive the subject farther than by informing you that the whole of our piesent arrangement has been made upon the confident assuiance of a very large supply of specie by his Mjaetty's ship Le Pignam in the course of this month, and that any disappointment of those hopes must put a stop, if not to the military may of our thoops, at least to every exertion for their commont

Having detached so considerable a part of our army, we have judged it increases any to the safety of these territories, that the remandie should not startly be put in a state to take the field at a moment's warrang, we have retained the orders necessary for providing draft and extraction cattle for the field train, for the provisions, for the stores, and for the camp equipage of the center army, and though it is not our immediate mitention to encompthem, we shall yet make such a disposition as to admit of their immediation without danger or delay

These several measures have consideably enhanced the expenses of our military establishment, we have, in consequence, stopped all further advances for the investment, and have ordered the greatest part of our civil revenue and commercial establishments to be discharged by bills on Bengal

We shall hereafter avail ourselves of the latitude you have left us for discussions of the nature contained in that paragraph, and we trust that our suggestions on this subject will be observed in your future correspondence with us

We have now to acquant you that we have embalked for your Plessdency on his Majesty's ships La Virginae the sum of thin teen lacs of 1 upees, and it is our intention to send you a further supply in specie of not less than seven lacs by the Rundau Pistate

Hi. Majesty's 33rd regiment has been embaiked in the Fitzwilliam, Busbridge, Camden, and Henry Dundas

Ou, marine battalion will embaik for Masulipatam on the Bombay Frigate, the Peggy and Princess Charlotte, country ships, we have furthen resolved to send you a detachment of artillery, consisting of one company of Europeans, and two companies of Laseaus, with six field pieces This detachment will be embaiked on the Caledonia, and will also be landed at Masulinatam raising two additional regiments on the establishment, meanwhile we have ordered our revenue corps in the northern Circar to be completed to 600 men each, and we beg leave to apprize you that, if it should hereafter be judged advasable to send round your marine battalion, it will be most convenient to us that they should be landed at Massilpated.

The ships with the manne battalion and the detachment of artillery will, we trust, be clear of the river by the 1st of next month

In the present cureaustances of our army, we think it out duty to state, in the most exploit manner, that we could not part with his Majesty's 56th reguent without the most postive injury to the public service. His Majesty's 14th and 38d regiments, and 26th dragoous, being new regiments, and unused to the climate, cannot be expected to escape the unwarable condution of all new theres upon taking the field, the exposince, therefore, of the officers, with the hardness and discipline of the men, of the 36th regiment, are now become mentionable, and we have no heastston in saying that, under the appearance of impending hostility, the loss of that gallant and efficient corpe cannot be replaced

Agreeably to the intimation contained in our letter of the 10th July, we have now the honout to enclose a statement of the monthly expense of our centre army, and of the balance of cash this day in our Treasury Your Lordship will observe, that the expenses of the army at Wallajabd are calculated upon the returns itansmitted to you on the 10th of

We have the honour to be, my Lord, Your Lordship's most obedient humble Servants, Geo Harris EDWD SAUNDERS We entirely approve of your having determined to put your aimy in a state to take the field at a moment's waining, and of your making such a disposition of the several corps as will enable them to form a junction without danger or delay

We also approve of the temporary suspension of your advances for your investment, of the provision which you have made for discharging a part of your civil revenue and commercial establishments by bills on Bengal, and of the orders which you have given for completing your revenue cops in the northern Chicars to the establishment of 600 men

We think it indispensably necessary to desire that the men of the 36th regiment may be sent to Bengal, agreeably to our former directions, by the first opportunity which may office after the arrival of the 33d at Fort St George, and that the other directions given respecting the remainder of the 36th, may be complied with

We are perfectly sensible of the long and gallant services of the 36th regiment, but adverting to the period of the arrival in India of the 12th and the 33d regiments, and to the solvices on which they have been repeatedly employed an valuous parts of the world, with credit to themselves and benefit to their country, we are of opinion that those corps cannot justly be considered as new levies unused to the climate of India.

In order, however, to afford you every practicable degree of assistance in the present moment, we suthorize you to detain his Majesty's 29th regiment of diagona on its airwal at Foit St George, if you should deem its services absolutely necessary. This regiment may be employed on gainson duty, and will enable you to add the greater part of the European regiment now in garnison to your foice in the field

We have the honour to be, &c.

[The letter of the 10th August, with the Enclosures referred to, is as follows —

No LVII

From the Governor-General in Council to the Hon Lient General Harris, Governor in Council, Fort St. George

HON SIR.

Fort William, 10th August, 1798

We have had the honor to receive your letter of the 10th July, in answer to ours of the 20th June *

We approve the assurances which you have expressed of your disposition to cooperate condully with us in such measures as we may judge expedient for flustrating the designs of the enemy, and we have no doubt that you will discharge,

* The following is the letter of the 20th June -

From the Governor General in Council to the Hon Lieut-General Harris, Governor in Council of Fort St. George

Hov Sir,

Fort William, June 20, 1798,

The Governor General having communicated to us an authenticated copy of a proclamation, published by the Governor of Mauritius during the residence of two Ambassadors from Tippoo Sultaun at that island, we now transmit you a cony of the same

From this proclamation, combined with every circumstance attending is publication, it appears that Tippoo Sultain has not only openly arowed a design of commencing offensive war against the British possessions in India, but has actually taken the preliminary steps for putting that design into excustion.

The Governor General in Council is at present occupied in deliberating upon the general system of measures which it may be advisable to adopt for the purpose of frustrating the united efforts of Impoo and of France, the result will be communicated to you by the earliest opportunity

In the meanwhile, however, it is a requisite precaution to make such seasonable preparations as may enable us to act with effect under any circumstances which may arise

We therefore direct that the army under the orders of your Government be assembled with the utmost degree of expedition, at such station as you shall judge most chighlib, for the purpose of proceeding directly to Seingapatam, if such a measure should hereafter be deemed necessary

You will be careful not to disclose the object of the preparations which we have hereby directed you to make, until you shall receive further instructions from us

It is our intention to forward a supply in specie to Fort St. George by His Majesty's ship, La Virginie, as soon as that ship shall be ready to sail

We have the honom to be, &c

MORNINGTON A CLARKS
P SPEKE W COWPER

.

100. GHARRAD DARRES

with alacrity and zeal, this indispensable part of your public duty

In our letter of the 20th July,* we have adverted to those causes which impede the movement of your army in a con-

The following is the Minute and Letter of the 20th July, 1798 —
 Minute of the East of Mornington

Fort William, July 20, 1798

When the proclamation published by the Governor of Mauritus made is first appearance in Bengal, I thought it my duty to apprize the Governor of Fort St George, that if that extraordinary publication should prove authentic, it must lead to discussions of a serious nature between this Government, and Typno Sultiani, and I suggested the necessity of taking the earliest preparatory steps towards the assembly of the army upon the coast.

When the authenticity of the proclamation became established, I thought it my duty not only to direct the assembly of the army, but to assection how soon that force might be enabled to move, either for the purposes of offence or defence.

With this view, I transmitted several questions to the Governor of Fort St George, upon which I desired to obtain his opinion, as well as that is of the principal military authorities upon the coast, and I requested that an officer of experience and ability, might be despatched to the Presidency with the answers to my several questions, and with such further information, as might tend to thow light upon the subject

The Governor of Fort St. George, without delay, returned the answer to my questions by the Bombay frigate, and an officer was directed to accompany the despatch, but he was prevented by an accident, from embalking on that ship

The substance of the communications received from the Governor of Fort St. George, is of a nature so important, and alarming that I have felt it my indispensable duty to lay it immediately before the board

From these communications, it appears to be the opinion of the Adjutant General, Luettenant Colonel, Close, that the force which could be assembled immediately upon the coust, could not be equal to more than defensive operations, and that the cattle necessary to enable that force to more, even for purposes of defence, could not be collected before the commencement of the ensuing year.

The opinions of the Governor of Fort St George, and of other respectable authorities at that Presidency, differ materially from that of Colonel Close, in stating, that sufficient cattle might be procured to enable the army to move for defensive purposes, within three months

Thus it appears, that the shortest period of time within which the army on the coast can be put in motion, even for purposes of defence, is three months, according to some respectable authorities, and six months according to that of the Adjutant General, whose oficial situation, must render him peculiarly competent to form a judgment on the question. juncture, when, according to your information, a great part of the army of Tippoo Sultaun has long been in a state of equipment for the field. We expect to receive from you, with

It is impossible for any human foresight to ascertain the piecise time, when an attack from Tippoo may be expected

But it is a matter of public notoriety, that he will attack the Carnatic, whenever circumstances shall appear to favour his design

If in consequence of his alliance with the French, he had received the aid of one or two regiments, either from the Mauritius, on from France, there is every reason to suppose, that he would immediately have attempted an irruption into the Carnatic, with the whole strength of his regular cavalry, which although dimmined, is still considerable

To this force would probably have been added numerous bodies of n regular troops

The pecuhar character of this force has always been the rapidity of its movements, and it is well known that a large portion of Tippoo's army, is constantly maintained in a state of preparation for the field

To counteract such an enemy, and to avert the detastation which must attend the first inroad of his army, our protecting force should be so constituted, as to be capable of meeting his attack by movements equally rand

The present constitution of our force upon the coast, does not appear to be founded on this principle

Tippoo's preparations are believed to be such as to enable him to move at any time with facility and celerity, even for the purposes of offence, while the condition of our protecting force, will not admit of its moving even for purposes of defence, within a shorter period of time than three, or according to the Adjutiant General, than are months

Our army upon the coast under such circumstances, must be deemed, notwithstanding its high state of discipline, and the acknowledged gallantry, activity and skill of its officers, nearly disqualified for the primary object of its institution—"The defence of the Carantic, against a sudden invasion"

It is now evident, that if Tippoo had succeeded in obtaining the object of his late Embassy to the Isle of Fiance, no obstacle could have been opposed to his progress in the Carnatic for many months

My enquiries have naturally been directed to accertain the causes which occasion so altering a difference between the state of our army upon the coast, and of that of Tippo, with relation to their respective powers of moving at a short notice. The result of the consideration which I have given to this subject, leads me to believe that the radical effects in the constitution of the army on the coast, which must always retard its equipment for the field, are these, the want of a permanent establishment of draft bullocks, the want of a regular system for the speedy collection of carrage bullocks from the country, the want of established stores of grain, and of other supplies necessary for the provision of a stores of grain, and of other supplies necessary for the provision of a stary in the field, the want of proper regulations for providing camp as much despatch as the nature of the subject will admit, such further advices as may enable us, in concert with you, to frame a nermanent system for the correction of those defects

943

equipage, and lastly, the want of a regularly established train of artillery, with all its proper components

The motives which prevented Government from providing the army upon the coast, with the several establishments in which it is now deficient, have certainly proceeded from an anxiety to limit the military charges of the Presidency of Fort St George

It cannot be denied that any effectual improvement of these deficient establishments, would necessarily be attended with a vay heavy repose. But it is equally certain, that until that expence be incuried, the army of the coast never can possess the power of making a forward movement at a short notice, under these circumstances, it is a most improvident system of economy, to submit to the expence of maintaining so lize a army, while we withhold the necessary means of putting a proportion of it in motion upon any sudden emergency

The policy has been quite different in Bengal, where the part of the force destuned for the immediate protection of the country, is always considered as actually in the field, and is equipped for undertaking at the shortest warming any operations either offenare, or defenare, yet Bengal is undoubtedly the part of our possessions in India, the least exposed to any sudden stack

The nature of our establishment in India, and the rapid changes which arise in the political situations of the Native Powers, have been generally acknowledged to require that we should constantly be in state of preparation for wai, this schrowledged principle has evidently formed the basis of the whole system of our military establishments in India, which it has been our fixed policy to maintain upon a scale in point of numbers, greatly exceeding a seasoe establishment

The same principle necessarily demands that a large proportion of our army should be always in readiness for active service, but that principle applies with peculiar force to our army upon the coast, which is destined to oppose the attacks of our most active and implacable (if not our only) enemy, amongst the native powers of India

These considerations have determined me to encounter the expense which must be meurred in providing a lasting security against the future return of that danger to which the Carnatic is now, and for some time past has been, exposed

The measures which are now taking for the assembling of the army will contribute to lay the foundation of a permanent system for the correction of the defects in the several departments of the military establishments upon the coast

Although my opinion is already in a great measure formed with respect to the nature of the obstacles which impede the movement of the army upon the coast, I do not think it advisable to propose any detailed plan in you military establishments which induce you to apprehend that an attack from Tippoo Sultaun may be expected before you can be in a condition to meet him, even for the purpose of defending the Carantic upon that subject untill I shall have received the formal opinion of the Government of Fort St George

I therefore propose that the Pressdent in Conneil at Fost St George be directed to prepare and transmit to me in Council, with all practicable despatch, a plain for enabling a large proportion of the aimy on the coast to be in constant readmess to more against an enemy on a sudden emergency

That he be further directed to frame that plan with a view to every degree of economy which shall appear to him consistent with the attainment of the principal objects in contemplation

In communicating the details of this plan, the Governor of Foit St George will necessarily enumerate the circumstances which now impede the movement of the army on the coast

I also propose that the President in Council of Fort St. George be directed to report the actual state of the frontier guirsons and fortnesses of the Carastic, and what improvements or repairs may be necessary to place them in a respectable posture of defence, and lastly, I propose that the President in Council of Fort St. George be derived to report the present conditions of the stores, and magnames of grain, and other provisions, as well as of the field and battering train of artillery upon the coast

Mornington

The Governor General in Council to Lieutenant General Halls

HON SIR,

Fort William, 20th July, 1798

The Right Honourable the Governor Geneal in Council haring brought under our consideration the defective state of certain branches of your military establishments, and the consequent necessity of correcting those defects, by the adoption of such permanent arrangements as will at all times afford you the means of putting your array in motion at a short notice, we request that you will prepais and transmit to us, with all piacticable depatch, a plain for enabling a large portion of the array on the coast to be in constant readments to move against an enemy on a sudden energency, and that you will frame that plan with a new to every deep concerning the constant readments to move against an enemy on a sudden energency, and that you will frame that plan with a new to every deep contemplation ment of the principal object in contemplation

In communicating the details of this plan you will of course enumerate the circumstances which now impede the movement of your army

We have also to request that you will report to us the actual state of the frontier garrisons and fortresses of the Carnatic, together with such You have further considered it to be your duty to suggest the ideas to which the immediate execution of our orders has given use in your minds

The course of those ideas has led you to suggest to us the pudence of 1emaning unamed, lest any attempt to counteract the avowed hostility and acknowledged preparations of Tippoo Sultaun should draw down his immediate resentment upon our unprotected possessions

With these views, you have uiged a variety of aiguments against the policy of those measures of piccaution and defence which we have oldered you to puisue for the purpose of enabling you aimy to meet Tippoo Sultaun in the field, and to act with effect under any circumstances which may anse

If we thought it proper to enter with you into any discussion of the policy of our late orders, we might refer you to the records of your own Government, which furnish more than one example of the fatal consequences of neglecting to keep pace with the forwardness of the enemy's equipments, and of resting the defence of the Carnatic, in such a cuists as the present, on any other security than a state of early and active preparation for war

But being resolved to exclude all such discussions from the correspondence of the two Governments, we shall only repeat our confidence in your zealous and speedy execution of those patts of the public service which fall within the ditect line of your peculia duty

The assembling the aimy upon the coast is a measure indispensably requisite with a view to any system of seasonable precaution against the declared projects of Tippoo Sultaun Although we directed that the first station of the aimy should improvement and repairs as may be necessary to place them in a respectable posture of defence

We further desue that this report may be accompanied by a statement of the present condition of the stores, and magazines of grain, and other provisions, as well as of your field and battering trains of artillery be that which you might judge most eligible for the purpose of proceeding directly to Seringapatam, if such a measure should hereafter be deemed necessary, it does not follow that our determination was to undertake the immediate siege of that city—such an operation, however, was necessarily to be considered among the earliest objects of any war with Mysore

In our letter of the 20th June, we enjoined you to conceal not the march or equipment, but the destination of your army, the sixth paragraph of that letter does not express any expectation on our part, that the march or equipment of your army could be a matter of secrecy. We trust, however, that the object of your preparations has been concealed, being persuaded that you will have taken every proper precaution for preventing its disclosure.

We now proceed to give you our instructions with regard to the equipment of a battering train sufficient for the siege of Seringapatam

We are of opinion that it would be advisable at all times to hold in readiness, at some advanced station near the frontier of the Carnatic, the ordinance, ammunition and stores, and all other necessary equipments (excepting the cattle) of a tain of a taillery sufficient for the above mentioned purpose, and we are further convinced of the necessity of establishing some permanent system for collecting the supply of cattle requisite for putting such a train of artillery in motion at a short notice

At present we desue that all such preparations should be made at Fort St George as may be necessary for planing the ordnance in the most perfect state of equipment, timely measures should also be taken for securing a supply of cattle sufficient for moving the battering train to Seringapatam, if such a movement should hierarchic form a part of our plan of military operations. But we do not propose that the establishment of cattle for that purpose should be immediately enter tained.

In our letter of the 20th June, we informed you of our mention to forward a supply of specie to Fort St. George by his Majesty's ship La Virginie, as soon as that ship should be ready to sail, and the state of your finances has occupied a considerable portion of our deliberations since the arrival of the Right Honousable the Governoi General, who directed our particular attention to that subject I twas therefore with great concern and surpuze that we found, in your letter of the 10th July, your representations on the subject of your pecunary distresses expressed in a manner tending to convey an impression of our having overlooked your embariassments. We are aware that in the event of war your supplies of treasure must be drawn from Bengal, and in that event you may rely on our omitting no effort to furnish you with the necessary means of supporting your increased charges

With respect to your leptesentations regarding your want of troops, we have aheady informed you of our determination to send you immediately his Majesty's 38d regiment, as well as our manine battahon, if you should require it, and it is our intention also to assist you, if necessary, with an additional remforcement of native troops, as soon as the season will bermit.

When we shall have received a particular account of the expense of your present equipments, we shall provide for deflaying it in such a manner as circumstances may appear to recurre.

The La Virgime will probably sail in the course of ten days, and we expect to be able to embalk on that ship, a sum not exceeding fifteen and not less that nea lacs of rupees. The season becoming daily more favourable for the passage to Madass, we trust that the unforeseen and unavoidable delay in the departure of that ship will not ultimately retard her arrival at Fort St George

We avail ourselves of this opportunity to acknowledge the iecept of your letter of the 16th ultimo, and shall take measures for forwarding the supply of rum, rice, and gunnes, which you have desired, with as large a quantity of salt provisions as it may be possible to procure

We have the honour to be,

Honourable Sn,

Your most obedient, humble Servants,

Morningron,

Alured Clarke,

Peter Spere,

WILLIAM COWPER.

No LVIII.

The Earl of Mornington to his Excellency Rear-Admiral Raimer

Sir, Fort William, August 29th, 1798

It affords me great satisfaction to leain that my endeavours to promote his Majesty's naval service have been acceptable to your Excellency, and I tuist that I have been able to give material assistance to Captain Cooke in forwarding the repains of La Sphille

I forward to your Excellency by this despatch the latest accounts which I have received from Europe, and I wish to call your particular attention to the preparations making by the French in the Mediterianean for fitting out a considerable naval force with transports for the embarkation of troops This force it was supposed would be ready for sea by the end of the month of April last Various accounts are given of its destination, the strange report of its being destined for the conquest of Egypt, and after the success of that wild adventure, for the more extravagant project of conveying aid by Suez to Tippoo Sultaun, will not produce much impression upon a person of your Excellency's experience But some of my letters state an opinion, to which I am much inclined to give credit, that at least a part of this force is probably destined for an expedition to India by the ordinary passage round the Cape of Good Hope A variety of circumstances combine to render it probable that the French may attempt to send a force to India for the joint objects of reducing the Mauritius, and of aiding Tippoo Sultaun With these sentiments I take the liberty of requesting your Excellency to direct your most serious attention to the coast of Malabai, as soon as you shall deem it expedient to detach any part of your squadron to that quarter

It would give me great pleasure to assist your Excellency in inducing the subscribers to the voluntary contribution at this Presidency to appropriate their subscriptions to the discharge of the expenses of his Majesty's squadron on this station, but I know that it is the general wish of the subscribers that their contributions should be sent directly to England, and although I concur with your Excellency in tunking that the good of the public service would be equally promoted by applying the money here to the purposes proposed by you, I fear that any such proposition might be disagreeable to the subscribers, and might check the laudable zeal which has manifested itself at this class. But you Excellency may be assured of my most cordial disposition to afford you at all times every sid which the finances of this Government can furnish towards meeting the expenses of the fleet

I expect every hour authentic information overland with regard to the preparations of the Friench. In the meanwhile I request your Excellency to take into consideration any mode which might be adopted by me for strengthening your force, and I shall be happy to be furnished with your mistructions on that subject as soon as possible, in order that I may be enabled to take early measures for arming vessels or providing stores according to any arrangement which you may think fit to suggest

I have the honour to be, &c

Morninoron

P S If your Excellency should propose any mode of strengthening your force by aid from the Company's Governments, I request you will have the goodness to communicate it to the Governments of Madas and Bombay, who will receive my orders to attend to your Excellency's suggestions as far as relates to their separate Presidences.

No LIX

The Earl of Mornington to Captain Kirkpatrick

SIR,

Fort William, August 31st, 1798

The general tenour of the late advices from Europe convinces me that the rumous of the approach of peace which had reached me in the last month were entirely void of foundation, but my recent intelligence leads me to apprehend that the attention of France is now earnestly directed towards India, and that at least a part of the aimainent fitted out in the Mediterianean may have been destined for an expedition to India, not as has been professed, through Egypt and the Red Sea, but by the ordinary passage round the Cape of Good Hope With these opinions, I am extensely anxious for the immediate conclusion of my proposed engagements with the Nizam, and for the consequent dismission of M Piron's copis and the arrest of the officers. If therefore any delays at Poonah should have pievented, until this time, the termination of the negociation entrusted to you, I desne you will endeavour to conclude it, with all practicable despatch, under the limitations suggested in the 55th paragnaph of my detailed instructions of the 8th July.* You will, according to the spirit of that paragraph, take care to stipulate that the Peishwa shall have an option of according hereafter to any engagements concluded with the Nizam

In the case which I have supposed, of the completion of the ariangements at Hyderabad being delayed by the Count of Poonah until this letter shall reach you, it will be necessary to agree to the proposal of Meer Allum, for securing the interposition of the Company in all future differences between the Courts of Poonah and Hyderabad, under the condition that the Nizam shall bind himself to fulfil all his engagements with the Peishwa, and to abide mivariably by the award of the Company on every point of dispute which may hereafter ause between his Highness and the Government of Poonah

My letters from Bombay melme me to doubt whether that Government will be able immediately to furmsh the number of troops requisite for the service of the Peishwa. Whenever therefore the Peishwa shall have acceded to my propositions, and whenever the disbanding of the French force at Hyderabad shall have been accomplished, I desire that you will endeavour to prevail upon the Nizan to perimit one of the British regiments to match directly to Poonah, and I authoize you to direct the march of a regiment accordingly. The regiment sent to Poonah will be replaced as soon as possible

The Bombay frigate is to touch at Masulipatam, where she is to land our marine battahon, about the middle of September, from thence she will proceed to Madias, and will return to Masulipatam about the end of September, where Captam Suthealand will be directed to remain until he shall receive your orders, or shall be dirven away by the monsoon My wish is, that all such French officers and privates as may be delivered up to you at Hydenahad, shall be embarked on board the Bombay frigate for this Presidency, where they can be mose securely guarded, and from whence they will find a leaduer passage to Europe than at Fort St George You will consign the French party to the charge of the commanding officer at Masulipatam in the first instance, and you will take care to provide a sufficient escort for their safe conduct to Masulipatam

You will direct Captain Sutherland to treat such French officers and privates as may be committed to his charge, with a due consideration of their respective ranks, and with all the attention and kindness consistent with the security of their persons, and you will not fail to use all you influence at Hydelabad, for the purpose of securing the property of such officers or privates as may be delivered to you from the rapacity of the Munsters, and of preserving it for the use of the just proprietors.

I am, &c. MORNINGTON

No. LX

Lord Clive to the Right Hon Henry Dundas

DEAR SIR, Fort St George, 8th September, 1798

My arrival here is too recent for me to hazard opinions upon the state of this country, but I think it my duty to bring before you a few facts which I judge of the utmost importance for you to have the earliest knowledge of the prospect of our being engaged in a war with the Sultain. You have, no doubt, been apprized by Loid Mornington of the madequacy of the means which the Carnatic possesses of carrying on an îmmediate wai with effect, it is necessary you should know, in its fullest extent, our main aimy consists of not more than 8,000 fighting men (now in cantonments in the vicinity of Walajabad), and cannot be materially strengthened without weakening the necessary garrisons, or drawing troops from Cevlon A sufficient reinforcement from Bengal cannot be expected before the end of February, a period too late for marching to the attack of Seringapatam next spring, the time for besieging that place being limited from the middle of January to the middle of May The conclusion drawn from these, I believe, justly assumed facts is, that Seingapatam is not to be marched against with reasonable grounds of success before January 1800

The finances of this settlement are in a far more distressing situation than you or I had any conception of when I had the honour of being with you last March The debt amounts to 54 lacs, the interest to above 4 lacs The last money taken up has been by bills upon Bengal at 410 A. Rs the 100 pagodas. Twelve per cent bonds are at 5 per cent discount. 8 and 6 per cent bonds at from 15 to 25 per cent, discount, the revenue falling short by at least from 5 to 6 lacs, a deficit of 13 lacs, an investment of 12 lacs to be provided, our credit nearly gone, and an empty Treasury In this state of things we must evidently depend upon supplies from Bengal and from Europe in the event of war, and I doubt not but every effort will be made to assist us with specie from Leadenhall Street The facts I have stated are certain, the onmons are those of the best informed in this place. In the event of war my utmost endeavours will be uniformly and cordially employed in cooperation with the views of the Supreme Government More I shall not presume to offer, were I to say less I do not conceive that I should have done my duty

> I have the honour to be, with respect, Your faithful and obedient Servant.

> > CLIVE

No LXI

The Earl of Mornington to Lieut -Col W Palmer, Resident at Poonah Sir, Fort William, September 9, 1798

I have received your several letters of the dates and numbers annexed *

On a reference to my instructions of the 8th of July, together with my first private letter to you, you will find that the restoration of Nana to power was never considered by me to be essential to the attainment of any of the objects which I had in view, although I felt that great advantages might be derived from the abilities and experience of Nana, if his interests could be connected with the success of the proposed arrangement, and if his return to power could be rendered acceptable to Bajee-Row

^{*} August 7 No 34, Aug II, No 35, Aug 15, No 36 + See p 113

The communications in your letters, numbered 34, 35 and 36, leave no doubt on my mud that the abrupt manner in which the Peishwa rejected the assistance and mediation, which he had before so repeatedly and cannestly solicited, is to be ascribed entirely to the jealousy occasioned by the measures in which you had engaged for obtaining the release of Nana

You negociation with Nana having preceded you first inteview with the Peishwa, and having been made a preliminary step to the introduction of my propositions to the Court of Poonah, was certainly calculated to exeite in the Peishwa a suspicion that it was my primary object to restore Nana to his former power, and by supporting that numster, to exercise an undue influence in the affairs of the Mahnatta empire

With this impression, and considering the enmity which Bagee-Rov and his brothers must bear to Nana, added to Emitt Row's well known jealousy of that minister, it is not at all surprising that the Peishwa should have been readily induced to isk the issue of his present contest with Sandah, rather than agree to an ariangement which promised to depute him at once of all authority, and to throw him again into the power of his implacable enemy supported by the influence of the Company's Government, and by the presence of a large British force.

I think it necessaily, therefore, to desire that you will lose not time in endeavouing to remove the jealousy which appears to exist on this subject in the Peishwa's mind. For this purpose you will state to him expressly that in becoming security for Nana's payment of the money to Scandah, you were actuated solely by your personal respect for that minister. That you had received no instructions whatever from me which could authorise such an interference in the internal affairs of the Peishwa's Government, and that although I certainly should view the restoration of Nana (if effected with the full concurrence and cordial consent of the Peishwa), as a measure which would tend to sceeme the effectual re-establishment of the Penshwa's authority and power, I had never considered the interests of Nana to be necessarily connected with the propositions which I had directed you to make to the Penshwa Under this explanation, I am persuaded the Penshwa will be sensible that my rews are directed to the security of the general interests and public engagements of both states, and not to the support of any particular party, or minister at the Court of Poonsh

The distressed state of the Peishwa's affairs appears to me to offer the strongest reason to induce me to uige, and him to accept, in the present moment the propositions contained in my instructions of the 8th of July, I therefore desire that you will not suspend the negociation, undea in alea of my midificence to its successful conclusion in the actual exigency of the Peishwa's condition. His acceptance of my albitation, and of a subsidiary British force would lead to the success of all the objects which I deem most important to the interests of the Company in the present conjuncting.

Notwithstanding that the Peishwa had offered to commument to you his ideas of the nature of the demand to be made on Thippoo by the allies, I was much surpused to find that you had thought it expedient to unge him for his disfiof a joint letter to Thippoo, or that you could expect any advantage from allowing the Peishwa to take the lead in fiaming the application to be made to that Prince. The aggression of Thippoo having been disceted more particularly against the Company, it is properly then tight in the flist instance to suggest the nature of the satisfaction to be required.

The Company has indeed hitherto always taken the lead in every case which has called for the co-operation of the several branches of the tiple alliance. Great embail assiment must result from permitting the Peishwa to anticipate my views on this most deheate and important part of our piesent situation its atherefore my wish that instead of endeavouring to diaw from the Peishwa an early declaration of his notions in that iespect, you will as fai as possible discourage any such communication.

I take this early opportunity of forwarding to you my sentiments on such points as appear to me to be of the most pressing importance in the present state of the negociation, intending hereafter to review all the circumstances which have attended its progress at the Court of Poonah

I have the honour to be, &c

Mornington.

No. LXII

I embrace the opportunity which Colonel Kirkpatrick's

Lord Clive to the Earl of Mornington

My LORD.

Fort St George, September 11, 1798

return to Bengal presents to me of renewing my most sincere thanks to your Lordship, for the open and um eserved communication of your sentiments in your letter of the 29th July. as well as for the assurance of friendly support in the conduct of my government, which you have had the goodness to give me Upon my part your Lordship may rely with confidence upon my zealous endeavours to meet the views and cooperate in the measures of the Supreme Government, for the prosperity of the Company It gives me concern to find your Lordship has had any reason to complain of anything like counteraction, or party spirit in this settlement I can venture to affirm that any tendency of that kind is foreign to my disposition, and do assure you, that should it ever be my misfortune to differ in opinion with your Lordship, though it may become my duty to express my sentiments with freedom. I shall never lose sight of the relation in which this Government stands to the supreme Government, nor of the respect and obedience which is due to its directions. The point which has chiefly absorbed my attention since my arrival, and which indeed presses with the greatest urgency. is the prospect of a war with Tippoo Sultaun, when contrasted with the means this country possesses of meeting such an event I cannot view this important object, nor the embarlassment in which the affairs of this country are involved, very far exceeding what there was reason to expect when I left England, without the most extreme solicitude.

The particulars of our situation are so well known to your Lordship, that I shall have occasion to bring them before you in a general point of view, for the purpose of expressing my sentiments upon the subject, and not with the hope of being able to convey information upon what has been so much the object of your Lordship's attention Our main army consisting of about 8,000 fighting men, being in cantonments in the vicinity of Walajabad, is deemed to be a force totally inadequate to offensive operations, and cannot be strengthened from this presidency without materially weakening the necessary garrisons, or drawing our troops from Ceylon, a sufficient reinforcement of native coips, to enable our army, in cooperation with that of Bombay, to undertake the siege of Seimgapatam, can only be drawn from Bengal, and if reliance is to be put upon the judgment of the best informed persons here, such a reinforcement cannot be expected to arrive in the Carnatic before the end of February, or beginning of March, a period too late for the commencement of hostilities with a view to the taking Seiingapatam in the course of next year, the time for besieging that place being, as I am also informed, limited nearly to the months February, March and April It therefore seems to follow that our army cannot be put in condition to act offensively, and with a speedy prospect of accomplishing the main object of a war with Tippoo, the capture of Seringapatam, earlier than January twelvemonth When to these considerations is added the discouraging state of our finances, that our debt amounts to 54 lacs of pagodas, that an investment is expected to be provided of 12 lacs, that our ordinary expences exceed our ordinary revenue by about 13 lacs, that the revenue of this year is expected to fall short of what it was estimated at by nearly six lacs, that our 12 per cent, bonds are at a discount of 5 or 6 per cent., that our treasury is empty, our credit nearly gone, that the Government, shortly before my arrival, had taken up a lac of pagodas by bills on Bengal at 410 A Rs the 100 pagodas, and that I have been under the necessity of resorting to the same expedient,-your Lordship will not be surprised at my viewing the situation of this country with extreme anxiety, not at my expressing an earnest hope that the calamity of a war, for which we are so ill prepared, may be averted

^{*} See p 223

Having expressed what my feelings and my duty have urged me to state, I beg to assure your Lordship that in the event of your being foiced into a wai with the Sultaun, or in that of your ulimately determining to attack him, of my most condial cooperation to the extent of the means of this presidency, and of my most zealous and scrupulous attention to the directions of the Supieme Government. In the event of war it is to your Loudship and Bengal that we must look for icsources, for I am concerned to say, that I see no prospect of our being able to iaise any considerable defalcations are to be apprehended from the predatory warfaie, which the Sultaun may be expected to wage, little, I feai, is to be expected from his Highness the Nabob

I have to thank your Lordship for the communication of the papers relating to the negociations of Poonah and Hyderahad The restoration of the triple alliance to the situation in which it stood when Loid Cornwallis left India, is an object of the first importance, and the measures which your Lordship has pursued with so much energy for its attainment appear to me decisive and highly judicious that you may succeed and 1eap the applause due to your exertions, must be the wish of whoever has British glory and British interests at heart. The reinforcement destined for Hyderabad, with the views of overthrowing the French party there, of securing the succession to Secunder Jah, and of establishing a permanent influence in the councils and conduct of the Nizam's Court, has been contemplated by me with peculiar satisfaction Should this decisive measure be crowned with success, and be properly followed up, it will, without doubt, tend more than any other event to fix the British power in India

I have the honor to be, with sincere esteem and respect,
My Lord, Your Lordship's most faithful Servant,
CLIVE.

No LXIII

The Earl of Mornington to Lieut Col. John Collins, Resident with Dowlut
Row Scindali

Sir., Fort William, 15th Sept 1798

You will certainly have felt some degree of anxiety to receive the letters, which I had promised to despatch to you by the calhest opportunity, and I should have flowarded them some time ago, if I had not waited in houly expectation of being able to communicate to you the intelligence of Scindiah's departure from Poonah, and retreat towards his own dominions But the actual state of affains at Poonah, still leaves the motions of Scindiah, in the greatest degree of unceitanty, although the necessity of his return to Hindostan for the preservation of his own existence seems to encrease every day, and the means of effecting that retrograde movement without either disgrace or danger, are now placed within his seach by the liberation of Nana, by my offer of mediation between Scindiah, the Petalwa, and the Nizam, as well as by my proposal for the conclusion of a teaty of general defensive allance against Zemanu Shat.

My conversation with you, at Bariackpoie, applied you of my ideas with legald to the objects of your mission.

The question which will demand you immediate attention will be, the best mode of securing the strongest barriers against Zemann Shah, not only with a view to the present moment, but to all future contingencies

No policy could be so weak, even if the Shah had not condescended to explain his intentions, as to suppose that he could enter Hindostan, without the design of plundering the most opulent part of it. His ultimate objects must be Lucknow and our provinces

But he has spared me the pams of any argument on this subject, having plantly appaised the Nabob Vizzer and me, that his object is to restore Shah Aulum, and to drive the Mahrattas out of India, and having called for our joint services in a tone of command for the posecution of his project. He has added, that our answer will determine, whether he is to consider us to be his finends or his enemies. As it would be utterly inconsistent with every punciple of policy and fath to assist the Shah in the prosecution of his declared purposes, it follows, that we must expect to be ranked in the number of his enemies, and our possessions will be treated accordingly. It is, therefore, necessary to provide every defence, which can obstruct the Shah's approach to our boundary

The principal powers, whose resistance might offer a serious obstacle to the advance of the Shah's army, are the Seiks, the Rajpoots, particularly the Rajahs of Jyenagur and Judpoor, and the Mahiattas inhabiting the dominions of Scindiah.

The return of Scundah to that quarter, attended as such an event must be by the sestoration of his power to a considerable degree of efficiency, appears to me to be the best possible means of checking the motions of the Shah; especially as it must ever be the interest of Seundah (within so win dominions) to cultivate out fitendship, and to cooperate with us in opposing any invader, and above all a Mahomedan plundere. Scindah, therefore, has been the object of my unremitting attention. If he should return to Hindostan, you will immediately apply yourself to the commencement of negociation with him, for the purpose of framing a defensive treaty against the Shah

The precaution to be observed in framing such a treaty is principally to avoid any engagement, which might draw our army too far from the boundary of the Vizier's dominions

On the othen hand, it cannot be expected, that other powers will engage with us for the common defence, if we must absolutely upon limiting the operations of our force, to the exclusive protection of the provinces of Oude, or of our own possessions

The point therefore to be ascentained is this, the utmost limit to which our force can be advanced for the common purposes of a general defensive alliance without danger to Oude, or to our own provinces, or to the force so advanced. In proportion to the number of our allies, the difficulty of fixing this point in a manner satisfactory to them would necessarily be augmented, it will, however, be desirable to unite as large a body as can be brought to cooperate against the Shah, and with this view, I wish you to endeavour to conciliate the interests of such of the Seik Chiefs and Rajpoots, as may be disposed to resist the Shah, with those of Scindiah. I am aware of the obstacles which you will find to such an union in the impetuosity and violence of Scindiah's character, on the one hand, and in the recent memory of his oppression and injustice on the other The Rajahs of Jyenagur and Judpoor will not easily forget the injuries which he has committed against them, and this bitter recollection, may throw them into the scale of their natural enemy Zemanu Shah. It is, however, to be hoped, that the imminent danger which Semdath has lately escaped, as well as that which still theatens his dominions, may bring his mind to a sober sense of his real interests, and may induce him to afford to the Rajahs, some such effectual protection against future oppression on his pait, as shall unite them with him against the Shah Hitheit of lave supposed the case of Semdaha's return to Hindostan, if, howeven, that event should not take place, a very different scene will open.

The entire destruction of Scindiah's power (in Hindostan at least) must be the inevitable and speedy consequence of his continuance at Poonah

Whether he will be able to establish any considerable power in the Deccan, on the rums of the Peishwa's authority, may perhaps admit of some degree of question. The inclination of my opinion is, that his whole power will be dissolved metrievably unless he shall return to his own domimons without delay In the event of the dissolution of his power in Hindostan, your attention will be directed to the state of affairs which shall arise out of his destruction My wish is to abstain from all such interference in any confusion which may follow the annihilation of Scindiah's power, as might involve us either now or hereafter in hostilities Noi would I engage in any measures, which had a tendency either in the first instance to accelerate the ruin of Scindiah, or finally to exclude the revival of his authority Consistently with these principles, my endeavours would be directed to frame out of the new order of things, a system of defensive alliance against the approach of the Shah, by entering into engagements, for that purpose, with whatever Chief should have succeeded to the largest portion of Scindiah's power Ambajee seems to me to be the most likely to stand at the head of any new system in the event of Scindiah's fall.

Your particular attention will be given to the conduct of M. Perron, and of other Europeans now in the service of Scindiah, we must counteract any attempt from them to establish themselves in the form of a state in Hindostan, they would undoubtedly assist Zemaun Shah, and penhaps enter into his service in the event of Scindiah's facility. I enclose a letter for Sir James Clarg, whom I wish you to consult on the important military question, the decision of which must form the governing principle of any defensive treaty against the Shah. Sir James will transmit his sentiments to me, in order that I may consult further with the Commanden-in-Chief, and endeavour to fix the limit of the operations of our aimy, whenever the Shah shall amposch Hindostan.

You will be so good as to report to me without delay, any information which you may be able to collect, with relation to the European officers in the service of Scindish, or of any native power on the North Westein frontier of India. I am informed that Somroos Begum, has a considerable corps officered by Frenchmen in the service

Our mtelligence of the motions of Zemain Shah is very defective. It is always vague as well as fataly I desire that you will eannestly apply yourself to the speedy corection of this defect, it is of the utmost importance to us to obtain the earliest and most accurate information of the Shah's designs. On this point, you will find it useful to conceit some regular and permanent system with the Resident at Lucknow I have the honour to be. &c.

MORNINGTON

No LXIV

The Earl of Monnington to Major General Sir James Henry Craig, K B

(Enclosed in the foregoing letter to Lieut-Col Collins)

Sir, Fort William, Sept 16, 1798

This letter will be delivered to you by Lieut-Col Collins, who having been appointed Resident at the Court of Scindiah, is proceeding to take charge of the interests of the British Government at that Court

The continual reports of the approach of Zemaun Shah to Hindostan engaged my attention at the earliest period of my arrival in Bengal, and I have already taken every step (which appeared to me justifiable in the great uncertainty of the prevailing rumous) for checking the motions of the Shah, in the event of his advancing towards our flontier

It could not be supposed that such an expedition, as that meditated by the Shah, would be planned without any view to the plunder of the most opulent and flourishing parts of Hindostan, I have, therefore, always considered that he must intend to advance to Lucknow, and to our provinces, if cucumstances should favour his progress. And with this opinion, I have thought that his march ought to be opposed at the earliest possible period, and his operations checked at the greatest possible distance from our frontier.

But if I had ever entertained any doubt of the tendency of the Shah's operations, it would have been removed by his own distinct declaration to the Vizier and to me should consider our not joining his royal standard, and our not assisting him in the restoration of Shah Allum, and in the total expulsion of the Mahrattas in the light of an act of disobedience and enmity" As it is utterly impossible for me to aid the Shah in such a project, or to submit the honour and faith of the British Government to such conditions, I must suppose that the Viziei and this Government, will be treated as enemies by him, whenever he shall have an opportunity of binging his army to act on our frontier useful barner against this invasion, in the first instance, would be the resistance of the Serks, of the Rajpoots, especially the Rajahs of Jyenagur and Judpoor, and of Dowlut Rao Scindiah

My attention has been directed to a system of measures, the effect of which, if successful would have occasioned the immediate, feturn of Sondish to his dominions in Hindostan, and have given us the benefit of a defensive alliance with him against the Shah I cannot yet ascertain, what the motions of Scinglah are likely to be, or what may be the ultimate turn of his fate But at all events, it will be necessary to consider the terms of a defensive league to which, whether Scindish shall be a party or not, the Rajpoots and Seiks must be invited.

The most difficult queston in the formation of such a treaty, will be of a military nature. It may be thus stated. What is the extreme limit beyond the frontier of the Vizier, to which the operations of the British force could be advanced, without danger to that finetier, and to the force so advanced. On the one hand, it would ceitainly be desirable to restiam the operations of our aimy, as nearly as possible, to the exclusive protection of the Nabob's and Company's possessions But on the other hand, it could not be expected, that any efficient or cordual assistance could be derived from any practicable system of defensive alliance, if our airny was to be exclusively exempted from any share in the common defence of the dominions of the contracting powers.

I am aware of the difficulty under these encumstances of fixing such a point for the extreme advance of our aimy, as shall relieve us from both of the embaliassments which I have stated

But as I am persuaded, that the queston which I have proposed in this letter, must frequently have occurred to you in all its military bearings and consequences, I take the liberty of requesting, that you will have the goodness to favour me with your opinion upon it, in order that I may hereafter be enabled to enter upon the consideration of it more advantageously and accurately, whenever it shall become necessary to discuss it with the Commandes-in-Cher

I shall also esteem it as a favour, if you will state your ideas on this subject to Lieutenant Colonel Collins, who will be employed in the negociation of any defensive engagements which it may be deemed advisable to contact.

If any other suggestions, with regard to the defence of our North Western frontier, should appear to you important to the public service, I should be happy to receive them One defect has necessarily attracted your notice, the useless, or rather the dangerous condition of the Vizier's own aimy This subject is at present under my consideration, and I confess I see but one effectual mode of obtaining a serviceable army in the Vizier's pay. The substitution of regular regiments from the Company's service, in place of the Nabob's own troops, or in other words, such an increase of our force in Oude, as would warrant nearly a total reduction of the Nabob's present army I believe that this measure might be accomplished not only with infinite advantage to the external defence, but also to the internal tranquillity of the Nabob's dominions, to the safety of his person, to the stability of his authority, and to the order of his finances

I have the honour to be, Sn, with great respect,
Your most obedient and humble servant,
Mornington.

No LXV

The Earl of Mornington to Captain Malcolm

SIR.

Fort William, Sept 20, 1798

The office of Resident at Hyderabad having become vacant by the resignation of Colonel Knkpatick, I have this day appointed Captain Kirkpatrick to succeed him, and it afforded me givest satisfaction at the same to have it in my power to nominate you Assistant at that Court, having learnt from my brother* that, in a letter to him, you had stated that such an approximent would be acceptable to you.

In conferring this appointment upon you, I have been governed by no other motive than my knowledge of the zeal, activity, and diligence with which you have pursued the study of the native languages, and of the political system of India, and I take this opportunity of expressing my satisfaction at your having made choice of a situation in which I am persuaded you will sender essential service to the public, and satisfy you honourable desure of distinction.

I wish to see you previously to your picceeding to Hydenabad, and as soon as it may be convenient to you after you shall have received this letter. There are many circumstances relative to the political system of India, which it is proper you should learn from me as early as possible, it will also be advantageous to the public service that you should thoroughly understand my opinion, on various points, with a degree of accuracy which cannot be conveniently stated in writing I therefore hope that you will continve to visit Calcutta soon after the recent of this letter.

I shall by this day's post apprize Loid Clive of your appointment, in order that the necessary steps may be taken for procuring you leave of absence from the establishment of Fort St. George

I am, &c &c
Mornington

^{*} The Duke of Wellington, then Lieut -Col Wellesley

LORD CLIVE No LXVI

The Earl of Mornington to Lord Clive

My Lord.

Fort William, 20th Sept 1798

I have received your Lordship's obliging letter of the 11th of Sept * this moining, for which I neturn you my sincere thanks I shall reserve my answer on most of the important topics to which you have adverted until I have been enabled to give them a more deliberate consideration, but I am anxious to communicate to your Loidship, without delay, my sentiments with respect to the mission of M Du Buc Your Lordship is probably apprized that a very large portion of the national troops, which were expelled from the Isle of France a few months ago, was sent to Batavia, where it is said that they are become very sickly It appears to me probable that Monsieur Du Buc's dernier destination, of which he speaks in his despatch to Tippoo of the 25th of August. may be to Batavia, for the purpose of inducing the French troops to take service in the Sultaun's army, and to obtain for him the cooperation of the French frigates also upon that station Your Lordship appears to me to have taken every precaution for the arrest of Monsieur Du Buc's person, as well as for the interception of his correspondence. I think both of very great importance with a view to the discovery of Tippoo's immediate plans and means of carrying them into effect I think it would be very advisable also, that the Admiral should station a force off Tranquebar at the period when M Du Buc may be expected to embank for his ultimate destination, and your Loidship will have the goodness to communicate this suggestion to the Admiral, if you should concur in my opinion

If M Du Buc should proceed to levy a force for Tippoo at Tranquebar, with the connivance of the Danish Government, or still more, if that Government should actually assist him, by convoying supplies of money from Mysore (according to the plan stated in the postcript of M. Du Buc's letter of the 7th Sept) your Lordship will meet with my waimest support, either in any representation which you may think fit to make upon the subject, or m any more active measures for seizing the person and papers of M Du Bue and his suite The proclamation of Monsieur Malaitie, under which M Du Bue took service with Tippoo, would clearly justify such a representation. I am impossession of positive evidence upon eath, which proves that M Du Bue avowed, in the Isle of France, that he had engaged with Tippoo s' Ambasadois for France, that he had engaged with Tippoo s' Ambasadois for the express purpose of immediate was against the Company. Indeed the terms of his despatches to Tippoo furnish sufficient evidence of the hostile tendency of his mission. You Lordship will judge according to circumstances, whether M De Buc's designs will be best flustiated by watching his motions, or by interrupting them

^{*} See p 246

I trust that you will shortly acceive the supply of 20 lacs of rupees, in specie, from on board the Virginia and Bombay, which will prove a seasonable telief to your finances. The subsidy from the Nizam will also operate to alleviate your burthers for the present

Believe me, with great estcem and respect,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient and faithful Servant,
MORNINGTON

No LXVII

The Earl of Mornington to the Resident at Lucknow

Sir, Fort William, 21st Sept 1798

I have received your letter of the 87th August and 1st mstant, and approve the measures which have been taken for the support of Nussim Ulla Khan's authouty, and for obtaning possession of the family and treasure of Golaum Mahomed Khan To the general assurance of indulgence and protection which you have given to his family, you may add an engagement that they shall not be delivered into Golam Mahomed Khan's hands, should he hereafter demand them

With regard to your conduct towards Golam Ahmed Khan, said to be charged with an embassy from Zemaun Shah, if, upon his arrival at Lucknow, he shall appear to be properly accredited from the Shah to the Governo. General, you will permit him to proceed to Calcutta, but otherwise you will take no notice of him. The doubtful character of Golam Ahmed Khan will not justify any acknowledgment of his pretended commission, you will therefore take no notice of him, unless his conduct should appear to lead to a suspicion of his being employed as a spy, in which case he should be required to depart from the Vizzer's dominions

This direction will serve equally to guide the Vizier's conduct towards Golam Ahmed

It is much to be lamented that the intelligence from Zemaum Shah's country should be of so vague and uncertain a nature, that no dependance can at any time be placed upon it, it appears to me an object of the first importance to establish some regular channel for the triansmission of intelligence from that quarter. I request, therefore, that you will immediately turn you particular attention to this point, and omit no effort for obtaining more correct information of Zemann Shah's motions than we have hitherto been in the habit of receiving.

I am, &c Mornington

No LXVIII

Lord Clive to the Earl of Mornington [Extract]

My Lord, Fort St George, 22d Sept 1798

I cannot express to your Lordship the satisfaction I feel in the arrival of Colonel Wellesley I find him so easy in his manners and friendly in his communications, that I cannot doubt but that the more I have the opportunity of cultivating his intimacy, the more I shall rejoice at the presence of a person so nearly connected with your Lordship, and so entirely possessed of your views and intentions The information which Colonel Wellesley has communicated to me, of the very moderate terms of satisfaction which it is your Loidship's intention to demand of the Sultaun, has relieved my mind from much of the solicitude which the appearances of an immediate rupture had excited We have intelligence from Major Doveton of the Sultaun having laised a forced loan. for the purpose of discharging the arrears due to his troops. and of an irruption of banditti into Dindigul, from Mi Huidis, which appears to be of a predatory nature. It however excites attention from the circumstance of all communication between Tippoo's ryots and those of the Company having been lately prohibited.

I have the honour to be, &c &c

CLIVE

No. LXIX

The Earl of Mornington to Lord Clive

My LORD. Fort William, 24th September, 1798

My last advices from Hyderabad afford every reason to hope that the dismission of the French party will be accomphished without difficulty or danger

The accounts from Poonah are much more favourable than any I have received from thence The Resident has cornected his erron, and is now proceeding in a night course. It appears highly probable, that Nana will be restored to power under a reconciliation with Emrut Rao, negociated through Colonel Palmer The effect of this will be the success of my propositions to the Peishwa Scindiah has received my letter with great good will, and now seriously turns his thoughts towards his own dominions, where his presence is required to compose the revolt of his tributary chiefs, as well as to prepare a defence against the eventual approach of Zemaun Shah The rumous are still various with regard to the state of the Shah's kingdom, if his army should not be at Peshawur early in October, he cannot attempt his projected expedition this year. The return of Scindiah to Hindostan would be a very advantageous circumstance for us in the event of the Shah's approach

I cannot expless to you. Lordship more warmly than I feel it, my earnest anxiety that the piepa istons for war should be carried on with unsemitting alserity and despatch. We have no other security against the designs of Tippoo, my object and my expectation is peace, and I think nothing can frustrate my hopes and wishes but the airval of a French force in India, or the relaxation of our preparations for war.

I feel the greatest satisfaction in your cordual concurrence in the measures which I have pursued at Poonah and Hyderabad, and I accept with much gratitude your Lordship's suggestion is pecting the addition of a body of cavalry to the subsidiary force in the pay of the Nizam* No measure could be more wise nor better calculated to give additional effect to the principles on which my whole system is founded Such a body of British cavalry (I mean commanded by Birtish officers) would for ever secure the facility of our convoys of provisions in the event of a rupture with Tippoo I shall instruct the Resident at Hyderabad to avail himself of the flist favourable moment for this improvement of our force at Hyderabad to avail himself of the flist favourable moment for this improvement of our force at Hyderabad to avail himself of the flist favourable moment for this improvement of our force at Hyderabad to avail himself or the flist favourable moment for this improvement of our force at Hyderabad to avail himself or the flist flight f

But your Lordship is aware that the proposition must be managed with caution, and, if possible, rather encouraged from the Nizam, than directly offered by us.

Fo it cannot be demed that what we have already gained in point of influence was rather to be desired than expected, and if the moment had not been peculially favourable, we could not safely have ventured even so far as the limits of my instructions of the 8th of June 1.

To propose any furthen augmentation of our foice at this juncture might penhaps create alaim in the wavening and niesolute mind of Azim il Omra, who even now is almost afraid of what he has done, and who still doubts whethen he has enslaved himself or established his power on permanent foundations. But, although I feel the necessity of management, and perhaps of delay, in the introduction of any additional foice at Hydenabad, I have little doubt that such a measure will ultimately succeed, and I thust that your Lordship and I shall witness its success long before we return to Europe

I have the honour to be, &c
MORNINGTON

No. LXX

Major General Str J H Crang to the Governor General

MY LORD, Cawnpore, 26th September, 1798
A good deal of leisure time, and a solicitude upon the subject, that will not appear unnatural, have given rise to some

* This was a suggestion of Lord Clive's, in a former letter, for the raising a regiment of cavalry, to be paid by the Nizam reflections upon the very probable event of the invasion of Hundostan by Zemaun Shah, which I have committed to paper, and I do myself the honour of transmitting them enclosed to your Lordship .* I have not a doubt that the subject has met with every attention that it requires, and that the necessary steps to be taken will have been determined by higher experience and better judgment than I can lay claim to. It is not, therefore, in any view of dictating .-- when I am conscious that my part is to concur, to the best of my abilities, in executing, that I take the liberty of offering these I request that they may be only considered as observations a private communication, of the value of which nobody can have a lesser idea, but from which, if one serviceable hint can be drawn, none will feel a higher gratification-than him who has the honour to be, with great respect,

My Lord.

Your Lordship's most obedient and humble Servant,

LXXI

From the Nizam to the Earl of Mornington

(Received 27th September, 1798.)

What your Lordship has written respecting the affair in agitation is from first to last strictly true. For it is a fact known to all the world, that since the conclusion of the peace, and the execution of the treaty between the allied powers and Tippoo, every possible degree of legald has been invariably shewn by the three States to the principles of good faith and the obligations of friendship, actuated by a purity of design and a wish to preserve the general tranquillity The three States have constantly pursued the enlightened path of truth and sincerity, and strictly adhered to the laws of amity and concord But as Tippoo has now at once thrown off the mask, and, according to the contents of the proclamation issued by the Governor of the Mauritius (of which a translation has, word for word, been submitted by Captain Kukpatrick to me) has publicly deputed Embassadors to that island, solicited an offensive and defensive alliance with the French against the English Company (which is, in fact, a declaration of enmity against the three States) seceived a body of French, furnished by his own desire and fixed the monthly pay of that force, each of these acts is specifically and individually a flagrant instance and an incontrovertible proof of his violation of treaty and of his hostile intentions, it therefore becomes absolutely necessary to take measures to meet the occasion, and oppose a barrier to the turbulence and restlessness of his disposition, and as it is possible that when called upon, he may have recourse to his usual subterfuge, disavowal, his voluntary consent to that which may afford ample security to the three States against his mimical designs for the future, cannot be expected as your Lordship, actuated by the best intentions, and by a solicitude to meserve the general tranquillity, has deemed it advisable in the first instance to call upon him for the above purpose merely that he may have an opportunity of restraining the violence of his designs before he involves himself in the calamities of war, there is no objection, and, accordingly, the draft of a demand to that effect has been delivered to Captain Kijkpatiick, by whom your Loidship will be informed of the contents should it be thought proper, a letter to Tippoo, conformable to the terms of the draft, may be prepared and delivered to Captain Kirkpatrick so as to accompany those from your Lordship and the Peishwa, and in the event of his failing to return a satisfactory answer, that is to say, should he refuse to concede that which may afford ample security to the three allied powers against his inimical designs for the future, what doubt is there but that my forces will be ready to cooperate agreeably to the stipulations of the existing treaty?

^{*} See Memoir of Sii James Craig in the Appendix

With respect to what your Lodship writes, that "whilst subjects of difference subsist between me and the Peashwa and Dowlat Row Scindiah, it will be altogether impossible to make the necessary exertions upon this occasion, and their fone Captain Kirkpatrick had your Lodship's instructions to communicate several propositions on this important subject" Captain Kirkpatrick, for the better consideration and comprehension of those important propositions, committed your Lodship's instructions, fully and paticularly, to writing, and submitted them to me. By that writing your Lordship's sentiments have been fully developed, while it evinced your Lordship's extreme interest in the welfare of my Government, as well as your anxious desire to establish the tranquillity of India on so film a basis as to preclude the danger of its being disturbed by those who hope to establish their own power on the run of all the States of the Deccan and Hindostan. These sentiments I conceive to spring from the most honourable intentions, the deepest penetration, the soundest wisdom and understanding in your Lordship-in particular, to know that since your arrival in India, your Lordship has felt the deepest regret that, from various detrimental causes, such powerful States should, in a short space of time, have lost their former splendour and greatness, and have been brought to then present situation, but that it was some satisfaction to your Lordship to reflect that an important medium may now arise by which all these miuries may be repaired, in such a manner as to give increase to the weight and importance which those States formerly possessed-that in promoting the interest and welfare of such a powerful State, the world will have the most evident testimony of that love of justice, pubhe faith, goodness of intention, and disinterestedness which are among the characteristics of the English, and which are equally enjoyined by the orders of the Company and the principles of the British Government in Europe These just sentiments (I say) shew your Lordship to be endowed with the truest sense of honour, and the highest degree of understanding and magnanimity. I entertain the fullest conviction that your Lordship has, in the highest degree at heart, the prosperity, splendour, and due arrangement of the affairs of my Government, and what your Lordship and I thus make the mutual object of our views, through the grace of Piovidence, will be satisfactorily and fully accomplished Accordingly in the spirit of great folesight, a treaty, consisting of various articles, for the increase of the detachment, has been entered into and authenticated under my hand and seal and that of the Nabob Aristo Yah (Azim ul Omia) and delivered to Captain Kirkpatrick, and a counterpart under his hand and seal, as plempotentiary on the part of your Lordship, has been delivered to me It being my first wish and object to cement the bonds of union and attachment between my Government and that of the Company in the most public manner, and to shew that no division of interest subsists between them, and it being likewise my full intent and resolution to avoid all aggression and encroachment upon those with whom I am connected by treaties and engagements, far from seeking to protiact the execution of the treaty in question, I have deemed it most advisable to hasten its conclusion am confident that from the knowledge your Lordship will acquire of my sentiments so fully laid open by the report of Captain Kirkpatrick and the execution of the treaty, your mind will be completely satisfied that far from having any wish or design to aggress or trespass upon the engagements subsisting with any of my friends and allies, I have no other view than to adhere to the dictates of good faith and equity. In pursuance of these sentiments I have signified to Captain Knikpatrick my desire for the immediate assemblage of the proposed detachment upon the frontier, the adjustment of many concerns depending upon its arrival at the Presence, and it will, no doubt, very shortly be collected there accordingly, and proceed without delay to the capital, so that the most effectual means may be at hand, both for cooperation in the possible event of a war, and for removing the impediments that may present themselves (to that cooperation). Particulars will be fully made known to your Lordship by Aristo Yah and Meer Allum, and Captain Knkpatrick will also write to your Lordship very fully.

272

Sept

A true Copy, N B EDMONSTONE, Persian Translator to Govt

No. LXXII.

From Tippoo Sultaun, dated 2d September, 1798

[Received 28th September, 1798]

I have had the pleasure to receive your Lordship's friendly letter,* purporting that you had received the final opmon of the Malabar Commissioners upon the subject of Wynnad, after a full examination of every circumstance that your Lordship was now convinced that Wynnad belongs to me—that therefore you had directed the Commissioners to make a formal acknowledgment of my claim to that Tanlook, but that some doubts yet remained with respect to the pass (vide letter written 7th August 1798), Tambercherry, which is below the Ghauts, by the Treaty of Peace came into the Company's possession, above the Ghauts is Wynaad, which consisted of a few habitations, and has for a long time been desolate The Ghauts are situated between, and also belong to me, it (Wynaad) consists of nothing but forests and heaps of stones. Accordingly, long ago this fact came repeatedly under peculiar inspection, at the time when measures were taken for the settlement of the Malabar districts, and whatever doubts there may be upon this head, will be solved by a reference thereto. In like manner the right to the Taalooks of Ameera and Saulea, which appertain to Cauriaul (Mangalore) is proved by the records of a century, in which are inserted the names of the collectors and defravers of the land tax, nay, a copy of the parts of those records shall be sent, when by referring thereto, the circumstances respecting Ameera and Saulea, Eeserawaraseenny, &c will be ascertained and laid open Mischief-makers, by starting empty disputes and altercations, hope to accomplish then own purposes, but by the favour of God, the fountains of union and haimony between the two states possess too much purity and clearness to be sullied by the devices of self-interest persons Continue constantly to gratify me by letters denoting your Lordship's welfare.

^{*} See p 154

P.S Sewarasemy also belongs to me The Taalooks which were ceded to the Company are paticularly enumerated in the Treaty of Peace 1 beg you will refer thereto for information

A true Copy, N B Edmonstone, Persian Translator to Govt

No LXXIII

The Earl of Mornington to the Chairman of the East India Company
Sir. Fort William, October, 1798

You will perceive that I have been called upon very early to make a vigorous exertion, if I have failed to deserve your approbation, my failune cannot be imputed to negligence or to want of zeal in your service

[.] This stands for Eeserawaraseenny

Loid Chve's appointment will, I trust, prove advantageous to the public service. I have entered into the most unieseved private correspondence with him, and I have found him cordually disposed to cooperate with me. His letters are very cetathable to his understanding and disposition. he will have great difficulties to encounter at Fort St George, where much retorm is required, and where the management of the Nabob and Rajah of Tanjone (even under the newly established Government), will demand a considerable degree of skill

I trust that Tippoo will not venture to move without having obtained a more effectual succoun from the French than they have yet afforded to him, and I am equally confident that the vigilance of our Government at home, and of our feets, will oppose every possible obstacle to the approach of the French towards this quarter of the globe ——But I still feel the necessity of active and early preparation for wan, as being the only security against all contingencies. Such preparations must occasion expense ——this is a severe disappointment to me, but my duty demands that I should encounter it with firmness I trust that the Count of Directors will feel a consepondent disposition, and that they will be ready to sacrifice with cheerfulness something of present commercial profit to the Company for the preservation of the main sources of our wealth and strength

I have the honor to be, &c
MORNINGTON

No LXXIV

The Governor General in Council to the Secret Committee

Fort William, 1st October, 1798

In our letter of the 4th of July, despatched overland, we had the honour to mform you that the Right Hon the Governor General had failed in his endeavours to induce his Highness the Nabob of the Cainatic to accede to the modification of the treaty of 1792, formerly proposed to his Highness by Lord Hobart

The Governor General was equally unsuccessful in his attempt to persuade his Highness to agree to any plan for the hquidation of his debt to the Company

During his continuance at Madras, his Lordship employed, for the accomplishment of both objects, every exertion compatible with the extent of the powers entrusted to him by the Honomable the Court of Directors, in their orders of the 18th October, 1797

Both the sput and letter of those orders required that his Lordship should manifest to the Nabob every possible mark of respect and kindness, and should endeavour to gain his Highness's confidence by every conclusiony measure

The tenor of the accompanying papers will afford to your Honourable Committee the means of fiaming a judgment of the effect produced upon the Nabob's mind, by his intercourse with the Governor General.

From these papers it appears that, although the Nabob professed satisfaction in the manner in which the Governor General had executed the orders of the Honourable the Court of Directors, his Highness continued to oppose a determined resistance to the proposed modification of the treaty of 1792

The Governor General is convinced that, in the actual state of the Nabob's temper, and of the influence of those who surround him, no hope can be entertained of persuading his Highness, in the present moment, to conclude any arrangement of the nature proposed to him by Lord Hobart.

His Lodship is further of opinion that, under all the circumstances of the Nabob's affins, the most pudent course would be to suspend for the present all negotiation with his Highness for the cession of any part of his territory to the management of the Honourable Company's servants

It is however to be hoped, that the discussions which have taken place between the Governor General and the Nabob may hereafter furnish the foundation of a more beneficial ariangement of the Honourable Company's interests in the Cainattic, and the attention of the Governor General will be constantly directed to that desinable object.

The Governor General thought it advisable to conduct the negociation principally by the means of personal intercourse, with a view of avoiding a controversial cortespondence, which would have been managed on the part of the Nabob by the European adventurers who still find access to his Highness's durban

His Lordship therefore addressed no other proposition in writing to the Nahob than the note of the 8th of May,* containing a summary statement of the propositions made to the Nahob, with relation to the modification of the treaty of 1792

You Honouable Committee will observe, that his Highness has distinctly acknowledged that he is in the practice of raising money annually, by assessments of the revenues of those districts, which form the security for the payment of the Honouable Company's subsidy

This practice is unquestionably contrary to the letter and subversive of the spirit of the treaty of 1792, and it is for the serious consideration of the Honounable Court of Directors what operation this voluntary acknowledgment on the part of his Highness, shall be allowed to have in any future negocution with him.

With respect to the liquidation of the sums due to the Company from the Nabob, his Highness appeared disposed to dispute every hanch of the debt, excepting the new cavalry loan, for the liquidation of which he seemed to think he had already given sufficient security, by having charged it upon the funds now appropriated for the payment of the consolidated debt.

The Governon General has, howere, endeavoured to persuade his Highness of the propriety of his advancing, at least a considerable portion of the new cavally debt, for the aid of the public service, in the present exigency of the Honouable Company's affairs

His Highness has not yet returned any answer to the letter addressed to him on this subject by his Lordship.

The Govennment of Fort St George, under their instruction from us, will have informed your Honounable Committee of the deposition of Ameer Sing, and of the establishment of Serforce upon the mushud of Tanjote.

We propose by the next despatch to submit to your consideration our sentiments at large with regard to the arrangements which appear to us most advasable for the final security of the interests of the Honourable Company in Tampote. We have the honour to be, &c.

MORNINGTON and COUNCIL.

No LXXV

Major General Su James H Craig to the Earl of Mornington

My LORD,

Cawnpore, 6th October, 1798

I am sure your Lordship will behere that it is not without grung it every attention in my power, that I sit down to lay before your Lordship the various considerations which have presented themselves to my mind, on the subject of the question upon which your Lordship has honoured me with your commands that I should give you my opinion

In the consequence which your Lordship is pleased to attach to any opinion of mine, your Lordship has certainly manifested that confidence in my judgment which I should have felt to have rested upon a better merited claim had it been applied solely to my ambition of being useful to the service of my country, but whatever may be the sense that I entertain of my capacity to do it fully, I feel at the same time the force of the demand on me which your Lordship has established, that I should make the best return that is in my power to the confidence that your Lordship places in me, and it appears to me that I should ill discharge that obligation were I to confine myself to the considering the question as a mere abstract proposition, and did not enter into it more fully as connected with the probable cucumstances of our situation, in the event from whence alone can arise the necessity of your Loidship's decision upon it.

I have already had the honour, on another occasion, to explain to your Lordship my idea upon the nature of our fiontier, which I shall request that your Lordship will have the goodness to carry in your mind in what I may now have occasion to offer to your Lordship It is singularly unfortunate, and surely much to be regretted, that in the thirty odd years that we may be said to have been in possession of this country, it has, I should suppose, never been considered in a military point of view as being within the possibility of attack, hence it aisses, that except Allahabad, which hardly yet deserves the name, there is not a single fortress or place of strength in the whole country. It is not necessary to enter into the various inconveniences, and indeed essential cu cumstances of danger, which may arise from this deficiency It is here alluded to principally as connected with and certainly very materially affecting the object in question

However such as is the natural barrier which limits our frontier, and with every inconvenience which we might expenence from the deficiency to which I have adverted, I have not a doubt but that if the aimy in the field is carried to 20,000 men, the position that I have pointed out in the memon which is already in your Lordship's hands, and the other measures of precaution that are there recommended to be adopted, would be equal to our security, although I have laid it down as an axiom, that it can be endangered only under cucumstances of previous advantage to the enemy, by which his numbers will be increased to almost any extent to which he may wish to carry them, but were we to confine ourselves thus solely to our own defence, however successful we might at present be in that object, I for my own part have scarcely a doubt, that a new and formidable power would establish itself in our nearest neighbourhood, a power which would overset the whole political state of Hindostan, would require an uniemitting vigilance and constant state of preparation on our part, attended with an enormous expense, and that at last we should have to contend for our existence, under circumstances of infinitely greater difficulty and embarrassment than those which will now attend our opposition to its first establishment I ought to apologize to your Lordship for thus obtauding an opinion which has not been called for, but I have been led to it by the view of acceding, most fully, to the wisdom of the measure of a junction with the Mahrattas, and as pointing out the grounds on which I may allude to the expediency of doing it with cordiality and effect

It appears to me to be impossible to point out any piecise bounds at which danger commences to the aimy that quits a frontiei, and to the flontier which is left by it. Its communication, indeed, becomes more and more piecailous in propoition as it abandons the country with which it is to be piecailly liable to the fitte of war, and with iespect to action, it is equally liable to the fitte of war, and with iespect to action, it is officially liable to the fitte of war, and with iespect to peculiar advantage, very raiely to be met with, that it can be overed by any aimy that is advanced before it. The true question, however, that I think aimses is, how far the object in view will justify the possible danger that may attend the movement, and the principal encumstance of consideration should be, to adopt the best measures that human wisdom can devise, to lessen or to meet the danger, with the best means within our command

The expediency of a defensive alliance with the Mahrattas being admitted, it follows of course that as the object must be then defence as well as ours, the operations of the armies employed must be directed by what appears to be the best means of accomplishing that end It is not to be supposed that the Mahiattas would sacrifice a part of their country m order to contract the line of defence to what may lessen the danger to ours. Their object will be to meet the enemy on their frontier, and it will scarcely be practicable to make them comprehend that they can receive any advantage from an alliance with us, unless we join them there Fortunately every step we take to defend their dominions is equally applied to the protection of our own, then frontier becomes, in fact, ours, which is truly and effectually covered by it, and having once quitted the piecise line which would be obviously marked out by our confining ourselves solely to our own defence, it matters, I think, very little whether we are 50 miles farther from on nearer to that line

At the same time that I hazard this idea, for it will, I am persuaded, meet many opponents, I beg your Lordship to be assured that I by no means overlook the consequences that may attend its being adopted in its fullest extent I am well aware of the difficulty of communication, I am fully sensible of those that may be experienced with respect to subsistence. and I feel all the dangers and hazards that would attend us in the unfortunate event of a defeat, when, unquestionably, every mile we should have advanced would increase the peril of retreat I am even inclined to give additional weight to these cucumstances, because it is my decided and fixed opinion, that our enemies are as numerous as the inhabitants of the country, and I have not a doubt but that a reverse of for tune would exhibit them starting from every tope and from behind every bank But all these inconveniences and dangers commence, to a certain degree, the moment our army quits the banks of the Ganges. It is to the greater or less extent to which they may be carried that my reasoning applies, and it is under the conviction, that the benefits to be derived from a junction with the Mahiattas will be found to justify and to overbalance them all, that I observe that their being more or less increased by a greater or less distance from our frontier is of no weight when put in competition with the expediency of acting with the strictest condulity, and in the closest union with those people. It is not to be imagined that they will give up Delhi without a contest their first position will ceitamly be beyond it Then frontier extends to Carnaul, which is 60 coss, perhaps something better than 100 miles from Delhi I should have no hesitation to recommend that there should be no restriction to our advancing so far in cooperation with them The only condition that I would annex to the permission would be, that they should put into our hands some place of strength between Anopsheei and the aimy, to serve as a depôt and magazine The question, in short, appears to me to be reducible to this Whether we shall meet the enemy and oppose him, though at a distance, under every advantage of the assistance to be derived from a numerous and powerful body of friends, equally interested in the cause with ourselves, and masters of the intermediate country between our own frontier and the scene of our operations, by which the danger, which might otherwise arise from that distance, will be very considerably lessened, or whether we shall wait to be attacked at home, when we shall be deprived of that assistance, and when our enemy will himself have acquired all the advantage to be derived from increased resources, augmented numbers, and established authority. exerted with the aidour and enthusiasm usual in a career of victory and conquest, and with our own native troops, perhaps, labouring under all the effects of a contrary impression?

But in viewing the subject of the danger attending our advancing, it is necessary that we should advert to the numbers of which the army will consist that may be applied to the defence of our north-western frontier. I have ventured to suppose that that number may be carried to 20,000 men, but as I am entirely ignorant of the services for which, independent of the internal security of our provinces and the necessary attention to Fort Wilham, the remainder of our aimy may be required, I may eir very considerably in my calculation on this subject. One circumstance is, however, clear to me, and that is, that if we cannot command that number at least, independent of the garnson of Allahabad, our means of defence will be scarcely proportionate to the magnitude of the danger with which we are threatened

After determining the actual strength of the army that can be collected for the whole of the service required, it will then remain to proportion its several parts into the different branches into which that service will divide itself. For if it is judged expedient that the principal coips should be carried beyond the frontier to any distance, that a cordial cooperation with our allies may require. I believe there is no one will doubt the necessity of leaving no very inconsiderable force in these provinces, as well to assist in qualding the passes on the over as to insure to us that command and influence, and those services, that may be indispensable to our safety Your Lordship judges most rightly that, in its present shape, no sort of service can be expected from the Nabob's army, and I am confident that without a total change in the policy of the Court and the manners of the people, there exists no possible means by which it can ever be rendered such as can ment that the smallest degree of confidence should be placed m it The money now expended on them is thrown away, and can only be rendered subservient to the object of general defence, by being appropriated to the increase of the Comnany's army. But I much fear that it is too late to adopt such a measure, with the hope that any troops that would be raised with this view can be of service if the Shah's invasion take place this season This consideration should, however, only act as a sput to us to begin the attempt as early as possible. and it may perhaps be much facilitated by the possibility of taking into our service some of his battalions entire They are all, to a certain degree, disciplined, and under the charge of a proper selection of officers, might soon become serviceable There seems to be little doubt of then willingness to engage

With respect to the number of which the corps that is to not with our allies should consist, there appears to me to be no medium. It should either be a simple detachment of two or three battalions, such as was that which, under Captan Little from Bombay, accompanied a body of the same people during the Mysore war, and that which was on the same occasion attached to the Nizam's army, or it should consist of the utmost strength that can be collected, with a due negard to other services I hold it for certain that in all situations in which we are to act with any of the country powers, the whole brunt of the operations will rest with us, nor will our particular safety ever be considered by them as an object that can be put in competition with any danger that a regard to it might entail upon themselves Our force should, therefore, be such that any misfortune that might befall it could have no sensible influence upon the general state of our affairs, or it should be such as is sufficient for its own defence,-as can, if necessary, act upon the means which it possesses within itself, and as can give us that influence, and entitle us to that pre-emmence, which it is so essential for us on all occasions to preserve. A medium force would only expose us to insult from our arrogant and selfish friends, and to defeat and ruin from our more open enemies, whilst the deficiency which might be occasioned in our general means of defence, by a loss which as such would be considerable, might very materially cripple, perhaps render vain, our further efforts Could, by any means whatever, the acting aimy be carried to any thing near the strength I have proposed, and could a corps of five or six thousand men be formed at the same time in these piovinces, and provided decisive measures for the tranquillity of Robilcund be adopted. I should certainly imagine that we might hope to give the Shah such cause to repent his incursion as would secure the future tranquillity of Hindostan, at least from foreign invasion. for some time

I feel, my Loid, that in what I have bitherto had the honour of offering to your Loidship, I have in some shape departed from the datum upon which your Loidship's questions seems in some degree to be founded. Your Loidship's destross, that it will be necessary to consider the tenus of a defensive league, to which, whether Scindiah shall be a party or not, the Rajpoots and Selks must be invited, whereas I have confined myself entirely to the supposition of an alliance and hearty cooperation with the Mahiattas, that is, I presume, with Scindiah, without once adverting to either the Rajpoots of the Selks information, and still greater to better judgment, it does not appear to me that it can be practicable for us to enter into any alliance with either of the Powers mentioned, but through the Mahrattas, if I may use the expression I mean by it that it is utterly impossible that we can join or cooperate with the former but by the concurrence and in concert with the latter, for we cannot even communicate but through the dominions of Scindish Exclusive of the geographical difficulty, there would, I apprehend, be found a much greater in the inveterate hatred that exists between the two people communication between us and the Seiks, without the participation of Scindish, would excite a jealousy that would, I fear, be fatal to our friendship with the latter The same cucumstances exist with respect to the most powerful of the Rappoots, the Rajahs on the western frontier of Scindiah's territory It appears, therefore, to me, that if we cannot form an alliance with Scindiah, it will be difficult, if not impossible, to form any other If, indeed, we can convince him of his true interests, I believe it will be an easy matter to engage the Rajah of Jynajui, and others whose territories are adiacent to his, for it is impossible that they can be desirous that the Shah should establish himself in these parts respect to the Seiks, the task may be more difficult advantages can we hold out to induce them to act in cooperation with us? They will naturally ask if we expect that they should abandon then country and possessions to join us, and of what use we can be to them while posted on the frontions of the Mahratta dominions? The answers to these questions seem difficult

The tauth is, my Lord, that, with all deference to better

Another consideration auses, however, upon this subject Suppose the Seiks were found to be co dually disposed to join in the league, and should the Mahattas on their part be equally willing, would it be expedient that we should easily our operations to the length of advancing into the country of the former, upon which terms alone it would be possible to bring into action the united forces of the three Powers' I do not, indeed, think the case is likely to occur, in which a decision may be necessary on this question, at least beyond a certain degree. If the Shah carries his intentions into effect, he is probably at this moment on his march, and the fate of the Seik fronter, most likely of Labore itself, will be decided long before we can possibly be at hand to take a part in the contest Our movement, therefore, to that extent, cannot in any case be necessary, but the Rajah of Patiala is represented to be a powerful prince, commanding at all times a force of 10,000 horse, and as many footmen, and capable of laising many more in case of necessity. His tellitories bolder on those of the Mahiattas and should the Seiks have iemained disunited and separate, or should he by any means have escaped the effects of any defeat which his countrymen may have suffered on the frontier, so that his force may remain entire, and probably increased by the junction of such as may have escaped the Shah's army,-I think such an addition of strength would be an object, and would justify a further advance, but certainly not unless our force were such as would command the respect of both parties, and place us in the light of umpiles, capable of enforcing our wishes on eithei

I have no doubt of the Mahrattas seadily acceding to any alhance your Lordship may propose, and Scindish's return seems more probable now than it did when your Lordship's letter was written, but even should that event not take place, though it will be a circumstance much to be regicted, as cirpling the energy with which his strength might be exeited under his own direction, yet it would appear that the approach of so manifest a danger must unite all parties to aveit it, which they would be penhaps more inclined to do under our controlling influence than if they were left to themselves

I have the honour to be, with great respect,
My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient and Most humble Servant,

J H CRAIG

No LXXVI

The Earl of Moraington to the Hon Jonathan Duncan

SIR, Fort William, 8th October, 1798

If concur with you in thinking that the services of the native agent whom you have appointed to reside at Bushire may be usefully employed for the purpose mentioned in that letter, and as the probability of the invasion of Hindostan by Zemaun Shah seems to increase, *I am of opinion that Mehdy Ali Khan cannot too soon commence his operations at the Court of Baba Khan, or of whatever person may be in the exercise of the sovereignty of Persia. It would certainly be a very desnable object to exerte such an alam in that quarter as may either induce the Shah to relimquish his projected expedition, or may recal him should be have actually embaked in it.

I am not possessed of sufficient information respecting the state of Persia, or the views of the ruling power in that country, to enable me at present to finmish Mehdy Ali Khan with any specific instructions or powers for the attainment of the object in contemplation Until, therefore, his future communications shall have opened a more distinct view of the subject, we can only be authorized to offer to the Persian Government, in return for any efficient measure which it shall take for the purpose of diverting Zemann Shah from his designs against Hindostan, such supplies of aims and military stores as may be required, and as you may be able to furnish

If the credentals aheady provided for Mehdy Ah Khan by your Government should appear insufficient to procue him due attention from the tuling power in Peissa, on the more important points now proposed to be committed to his management, it will be proper to funnish him with such additional letters and powers as may be suitable to this object. These instruments may at present proceed from your Government, hereafter it may be necessary that they should issue from myself.

It has been suggested to me, and I understand it was the opmion of Sir Chales Malet, that a further diversion of the Shah's force might be created by our affolding certain encouragement to the nations occupying the Delta and lower

^{*} See letters of Zemaun Shah in the Appendix

parts of the Indus, who have been stated to be much disaffected to the Government of the Shah, I wish you to give this point the fullest and most serious consideration, to state to me your ideas upon it, and in the mean while to take any immediate steps which shall appear proper and practicable to you

I have the pleasure to mform you that Admiral Ramiei has, at my tecommendation, ieselved to proceed with the junicipal part of his squadion to the Malabai coast, as soon as possible after the change of the monsoon. This a tangenent will, I trust, televe you from the apprehension of any material inconvenience under the unavoidable detention of the Bombay fligate in this quater.

I have the honour to be, &c
MORNINGTON

Fort William, October 10, 1798

No LXXVII

The Earl of Mornington to the Resident at Lucknow

SIR,

I shall be glad to receive your promised suggestions respecting the means of obtaining early and correct intelligence from Zemaius Shah's country, but I desire you will not delay the execution of any practicable plan for this purpose, to so late a period, as the time when your could receive my approbation of your ideas. Some time since I instructed the Resident with Dowlut Rao Scindish, to take an early opportunity of concerting measures with you and Sir James Craig, with a view to the attainment of this desirable object

It has occurred to me that it may be possible for an agent established at Cabul to open with Sunat and Bombay, by the route of Bikhei and the Indus, a communication which would be more secure, and, perhaps, more expeditious, than any at present in use A trial of this route might at least be made, by transmitting through it duplicate despatches only in the flist instance I shall request Mi Duncan to consider this suggestion, and I desire you will also examine how fair it may be likely to lead to a practicable and beneficial plan

I approve of the measures which have been adopted for the purpose of reinforcing the troops in Rohilcund, and when the whole shall have been assembled under Major General Stuart, I direct that every proper and necessary step to be taken in order effectually and speedily to crush every remaining seed of commotion in that country

To this end it is, no doubt, a measure of primary necessity that all the sons of Fyzodilah Khan, now at Rampon, should be semoved without delay to Lucknow I shall be glad to learn that they have acquiesced without difficulty in the Vizue's xequistion to this effect. But if they should mamfeat a disposition to lesist his authority, they must be compelled to vield to it

It is, for the same loason, highly expedient that the Rissalhdars Omar Khan, Ghulam Hussam Khan, Sunnoo Khan, and Mahoumed Syde Khan, should not only be divested of their commands, but removed out of the country and I accordingly desire you will take the necessary measures for securing as soon as possible the persons of these officers, who must in the first instance be sent to Benauces, whence they may afterwards, if requiste, be oldered to Calcutta I have given this ducation under the supposition that you are possessed of sufficient proofs to wait at a belief that the Rissalhdars have entered into engagements inconsistent with their duty towaids the Vizier and the Company, under this supposition the Rissalhdars are not entitled to the benefit of the obligation signed by Si Robeit Abercromby and M. Cherry

If the course of affaus should again bring the person of Golaum Mahomed Khan into our hands (an event which I anxiously desue) he will have no claim to any future indulgence from this Government, and he must, without any stipulations in his favoi, be despatched without delay to Calcutta I am, Sir, &c Morningerots

No LXXVIII

The Earl of Mornington to the Right Hon Henry Dundas

MY DEAR SIR, Fort William, October 11, 1798

I proceed to submit to you the progress which I have been able to make in my proposed measures for flustrating the designs of Tippoo and of France My objects, as already described to you,* have been to assemble the aimy on the coasts of Coromandel and Malabat, to revive out defensive alliances against Tippoo, and to check the growth of the French influence in the Deccan, to secure the presence of the fleet on the coast of Malabar at the earliest possible period, and to lay the foundations of a perimanent imporment of the emilitary establishments of Fort St George, and of the defences of the Carmatic

^{*} See p 80

From my private consepondence with General Hairs, and from the letter of the Government of Fort St George addressed to me in Council, under the date of the 10th of July, you will lean the counteit action which I have met m my endeavours to place our possessions upon the coast of Coromandel m a respectable posture of defence

From the whole tenor of my concespondence, public and private, as well as from every document contained in my despatches since my arrival in Bengal, you will perceive that so far from imagining that I can even be called upon to justify my odies is of assembling our armies in the Pennsula of India, my only doubt has been, whether I ought not to have attempted a bolder effort, with a view of anticipating the meditated attack of Tippoo, and of his French allies. The measures of preparation and defence which I have ordered, are so evidently essential to the preservation of the British Empire in India, that I should have deemed myself absolutely unpaid onable if I had either neglected to order them, or had been deterred from carrying them into effect by such arguments as those which you will find in the letter of the 10th July, from the Government of Fort St George

The amy, however, is assembled on the coast of Conomandel, and although wholly madequate at present to purposes of offence, it at least affords a better protection to the Carnatic than when dispersed, and when utterly unable to offer any sort of leastance on any part of our frontes

I shall be able to temforce the aimy in the Carnatic by an addition of about 5,000 volunteers from the native tegiments on this establishment, as soon as the state of the season will admit of landing them at Madias The volunteers have offered themselves for embalkation under the proposed bounty with very great alacrity, and I am persuaded, if the number had not been limited by my orders, it would have been much more considerable. The men who have tuned out for service are chiefly those who have aheady been on the coast and have obtained medals for their services, they are in fact the flower of the army

At Bombay I have found no obstacles whatever in carrying into effect the assembling of the ammy, and I have every reason to be satisfied with the zeal and vigilance of Mr Duncan and General Stuart, and with the excellent abilities of the latter, I tust that the army at Bombay and in Malabau, is now in a flow and state of neunation

The Government of Fort St. George previously to the airwal of Lord Clive (having in their lette of the 10th July* deprecated every measure of piccaution for the protection of the Carnatic against the threatened invasion of Tippool expressed in their letter of the 3d of August' an equal dismolnation to the orders which I had given for assembling a detachment in the Gintion Circai with a view to the revival of our defensive alliance with the Nizam, and to the destruction of the French party at Hydenabad The opposition proceeded in both instances from the same quanter, and was met by me with the same determination to pursue the line of my duty to the best of my judgment, to enforce the execution of my orders, and to reprove the factious spirit which had attempted to obstruct them

In pursuing this course, I have concluded a subsidiary treaty with the Nizam, on the principles stated to you in my private letter, No 6,1 m my instructions of the 9th July,$ to the Residents at Poonah and Hydeaabad, and in my minute of the 12th August || A copy of that minute, and a tanslation of the treaty for you private use, accompany this letter, you will find some parts of the translation rather awkwardly expressed, but as the substance of the stipulations appeared to me highly favourable to our interests, and as any delay might have hazarded the success of the whole plan, I rathfied the hearty wibout alteration. Being satisfied with the manner in which Captain Kirkpatrick, the Acting Resident at Hyderabad, had executed my instructions, I have appointed him Resident at that Court in the room of his brother Colonel Kirkpatrick with his resident.

I am indebted to the firmness and spirit of General Haris for having assembled the Guntoor detachment with every possible degree of expedition But you will observe by the letters from the Resident at Hyderabad, that whether from neglect or wilful omission in some of the subordinate departments of office at Fort St George, the troops had not been furnished with money sufficient to enable them to quit the Company's territories This circumstance must retaid then advance to Hyderabad I still, however, entertain little doubt that I shall soon be enabled to forward to you the mtelligence of the complete dismission of the French party. I look upon that event to be not only highly desirable on general grounds but indispensable to the possibility of maintaining a contest with Tippoo if he should think fit to attack us, especially if he should receive any succour from France I refer you on this point to my minute of the 12th of August The transactions at Poonah will show how active Tippoo has been at that Court, and how dangerous an influence he maintains there through the intrigues of Govind Kishen Although it is difficult yet to form any certain judgment of the issue of the negociation at Poonah, I am disposed to believe that the conclusion of the treaty of Hyderabad, under the circumstances of an opening being left for the accession of the Peishwa, will induce him to enter speedily into our views He stated no objection when Colonel Palmer first apprised him of our intended arrangements in favour of the Nizam, and he has hitherto declared his intention to fulfil his defensive engagements with us, in the event of hostilities with Mysore If, however, he should prove unfaithful, the affairs of the Mahratta empire are still so disordered, that the utmost we can now apprehend is the neutrality of the Court of Poonah. Under such encumstances it will certainly be a most important advantage to have secured the cordial cooperation of the Nizam, and to have removed all French influence in the Deccan

^{*} See p 214 † See p 236 ‡ See p 80 § See p 113 || See p 159

Since I have begun this letter, I have received a despatch from Colonel Palmer, giving an account of his having announced to the Peishwa the conclusion of the treaty of Hyderabad The Peishwa received the communication without the least symptom of palousy or alaim, expressed his own wish to enter into similar engagements with the Company, and signified his intention of opening an immediate negotiation with Colonel Palmer for that purpose. Colonel Palmer, however, does not believe that the Peishwa will enter cordially into our views, unless Nana shall be restored to the administration, an event which is expected to happen within a short period of time

If the Peishwa shall ultimately accept my piopositions, it is my intention to cement the whole of my plan by a new treaty of defensive alliance between the Company, the Nizam, and the Peishwa, the stipulations of which shall semedy every defect in the subsisting treaties, by defining whatever is vague, and by explaining whatever is vague, and by explaining whatever is obscuie, in our piesent recipiocal engagements. This was an object which Loud Cornwallise endeavoured to accomplish during the last months of his continuance in India. It is unquestionably not only a desirable, but a necessary improvement of our security in the present civils, the subsisting defensive treaties with the Nizam and the Peishwa being very ambiguous and loose, as well as defective in many essential atticles.

The circumstances of the moment will probably enable me to extend our system of defensive alhance to the case of a French invasion in India, whether connected on not with the cause of Tippoo. As our treaties now stand, if a French army were to land in any part of our territory, we could not claim assistance either from the Nizam or from the Peishwa, unless Tippoo had pieviously avowed a connection with the French, or had manifested the existence of thy some overt act.

Scindish has received my propositions very favourably, and I have every reason to believe that he will endeavour to return to Hindostan, where the internal commotions in his dominions, and the increasing rumous of the approach of Zemaun Shah, render his presence absolutely necessary to his own pieseivation. The situation of Scindiah is at present such that we have a good deal to hope and nothing to feat from him. He will be useful to us if he should return to his own dominions, and if he should not, his power must fall to rum

In my lettes, No 6, "I informed you that I had actually forwarded a representation to Tippoo, and had called on the allies to concur in it, the fact was that I had diawn a paper for that purpose, and had prepared it for despatch to both the allied Courts, but a more full consideration of the whole political state of India induced me to think that it would be advasable to postpone any iemonstrance to Tippoo until our preparations should be further advanced, and until I had been able to accertain the disposition of our allies, as well as then means of assisting us in the event of a contest with Mysore. It appeared also to me that the presence of a Bittain floor upon the coast of Malabai might incline the Sultain to give a more serious consideration to our representations. A futther advantage which recommended this delay was, that it would afford me the opportunity of accommodating the nature and extent of my piopositions to my means of enforcing them. My minute of the 18th of August, will furnish you with the outline of the remonstrance which I should hope we may be enabled to make to Tippoor without the hazard of an immediate war, and with the prospect of obtaining from him some degree of security against his future machinations

See page, 80

The duft of a letter to Tupoo which I have secured from the Nizam and the Peishwa, (and which foims a number in the packet of the 3d October, addressed to the Secret Committee) will serve to prove the sense which our allies entertain of Tupoo's aggression, as well as then concuirence in my principles with regard to the general nature of the satisfaction to be required from him. You will observe, however, that I have still reserved to myself the power of framing the remonstrance to Tupoo according to the circumstances of the conjunction in which it may be expedient to apply to him. The moment I trust is not fin distant when the French party shall have been expelled from the Deccan, when the fleet shall be on the coast of Malabia, and when our military preparations shall be sufficiently advanced to enable me to bring every point of difference with Tupoo to a distinct issue.

By my correspondence with Admiral Raimei, you will perceive that I have induced him to proceed immediately to the coast of Malabar, I trust this disposition of the fleet will prove an efficient check upon Tippoo's intercourse with the French

My instructions to the Govennment of Fort St. George on the subject of the defects in their military establishments were despatched on the 20th July * I have not yet received the report which I desired, and I have reason to apprehend that the necessary preparations for the defence of the Carranto, are carried on with less zeal and energy than the occasion

Even now that Government appears unwilling to push our preparations with the requisite alacrity, lest the forwardness of our defence should invite an attack from Tippoo at an earlier period than he would otherwise be disposed to move. I know that Tippoo will attack us, whenever he shall imagine that he can do so with advantage, but I never can believe that his inclination to make the attack will increase in proportion to the augmentation of our means of repelling it. In the defenceless state in which I found our possessions on the coast of Coromandel, at a time when a large proportion of Tippoo's army was actually in the field, the Carnatic lay completely at his mercy It was, however, probable at that time, as it is now, that Tippoo would not be disposed to move previously to the arrival of an additional force from France, an event which was not to be expected until after the close of the monsoon on the coast of Malabai Under these cucumstance it was apprehended by the Government of Fort St George, that any attempt to collect our forces might induce Tippoo to make an immediate attack upon the Cainatic

I felt at that early period that a moment of hazard must be passed duning the necessary interval between the commencement of our preparations, and the time when they would be so far advanced as to secure us against the effects of a sudden blow. The degree of this hazard appeared to me to be inconsiderable, but if it had been greater, I should have incurred it rather than have relied on the other alternative of remaining in a defenceless state, and trusting to the folbearance of Through.

General Harris's private letters will shew the duration of the period of danger according to his opinion

It will not escape you observation, that the argument of the Government of Fort St. George against the putdence of arming would have been strongen every day in exact proposition to the progress of Trippoo's preparations. The danger, therefore, of taking any steps for our defence would have increased with the probability of the attack, and the moment must ultimately have airved in which we should have been compelled either to assemble our army under circumstances of augmented danger, or to abandon all hopes of resistance

My judgment clearly was, and is, that the earliest possible effort to recover our means of repelling the enemy must be at all times the safest step which could be taken. Having held this opinion even before the commencement of our preparations, I now feel still more strongly the absolute necesity of unging them with every practicable degree of despatch, until we shall be in a state to meet Tippoo in the field either for purposes of offence or of defence

The engagements which Tippoo has contracted with the French, and the public proofs which he has given of his readmess to receive in Mysore as large a force as they can furnish, are encumstances which form a new feature in our political situation in India The intercepted correspondence between M Dubuc and Tippoo contains an additional proof of the nature of Tippoo's connection with the French, as well as of his present views. On their part the French have not only manifested every intention to cooperate with Tippoo, but I am bound to conclude, from all the intelligence which I have been enabled to obtain, that they have actually fitted out considerable armaments with a view of reaching India, either by the Cape of Good Hope, or through the Red Sea, should attempt the passage by the Cape, and should succeed in eluding the vigilance of our fleets (an event at least possible) they might land upon the coast of Malabai a force which would become formidable to us in an unprepared condition. On the other hand, it is hardly to be supposed that with our army in the field, on the coast of Malabar, it would be practicable for the French to convey, by the Cape of Good Hope, without interruption from our fleets, any force so considerable as to be a subject of alarm to us

I have just now leaint, though from doubtful authority, that the French obtained possession of Alexandria in the month of June, combining this report with the news received from Europe of the sailing of the fleet from Toulon towards the middle of May, the event, however extiaordinary, is not improbable. If the French really have taken Alexandria, difficult as the attempt may be, I conclude that they will omit no exertion to assist Tippoo,* and, at least, will use every means to instigate him to wai. The terror of their victory in Egypt (whee I hear they have made an immense slaugh-

^{*} See Napoleon Buonaparte's letter to Toppoo from Egypt in the Appendix

tei) will greatly serve then cause in India, and perhaps elate Tippoo so highly as to induce him to commence hostilities

My information, however, leads me to believe that even without meeting any opposition in Egypt, the French could not reach India from thence in any numbers for a considerable time, and that if a vigilant cruize of three or four ships could be established off the Straits of Babelmandel, it would be nearly manuacticable for any vessels which the French could collect in the Red Sea to force a passage through the But I am not yet apprized whether the Admiral will be able to provide for this object without abandoning the protection of the trade of Bombay and of the coast of Malabar It appears possible that a part of the armament from Toulon may be destined for India direct, while the remainder shall operate in Egypt, a squadron leaving the Mediterranean with this view before the end of May might have entered the Red Sea before the Admiral can have occupied the Straits of Babelmandel This is not, I trust, a probable, but it is far from an impossible event, and its consequences would be to remove a main obstacle to the operations of the French against India from Egypt Whether, therefore, the operations of the French against India be directed through the ordinary passage by the Cape of Good Hope, or through the Red Sca, or through both, it is equally incumbent on us to maintain Bombay and Malabay in a respectable posture of defence I have already suggested the possibility of Tippoo's mind being so elevated by the first account of the French successes in Egypt as to break out into immediate hostilities These considerations apply not only to the necessity of keeping the field in Malabar, but to that of continuing the army in the Carnatic in a state of forward preparation

On the north-western frontier of India a greater probability appears, than has yet existed, of the approach of Zemaun Shah Gholam Mahommed, the Rohilla Chief, who was the leader of the rebellion in 1794, is returned into Rohilcund with a mission from the Shah, and is endeavouring to excite the Rohilla Chiefs to commotion. This premature step, although a strong indication of the serious meterious of the Shah, will, I trust, enable me to give an immediate check to the spirit of revolt in that quarter, from which he would have delived great assistance in any attempt upon the frontier of Oude With this view, I have invested Sir James Craig with the command of the troops in the Vizzer's dominions, and I have directed the corps stationed at Futtleth Ghur to advance into Rohilcund for the purpose of securing the persons of the leaders of the projected revolt, and of crushing the seeds of commotion before they shall have gained any height. Even after this object shall have been accomplished, it will still be necessary to maintain a large force on the frontier of Oude, as long as any danger of Zemaun Shah's approach shall exist.

The necessity of protecting Ceylon, and also our various acquisitions in the Eastern Seas, has diminished our disposable force at Madias, and in some degree at this Presidency

If the French should be enabled to reach the coast of Malaban with any considerable force, I am persuaded that one of their first objects would be to seize Goa, as being the strongest place and the best harboun in which they could readily establish themselves in that part of India. From Goa they would have the power, with great advantage, of afflording assistance to Tippoo, as well as of receiving, from time to time, whatever succour might be furnished from their newly accumed dominons in Evryo.

Having at a very early period foreseen the importance of Goa, I have already obtained much information on the subject from Mr Duncan and General Stuart, and I mean to direct them to endeavour to take the most effectual means for protecting it against any attempt of the French This operation may possibly require a considerable force Peishwa should revert (as I trust he will) to his former wish for the aid of a subsidiary force from the Company, this service will also become an additional call upon our aimy at Bombay The combination of all these circumstances, on every side of India, will probably require an increase of our force at all the Presidencies You will observe, however, that the greater part of the expense of this augmentation at Fort St George and Bombay will be defiaved by the Nizam and by the Peishwa, and by referring to my letter to the Secret Committee, under date the 3rd October, you will perceive that it is my intention to provide for the expense of the augmentation of our aimy in the province of Oude by a proportionate reduction of the Vizier's present military establishment, and by charging him with the pay of our increased force

It is my intention, by the ship which carries this despatch. to represent to Lord Macartney and to Sn Hugh Christian the necessity of their contributing to the defence of the coast of Malabar, provided they shall be satisfied that the efforts of the French are directed solely to India, and that no attack is to be apprehended against the Cape I should hope that, under such cucumstances, we might expect to receive from the Cape the assistance of several ships of war, and, at least, one regiment of European infantiv, before the end of the month of February I also place great rehance on your vigilance and alaciity, being persuaded that my letters from the Cape, M. Malartic's proclamation, and the movements of the French towards India, will have concurred to induce you to reinforce the aimy and navy in this quarter. My endeayours shall be directed to keep our expenses on the lowest possible scale consistent with the permanent security of our possessions.

Whatever may be the result of this crisis, I trust that your opinion and that of my friends at home will be, that I have not been deficient, either in diligence or zeal, for the public My health is now, and has been throughout the whole of the ramy season, much more favourable than I have remembered it for some years past in England, a circumstance remarkably fortunate under so great a pressure of business I am confident that the ultimate issue of this alaim will be prosperous to our affans, but I do not apprehend that I shall find myself oppressed by the labour to which any tuin of our foitune may subject me, my mind would be perfectly composed, if I could expect to meet a correspondent disposition in those who must be charged with the execution of my orders I refer you to my secret and confidential letters for an explanation of my apprehensions on this point. the sole object of my anxiety, and the only real peril in the present situation of India.

Beheve me, &c
Mornington.

P S. I have annexed to this letter two papers drawn up by Captain Malcolm, late Town Major of Fort St George, one on the state of Tippoo's aimy and resources, the other a general rew of our present political situation. The latter is cuitous as Captain Malcolm had not seen any of my letters or minutes on the same subject, and only knew that a detachment was ordered to Hyderabad I had no knowledge of Captam Malcolm, nor was he recommended to me before I met him at Fort St George, he is a very promising young man I have appointed him Assistant to the Resident at Hyderabad

No LXXIX

Su J H Crais to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord.

Cawnpore, 13th October, 1798

The letter from my Kurnaul correspondent, to which I have alluded to m my public letter, is principally on the subject of Gholaum Mahommed, whose motions I have directed him to watch After, however, mentioning the construction of the bridge over the Attock, he adds—

"A constant intercourse is maintained between the Chiefs of the Siek nation and those of the Mahrattas. The former are all at their stations"

I have written to hum for a further explanation, and have durected hum to make particular enqury, as for as may be in his power, as to the probability of the two people entering into an alliance to oppose the Shah, and more especially as to the disposition of the Seiks, and how far they are united among themselves, for that purpose. I have also written in the same terms, on the latter subject, to my friend at Amrutsia. In the meantime I have fotwarded the account to Colonel Collins as, it these people should really have an interior of entering into a defensive league against the common enemy, it may be much facilitated I think by its being known that your Lordshup is willing to be a party in it, whilst that circumstance will undoubtedly have a tendency to inspire them with a little more confidence in the force of any teaty that may take place between them, than is otherwise likely to exist betwirt inveterate enemies, each knowing the other to be capable of every treachery Not having the honour to be known to you Loidship, it may now be necessary that I should assure you that I am not apt to obtude opmions, or to step out of my sphere in the presumption of offering advice. The only ment to which I lay any claim is that of an ardent zeal in the service of my country, but I wish not that it should be intemperate, and if I assume the liberty, on this occasion, of continuing a preade correspondence with your Lordahip, you ower it to the honour which you did me in your flist letter by the frankness of which I was led to believe that it would be received by your Lordahip precisely in the light in which alone I can assure you it is ventured upon

300

I have not heard from Colonel Collins since he left this for Futtyghui In the conversation that I had with him here I endeavoured to impress him with a conviction of the necessity of his losing no time in entering into the negociation with which he is charged, and I am suie he was himself sensible of it, but since we have such good leasons for believing that the Shah has actually begun his march, so far as to be on the banks of the Attock upwards of twenty days ago, I now feel it to be of double importance that he should proceed without an instant's delay I am concerned to have to say, that from all the information I can get, and I have made every mounty in my power. I am led most firmly to believe that the Seiks, if left to themselves, will not make any opposition at all to the Shah's approach, or if they do, that it will be very feeble. I believe, indeed, that the power of the Seiks jests very much upon opinion, and that in the day of trial the delusion will appear. I neither believe them to be so numerous, or so hardy, as they have been represented, although sufficiently so to load it over the real inhabitants of the country, for I make no doubt that your Lordship is aware that the Seiks are not the fortieth part of the inhabitants of the district over which they have established their dominion. The mass of these are a mixture of Mussulmen and Hundoos. the former of which from every motive, and the latter in detestation of the oppressions of their present Loids, will rejoice in the Shah's approach Nothing I believe can produce any important exertion from the Seiks but a junction with the Mahrattas, and giving even credit to the letter from Kurnaul, whatever appearance it may carry of the probability of such an event, I still imagine it will be with difficulty accomplished, but under your Lordship's auspices, but I much doubt the ability of the Mahiattas themselves to assemble in time such a force as will give confidence to the others There is no appearance of it that I can yet hear of, they are quarelling among themselves at Delhi, without seeming much to think of the danger with which they are threatened Attock is but a little better than 400 coss from Delhi, a space that may with the utmost ease be marched in six weeks, and that without adverting at all to the celerity with which the Shah's aimy is reported to move If, (and it is no very improbable supposition) despising the Seiks, whose behaviour in 1796 was no ways such as to give him cause to hold them in high estimation, the Shah should adopt a bold step, and, leaving a corps of troops to keep them in awe, he should move on with lapidity, in the view of anticipating the Mahrattas at Delhi, he may be there in a time, that I almost tremble to think of It is not utterly impossible, my Loid, that he might anticipate our preparations, though it is indeed haidly to be expected that, entertaining the same opinion of the Mahrattas as that which I have supposed him to do of the Seiks, he should venture to leave them behind in order to attack us, especially before the fords of the Ganges are open. However, I wish to shew the expediency of exertion and activity on our part. The extent to which it is meant to carry the aimy being ascertained, the troops that are to compose it should be immediately assembled, not in the slow progress of the ordinary relief, when battalion relieves battalion, but the utmost expedition should be used in it. The ordnance and stores should be hurried up in some very unusual way, unless it can be furnished from Chunai, as I have suggested to the Commander-in-Chief, and, above all, some steps should be adopted, with respect to further arrangement, that might preclude the necessity of a daily reference to the present seat of Government

I know not what to say with respect to the Nabob's troops, I would be content that they should be useless, but I dread then being dangerous, unless some step is taken with regard to them I should be almost as unwilling to leave them behind me as I should be to leave a fortiess of the enemy. The Nabob is highly unpopula, and of all his subjects, I beheve he would least evpect attachment from his aimy. I fear much that it is too late to reap any benefit from the arrangement which your Loidship proposes with respect to them, and if we should be called to the frontier I doubt whether it may not be hazardous to attempt to reduce them We shall have of ourselves too many recruits in our ranks, indeed, a number that will very much weaken the dependence to be placed in our hattalions On this subject I feel that I tread on tender ground, but I write to your Lordship in the confidence of a private communication Neither the discipline of the army. or the knowledge of the officers, are such as to admit of our being insensible to other disadvantages. We are to expect a numerous and ferocious enemy, undisciplined and disorderly, but impetuous in their attacks, and rapid in their movements. -abounding in cavalry, and acting in a country the most favourable to that arm, where, if we can secure one flank, it will be a fortunate position Against them our reliance must be on our artillery, and on the steadmess of our infantry,where discipline should keep them firm in their ranks, and where confidence in their advantages should teach them not to shink under the impression of a tumultuous charge of cavalry, the circumstance of all others the most likely to affect the mind of a young soldier, while the knowledge of the officers, and the previous training of the corps, should ensure the ability of moving with the utmost precision and rapidity. and of forming in every direction, to resist a surrounding cavalry Battalions, with full one-third of recruits, are little equal to this description in its first part, and truth compels me to say that I have not yet seen one that came any where near it in the latter.

Your Lordship will do me justice in believing that I do not mean to hold out discounagement by this descaiption. We must act, and we must make the best of the tools in our hands. My view is, that your Lordship may be awane of the time state of the army, which it is at least possible that you may not become through any other channel, three-fourths of them with whom your Lordship may converse do not themselves know it, and the other fourth will not confess it. There is a third class of people which you Lordship may meet,—and it is a numerous one, even in my own profession,—who either do, on affect to, hold in contempt the idea of the necessity of its being otherwise. It is a fact, however, past controversy, that within these four years, and owing to these very circumstances of want of discipline and knowledge, the fate of our Empire in India probably hung by a thread of the slightest texture, since even the impetuosity of the enemy ought naturally to have led to the very advantage which his ignorance would not permit his being sensible of.

Our stores are utterly incompetent to any forward move, such as I have ventured to suggest as justifiable, if cooperation with the Mahrattas can be purchased by it Our proportion of musquet ammunition is 120 rounds per man, and that for the small arms of the cavalry is 40, with this I most certainly would not venture to stir a step from the Ganges. and how we are to get up more, in the time in which I think it is probable that it may be requisite for us to do so, I know not, I have written in strong terms to the Commander-in-Chief upon the subject. For our artillery we have 300 rounds, but that is, if possible, still less equal to what we ought to have, at least in a depôt, to which we could have a much more ready access than we have to Chunai or Allahabad The latter should be our grand depôt, in which should be lodged a quantity of stores of every species, equal to every possible emergency, while a field depôt fed continually from it, should move successively from post to post as we advance. and be always at hand to renew our deficiencies Upon the whole, do not, my Lord, consider it as presumption if I say that I feel a great deal more arrangement to be necessary than appears to me to occur to others as such It is an easy thing to put the whole upon the issue of one battle, and unfortunately it is the mode which is attended with the least trouble

I really beg your Lordship's pardon for this long and very free intrusion, but my apology is already offered in the fore part of my letter, and I shall therefore say no more, but that I have the honour to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient and humble Servant,

J H CRAIG

No LXXX

Sir J H Craig to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord, Campore, 13th October, 1798

On the 10th mst I flowarded to the Commanden-in-Chef the original of a letter which I seceived from a consepondent at Amutsir, which tends to conoborate the information which Colonel Colins seceived from Delhi, and forwarded to your Lordship by expires on the 6th, and yesteday I had another letter from a man who I have stationed at Kunnaul with an establishment of hurearrabs, who also confines that account, with the addition that a budge was constructing over the Attock

Considering the fact as established, for I can see no reason to doubt it, that the Shah is on the banks of the Attock, I should feel myself extremely happy if I had any instructions by which I could guide myself on the occasion Your Lordship and the Government have done me the honour to vest me with the general command of the army in the field, but I must request the permission to observe, that it has been without one line of direction by which I can form a sudement of the extent to which I may use my discretion in that command, or of the powers with which it was intended to entrust me in the exercise of it, I feel myself to be so totally incapable of starting difficulties for the purpose of embarrassment. that I am unwilling even to be exposed to the suspicion of it I therefore most solemnly assure your Lordship that in making this observation, my sole view is, to point out the expediency of guarding against the possibility of my counteracting the views of Government, through ignorance, or possibly from over zeal, at the same time feeling every moment to be of the utmost importance, in the present crisis, I should regret exceedingly to find that I had neglected a measure from not knowing that it was intended to vest me with the power of adopting it I am fai, my Lord, from shrinking from responsibility, but I wish not to be charged with it, at so great a hazard as must be incurred, under the total ignorance of what is expected from me

I have just written to the Commander-in-Chief to acquaint him, that if I got any intelligence upon which I can rely, that the Shah has actually matched from the Attock towards Lahore, before I am honoured with any instructions from hun or from your Lordship, I shall immediately match with everything I can collect, except General Stuart's corps, to Anopsheer. As I take for granted that the Commander-in-Chief will communicate that letter to your Lordship, it is scarcely necessary that I should enter into any detail of the reasons upon which I have judged it expedient to adopt this resolution

I have already written several letters to the Commanderin-Chief, on the subject of the deficiencies under which we should labour in the event of our taking the field. All those that regard cattle and camels, I believe, I could supply here, but I have felt myself restained by the Commander-in-Chief, having observed in one of his letters that measures were taking on that subject at the Presidency. I have also applied to Mr. Lumsden to ask the assistance of the Nabob in the aticle of elephants, and though I have not yet received any official answer, yet I have had great satisfaction, in a private letter, in which he tells me he thinks he can prevail upon lim to give it us to some extent. Other deficiencies of aimmunition and stores, particularly musquet cartridges, must come from below, and I very much feat can scatcely arrive in time to be of any use.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient and Most humble Servant,

J. H. Craig.

No LXXXI.

From the Earl of Mornington to the Resident at Lucknow Sir, Fort William, 18th October, 1798

In consequence of information I have received of a considerable deficiency in the carriage-eattle of the aimy in the field upon the fonties of his Excellency the Nabob Viziei's dominions, I have deemed it expedient to apply to his Excellency for his assistance in this respect, and have accordingly addressed a letter to him for that purpose, which will be forwarded to you by the Peisan translator. You will lose no time in ascertaining the number and description of deficient carriage-cattle from the Commander-in-Chief in the field, and apply to his Excellency the Nabob for them accordingly

I understand that the deficiency is principally in elephants

No arguments can be supposed necessary to obtain this and from his Excellency, in promoting an arrangement of which the immediate object is the protection of his country You will, however, assure him, that the same or an equal number of elephants and bullocks shall be restored to him when no longer required for the present service

I am, &c. Mornington

No LXXXII.

From the Earl of Mornington to the Hon Jonathan Duncan

Sir, Fort William, 24th October, 1798

I have had the honour to receive your letter of the 25th September, and although the measures which you adopted in consequence of your late advices from Suez, and the Gulph of Persia, have aheady obtained my public approbation, yet its swith general pleasure that I embrace the present opportunity of repeating the high sense which I entiest ann of the activity and judgment which have marked you proceedings, not only in this instance but on occasion of the preparations which had been previously rendered necessary by the conduct of Timoso Sultann

Although I hope we may still be able to avoid a war with that Prince, yet I continue to be of opinion that we must persevere in our preparations, and take all our measures as if that calamity were inevitable. With these sentiments I have determined not to relax my endeavours for reinforcing the army of the Carnatic from Bengal as speedily and to as great an extent as possible, and the Commander-in-Chief is now employed in framing a plan of eventual operations against the Sultaun, of which the immediate attack of Seingapatam must constitute the main object. This plan will be communucated to you as soon as it shall be formed, in the meanwhile I request that, having consulted General Stuart on the subject, you will as soon as possible let me know to what extent of force, at what period, and from what points it will be in your power to cooperate with the aimy in the Carnatic in such an attack on the capital of Mysore

Adverting to the dispersed state of his Majesty's squadion in India, to the indispensable necessity of vigilantly guarding the Malabai coast during the present monsoon, and to the possibility of our experiencing some disappointment with 16spect to the arrival of the naval reinforcement promised from home. I consider it to be our ungent duty to make every mactical effort for the purpose of increasing the Admiral's means of frustrating effectually the designs of the enemy in the Red Sea I shall accordingly endeavour to equip and despatch immediately some aimed ships from this port, which I shall place at his disposal, and I desire that you will apply yourself to the same object without delay I should hope that the port of Bombay, with proper exertion, might contribute materially to the augmentation of the Admiral's force It has occurred to me that gun-boats might be usefully employed against any small craft which the enemy may have collected in the Red Sea, and if the Admiral (whom you will consult on this point) should be of the same opinion. I should hope you would not have much difficulty in supplying him. I also wish you to consider, in concert with him, whether it would not be advisable, with a view to the more effectual security of the Straits of Babel Mandel, to possess and fortify the small island of Pereim, which I understand to be uninha-

I approve of your proposed mission of Captam Wilson, but not having yet seen your instructions to that gentleman, I shall only observe that, in the event of his destroying any of the shipping or cast in the Red Sea, it will be necessary to satisfy the proprietors of our determination to indemnify them faithfully for all losses so incurred

Om latest accounts of Zemaun Shah scacely leave a doubt of his having actually matched towards Hindostan. It is my intention to suggest to his Majesty's immister at Constantinople the expediency of his endeavouring to engage the Porte to concur with us in exciting the ruling power of Peniat to such measures as may alaim Zemaun Shah for the safety of his hereditary dominions, and may recall him from the prosecution of his designs against the tranquility of India. In the meanwhile it is my wish that you should take the eathest opportunity of suggesting the same considerations and objects to the English minister with the Porte, or through any other more expeditious channel If I am sightly informed, a brother of Zemain Shah is now at the Court of Peissa this Prince took refuge there not long since, and he might possibly be found an useful instrument in forwarding a plan of the nature in question

Should you be of opinion that any advantage can be derived from the local knowledge or qualifications of Mi. Manesty, the Company's Readent at Bussonah, you have my permission to employ him in the negotiations in Persia, either separately or in conjunction with Mehdy Ali Khan, as you may judge most advassled.

In order that this business may be impeded as little as possible by the delays necessarily aising from reference to me, I authorize you to finnish Baba Khan, or whoever may be the reigning sovereign of Peisna, with any number of field-pieces, as well as any quantity of military stories, which you can safely spare, whenever the communications of Mehdy Alt Khan, or of Mi. Manesty, shall affind you reason to believe that the Government of Persia is sincerely disposed to make a setious diversion in our favour, by menacing the dominions of Zemann Shah

With a view to the same object, I must is epeat my desire that you will immediately employ all practicable means of exciting the people of Sinde, and any other tribes occupying the countries which border on Moultain and Candahat, to alaim Zemain Shah for the safety of his possessions in those quaiters. These people have been stated to be generally ripe for revolt against the authority of the Shah, and possibly they might be induced, by a liberal supply of aims and ammunition, and by the countenance of this Government, to take advantage of his absence in Hindostan I undesistand that such supplies might be conveyed to them through Kutch and up the river Indus, but you will, of course, he in possession of the best information on this head

You will easily judge how annous I must be in the present cuss to obtain the fullest and earliest advices from Europe, as well as from your side of India I hope, therefore, that you will have the goodness to forward to me, as speedily as possible, whateren newspapers or other accounts may reach you, and I request that you will always send, not extracts, but the whole of the despatches and letters on public affans from the several ministers, agents of the Company, or other officers with whom you correspond

I am, &c &c

MORNINGTON.

No LXXXIII

Lord Clive to the Earl of Mornington

(Private)

My Lord,

Fort St George, 24th October, 1798

It being the wish of this Government, in making the revision of its establishments, according to your Lordship's orders of the 6th August, to follow as nearly as encumstances will permit, the mode of proceeding fixed upon in Bengal for effecting the same object, and doubts having arisen in the Council with respect to the powers intended to be given to the Committee appointed by your Lordship, I have been desired to request you will have the goodness to acquaint me whether it was your Lordship's design to confine the Committee, of which you are the President, in its report to the rise, progress, and present actual state of establishments and resources, or whether it was your intention that the Committee should, in addition to this labour, report its opinion upon such reduction of expense in the present existing establishments, as may be thought salutary and advisable, or upon such increase of revenue and resource as may be deemed practicable, and farther, whether, under any apparent cucumstances of advantage to the service, or of able and laborious excition, it is understood the Committee may recommend any increase of salary or expense In consequence of the settled state of the weather, and of the disappearance of all signs of the breaking of the monsoon, General Hailis, yesterday, gave it as his opimon in Council, that the battering train might be ordered to set out for Vellore Directions have been accordingly given, and I have been assured by some of the gentlemen of the military board, who I met this morning at the arsenal, that the first division of six eighteen pounders, with a quantity of ammunition, will be ready to move on Friday evening or Saturday morning, and a second division in about three days afterwards. His Highness the Nabob lends four elephants, which may prove of great use in case there should be a heavy fail of 1 am before the guns seach then destination The unportant and glorious news of Su Horato Nelson having, with titteen sail of the line, totally defeated the Toulon fleet of the same number of ships of the line under Admiral de Bruery, an the Bay of Beguner, near Rosetta, taking mue, two having blown up, and two only with two fligates, having effected them escape, has filled this settlement with joy With cordial congrantiations, and with the greatest respect and esteem,

I have the honor to be, my Lord,

Your Lordship's most faithful Servant,

No LXXXIV

From Tippoo Sultaun to the Right Hon the Governor General
[Received 24th October, 1798]

The Talooks of Ameera and Soula, in which Cauntumigle and Coloorbachee are situated, have belonged to Comyal (Mangaloic) from the year Rajah 1070 Mohummuddee to the end of the year Shadab 1226, a term of 156 years. Thirty-six years ago a body of 2,000 Coonga peons were employed in service of the State, and some villages in the Talooks above mentioned, yelding 3,423 pagodas, continued for a short time to be assigned for their pay, but since six and thirty years that even has ceased. This trivial affine can only be ascribed to the tribulent disposition of interested men, who by nature are even seeking opportunities of sowing the seeds of dissention Of this I am confident your Lordship must be well convinced the person who is now in Coonga is not of the posterity of the Coorga Rajashs but of a different stock.

Constantly gratify me with friendly letters

P. S. Mr Duncan, the Governot of Bombay, has written to me, that two persons of integrity and ability, from among the civil officers (Talookdais) on the coast of Malaba, have been deputed to inquire into the claims of the above-mentioned Talook, and will shortly arrive Orders have been issued from my Sucat also, nominating Shaikh Shahaabudden and Meer Mohummed Ally, persons of integrity and honour, to negociate with the deputies above-mentioned, and ascertam, from records and facts, the dependency of the above-mentioned Talooks on Couyal

A true Copy, N B Edmonstone, Persian Translator to Govt 1798 COLONEL COLLINS

No LXXXV

311

The Earl of Mornington to Lieut -Colonel John Collins, Resident with Dowlut Row Seindiah

SIR.

Fort William, October 26, 1798 I have received your letters of the dates referred to in the

If cu cumstances admitted of our forming a defensive alliance with Dowlut Row Scindiali against Zemaun Shali, it would not be difficult to convince Scindiah of the expediency of inducing the Rajepoots and Seiks to join in the league, and it might not be impossible to persuade him to offer to them advantages of some importance, either in the form of a remission of tribute or of an extension of territory Some concession of this kind on the part of Scindiah, joined to a promise of our employing our friendly offices to compose any differences which might hereafter arise between him and the Rajepoots or Seiks, would constitute as great a benefit as these powers could reasonably expect from a political connection with the Company, the immediate object of which is no other than to repel a common danger, or rather a danger much more formidable to their interests than to ours Unfortunately, however, the cucumstances of the moment afford but a faint prospect of our being able to effect such an arrangement The probability of Scindiah's early return to ·Hindostan is increased, but it is still uncertain whether his arrival within his own dominions will be early enough for our purpose, and (notwithstanding my expectations expressed in a former letter, I am now inclined to think that) it is still more doubtful whether, at the moment of his return, the state of his authority and resources will be such as to warrant any great hope of advantage to the Company from a formal defensive alliance with him against Zemaun Shah

Under these cucumstances, the utility of formal defensive engagements, even with Scindiah himself, cannot be determined without a full knowledge of the actual state of his authority at the time of his return from the Deccan The alternative which I had considered in my former despatches was, that either of the total rum or of the effectual 10sto1ation

^{* 5}th 7th, 11th and 15th October

of Scindish's power. But the existing case is of a nature different from either of those which I had foreseen, and, in the present cusis, the uncetainty of Scindish's affairs suspends the situation of every Mahiatta chief now iemaning in his dominions. Although Ambajiee appears to possess a considerable degree of present weight and power, and of the confidence of his master, he is still no more than the chief of one division of Scindish's army engaged in open war with another, which he, Ambajee, must reduce completely under his authority before he can be in a condition to cooperate with us against the common enemy, with such a force as would justify us in forming separate defensive engagements with him.

By the latest accounts from the Resident at Poonah, it seems probable that Dowlut Row Scindah will find it expedient to reinstate Baloo Tanta in the chief management of his affairs, in such an event, the authority at present exercised by Ambajee would be superseded by a new commission, which would probably be granted to his most active opponents, the partizans of Baloo Tanta. Such a resolution must occasion fresh dissensions among the officers of Scindiah in Hindostan, and the mission of the country by Zemaun Shah would not tend to favour the arrangement of such a scene of confusion

In this state of things, I see no ground to hope for any advantage from defensive engagements with Ambajee, even concluded under the approbation of Dowlit Row, who, however, has neven notified (to my knowledge) the delegation of his authority in Hindostan to Ambajee. For the present, therefore, in the event of the Shah's approach to the frontier of our ally the Vizier, we must confine our military operations to a system of defence, and we must in no case pass beyond the limits of his Excellency's dominions, unless such a forward movement should be deemed, by the Commanding Offices of our army, necessary for the protection of the fronties, either of Oude or of our own provinces

I do not mean by this determination to pieclude myself, in the event of Scindiah's retuin to Hindostan, from entering into such defensive engagements with him against the Shah as may consist with the principles on which my overture to thim at Poonals was founded, and with the actual state of his authority and resources at the time of his return, on the contrary, whenever I shall learn that Scindiah has moved towards his own dominions, I shall instruct you how to proceed with him according to the state of his affairs at the moment. In the meanwhile I desire that, in communicating with Ambajee or with any other person exercising the powers of Dowlut Row in the absence of the latter, you will not proceed faither than to encourage and advise him to oppose the most effectual resistance in his power to the threatened invasion, acquainting him with the determination of this Government, to omit no effort or precaution necessary to the defence of the Vizier's dominions I think it proper also, that you should for the present confine yourself in your correspondence with the Seiks and Rajepoots to the same general principles To satisfy them that the Shah will meet with the most steady opposition from us in the prosecution of his ambitious projects may produce the effect of stimulating them to an equally vigoious resistance

I cannot believe that M Perron would be likely to give a cordial support to any cause which we might favour We must never forget that he is a Frenchman, and that many of the officers in command under him are of the same nation in the event of our negotiating hereafter any defensive engagements with Dowlut Row, leading to a cooperation of junction of our forces, the necessity which I should feel for providing against any treachery on the part of the French in his service, would constitute a principal embarrassment in the conduct of the treaty, and would form an object of the first consideration.

I approve of your having declined to comply with the wish of Shah Allum, and I wish you to avoid all intercourse with his Majesty during the absence of Scindiah from Hindostan.

I am, &c.

No LXXXVI

(Private.)

The Earl of Mornington to St. J. H. Craig, K.B.

SIR.

Fort William, October 27, 1798

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of voni letters of the 26th September, and 2nd, 3rd, 6th, and 13th instant, and also of a memoir containing much valuable information, and many judicious and for cible remarks The whole tenor and spirit of your private communications, manifest a zeal and anxiety for the public interests, which demands my unqualified applause, and which cannot fail to prove highly beneficial to any service on which you may be employed you must be aware of the great extent and variety of my numerous public duties, I am persuaded, that you will accept my cordial thanks for your suggestions as a sufficient testimony of my real sense of then importance and value, and that you will not suppose me either indifferent to their merit. or unprepared to avail myself of their utility, because I am not at liberty to enter into a detailed review of the facts which you have collected, or of the able conclusions which vou have drawn from them I am particularly anxious to assure you, that nothing can be more acceptable to me, than the continuance of a free communication of your opinions with the same um eserved confidence, which appears in your private correspondence with me.

The uncertainty of Scinduli's return to Hindostan, as well as of the condition of his authority and power whenever that event shall take place, renders it impossible at present to contract any formal engagements with any of the powers on the noith western fontier of India Unless we could secure the efficient cooperation of Scinduli's army, we should not be warranted to conclude engagements with him tending to draw our troops beyond the limits of the position required for our own exclusive defence. The same principle applies with additional force to the piecanious state of the Mahiatta Chiefs now exercising the Government, or contending for it, during the absence of Scindula.

The suggestions stated in my former letter, with regard to the Seaks and Raypoots, were not intended to refer to the possibility of any regular treaty with them, unconnected with Semdah, but merely to such general encouragement as (in the absence of Semdah) might be offered to those powers by our advice and amicable communication, and by the appearance of our amy in the field, until the rum or the restoation of Semdah shall have been finally decided, our intercourse with these powers must be confined to such communications as I have described.

1798

The progress of the French arms in Egypt, our actual situation with Tippoo, and the doubtful posture of affairs at Poonah, must contract our means of reinforcing the army under your command We must therefore be satisfied, in the event of Zemaun Shah's approach, with a system of operations strictly defensive I have, however, no reason to doubt, that your army will very soon be augmented to the number of nearly 20,000 men With this force, (which I will encrease if other calls should permit) I rely on your ability to afford a complete protection to the dominions of the Vizier, as well from internal commotion, as from foreign inva-If any cu cumstances should hereafter arise favorable to the extension of our system of defence, you will receive timely notice of the change (most carnestly desired by me) either from the Commander-in-Chief, Mr Lumsden, or Colonel Collins The present state of affairs does not require me to trouble you with any more particular instructions, you are the best judge of the position most eligible for the defence of the Vizier's frontier, I will not embarrass your judgement by any further limitation of your discretion, than must result from a strict adherence to the defence of the Vizier's frontier. leaving it to you to decide, whether that object will be best attained by remaining within the Vizier's boundary, or by a more advanced position

The Commander-in-Chief has applized you to what extent I have been enabled to authorize him to adopt a part of the very useful suggestions contained in your memon.

With your private communication of the 13th, I had the honour of receiving from you a letter of the same date,* which, although not addressed to me in council, I understand to be intended by you to form a public document

It is difficult to express the concern and surprize with which I read that letter.

My confidence in your talents, activity, and public spirit, as well as my knowledge of your readmess to take the general command of the army in the field, induced me to entrust that charge to you This trust was accompanied by a discretionany power of suspending the general relief of the army, according to the exigency of the case, and you had been apprized, that the defence of the country in which you commanded, was to supersede every other consideration Under these encumstances, I was not aware, that you could feel any difficulty in determining what would be expected from you: nothing more could be expected, than a defence of the frontier of Oude, compatible with the extent and condition of the force under your command Less could not be expected from such an officer, and I had hoped that the anxiety which I have manifested to facilitate the exertion of your talents. might have satisfied you, that I was neither disposed to expect from you any effort beyond the means which you possessed, nor to charge you with any responsibility beyond the limits of your military duty No special instructions therefore were given to you, because none were requisite to enable you to act in the event of Zemaun Shah's approach only case in which special instructions to you could become necessary, was that of our having formed defensive engagements with the bordering powers. This case has not yet occurred, and my private correspondence as well as the communications of Colonel Collins, enabled you to ascertain the state of that question with an accuracy, which could not have been derived through any other channel With regard to that part of the letter in question, which refers to the deficiencies of bullocks, camels, elephants, and ammunition, I know that the Commander-in-Chief, had actually taken the earliest possible steps for your speedy supply, and I had written to the Vizier for the express purpose of urging him to furnish you with whatever aid his establishment can afford. With this view of the subject, I trust, that the letter to which I refer was not the result of your deliberate consideration. and I have therefore considered it as a private letter, I have not recorded it, and I have entered into a free discussion of its contents with the facility of a confidential communication. If, however, I should have mistaken your intentions, you will correct my entor, and I shall then be reduced to the necessity of entening the letter on the reduced to the necessity of entening the letter on the reduced with the observations which my public duty will, in the reduced reduced to the communication of the reduced to the

A variety of concurrent accounts leads me to believe, that the French fleet off Alexandria, his suffered a severe blow from our squadron, and the army has been checked in Egypt by a Turkish and Arab force My last despatches overland, dated the 22nd of June, promise a very considerable paval and military reinforcement in India, the arrival of this force may be expected very soon. It does not appear probable, that in the advanced state of our preparations on the coast, and in the present condition of our alliances, Tippoo will venture to move without the actual cooperation of a French force If the French should even sui mount their difficulties in Egypt, the navigation of the Red Sea and of the Indian ocean at this season is so tedious, that it appears highly improbable that they should anticipate the vigilance of our squadrons If I should learn the news of the defeat of the French in any authentic form, I will despatch it to you by express

I have the honour to be, &c
MORNINGTON

No LXXXVII

Lord Clive to the Earl of Morning ton

My LORD, Fort St George, 29 October, 1798

Mi Petrue having communicated to me the contents of a letter of the 22nd instant, by the desire of Captain Kirkpatrick, from that gentleman to him, which brings the information of Monsieur Petron's cops being disaumed, and the Friend officers who lately commanded it being in the power of Colonel Roberts, I do not wait for an official confirmation to offer to you. Lordship my hearty congratualistions upon events so fortunate for the British interest, and so honourable to your Lordship's administration. The happy issue of this decisive measure will have relieved your mind, as it has mine from a very considerable degree of anxiety, and will enable me to turn my attention without embaliassment to the execution of your Lordship's orders for urging on our walke preparations with the utmost zeal and alacuity

I have the honour to be with sincere respect and esteem,

My Loid, your Lordship's, Most faithful servant.

CLIVE

No LXXXVIII

General Harris to the Earl of Morning ton

BAR LORD. Madias, 29th October, 1798

MY DEAR LORD,

Your kind favour of the 18th ultimo, would have been acknowledged the moment it was received, if I had only attended to the grateful feelings it occasioned, but convinced as I am how piecious every moment of you. Loidship's time is to the public, I should not even now have interrupted you if the great and important news from Hydeiabad did not compel me to congratulate you on it. Never was any event more completely the work of an individual, than that has been you. Lordship's, and much am I flattened, that you should think the part you consigned to me was performed with zeal and alacity, which it certainly was, and will ever continue to be, while executing orders so pleasantly and clearly detailed

It is a grand stroke, and I think will ensue all the set of your excellent plan in the same bloodless style. We are going on with even encreased vigoui for this fillip. The second ten battery guns sets off this day for Veiloie, and as the Monscon still holds off, I am in hopes they will get there without being stopped by it. Loid Clive is very zealous, and only wants to know your. Loidship's wishes to have them executed. With my waimest congratulations once more and those of my whole family added, on the complete success of your. Lordship's policy,

I am with great sincerity, my dear Lord, Your faithful and obliged servant,

GEORGE HARRIS

SIR.

No LXXXIX

The Hon Frederic North to the Earl of Mornington

My Dear Lord, Colombo, October 29, 1798

I have already had the honour of referring you for informa-

I have atready had the nomon of retering you for minomation concenning Ceylon to my fixed Lieut-Colonel Agnew, late Adjutant Genesal on this Island, and membes of the Committee of Revenue He has lately been scelled to his duty on the coast, to my ver y neat sourow, for he was really my greatest comfort and assistance in this place. His talents have been long distinguished in his own profession, and they are universal as they are eminent—indeed it will be difficult to find any one who possesses ablittes, civil, military, financial, commercial and diplomatic, in the degree which he does, and though I shall always most sincerely regiet his loss, it is a great satisfaction to me that he is recalled to the coast at a time when your Lordship is at Madras, that his ment may be directly under your eye Adven, my deat Lond,

Believe me, with the greatest respect and regard, You most obedient and faithful Servant.

FREDERIC NORTH.

No XC

The Earl of Monnington to Robert Brooke, Esq St Helena

Fort William, 30th October, 1798

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letters of the 4th of April, and 10th of June, and I return you many thanks for the care you have taken of my several despatches and private letters by the Albion

You representations respecting the Lascars serving on board ship are perfectly proper, and are now under my consideration

I am much obliged to you for your suggestions with regard to the Sepoy Regiments

I perfectly concur with you in opinion as to the advantages which might be derived from the possession of Monte Video. But besides the difficulty of transporting a large body of native thoops to such a distance, the present state of affairs in this quater reaches the detachment of any part of our fonce wholly impracticable

I have the honour to be, &c.

MORNINGTON

No XCI

The Hon Jonathan Duncan to the Earl of Morning ton

My Lord,

Bombay, October 31, 1798

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Lordship's letter of the 8th matura, and beg to assue you Lordship that I shall strictly observe the line therein indicated in respect to Mehnd Alli Khan's mitended negocations with the ulting power of Persia, and endeavour, also, to discove the means of exciting the natives occupying the Delta and the lower parts of the Indus towards a further diversion of Zemann Shoah force, in the view of counteracting his intentions resecting India.

I have the honour to be, My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient humble Servant, JONATHAN DUNCAN

No. XCII.

The Earl of Mornington to Captain J A Kirkpatrick, Resident at Huderabad

Sir Fort William, November 2nd, 1798

I consider it as an object of the utmost importance, that every practicable precaution should be taken to prevent any jealousy from being conceived by the Court of Hyderabad, in consequence of the great increase of our subsidiary force.

For this purpose it is exteenely desirable, that the conduct of our toops in their intencourse with the natives of the country, and particularly with the officers of his Highnesses Government should be of the most conclusory nature, and should be so regulated as to form the strongest contrast with the autogant and contumacious spirit of the French corps. You will, therefore, apprize Lieut-Colonels Robeits and Hyndman of my paticular anxiety on this subject, and you will signify to them my expectations, that they will take effectual measures to prevent any such integularities on misconduct in the officers on men under their respective commands, as might tend to create distrust and jealousy My wish is that the Company's army in his Highnesses service, should conduct itself with the utmost degree of mildness towards his subjects, and of respect towards himself and his Ministers, and that it should manifest the most prompt obedience to his orders, according to the tenor of the late subsidiary treaty

> I am. &c MORNINGTON

XCIII

The East of Mos ning ton to Trappoo Sultaun

Fort William, 4th November, 1798

You have doubtless received information of another excess of that unjustifiable ambition and insatiable iapacity, which have so long marked the conduct of the French nation They have invaded Egypt, a country, from which they were in no danger of molestation, and from whose Government. they could not even pretend to have received the slightest provocation They have committed this act of violence in contempt of the treaties subsisting between France and the Porte, and without any regard to the acknowledged authority of the Grand Seignor, so long established in Egypt Nothing can more clearly expose their total disregard of every principle of public faith and honour, than this unprovoked and unjustifiable aggression, and it will no doubt afford satisfaction to every friend to justice and good faith, and particularly to every friend of the British nation, to hear, that by the success of his Majesty's aims, the French have aheady suffered for then injustice and temerity. Certain intelligence has just been received, that 13 sail of the line, which had been employed in the expedition against Egypt, mounting 1024 guns, and carrying about 10,000 men, being at anchor in the port of Bekir, near Rosetta, at the mouth of the Nile, were attacked by an equal number of his Britannic Majesty's fleet, an engagement took place, which terminated in the capture of nine ships of the French line, two more were blown up, one of them of 118 guns, the French Admual's, and only two made then escape from the valour and skill of the British Admiral All communication being thus cut off VOL I Y between Egypt and Europe, the troops who have landed m Egypt must in all probability perish, either by famine or by the sword This year signal victory is to be ascribed to the justice of the British cause, and to the aid of divine providence, favouring the gallantiv of our forces, and numshing the injustice and impiety of our adversary On the same assistance I selv with confidence for a continuation of similar successes, and for the final triumph of his Majesty's arms over a nation which has shewn itself to be the general enemy of mankind Confident from the union and attachment subsists ing between us, that this intelligence will afford you sincere satisfaction. I could not deny myself the pleasure of communicating it

A true Copy, N B EDMONSTONE. Persian Translator to Govt

I am. &c MORNINGTON

No XCIV

The Earl of Mornington to Lord Clive

My LORD.

Fort William, 5th November, 1798 The events of the last three weeks have afforded matter first of great alarm, and ultimately of satisfaction and probable security Your Lordship found the report of my Moulavi upon his ieturn from the prophet's tomb, confirmed by the intelligence from Bombay. My subsequent enquires leave no 100m to doubt, that if the French could have reached Suez early m August, they might have found craft in the Red Sea for the conveyance of a large body of troops. and the passage from Suez to Mocha, and from thence to the coast of Malaba, would not have been difficult at that The brilliant victory of the 1st of August, (a good day for such a deed) probably checked then career, and saved Tippoo from the perilous consequences of their active support But I do not yet think it impossible that the desperate and enterprizing spirit of Buonaparte, exasperated by the new and increasing difficulties which surround him, may attempt to push forward a force to Malabar, nor is the success of such an attempt impossible, if it be not frustrated by the vigilance and power of our fleet Under this impression, I am now fitting out the East Howe, and Princess Charlotte.

and a large country ship, to act as armed ships under the orders of the Admiral, and I intend to despatch them, as soon as they shall be compleatly equipped, together with the Bombay fligate, to Malabar I have ordered the Bombay Government to fit out such ships as they may be able to collect for the same purpose To your Lordship I have sent no public communication on this subject, apprehending that at this season, you possess no means of contributing any assistance If, however, I should have been mistaken, you will have the goodness to arm whateve vessels you can funnish, and send them to the coast of Malabau, to be their placed under the orders of the Admiral The secret despatch from England* must have afforded your Lordship great satisfaction, in as much as it tended to shew the indispensable necessity of the measures, in the execution of which you have borne so cordial and leady a part To me it is a matter of no disagreeable reflection to retrace all my late orders, and to find that I had not only anticipated every point of the commands of my friends at home. before then despatch had left England, but that my reasoning, and all the variations and shades of my opinion, which have followed the changes of cucumstances in this quarter, have corresponded in the most minute manner with their sentiments and views In addition to this source of satisfaction, I now have the pleasure to know, that I have removed one of those great obstacles to the vigorous prosecution of war against Mysore, of which the Secret Committee express a just apprehension, I mean the French army at Hyderabad The treaty of Hyderabad, and the first secret article were carried into full effect on the 22nd of October This is a most fortunate event, and will produce an encreased effect coming so close upon the steps of the recent victory at Bekn. The last despatch from Colonel Palmer, opens a favourable prospect of the probable issue of affans at Poonah. On the other hand, my last advices from the northwestern frontier of Hindostan, encourage an expectation that the threatened invasion of Zemaun Shah, will not take place this year, even if it should, we are well prepared to meet it.

Your Lordship will perceive, that my object is to circumvent Tippoo on all sides, by our alliances at Hyderabad and

^{*} See page, 61

Poonali; by our fleet on the coast of Malabar, and by our armses on that coast, and on the fionties of the Carnatic, carrying the strength of both to the greatest practicable extent. Every effort has been and will be employed by me to augment those armses, so as to enable them to undeatake the siege of Sermgapatam, within the course of the approaching season, and to convince Tippoo of their abulity to accomplish that important operation. By these means, I tust to bing him to leason, all others are hopeless, and if we should not be disappointed in our iemforcement from home, and if the fleet should not fail in vigilance, I think we may hope to sunount all our difficulties without the hazard of war, and with the certainty of a considerable ultimate improvement of our security.

I have the honour to be, &c.

Mornington

No XCV

Spencer Smith Eng to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord,

Constantinople, 7th November, 1798

In my past negotations here, you have ere this some proof in your hands, that I have not been mattentive to the interests of your Lordship's Government, and you may be assured of my constant rigilance to keep the different presidences in India informed of all that passes here abouts, which it may be interesting for them to know. As such, I now enclose to your Lordship the best account we have of the position of Bononapate and of our fleet. The former in the form of his own despatches intercepted on the coast of Syina, the latter by Captain Hood's despatch to myself, to which I have thought it worth while to add some of my latest English news-papers

I am negotiating a teaty of defensive alliance with this count; upon the basis of that concluded with Russia, according to a counter project sent out to me in answer to the overtunes of the Porte, made to me on the 28th July, and then sent home My brothes Sur Sidney Smith, is named to succeed Adminal Nelson in the Levant, and is moreover joined with me in the full power to sign the treaty if he airrives in time, as it is probable he may, being to communicate veibally with the Porte, before he attacks the French in Egypt, which he will do in the most vigorous and comprehensive way

The French Chargé d'affan es here, Ruffin, is with all his legation in the Seven Towers The different consuls, including Jambon St André, from Smyrna, with about 40 of the most dangerous demagogues and apostles, have been dispersed in the several fortiesses of Amasia, Sinope, Samsoon, Trebisond, and Anapa, on the Black Sea The Turkish and Russian fleets combined have reduced Cerigo, accepted the submission of Zante, and garrisoned Cephalonia, while Ali Pasha, governor of Yanma has purged the shp of Ex-Venetian territory, on the coast of Albania, by the well timed and successful attack with 10,000 men of all the French ports, such as Pievesa, Paiga, &c , including the capture of the active emmissary General Rosa, one of Bonaparte's aid-decamps in Italy, and commandant at Prevesa, with several other officers, and about 250 men saved from the slaughter I shall say nothing of English news, referring your Lordship for that to the enclosed Our spirits are raised high by Nelson's incomparable victory, and our resources are great If the powers of the Continent can but be roused from them stupid supmeness, we may yet overthrow the monster that has threatened us with general destruction. Naples professes itself to be ready, and even impatient to renew hosti-The Court of Vienna begins to acknowledge the necessity of a new war The Russian auxiliaries are ordered to march From Prussia I fear little good is to be expected We may be even satisfied if no mischief be experienced From the Germanic body no vigor is to be hoped for, such is then pusillanimity, that they submit without a remonstrance to the repeated insults, and threats of France, whose contempt for them is manifested by every new note in crescendo.

I hope your Lordship approves my idea of the grand Signot's and Vizier's amicable exhotation to Tippoo, anything of this kind that I can render more to the purpose, I should rejoice to accomplish according to your ideas

I have the honour to be, with perfect truth and regard, My Lord, your Lordship's, Very obedient humble servant,

SPENCER SMITH

No XCVI

The Earl of Mornington to Trppoo Sultaun

Fort William, 8th November, 1798

It affords me sincere satisfaction to learn that you have nominated two persons of integrity and honour to meet and confex with the Deputies appointed, under my orders, by Mr Duncan (the Governou of Bombay), for the purposes of investigating the question legal daing the Taloboks of Ameera and Soulea. It is only by means of legulate enquiry, and amicable discussion, that such questions can be adjusted among independent powers. My determination, in the case of Wynaad, was dictated by those principles of justice and moderation, which always direct the Company's Government, nor shall my scruppious adherence to the same principles be less manifest in my decision on your claim to the districts at present in question, the possession of which shall not be withholden from you for an instant if, after full investigation, I shall be satisfied of the justice of your title to them

It is a well known truth, that they are always the most ready to respect the just rights of others who are the most vigilant and resolute to maintain their own

I have under stood your sentments concerning the "timbulent disposition of interested men, who, by nature, are even seeking opportunities of sowing the seeds of dissension". For the happiness of mankind it is to be lamented that these authors of confusion as to numeous, assiduous and successful, mall parts of the world. In no age or country were the baneful and maddous arts of intrigue cultivated with such success as they are at present by the French nation. I sincerly wish that no impression had been produced on your discerning mind by that dangerous people, but my situation enables me to know that they have teached your presence, and have endeavoured to pervent the wisdom of your councils, and to instigate you to war against those who have given you no provocation.

It is impossible that you should suppose me to be ignorant of the intercourse which subsists between you and the French, whom you know to be the inveterate enemies of the Company, and to be now engaged in an unjust war with the British nation You cannot imagine me to be indifferent to the transactions which have passed between you and the enemies of my country, not does it appear necessary or proper that I should any longer conceal from you the surprise and concern with which I perceived you disposed to involve younself in all the lumious consequences of a connection, which threatens not only to subvert the foundations of friendship between you and the Company, but to introduce into the heart of your kingdom the principles of anatchy and confusion, to shake your own authority, to weaken the obedience of your subjects, and to destroy the relation which you reven

Immediately after my arrival at Bengal, I read your concespondence with the late Governor-General, Sir John Shone, and with the Acting Governor General Sir Altired Clarke, and I perceived with great satisfaction, that in all your letters' you constantly professed a disposition to stengthen the bonds of sincere attachment, and the foundations of haimony and concord established between you and the Honourable Company I received particular pleasure from reading you last letter to Sir John Shone,* in which you signified your manicable desire that he should impress me with a sense of the friendship and unanimity so long subsisting between the two States. Your subsequent letters to me have abounded with professions of the same friendly nature

Combining these professions of amity on your part with the proofs which the Company's Government have constantly given of their sincere disposition to maintain the relations of friendship and peace with you, and adverting, at the same time, to your reputation for wisdom and discernment, it was natural for me to be extremely slow to believe the various accounts transmitted to me of your negociations with the French, and of your military preparations, but whatever my reluctance to credit such reports might be, prudence required both of me and of the Company's allies, that we should adopt certain measures of precaution and self defence, and these have accordingly been taken, as you will no doubt have ob-The British Government and the allies, wishing nevertheless to live in peace and friendship with all their neighbours, entertaining no projects of ambition, nor any views in the least incompatible with then respective engagements, and looking to no other objects than the permanent secutity and tranquility of then own dominions and subjects, will always be ready, as they now are, to afford you every demonstration of their pacific disposition

^{*} Sec. Introduction.

The Pesslwah, and his Highness the Nizam, concur with me in the observations which I have officied to you in this letter, and which, in the name of the Company, and of the Allies, I recommend to you most cannest consideration, but as I am also desinous of communicating to you, on the behalf of the Company, and their allies, a plan calculated to promote the mutual security and welfare of all patites, I propose to depute to you, for this purpose, Major Doveton, who is well known to you, and who will explain to you more fully and particularly the sole means which appear to myself, and to the allies of the Company, to be effectual for the salutary purpose of removing all existing distrust and suspicion, and of establishing peace and good understanding on the most duable foundations

You will, I doubt not, let me know at what time and place it will be convenient to you to seceive Majoi Doveton, and as soon as your firendly letter shall reach me, I will duect him to proceed to your presence

I shall expect your answer to this letter, with an earnest hope that it may correspond with the pacific views and wishes of the allies; and that you may be convinced that you cannot in any manner better consult your true interests than by meeting, with cordinatry, the present friendly and moderate advance to a satisfactory and amicable settlement of all points on which any doubt or anviety may have assen in the minds either of youself or of the allies

A true Copy, N B EDMONSTONE, Persian Translator to Govt

No XCVII

The Earl of Mornington to Captain J A Kirlpatrick, Resident at Hyderabad

Sir, Fort Wilham, 9th Nov 1798

I am happy to express my entire approbation of the judgement, fitmness and discretion, which you have manifested duning the important transactions which have passed since the latification of the new subsidiary treaty with the Nizam, and which have terminated so satisfactorily in the compleat evercution of the secret and separate articles of that engagement.

Your conduct in the negociation of the treaty has already received my approbation

I desne you will agmify to Laeutenant-Colonel Roberts, and to the officers and men under his command, the high sense which I entertain of the important service which they have rendered to the British interests, and to the Honourable the East India Company, by the prompt execution of your instructions

To Leutenant-Colonel Roberts the greatest degree of public gratitude and applause is due for his skilful and judicious disposition of the troops under his command, and for the temper and humanity of his conduct towards the French officers in his custody

You will also expiess my approbation of the service remdered by Captain Scohy, in obedience to the orders of Lieutenant-Colonel Roberts

The entire reduction of the large French force lately in the service of the Nizam, and the complete subversion of the dangerous influence of that nation at the Court of Hyderabad. place his Highness at length in a position which will enable him, in the event of a wai between Tippoo Sultaun and the allies, to cooperate in the vigorous prosecution of it with considerable efficacy, but though neither the ability nor the disposition of the Court of Hyderabad to contribute materially to the support of the common cause can any longer be doubted, yet it must be obvious that without a full and precise knowledge of the extent and nature of the assistance which we may confidently jely on jeceiving from the Nizatis, it will be impossible for us to concert with his Highness and plan of general operations, or even to decide satisfactorily on the practicability of attacking Seringapatam in due season should the refusal of Tippoo to comply with the demands which may be made by the allies, render that measure expedient

For this reason it is of the utmost importance to ascertain without delay, and with every possible degree of correctness and certainty, the following points —

1 The greatest amount of the force in cavalry, infantry, and field ordnance, which the Nizam will positively furnish.

not as an army to act separately, or in the way of diversion, but to join ours, and to proceed with it directly against the capital of the enemy

- 2 The earliest period at which the force to be so furnished can move from Hyderabad
- 3 The place where the Nizam may desire that this force should effect a junction with our aimy
- 4 The route by which the Nizam would wish this force to maich, for the purpose of effecting such junction with the greatest facility and despatch
- 5 The speediest period at which we may safely expect the junction to take place
- 6 The person to whom the command of his Highness's
- 7 The means or resources applicable by the Nizam to the due and regular supply of provisions, whether for the consumption of his own forces, or for the use of the united aimies

These are the principal heads of enquiry to which it is necessary to direct your immediate attention

Upon these points I am anxious to obtain the earliest and most accurate information

From these leading points a use several questions of a more minute description, to which it will also be proper to give due consideration. I proceed to state the most important of these in the order in which they result from the preceding propositions.

As the seduction of Seringapatam, in the event of a war, must constitute the sole object of the allies, it is impossible not to feel a desire that the whole of our subsidiary troops should be comprehended in the contingent to be furnished by his Highness for the purpose of acting with our army. These, with the addition of 6,000 of Mr Finglass's cope, and a suitable train of field ordinance, and joined by a body of from 8,000 to 10,000 of his Highness's best cavalry, under the command of Rissalahdau, of approved zeal and fidelity, would form as large a force as it would, perhaps, be necessary to require from him. But if any of the Company's subsidiary troops are to be withholden, although their place will be ill supplied by any others in his Highness's service, the number of the latter must be upoportionably augmented.

When you are informed, however, that the atmy before Seningapatam in February, 1792, amounted to 30,000 fighting men (exclusive of five native battalions in different parts of the enemy's country, and four battalions with the Nizam and the Mahiattas), that an equal force is now decemed lequisite for the siege of this place, and that even with the aid of the whole of the subsidiary troops now at Hyderabad, we should with difficulty draw together so considerable an aimy, you will perceive the necessity of uiging the Nizam by every aigument in youn power, to acquiesce in the arrangement here suggested

In the last was with Tippoo the whole of the subsidiary Butish force was absent for mitydeabad. No casson occurs to me which should induce his Highness on this occasion to retain any part of it about his own person noi am I aware of any other ground of objection to the employment of the whole of it against the common enemy, which must not equally have existed in the last war I therefore centet am a sangume expectation of his Highness's ready consent to the proposed measure

I must not dismuss this aircle without instructing you to be particularly careful, as far as may be in your power, to obtain the exclusion from every sort of command or turst in the Nizam's contingent force of all those Sindais whose conduct during the last was firmshed a just suspicion of traterious correspondence with the enemy. If necessary you must formally protest against the employment of those individuals on the present occasion

With togaid to the second object of enquip, or, the period at which the Nizam's contingent can move, I need only observe that, as it will have a considerable distance to proceed before it can effect a junction with the simy of the Cannatic (whatever place of junction may be appointed), it is absolutely necessary that it should commence its match as soon after your recepts of this as possible, observing, however, the caution that it shall not any where in its progress pass into the dominons of Tippos Cultains without further notice from me The interval, I must, will not be long, since no doubt his Highness's preparations for enforcing the demand of satisfaction and security, which it was agreed by the allies to make upon Tippoo Sultaun, have kept pace with those of the Company's Government

As to the third point which relates to the place of the junction, although it is necessary to consult the pleasure of the Nizam upon the subject, yet I am willing to believe you will have no difficulty in proving to him the expediency of leaving this article to be ultimately adjusted between the Commander-in-Chief of the Company's atmy and the commanders of his Highness's contingent force, including the commanding officer of the subsidiary troops.

With respect to the route to be taken by the Nizam's troops, although this cannot be completely ascentaned until the place of junction with our army be determined, and therefore must be left in a great measure to the discretion of the Commander-in-Chief, evencised in concert with the officers commanding his Highness's division, yet these appears to be no difficulty in frung some general direction during the earlier stages of the march. Thus, whether the place of junction should hereaften be appointed in the vicinity of Amboon, Ryacottah, or Covenpoisin, it will be equally convenient that his Highness's troops should proceed by Kupah. To this point, therefore, it cannot move too soon and before it can arrive there, the Commander-in-Chief will be able to determine on the best discretion for its finither progress.

It is of peculial importance to ascertain the fifth point, or the speediest period at which the junction can be effected, with the utmost accuracy possible

It being understood that unless the united aimies could arrive at Seringapatam by the middle of February, the siege and capture of that place before the setting in of the monsoon, would hardly be practicable to guard against such a disappointment it is alsolutely requisite that the aimy, with its battering train, should not be later in moving from Amboor than the end of January, of course the Nizam's force ought to reach that place (supposing it to be the appointed rendezvous) not later than the middle of that month. For this purpose it is stated to me that his Highness's troops should be in motion by the 5th of December but as, in order to render the junction as secure as possible, a circuitous route from Kurpah to Amboor (probably by Dalmachen) van Chittoon) may be deemed advisable, it is evident that they cannot commence their maich too soon

It is certainly extremely desirable that Azim ul Omia should put himself at the head of the Nizam's forces, and if no substantial objection should arise to his leaving the person of his Highness, I wish you to uige Azim ul Omia, by every possible argument, to proceed with the army It is not, perhaps, of much consequence whether he is accompanied by one of the princes or not but in this arrangement I see no necessity for your interference If any solid reason should arise for the minister's remaining with the Nizam, or if he cannot be prevailed on to proceed with the troops, care must be taken to select for the command a person whose zeal for the common cause shall be accompanied by a due share of personal weight and authority These qualities in the commander of the Nizam's forces are to be sought in preference to military knowledge and experience, which, perhaps, it would be difficult to find in any considerable degree among the Omras of the Court at Hyderabad

In the case of Azim ul Oma's proceeding with the Nizam's force, I should think it advisable for you to accompany him, leaving your assistant to attend on his Highness But in the event of the minister's remaining behind, it will be proper that you should continue at your station, and that Captain Malcolin should accompany the toops, according to the same arrangement under which Lieutenant Stewart was employed in the last war, when assistant to Su John Kenneway

Although I feat that the decliming state of the Nizam's health, joined to his increasing years, is but too likely to obstuct the measure, yet I cannot help expressing a wish that his Highness may be able, if not immediately, yet early in January, to advance in person to the banks of the Kishna, where his position during the last war, if it no otherwise contributed to the success of the general operations, tended to nucleate the belief of his serious disposition to second them

With regard to the point remaining to be considered, namely, the regular supply of provisions, it appears to me that no time should be lost in storing as large quantities of grain as possible in Ganjecottah, Sedhout, and all the other forts on the southern frontier of his Highness's dominions in which such supplies may be safely deposited. It is also extremely desnable that the minister should give the most effectual encouragement to the Bringaires to accompany and follow the aimy, and I should think you could not better inculcate the great advantages of a liberal arrangement with those people, than by referring him to the result of Lord Cornwallis's proceedings on this subject, of which he was himself an eye witness I likewise authorize you to cooperate with Azim ul Omna in the useful measure of engaging the could services of the Bringaires, by making such advances of cash on behalf of the Company as you may judge advisable on necessary for this purpose, not exceeding, however, the sum of 50,000 rupees, and taking sufficient security from them for the renavment of the same within a reasonable time

As in the event of Tippoo Sultaun's compelling the allies to attack him, by refusing the security proposed to be demanded of him, the immediate siege of his capital will constitute the sole object of their operations, the consequence of this plan must be, that all the supplies for the aimy to be drawn from the Nizam's country, must, for greater security, pass from Kunpah through the Cainatic, by the way of Damalcherry, Chittooi, Ambooi, &c., or such other routes as may best suit with the cucumstances of the moment. It will not be necessary, however, to communicate this arrangement to the Bimparies who, when they perceive that it is not our intention to occupy any posts in Tippoo's country, on the direct line between Kurpah and Serngapatam, will naturally follow the aimy by the route just mentioned, as the only one affording them equal security

The actual state of the Company's troops setying in the Nizam's country, with legal to field equipment of every description, is a subject which demands immediate attention Whatever deficiencies may exist, no time should be lost in supplying them. You will, therefore, ascertain these immediately, and as soon as possible, privately advise Loid Clive of them, who will have my instructions to issue the necessary orders for forwarding in due time, to the place of rendezvous of the allied aimy, whatever articles shall be wanting to complete the equipment of the subsidiary troops for actual service.

Having in a former part of this letter supposed Mr Finglass's corps to form part of the Nizam's contingent, and not having hitherto in any of my letters to you touched on the subject of that party, I will now give you my sentiments and instructions respecting it

On general punciples of policy I am sensible of the danger of admitting the establishment of corps of this description among the country powers, even under the command of British subjects, but the numerous military establishments of French adventures in the service of the different States of India suggested the necessity of opposing some counterpoise to their dangerous influence and growing power. Hence arose the introduction of Mi. Finglass into the service of the Nizam, and the subsequent augmentation of his colps. This however was a very madequate security against the danger which existed at Hyderabad, and which could never have been averted by any other means than the complete subversion of the French amy in the service of the Nizam.

This object having been happily accomplished, it becomes a question how far it is advasable for this Government to permit or countenance the continuance of M. Emglass's coips Our right under the teaty lately concluded between the Company, to require the dismission of all the Europeans in his Highness's service is unquestionable but would it be puident on politic, or even just, to excluse it in this instance

It would penhaps be unjust, because the dismission of M. Phon's corps, and the articles of the new treaty under which the restrictions of the former subsidiary troops still remain in force, joined to those stipulations which limit the use of the Company's troops to cases of important service, have absolutely deprived the Nizam of all means of executing a variety of military duties of an indispensable nature, unless his High-ness be allowed to retain Mi. Finglass's corps in his service

It would be impolite, first, because it would naturally excite great dissatisfaction in the mind of the Nizam, and secondly, because it would depire the common cause, at a very critical period, of a body of troops, which, though not to be compared with the Company's, may be capable of rendering considerable service in the event of war

On the whole, therefore, my opinion is, that it is expedient to encourage and support this corps (Mr. Finglass's) to such an extent as may place it in a condition to act with effect in conjunction with our own troops

For this purpose I mean to permit M1 Finglass (on the usual application from the Nizam) to purchase from time to time, at Fort St George, any quantity of ordnance, ordnance stores, and muskets, which shall appear to you necessary to the efficient equipment of his coips for actual service as the opportunities of procuring such articles are precarious. I am also willing that any moderate supply of them which may be required for the use of any division of the corps, actually proceeding as part of the Nizam's contingent to join our army, should be issued at your requisition from the Comnany's Arsenal at Fort St George, and I shall instruct the Government of that Presidency accordingly The Government of Fort St George will, however, be empowered to exercise its discretion with regard to the quantity of the several articles above mentioned, which can at any time be spared with safety from the demands of their own military service, I think it probable, however, that the magazines belonging to the late French corps may be found sufficient to the supply of most of the articles in which Mr Finglass's corps is now deficient

But while I consent to extend to this coips the degree of encouragement which I have described, I must paitcularly enjoin you to use the utmost vigilance for the purpose of preventing the admission of any others than British subjects, not only into commands, but into any lank or station in the coips. You will also take care that such British subjects team their attachment to them native country, and to it laws and constitution, and that they shall not, under the shelter of their British origin, protect the growth of French influence at the Court of the Nizam

The sixth atticle of the late treaty furnishes you with ample means of obtaining the dismission from this copies of any individual whose conduct on principles may nender him a just object of suspicion. I conceive, however, that the commanding officer of this party is not likely in any such case to reduce you to the necessity of asserting the right of the Company under the teaty

It is proper you should be particularly careful so to regulate your occasional intercourse with the corps of Mr Finglass, as to prevent its exciting any jealousy or dissatisfaction in the mind of the Nizam or his ministers. On this principle It is peculially necessary that, except when your opinion on interference shall be expressly desired by his Highness or by Azim ul Omia, you should avoid taking part in any discussions which may asise between that corps and the Durbar, whether relating to the pay of the party, to the nature of the duties and services required of them, or to any other point whatever

I must except, however, from this general instruction, the case of any division of Mi Englass's corps which shall happen to compose part of the Nizam's contingent, acting with the Company's aimy for it will at all times be incumbent on us to see that due measures are taken by his Highness's ministers for securing the regular payment of whatever troops may form that contingent, whether they shall be those of the Nizam, or the Company's subsidized force, I accordingly desure that you will exert yourself to effect a satisfactory arrangement for this purpose with Azim ul Oma

My anxious desne that Azim ul Omia, in person, should accompany the Nizam's contingent, is founded on my opinion that, from his presence a gicater degree of security would be derived, not only for the punctual payment of the troops, but for the prompt obedience, and efficient cooperation of then commanders.

I am, &c
Mornington.

No XCVIII

The Earl of Mornington to the Resident at Poonah

Sir, Fort William, 10th Nov 1798

I have viewed with paticular concern the enneaning embariassments of Doulut Rao Scindah, and the slow progress made by the Peishwa in the final airangement of his government. The former by obstructing the return of Scindah to Hindostan, and by tending to weaken his authority, and diminish his sesources, threatens to depive us of the assistance of a power, whose cooperation under other occuminations, might have been of the greatest advantage, in the event of an invasion from Zemaun Shah. The latter by disclosing the weakness and rresolution of the Peishwa's mind, and by leaving me in doubt, whether his councils will ultimately be XVII. I

guided by an influence friendly or hostile to his connection with the Company, makes it impossible for me to judge with any confidence, what his conduct is likely to be in the event of a rupture between the Company and Tippoo Sultaun

But, whatever may be the ultimate detenimation of the Peishwa, the period is arrived, when it is become necessary to call upon him in the most explicit manner, for the furthful performance of the engagements contracted by his predecesson and recognized by humself

I enclose you the copy and translation of a letter, which I have thought proper to address to Tippoo Sultaun. You will without delay communicate this letter to the Pershwa, who will no doubt perceive that the terms of it are in exact conformity to the spirit of his own declarations, and to his proposed draft of a letter on the same subject. You will at the same time point out to him the necessity of moving his focces immediately towards the frontier of Tippoo, as well for the purpose of giving weight to the negociations of the allies, should Tippoo consent to treat, as in order to be in a proper state of forwardness for cooperating with the animes of the Company and of the Nizam, in the event of the allies become and the total control of the company and of the Nizam, in the event of the allies because of the company and of the Nizam, in the event of the allies be-

I shall be satisfied if the Peishwa's contingent shall amount to 20,000 hoise, provided this body of cavahy shall be of the best description belonging to the state, and shall be commanded by Sudais, and by a principal Chief, well affected to the cause, my confidence on this last subject would be considerable, were Emitt Row to be selected for this important charge, but I should feel very differently were either Gobind Kishen himself, or any other person closely connected with him in politics or otherwise, to be appointed to it. You will, therefore, be particularly careful to prevent by every means in your power, any nomination of this dangerous nature, since such a disposition of the Peishwa's contingent would make it questionable, whether it as presence at Seingapatam, in the event of hostilities, might not be of more detriment than benefit to the general interests

It is proper to mention in this place, that the Peishwa's contingent must not pass the frontier of Tippoo Sultaun, until duly advised (in the manner to be hereafter specified) of the failure of the negociations, or until required to move either by the Commander-in-Chief of the Company's aimy in the Cariatte, or by the officer in Command of our forces on the coast of Malabia

Sée page, 326

The requisition for the advance of the Mahratta contingent into the energy's country, will be accompanied by a communication of the route which it may be deemed advisable for it to puisue, for the puipose of effecting a junction, either with the aimy of Malabar, or with that of the Cainatte

You will advise M. Duncan confidentially, from time to time, of the progress of you negociations with respect to the Mahratta contingent, the better to enable him, and General Stuart, eventually to establish every degree of macticable concert between the movements of our army in Malaban, and those of the Mahratta forces

If the Peishwa aften having read my letter to Tippoo Sultaun, and in consequence of the proposed military movements, should require to know the nature and extent of the security which I propose hereafter to demand from Tippoo, you will answer, that this is a point on which I shall not be able entirely to make up my mind, until I see what impression is produced on Tippoo by the letter which I have sent him on behalf of the albies. In the mean while the Peishwa may rest assured, that I feel no desne to exact any concessions from Tippoo, beyond the objects avowed in my letter to him, or inconsistent with the Peishwa's own sentiments, as expressed to your self, and in his proposed draft of a letter to Tippoo, and that no settlement of any kind shall ever be made by me with Tippoo, in which the Peishwa and the Nizam shall not pat tenpate equally in all respects with the Company

I am, &c , Mornington

No XCIX

The Earl of Mornington to the Right Hon Henry Dundas

My Dear Sir, Foit William, 12th Nov 1798

My last private letter to you was closed on the 11th of October * On the 18th, I received the despatch of the secret committee dated the 18th of June,* and forwarded overland, and on the same day, a confirmation of the reports of the progress of the French arms in Egypt

It is difficult to express the satisfaction which I derived, from finding that the measures which I had taken, in consequence of the alliance formed between Tippoo and the French, conseponded so happily with your punciples and views on the same occasion. You will observe by a reference to my several despatches, that I had not only anticipated all your oiders before the overland despatch had left England, but that the whole course of the ideas which passed through my mind during the late critical conjuncture of our affairs in this quarter, coincided entirely with the tenor of your opinions.

On the only point which you have thought too delicate to decide at home, I am happy to be able to remove your apprehension

My former letters will have apprized you of the signature of the treaty of Hyderabad, and of the approach of the British detachment towards that city The detachment under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Roberts, arrived at Hyderabad on the 10th of October, and on the 22nd of October, the Butish troops under the orders of the Nizam, and with the cooperation of a body of 2000 of his cavalry, surrounded the camp of the French army, disarmed all the Sepoys, and secured the persons of all the French officers then in camp This operation was happily effected without bloodshed, and without contest A mutiny having bloken out in the Flench camp on the preceding day, and the Sepovs having imprisoned then officers, the Resident at Hyderabad, and Lieutenant Colonel Roberts, with the consent of the Nizam, judiciously availed themselves of this favorable opportunity to execute this important measure, without difficulty or danger

The French officers by my particular orders, were treated with every practicable degree of attention and humanity, at the period of their airest by our toops, their persons were in confinement, and their lives in danger from the mutiny prevaling in their camp, and the greatest difficulty which Colonel Roberts encountered, was that of rescuing the imprisoned officers from the violence of their own Sepoys Particular care was taken to save the property of the officers for then use, as well as to obtain for them such arrears of pay and allowances, as were due to them from his Highness, Captain Kirkpatrick informs me, that he has been completely successful in effecting both these desnable objects French officers are now on their passage to this Presidency on board the Bombay frigate, which I had previously stationed at Masulipatam for their accommodation. On their arrival at Calcutta, it is my intention to receive them with the consideration due to their respective ranks, and to allow them every indulgence compatible with the security of their per-I propose to send them to Europe by the earliest opportunity, using the precaution of dispersing them in different ships On their arrival in England, I have engaged that they shall not be treated as prisoners of war, but shall be immediately transported to France, without suffering any detention for an exchange of prisoners.

^{*} nec page, 61

I am persuaded, that you will consider this event as a cucumstance of peculiar good forture in the present moment. The effects of it must be to secure to us, whatever benefits can be derived from the cordual cooperation of the Nizam, in the event of a wax with Tippoo, and, in the meanwhile, so considerable a reduction of the French influence in India must be viewed as an important benefit, at a moment when the adventurous and enterprizing spirit of that nation is disected to the object of electing an Empire in India, on the num of ours.

With respect to the Court of Poonah, our affairs in that quarter also have taken a very favourable turn Nana Furnavese has been restored to the Ministry, and has publicly taken charge of the affairs of the Government I have alcady informed you, that the Petshwa had concurred without hesitation in all my an angements at Hydenabad, and had unfounly professed his determination to abide by his defensive engagements with us, in the event of hostilities with Tippoo The restoration of Nana, secures the Pershwa's faithful excution of those engagements, and affolds a stong ground of expectation of further improvements in the nature of our connection with that state Neither Tippoo no the French will even acquire any influence at Poonah, while Nana shall hold the nems of power. Nana has too much wisdom to involve the Mahatta Empire in such desperate connections

On the S1st of Octobes, we learnt the satisfactory intelligence of the glorious victory at Bekin, which I immediately amonumed by a circular letter to all the Princes of India, not omitting Tippoo Sultaum Being still uncertain of the fate of the French aimy, I have not relaxed any part of our military or naval preparations, for the nature of which I refer you to my letters to the secret committee. But I have deemed this a favorable opportunity for opening a negotiation with Tippoo Sultaun, which you will observe the state of affairs at Hyderabad and Poonah, now admit of my commencing in conformity to my original view of the subject. A copy of my letter to Tippoo, forms a number of the secret peaket *

I wish it were in my power to express my satisfaction in the alacrity with which the Government of Fort St George. have executed my orders for the defence of the Carnatic But I am concerned to state, that notwithstanding the cordial disposition of Lord Clive to second my excitions in the public service, unnecessary and unwarrantable delays have prevailed in the military equipments in that quarter, and the movement of the battering train towards the frontier, (a measure absolutely necessary for the purpose of giving effect to our negotiations with Tippoo), has been delayed several weeks, until at length no alternative was left, but that of deferring the movement altogether until after the monsoon, or of attempting it during the monsoon at the hazard of interruption from the bad weather The latter alternative after much hesitation was adopted

You will perceive by the secret despatches, that I have taken measures for embodying the Calcutte European milita I expect that their number will not fall short of 1500 men This useful institution had grown obsolete, as I conceive that great advantage might be derived from tin any case of sudden emergency, I have availed myself of this opportunity to revive it, intending to place it on a perimanent foundation

Our accounts of Zemann Shah, are still extremely vague and contradictory I have, however, thought it prudent to continue our preparation on the north western frontier, where I tust on defences are perfectly secure My letters to the Secret Committee contains of full a detail of all the arcumstances of our present situation, and of the steps which I have taken for the purpose of meeting the exigences of the moment, as they have arisen, that I do not feel it necessary to trouble you with any further particulars in this letter

I have iccured the initiary regulations, and I have already given the necessary orders for carrying into execution, that part of them which relates to the promotion by regimental rank, with respect to the reduction of the allowances, it is a question which I have not yet decided, whether it might not be advisable to postpone, for a time, a measure which would necessarily tend to slacken the zeal of the officers who may be called into the field in the present curss, but this is a consideration merely of time, and of pludence, for the temper of the aimy is such, and I trust my authority so firmly established, that I have no expectation of meeting with any difficulty of danger in carrying the orders of the Court into effect, I may heteafter suggest some observations on some pats of those notes.

The despatches to the Seciet Committee, and to the Court of Directors, will shew you the amount of the voluntary contributions within these provinces, when you will recollect, that the greater part of it is funnished from the annual moome of the subscribes, it think it will appear a sufficient testimony of their seal and public spuit. The same spuir has appeared on the occasion of the calling out the militia, all descriptions of the European and Amemian inhabitants of Calcutta having manifested the utmost degree of alacrity in offering their personal services.

I am, &c
MORNINGTON

No C

The Earl of Mornington to Lord Clive

My Lord,

Fort William, 14th November, 1798

I am most happy to learn that your battering train is in such forwardness, and if the same spirit of alacrity and despatch can (through your Lordship's means) be infused into all the departments of your Government, you will hereafter have the satisfaction to reflect, that you have contributed most effectually to the preservation of that Empire, which was acquired by the strength of our aims, and must be maintained by the same means For my own part I declare to your Lordship, that I deem myself bound by every principle of duty and chalacter to suspend every other consideration as secondary to the indispensable object of providing a large force in the field, and an efficient system of alliance, and so entirely devoted am I to the exigencies of this duty, that my estimate of chalacters, and my sentiments of respect, and even of affection in this country, are regulated absolutely by the degrees of zeal and alacity which I find in those who are to assist me in this great struggle Not can I conceive a more firm foundation, or a more honourable bond of friendship than a common share in the labours, difficulties, and honour of defending and saving so valuable a part of the British Empire This is the nature of the connection which I seek with your Lordship, and these are the sentiments which render me so averse to those men who appear negligent, or reluctant, or micsolute in a conjuncture which ought to extinguish all partialities, all private resentments and affections, and to unite and animate all talents and exertions in one common cause. In this effort your Lordship and I have the satisfaction to know that we have the most strenuous support of the whole Government at home, and that we must have that of every man acquainted with the real interests of India and attached to those of Great Britam. In such a cause, and with such support, we may safely tread with a firm step, and proceed steadily in a forward course, and I trust the moment is not distant when we may look back with mutual satisfaction and approbation to every step of the course we have pursued, and may claim with justice and with success the gratitude of our country, and the best iewards of honest ambition. I am extremely happy to leain that your Lordship continues to approve the conduct of my brother,* it does not become me to say with how much safety you may repose implicit confidence in his honour and discretion. You will, I hope, have understood from him my cordial wish to conduct my intercourse with your Lordship upon a footing of the most unreserved freedom, without a sensation of jealousy, or with any other object than that of a sincere union for the purpose of first preserving, and finally of improving, the interests committed to our rount charge.

I have the honour to be, &c

MORNINGTON

No CI

Mayor General Str J H Crasg to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord, Campore, 15th November, 1798

I cannot icfiam from taking the liberty of congustulating your Loidship, which I do with revi great satisfaction, upon the successful issue of your Loidship's measures to extirpate the Fiench influence at the Court at Hydea abad. Nothing struck me more forcelly, upon my airival in this country, than the extent of the mischief which might be created by that baneful and immical ascendency. It was reserved for your Loidship's filmmess and political wisdom to iemove an end of so dangerous a tendency. I very sincerely hope that the decision and energy, which have so emmently characterized this the flist step of your Loidship's administration, will produce the effect of restoring our national character for vigour and spirit, upon whe opinion of the natives

I have the honour to be,

My Lord,

your Lordship's most obedient Servant,

J H CRAIG

^{*} The Duke of Wellington, then Lt Col Wellesley, who had been sent by the Governor General to Madras with his regiment, the 33d infantiv

No CII

Moron General Su J H Cross to the Earl of Mornington

My LORD. Cawnpore, 15th November, 1798

Our intelligence continues unvaried in confirmation of the Shah's determination to attempt the invasion of Hindostan. and of his being on the point of crossing the Attock for the purpose I have no doubt that Col Collins will have transmitted to your Lordship the report of his cassids, the account of which I received from him vesterday evening, and which was at the same time confirmed, in all its material parts, by a letter that I received from one of my own people, a copy of which I sent to the Commander-in-Chief last night, this letter, which by the bye, ought to have reached me at least three days sooner than it did, contained the report of two of my hucarrahs, who returned direct from the Attock The part of it which I saw with the greatest regret has been the confirmation, as far as such can be deduced from public report, of the opinion I have for some time past held, that little or no resistance would be made by the Seiks, and I fear as little is to be expected on the part of the Mahrattas Seeing no reason to doubt the Shah's advancing soon, it would at any late now be my wish to assemble the army at Anopsheei as soon as cucumstances will admit I feel however an additional inducement to the doing it, in the hope that it may give encouragement to the latter to attempt something at least. In their present divided and distracted state. I fear the offering any direct opposition to the Shah's approach to Delhi is more than can be expected from them, but if they should assemble any body of troops with a view of protecting their nearer frontier from his incursions, and could be prevailed upon to act with a little vigour on his flank and in his rear, which will be open to them, if he advances towards the boundaries of the Vizier's domimons, it might be useful, and I shall be glad to be honoured with your Loidship's instructions how far I may proceed, in concert with Colonel Collins, in suggesting the idea to them. or in listening to any overtures that they might make for a nunction of forces, under cucumstances that would not carry us far from our own frontier, or create any disadvantage as to the local situation of an action A reference to the map will point out to your Lordship that if the Shah should advance from Delhi, on this side the Jumna, it may equally be in the intention of pursuing his conquests over the Mahrattas, or of turning his aims against us. We should, therefore, be equally concerned in opposing his progress, and though, unable to accomplish this of themselves, yet such of the Mahratta chiefs, as remain united and attached to Scindiah, might be willing to join and assist us in an attempt, in which there is not a doubt but they must consider themselves as interested. even in the great stake of their existence as a nation in these The distance from Anopsheer to the nearest part of the Jumna does not exceed forty miles, and if the aid of any tolerable body of the Mahrattas can be procured at the risk of advancing a part of that distance, instead of waiting for the enemy something nearer our own frontier, I should presume that your Lordship will think it advisable to adopt the measure At the same time it appears to me that it must depend upon a knowledge of the extent of the assistance that is to be expected from them, and if your Loidship should think it preferable, it might, if expedient in other respects, be brought about as a sort of military agreement between the leaders of the respective armies without the intervention of Government in a formal treaty I have confidence in assuring your Lordship that you may rely on my prudence in the exercise of any discretionary latitude, with which your Lordship may think proper to entrust me in this respect

I have the honour to be,

My Lord,

your Lordship's most obedient and most faithful humble Servant,

J H CRAIG

No CIII

Tippoo Sultaun to the Governor General 20th November, 1798 (Received 15th December, 1798)

It has lately come to my ears from report, that in consequence of the talk of interested persons military preparations are on foot Report is equally subject to the likelihood of being true or false I have the fullest confidence that the present is without foundation By the favour of God. the conditions (or obligations) of peace established (between us) have obtained the utmost degree of strength and firmness, under the circumstances of their having been firmly observed and adhered to, of the daily increasing union and friendship, and of the constant intercourse of correspondence, it (the report) cannot possibly be entitled to credit, but the promulgation of such reports excites my surprize My friendly pen writes this, I hope your Lordship will be pleased to gratify me by writing of it From a desire to maintain the obligations of treaty and engagement, I have no other intention (or thought) than to give increase to friendship, and my friendly heart is to the last degree bent on endeavours to confirm and strengthen the foundations of harmony and union

Let your Lordship always continue to gratify me by gladdening letters, notifying your welfare

A true Translation, N B EDMONSTONE, Persian Translator to Govt

No CIV

The Right Hon Henry Dundus to the Earl of Mornington

My DEAR LORD,

Wimbledon, 16th June, 1798 (Received 20th November, 1798)

Having been unwell for a considerable part of this spining, and particularly distressed with a weakness in my eyes, I have been obliged chiefly to make use of a Secretary's hand Perhaps you may tell me that this does not require much apology

The subject of this letter arises from iccent despatches from the Cape of Good Hope, and the state of affans in the Mediterianean, in consequence of a Fiench fleet and a great amament being fitted out from Toulon, and having actually sailed upon some seniet expedition under the conduct of their favourite General, Buonaparte The intelligence we have received from the Cape must have reached you either from the Maunitusi itself, or from the Cape of Good Hope, long before you can receive this I think it however right to send the copy of a proclamation said to be issued by the Governor of the Mauritius, and if it speak true, we are probably at this time at war with Tippoo Sultaun If we are not, it must have arisen either from his name being introduced into the proclamation without his authority, or from his having in consequence of proper representations from our Government in India, disclaimed and disavowed the whole in such a manner as to set your mind at ease upon the subject When I speak of disclaiming what is imputed to him. I mean that his conduct should be such as to evince the sincerity of his professions, for if he contents himself with a mere depual, and is at the same time, by preparations and hostile movements, demonstrating his real intention of breach of treaty with this country, your Lordship's wisdom and vigilance will not be lulled asleep or triffed with, but will, when you think it the proper moment for doing so, bring him to an explanation in the only way such conduct ments, and I am persuaded that it will be your peculiar care so to act with icgaid to other allies, as to induce them to cooperate with us in chastizing so notorious a breach of faith, not only to us, but to all those who were united together in that war which led to the peace concluded under the auspices of Marguis Cornwallis

I likewise send to your Lordship the most recent intelligence we have received relative to the expedition fitted out in the Mediterranean

Fo a long time it was i umous of that Bionapai te was intended to lead the the aetaned nuvasion against 6 irest Bittain and Iieland, but whether it has proceeded from the ilessible superiority of our fleet, or from the great preparations which the zeal and loyalty of his Majesty's subjects has enabled him to make throughout the Kingdom, I cannot pretend with extainty to know, but it does appear that of late they have been more reserved in them mences, and less forward in them preparations in the poits opposite to our coasts, and the great exertions of the Republic appear to have been made to fit out the present amament from the poits of the Mediteriancian. The destination of this expedition has been matter of various conjecture. It was for some time supposed to be desired against Naples, or Portugal, or, under cover of the latter, to lay the foundation of revolutionizing the Spanish monarchy By the latest intelligence transmitted to me by Lord Grenville, the copies of which are herewith inclosed, it would anpen that Eo yot and India are the ultimate object of this great preparation. We have intelligence of the aimament having actually sailed upon the 19th day of May, and we entertain sanguine hopes that, whatever the destination of it may be, the design of the enemy will be frustrated, and the armament itself destroyed by a powerful squadron acting in the Mediterranean, under the command of Sn Horatio Nelson, the object of which is to watch and to pursue it, wherever its course may be directed If it actually is destined for Egypt. it appears to me to be a great and a masterly stroke, and if successful, would be attended with year per nicious consequences to the interests of this country. In order to avoid entering into a lone detail at present upon that view of the subject. I shall content myself with sending your Lordship a conv of a letter written to Lord Grenville" two days ago, in consequence of the intelligence communicated to me by his Lordship We expect soon to receive certain advice both of the object of the expedition from Toulon, and of the success of the force which has been detached to counteractit, but with the intelligence before us to which I have referred in this letter. His Maiesty's servants would be culpable in delaying a moment to inform you of what is at present known to them, and of the measures which they have in consequence resolved upon

It is mitended, with as little delay as possible, to send a very respectable reinforcement of European force for the service of India First, a body of about 1,500 troops from the Cape of Good Hope that settlement to be strengthened by other force as soon as circumstances will allow of it. Secondly, it is proposed to send 1,500 newly recruited troops to the garrison of Gibialtar, and to forward from thence to thadia an equal number of toops which have been seasoned there, and lastly, there are above 1,500 European troops now serving in Portugal, which it is likewise intended to order for India These different detachments, from the flower of the British army, will tend to put his Mayesty's European forces in India upon a respectable footing By the arrangement with the East India Company, his Maiesty's European regiments of infantive are to be 1,200 strong His Royal Highness the Duke of York will accordingly issue his orders to the Commanders-in-Chief at the different settlements, to draft the regiments into each other in such a manner as not to increase the expense agreed upon in the arrangement with the Company

^{*} Vide Appendix

My dear Lord,

With sincere regard, and with every wish for the success of your Administration, your's very faithfully,

HENRY DUNDAS

No CV

The Earl of Monnington to the Court of Directors HON SIRS.

Fort William, 21st Nov 1798

By my letter despatched overland from Fort St George, I had the honour to inform you of my arrival at that Presidency on the 26th April

I lost no time in endeavouring to execute your commands with respect to the propositions, which you had directed me to make, to his Highness the Nabob of the Cainatic

I am concerned to inform you that the conciliatory measures. which, in conformity to the spirit and letter of your instructions, I employed, in the hope of persuading his Highness to agree to a modification of the treaty of 1792, produced no more favourable effect upon his Highness's mind than to draw from him repeated acknowledgments of your moderation and iustice

I was equally unsuccessful in my endeavours to persuade his Highness to enter into any adjustment of his debt to the Company

By my letter of the 23rd of June, despatched overland, I had the honour to inform you of my arrival at Calcutta on the 17th May, on the 18th of which month I took charge of the Government General of your possessions in India Soon after my arrival I despatched to the Government of Fort St. George my final directions for carrying into effect the orders of your Secret Committee with regard to the deposition of Amer Sing, the late Rajah of Tanjore, and to the establishment of Serforce upon the throne of that kingdom *

It was a great satisfaction to me to learn from the Government of Fort St George that this signal act of justice took place without occasioning any disturbance at Tanjore

The state of your finances at this Presidency demanded my earliest attention

The enquny which I proposed to institute into the various branches of expenditure and revenue, as well at this Presidency as at your other settlements, is commenced in Bengal, at Madias, and at Bombay

At this Presidency I have no doubt that the result of the enqury will lead to a reduction of expense, and to an augmentation of your resources.

The detail of my proceedings on this subject shall be forwarded to you as soon as the enquiny shall have been completed, but in the interval I shall not delay the adoption of such measures as shall appear to promise any substantial and sneedy benefit to you, affairs

The state of your public buildings, and of the allowances to you servants, under the head of house and office 1ent, has founed one branch of my investigations, and I hope to be able to effect a considerable permanent reduction in the charges on that head, accompaned by an improvement of your estate at Calcutta, as well as by an addition to the accommodation of your servants, and by other arrangements tending to facilitate the despatch of public business in all the principal departments of your civil service.

While I was engaged in considering the means of improving the internal order and management of your finances, I received intelligence which led me to apprehend the approach of a war with Tippoo Sultaun, aded by a French foce. You Scenet Committee is in possession of this intelligence, of which the result on my mind was, a firm conviction that the safety of your possessions in the pennisula of India demanded that your aimes should be placed in an active and early state of preparation for war. Accordingly having apprized the Governo of Fort St. George as early as the 9th June,† of my apprehensions of the designs of the enemy, and having directed his attention to the probability of our being involved in hostilities, on the 20th June,† I sisued my final orders to the Governments of Foat St. George and Bombay for calling your armse into the field on the coasts of Conomandel and Malabar These orders have been executed, and I trust that the subsequent disclosure of the projects entertamed by France against the British empire in India, and the advention and daring spirit with which those projects have been prosecuted, will sufficiently justify to your Honourable Court the measures of piecaution which I deemed it my duty to adopt for the defence of your territories, although the immediate effect of those measures has necessarily occasioned a large increase of your expenses, a diminution of your commercial investment, and a suspension of the improvements which I had hoped to have accomplished in the state of your precuminary affairs.

^{*} See Minute of 12th June, 1798, p 54 + See p 54 1 See p 240

It would have been a most improvident and mistaken economy to have hazarded the permanent safety of the British empire in India, and to have abandoned the sources of your commercial prosperity without defence to the attack of the enemy, for the purpose of preserving a specious and delusive appearance of security in a conjuncture of real danger

I am persuaded that the wisdom and justice of your Honourable Court will readily approve the policy of sacrificing a degree of temporary advantage to the important object of providing an effectual protection for the foundations of your trade and revenue, and for the lasting tranquility of your possessions in India

Under the expectation of an approaching war with Tippoo Sultaun, aided by the French, the state of our alliances with the country powers became an anxious object of my consideration

I have submitted a full detail of my opinions and proceedings upon this subject to your Seciet Committee, but it is my duty in this place to request the attention of your Honoui able Court to the condition in which I found our alliance with his Highness the Nizam, and to the happy improvement which circumstances have enabled me to effect in the nature of our connection with that prince

The corps commanded by Fiench officers in the service of the Nizam, which, during the last war with Mysore, amounted to no more than 1,500 men, and was at that period of time so defective in point of discipline as to be rather an object of contempt than of palousy to your Governments in India, had gradually augmented its numbers and improved its discipline under the command of the late Monsieuu Raymond, until at the period of my airwal in India it had nearly reached the number of 14,000 men, and had attained a degree of discipline superior in every respect to that of any native infanty in India. excepting the seposy entertained in your service.

VOL I 2 A

This corps formed the largest and most efficient branch of the military establishment of his Highness, and the French officers had acquired a considerable ascendancy in his domimons, and had manifested, on several occasions, the symptoms of a disposition so arrogant, overbearing, and adventurous, as to excite alarm in the minds of his Highness and of his ministers Although his Highness had entered into no engagement or obligation which in any degree bound him to retain this party in his service, and although their sudden dismission would at any moment have been warranted by every principle of justice, and their continuance at Hyderabad threatened the independence, if not the existence of his Highness's throne, yet the Nızam and his ministers confessed their mability to check the growth of a power, of which they acknowledged the dangerous influence and dreaded the destructive effect

The principles of the French officers commanding this army were avowedly the same with those of the persons who for some time past have exercised the powers of Government in France, and their enmity to the British interests was declared on all occasions While this aimy, commanded by Frenchmen of such principles and views, and of such uncontrolled power, remained in the service of the Nizam, his Highness's alliance must have proved a source rather of danger than of advantage to the Company, in the event of a war with Tippoo Sultaun, and that danger would have been greatly aggravated by any cooperation which might have been afforded to Tippoo from France Various other considerations will occur to the wisdom and experience of your Honourable Court, to prove the direct and collateral effects which the existence of a numerous armed French party in the centre of the Deccan must have produced, whether in time of war or of peace. upon the whole frame of your political interests in India Under these encumstances, the expulsion of the French party from the Court of Hyderabad appeared to me to be a necessay part of that system of precaution and defence by which I hoped to be enabled either to encounter the pressure of war, or to secure the advantages of peace.

With these views on the 8th July, I instructed the Acting Resident at Hyderabad to open a negociation with his Highness the Nizam, pioposing an addition to the Bitish detachment serving at Hyderabad, and stipulating for the dismission of the coips commanded by French officers in his Highness's survice

A new subsidiary treaty, founded on this basis, and embracing other collateral airangements (paticularly such conditions as appeared necessary for the removal of all causes of jealousy, and for the restoration of union and concord between our two allies, the Pershwa and the Nizam), was signed by his Highness at Hyderabad on the 1st of September, and ratified by me in Council on the 18th of the same month

By this treaty an increase is made in the British subsidiary force serving with his Highness of 4,400 men, and an increase in the annual subsidy paid by his Highness, of about mineteen lacs of rupees. The former subsidy having been 53,713 Arcot rupees per mensem, and the subsidy under the new treaty being 2,01,425 Aicot rupees per mensem, or 24,17,100 Arcot rupees per annum.

The substance of this treaty was communicated to the Peishwa both pieviously and subsequently to its conclusion, and at both periods he expressed his entire approbation of the nature and tendency of the new engagements, as well in their operation upon the interests of the Mahratta empire, as upon those of the Nizam

On the 18th July* I ordered the Government of Fort St George to assemble such a force in the Guntoor Circar as might enable me to fulfil the subsidiary engagements of the Company, under the new treaty, at the earliest possible period subsequent to its conclusion. This measure was executed with the utmost degree of promptitude and alacrity by Lieutenant General Harris (at that time uniting in his person the offices of Governor of Fort St George, and Commander-inChief on the coast of Coromandel,) to whose zeal, public spirit, and prompt obedience on all occasions wherein I have entrusted him with the execution of my orders, I am happy to be able to bear this public testimony

The British detachment, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Roberts, reached Hyderabad on the 10th October. and, on the 22nd October, under the orders of his Highness the Nizam, and with the cooperation of a body of his cavalry, surrounded the camp of the French army, disarmed all the senovs, and secured the persons of all the French officers then in the camp This operation was happily effected without bloodshed and without contest A mutiny having broken out in the Fiench camp on the preceding day, and the sepoys having imprisoned their officers, the Resident at Hyderabad and Lieutenant Colonel Roberts, with the consent of the Nizam, indiciously availed themselves of this favourable opportunity to execute this important measure without difficulty or danger

The amount of the French force disarmed on this occasion was about 11,000 men, from which circumstance your Honomable Court will observe that a part of the corps was absent, on detachment Measures have been taken for the arrest of those who commanded the detached force The French officers, by my particular orders, were treated with every practicable degree of attention and humanity, at the period of their arrest by our troops their persons were in confinement, and then lives in danger from the mutiny prevailing in their camp, and the greatest difficulty which Colonel Robeits encountered was, that of rescuing the imprisoned officers from the violence of their own sepoys Particular care was taken to save the property of the officers for their use. as well as to obtain for them such arrears of pay and allowances as were due to them from his Highness, Captain Kirkpatrick informs me, that he has been completely successful in effecting both these desirable objects. The French officers are now on their passage to this Presidency on board the Bombay frigate, which I had previously stationed at Masulipatam for their accommodation On their arrival at Calcutta it is my intention to receive them with the consideration due to then respective ranks, and to allow them every indulgence compatible with the security of their persons. I propose to send them to Europe by the earliest opportunity, using the precaution of dispersing them in different ships

On then arrival in England I have engaged that they shall not be treated as pirsoners of war, but shall be immediately transported to France, without suffering any detention for an exchange of pisoners

The treaty under which this measure was executed has been already forwarded overland to your Secret Committee, and it now forms a number of the secret despatch by the Eurydice

The effect of the measure will, I trust, be highly favour able to your political interests in the pennisula of India. The British subsidiary force now stationed in the dominions of his Highness the Nizam, while it must tend to cement the consistion between the Company and that Primee, and to render him a more useful and efficient ally in the event of war, will operate at all times as an effectual protection to your possessions in the Northern Circuits, and the total subversion of the French influence in the Decam, under all the encumstances of the present moment, is an event from which I expect to derive additional security, not only for your territories, but for the general transquilty of India.

Among your servants who have been concerned in the execution of my orders, on this occasion, I have aheady recommended Lieutienant General Harris to your favourable notice. To his name it is my duty to add those of Captain Kirkpatrick and of Lieutienant Colonel Robetts I found the form in the situation of Acting Resident at Hyderabad, and to his zeal, address, discretion, and firmness, I attribute the early success of the negociation entitusted to his management.

Upon the resignation of Colonel Kiikpatiick, I took occasion to manifest my sense of Captain Kirkpatiick's meiits, by appointing him Resident at the Court of the Nizam

To the ability and temper of Lieutenant Colonel Roberts, acting under the judicious instructions of the Resident, I attribute the complete and satisfactory execution of the attacles of the teaty relating to the dismission of the French aimy, and his conclustory and humane conduct towards the officers deserves the highest commendation

The rumours which have prevailed of the intended approach of Zemaun Shah to the frontier of Hindostan, although of a vague and contradictory nature, appeared to me not wholly undeserving of attention, and I have the satisfaction to inform you that every possible piecaution has been taken for the effectual defence of the frontier of Oude

I am happy to be able to mform you that, although I found the subsidy of the Nabob Vizer considerably in arrear, I have succeeded in persuading his Excellency to discharge a large part of it, and in justice to his Excellency, I am bound to declare, that I have found him suncerely disposed to fulfil his engagements under the treaty concluded by Lord Teignmouth, and to manifest on every occasion a cordial attachment to the interests of the Company The situation of affairs on the coast of Coromandel, and the necessity of providing against the possible event of a war with Tippoo Sultaun, have hither to prevented me from visiting the upper provinces But I have not been unmindful of the affairs of Oude, and I trust that I shall soon be able to turn my undivided attention to the mpiovement of the civil and military establishments of the Nabob Vizer

Although I have deemed it my duty to call your armies into the field in every part of India, my views and expectations are all directed to the preservation of peace, which in the present crisis cannot otherwise be secured than by a state of forward pena atton for war. In the mean while you may rely on my uniemitting efforts to confine your expenses within the most narrow limits, and to raise your commercial investment to the highest scale compatible with the indispensable necessity of providing for the security of your pos-

In the execution of my oiders for the protection of your tenutories on the coast of Malabar, I am much midebted to the zeal and diligence of Mr Duncan and General Stuart, and the vigilance and firmness manifested by the Government of Bombay on the first intelligence of the progress of the French arms in Egypt, have obtained my public and cordial approbation I it is also a peculiar satisfaction to me to inform your Honourable Court that I have received from Lord Clive the most ready and honourable support in the preparations for the defence of the Carnatic, and that reposing the most implicit confidence in his Lordship's anxious solicitude for the Prosperity of the general administration of your affains cul-

trusted to my hands, as well as in his assiduous attention to the peculiar duties of his own station, I expect to derive considerable benefit to your service from a sincere umon with him in the important task of preserving and improving the interests committed to our joint change

Notwithstanding the gieat strength of the military force now in India, I have deemed it my duty, for the furthei secutify of this Presidency to embody the Milita, composed of the European and Almenian inhabitants of Calcutta, and my orders for this purpose have been obeyed with an alacity and zeal which strongly indicate the resolution of you civil servants, and of all the European and Aimenian inhabitants of Calcutta, to devote their personal services to the defence of the seat of you. Supreme Government in any evigency which may ausse. My intention is to establish this useful cops upon a permanent foundation, as an institution from which great advantage may hereafter be derived

I trust in the course of a few months to be enabled to lay before your Honourable Court my observations in detail on the great branches of your service, and on the conduct and character of your servants acting under my orders. For the present I must content myself with submitting to your Honourable Court a general assurance that I have every reason to approve (with few exceptions, the patteulias of which will appear upon the proceedings), the conduct of your servants, in all the denatments of the Govenment.

I have had the honour to teceive your commands of the 6th of June, with respect to the regulation of your military establishments at this Plesidency, and I have already directed that your orders with respect to the system of promonents by regimental rises should be carried into immediate effect. In the mean while I have the satisfaction to assure you that the general disposition of your aimy at this Plesidency is such as to merit your approbation and confidence, and I entatum no apprehension of meeting any difficulty in the establishment of the regulations, which you have forwarded to me, or of any other, which the wisdom of your Honourable Court may deem it advisable to enforce

By the regular ships of this season, I propose to submit to the consideration of your Honourable Court my proceedings with respect to the several other parts of your commands In my letter of the 23d of August,* I had the honour to mform you of the proceedings of the British inhabitants at Calcutta on the 17th of July, of their having presented to me a dutful and loyal address for transmission to his Majesty, and of their having subscribed to a voluntary contribution for the public service of Great Britam in the present exigency. The details of this transaction will appear in the printed papers of which several copies are forwarded by this despatch for the use of your Honourable Court. The amount of the voluntary contribution remitted to Great Britain by the ship Envinders is $25,5847 to 110.

I trust that your Honouable Court will sanction the approbation which I deemed it my duty to declare of the sputt of loyalty and attachment towards his Majesty's person, family and govenment, and of the affectionate solution for the safety of the Buttah Empire in Europe, which dictated the expressions of the addiess, and the measure of the voluntary contribution

It was my intention to have despatched the Eurydace as early as the month of September, but the vanous important events which have successively ansen, and my desire to transmit to England the most ample details with respect to the state of your affans in India, have induced me to detain her until this time

The original address to his Majesty, with the signatures, is forwarded to your Honourable Court by the ship Eurydice I take the liberty of submitting to your Honourable Court my request that the address may be presented to his Majesty by your Chauman, attended by the whole Court in the most public manner.

It was a great pleasure to me to receive the honour of your approbation of the measures which I took at the Cape for the detention of the Mildred, and for the despatch of your several packets by his Majesty's ship Crescent The approbation of your Honourable Court will always form a primary object of my ambition

I have the honour to be, Honourable Sirs, with the greatest espect, your most obedient and faithful Servant, MORNINGTON.

^{*} See p 233

No CVI.

Lord Clive to the Earl of Mornington

My LORD.

Fort St George, 29th Nov 1798

I have the honour to transmit for your perusal a paper of intelligence, on the correctness of which, as far as it goes, I believe you may with confidence rely It comes through the channel of a friend of the family of the former King of Mysore, who had communication and engagements with Lord Pigot, Lord Macartney, and Su William Meadows I believe, and whose information during the periods of their governments was found to be of importance, and invariably to be depended upon This person, Tremal Row, keeps up a connection with the old Queen of Mysoie, who is confined by Tippoo, and whose only hopes of the restoration of her family arise from the prospect of a war. Upon this unfortunate Lady's views and wishes. I expect very soon to be able to send your Lordship a paper, which in that event may become a subject of your consideration Tremal Row is also connected with some persons immediately employed in the Sultan's Government, which though it affords him superior means of information, places him under considerable alarm for the safety of those persons He has however engaged, upon receiving assurances of the strictest secrecy, to furnish me with the best information, and that object will be completely secured to him by his communicating with me through Mi. Webbe, whose knowledge of the Mahratta language enables him to converse in it without the intervention of dubash or interpreter

I have the honour to be with the greatest respect and esteem, My Lord, your Lordship's,

Most faithful servant,

CLIVE

No CVII

Memorandum in Lord Clive's Letter

28th Nov 1798

[Intelligence by a person who left Seringapatam, 18 days since]

Tippoo is extremely uneasy on account of the information relative to the defeat of the French fleet at Alexandria, and the little prospect he now has of being soon succoured by the reinforcements promised him by the French

He has positive information of the great military preparations going on in the Carnatic, and is assured in his own mind, that the English intend to attack him without delay His own designs not being matured, he is desirous at present to avoid war, and on this account he means to put himself in a state of preparation only, and wait the motions of the English-with a view to this plan, he has taken measures to augment his infantiv by 8000 men, and to recitit his cavalry to the number of 30,000, besides which from the habits of friendship, which subsist between him and Rastiah, he expects by means of this person to receive the assistance of 20,000 Mahiatta hoise He is also levying 20,000 Peons to be used in plundering, and having sent for three principal Lumbardies, who frequent the Mysore country, presented them each with an elephant, took engagements from them, by which they are bound to supply him with 50,000 bullocks

For some time past he has been employed in repairing the works of Seringapatam, and in consequence the fort is in an unfinished state, and conceiving it might fall, if attacked by the English, he has prepared Chittledioog and Pajoonda for the reception of his family and treasure, thus meaning to keep the field in person should his capital be beseiged. Of his family and treasure, however, no part is yet removed from Seringapatam Of late he has with the greatest secrecy, issued to the Mint Master at Seringapatam, to be coined, bullion gold and silver, sufficient for 30 lacs of sultaney pagodas. and 20 lacs of sultaney tupees A Killadar with 200 men is again established at Bangalore, and appearances indicate that the place will be re-fortified. In order that his troops may be ready to act in the event of the English commencing hostilities, he has stationed in different places in the Coimbatore about 3000 horse, and a few infantry, and a body of Peons with orders to enter the southern provinces, and ravage them from Trichinopoly to Tinnevelly-5000 horse are also distributed in the districts of Malwagh, and that neighbourhood with similar orders for the purpose of plundering the Carnatic Muddoo Chan and Ghazu Chan's son, who command the Beid horse, are particularly cautioned to have then corps in readiness for predatory service.

No. CVIII

The Earl of Mornington to Toppoo Sultaun

Fort William, Dec 10th, 1798

I had the honour of addressing a friendly letter to you Highness, on the 8th of November's Lat, in which I stated a variety of important points, to which your Highness would no doubt perceive the propriety and necessity of giving your earliest and most serious consideration. I particularly hope, that your Highness will have been sensible of the advantages likely to result to all parties, from the concilatory measure of my deputing Major. Doveton to you, which I proposed in that letter.

I expect to have the pleasure of finding your answer to that letter on my arrival at Madras, for which place I am on the point of setting out from Calcutta I hope to arrive at Madras about the same time that this letter reaches you, and should any circumstances inhieto thave prevented you answering my last letter of the 8th November, I assure myself that you will immediately, on your receipt of this, despatch a satisfactory reply to it, addressed to me at Madras.

I am, &c &c.

MORNINGTON.

No. CIX

The Earl of Mornington to Lord Chve

My Lord,

Fort William, 10th Dec 1798

I despatch this letter by an express vessel to inform your Lordship, that a consideration of the delays which must arise from the necessity of a reference to me in the event of Tippco Sultaun's acceding to my proposition for an amneable negotiation, has determined me to proceed to Fort St George, on board the Sybille, and that I hope to be able to embark on Monday next.

The Shah has crossed the Attock, and is certainly at Lahore with a large army. The Seiks will give every opposition within their power to his piogless, but then internal distractions preclude the possibility of their meeting his amy in the field. The Mshratta power on the north western frontier of Hindostan, is nearly in the same state and temper as the Seeks, and Sendash's return, (the object of my early and uniemitted endeavous) appears as distant and uncertain as ever. In this state of sfaffars (of which I have received the account just now) I have determined that Sn. Alured Clarke, shall remain here in charge of the Government and of the army instead of proceeding to the coast, while I shull endeavour with your Lordship's assistance, to bring matters in your quarter to a distinct issue.

Under these cu cumstances the command of the army destined eventually against Mysoie, will remain in the hands of General Harris, who will now consider himself at liberty to form his plan of general operations, and to direct the movement of the army according to his judgment My wish is that the battering train should be advanced as near the frontier as possible without delay But I am awaie, that until it can be determined through which pass the army is to proceed into Mysore, it may be difficult to fix any forward point at which the train should be stationed, and it is impossible to determine the route of our army, until we shall have ascertamed the time when we may expect the junction of the Nizam's force Adverting to these difficulties. I must leave it to your Lordship and General Harris to make such airangements as may appear most advisable, apprizing you that my wish is to advance the train as near as possible to the frontier It is equally an object of my anxiety, that your whole army should be advanced in the same manner as speedily as may be practicable, consistently with the observations which I have applied to the station of the battering train, and which are equally applicable to that of the army.

I have the honour to be, &c

MORNINGTON.

No CX.

So J H Crang to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord,

Camp at Futty Ghur, Dec 13, 1798

Since I had the honor of addressing your Lordship on the 29th ultumo, nothing has occurred, upon which I could deem it necessary to intiude upon your Lordship's time

The Commandet—m-Chief will have reported to your Lordship the match of the last of the troops under my command, with which I joined the division under Colonel Clarke, at this place yesterday, and shall proceed the day after tomorrow towards Anopsheer, where I shall direct General Stuart to join me I hope the whole will be collected by the £6th

Your Lordship will be aware, that having left four battahons under the command of Colonel Russell, to act as may be expedient, with a view to the internal security of the Vizier's dominions, we shall have in the field ten native battalions, and two of Europeans, with four regiments of cavalry, besides the independent regiment under Colonel Bruce From the great length of time which it has required to prepare the artillery and stores directed to be sent from Chunar, and which so far exceeded what I could suppose to be necessary, that I could not think of suffering any further delay on their account we are something deficient in these respects, I have however made arrangements for sending part after us, and having anpropriated a considerable portion to the service of Colonel Russell's corps, in the confidence that he could not have any occasion for them for some time. I hope that in every event we cannot suffer much inconvenience on that head. In the article of cattle and carriage of every sort, our supply is ample, indeed I do not believe that any army in India was ever in a state more compleat as to the means of movement

Being extremely auxious for the junction of the 7th regiment, which is now on the Lucknow duty, I wrote on the 8th to Mi Lumsden to press the Nabob to come to an immediate determination relative to his joining the army, and to fix a short day for his departure, in case he should continue in the resolution of accompanying us. The result of a long conference which he had with the Nabob on the subject was, that he would remain at Lucknow, but he was extremely pressing to have some of the Company's troops left for his piotection, indeed he made it almost a condition. As he would embairs as us a good deal by his presence, I have consented that a battalion of Colonel Russell's corps shall remain with him, and I had the less difficulty in doing so, from considering that in case of any movement on the part of the Rohllas, capable of exciting alaim, timely notice will always be had, and the feas of the Nabob himself will leadily suggest the expediency of this battalion joining the remainder of Colonel Russell's cops, destined chiefly for the express purpose of consoning these people.

Although I have made arrangements upon a very large scale, and at a very considerable expence, for procuring intelligence immediately from the Shah's camp, a sufficient time has not yet elapsed, to receive any benefit from them, and at present I depend entirely upon the communications made to me by Colonel Collins and Mr Lumsden, which are of course regularly transmitted to your Lordship, from the latest it would seem, as if the Shah was in the intention of establishing himself in the Pungab, before he prosecutes his further objects, and Colonel Collins informs me, that he has grounds for thinking, that with this view, he is using his endeavours to conciliate the Seik Chiefs If this should really be the case, it will necessarily occasion his remaining at Lahore some time It appears indeed, that it would be an act of extreme temerity in him to advance, until he has secured these people, either by conquest or conciliation, but at the same time must it be confessed, that their resistance both on this and on the last occasion, has been so inconsiderable-the opportumty offered by the divisions in the Mahratta Government is so favorable, and the Shah's wants with respect to money, seem to be so pressing, that it is far from improbable, that he might determine to encounter all the hazards of the step, to reach Delhi, where alone he can look for any possible supply. though perhaps he may be sensible, that he must proceed further to render it any wise efficient.

Were the Seks united as a nation, I should think it searcely possible that they would ever enter into the Shah's interests, they must know that their existence is incompatible with them, and they must feel that by forwarding that Prince's news, they would only tender him the more perfect maste of then fite, but in their present distracted and disunited state, where no union or concert is to be expected, where no prospect appears of successful opposition, where mutual jealousy and distriust must magnify the danger and aggravate their fears,—is those highly probable, that distant considerations will be sacrificed to the interests of the moment,—is to thickly, that ivewing it as the only possible means of securing their personal safety, they may be anyonis to anticipate each other in meeting the Shah's advances Should this surmise be realised, though the requisite arrangements may probably delay him some little time at Lahote, he will be enabled to advance shortly without the risk of leaving an enemy behind him, but on the contiany, with enceased strength by the accession of that very enemy

The Mahrattas are hkewise, it appears, in the determination of assembling at Delhi, but of themselves I am convinced they will do as little as the Seiks I am led to believe that the appearance of our army assembling on the frontier, has been their only inducement for this apparent vigour, which, unless supported, will terminate in appearance only

These are considerations which, though I assume the liberty of mentioning them as they suggest themselves to my mind, I have not a doubt that they have aheady met with every necessary attention from your Lordship, where they will have their due weight in the decision of the question, whether to confine our force to the precise defence of the Vizue's dominions, or by advancing to give support to the Mahrattas, and encouragement to the Seks.

I have the honour to be,

My Loid,

Your Lordship's most obedient and humble Servant,

J H CRAIG

PS Since writing the above, Colonel Collins has commuincated some intelligence which he has just received from Delhi, by which it would appear that the Seiks are actually assembled in some numbers at Amrutan, that skirmishes have taken place between them and the Shah's troops, but there is nothing yet that can lead me to alter my opinion as to what is to be expected from these people. Without support, I am convinced they will do little that is effectual.

No CXI

The Earl of Mornington to his Excellency Rear Admiral Rainier

Sir. Fort William

Fort William, 13th Dec 1798

It gives me great satisfaction to find that I have anticipated your Excellency's wishes with respect to animing such Indiamen and other wessels as appeared fit for the purpose. The ships Earl Howe and Princess Charlotte, having been armed and manned as completely as the circumstances of this port will admit, were despatched, on the 12th December, under the instructions aheady forwarded to you. I take this occasion to recommend to your favourable notice Capitam Buriowes of the Earl Howe, and Capitam Prescott of the Princess Charlotte, they manifested the utmost zeal and alacuity in preparing for a service which does not afford the prospect of any other reward than the approbation of your Excellency and of the public

I retum you. Excellency many thanks for your obliging attention in permitting me to exercise my discretion on the important question of detaining the Sybille on this station. I will state to you, without reserve, the considerations on which my opinion has been formed, and on which it now tests.

The great object of all our efforts, in the piesent cisis, is to prevent the success of the point designs of Tippo Sultain and of the Fiench On the one hand, we must endeavour to intercept all communication by sea between Tippoo and the French, on the other hand, it is an equally urgent duty, with the same view, to stiengthen our army in the Carnatic to the unitiest possible degine, in order to provide against all contingencies To your Excellency, in this confidential communication, I will state considerations of a more secret nature, which affect my judgment on this question

The period of the season, the state of the Fiench amy in Egypt, and every accompanying cucumstance, leave hittle applications of the approach of any considerable French force to the coast of Malabar before the month of March or April. In the meanwhile the happy revival of our alliances with the native powers, the destruction of the French party in the Deccan, the advanced state of our preparations for war on the coasts of Coromandel and of Malabar, and the expected

airrad of large temforcements from the Cape and from Eutope, place us in a commanding situation in the pennisula of India Being convinced of the hostile nature of Tippoo's views, I am resolved to avail myself of the present favourable moment to reduce his powers of offence, either by the terror or by the actual employment of our arms, for it is evident that, if we suffer him to continue his preparations for wa without molestation, the same pressure of danger under which we have lately sufficed, will come upon us in the next season with redoubled force A blow struck now may save crores of rupees and thousands of lives, by rendering Tippoo unable to avail himself of the future assistance of France whenever she may be able to renew her attempts seams I findie

With these views, I have ordered a considerable force to be embarked for Fort St George, and large convoys of antillery, stores, and provisions, will be constantly passing from this port to the coast during the next monsoon. The failure of the crops on the coast will render it still more necessary to send constant and ample supplies of rice to that quarter

My intention is to try the effect of negociation with the Sultaun in the first instance, if that should fail, war will become nevitable

Under these circumstances, it is absolutely necessary to secure a free intercourse between this port and the coast of Coromandel, and this object is intimately connected with the views which the Lords of the Admirally and your Excellency entertam of flustrating the combined projects of Tippoo and of France, and of affording defence to the British empire in India.

If one on two of the enemy's large figates from Batava were to enter the bay of Bengal during the present monsoon, they would be superior to any opposition which I could provide by aiming Indiamen, or such other vessels as this river affords.

The Sybille, therefore, is the only force on which I can rely at piesent for securing an intercounse with the coast of Coromandel, and I consider her continuance in the Bay of Bengal to be indispensably necessary to the public service, either with a view to the possibility of an irruphon from Tippoo into the Carnatic, or to the great object of anticipating his hostilities by our alsority and firmness. Your Excellency will, I trust, concur in acknowledging the strength of the reasons which have induced me to avail myself of the discretion which you have allowed me, to detain the Sphille on this station, until Captam Cooke shall receive your furthen orders. I also trust that the aimed Indiamen will arrive under your command before you could have exnected them, and that their presence will prove useful.

The embarkaton of troops to the coast will take place in the course of this week, and having consulted with the Maine Board and with Captain Cooke, I have judged it advisable to recommend, for the purpose of despatch, that the Sybille should curuse for a short time off the Almegon sand, while the Nonsuch shall be stationed at the mouth of the Hooghly, and that the transports shall run down to Madas separately, as they shall happen to be ready for sea, without waiting to sail in one convoy. This ariangement will also enable Captain Cooke to receive your Excellency's final orders at Madras much sooner than he could have expected, if the Sybille had curused off the Sand heads.

The stuation of affairs sendering it necessary for me to proceed to Madus, I have requested Captain Cooke to allow me a passage on board the Sybille, and as soon as she can be ready for sea, I propose to embalk with Captain Cooke accordingly. He gives me reason to expect that the Sybille will diop down the river to-morrow, and be ready for sea on Wednesday next.

The Piesdeney of Foit St George will become the seat of the Supreme Government during my residence there, my hope is, that I shall not be under the necessity of remaining on the coast more than two months. You Excellency will have the goodness to address your commands to me at Fort St George, until further advice. The Cornucaliss will convey part of my establishment to Foit St George, and will from thence be despatched to join your Excellency, touching at Pointe de Galle and Anjengo for your orders. The Bombaug fingate being employed on the important service of conveying the French officers and privates (lately dismissed from the service of the Nizam under the stipulations of the new teaty) to Fort William, is not yet arrived in the Hooghly, as soon as she arrives, I shall despatch her to you Excellency, under the same instructions as those of the Cornucalis.

If your Excellency should still deem it necessary to call the Sybille to the coast of Malbar, I must, in that case, sequest that the armed Indiamen and the Cormealiss may be ordered to return to this station with all practicable expedition. I am aware that the return of these ships cannot be effected for a considerable time, and I have despatched them to the coast of Malabai in the confident hope that the reasons which I have urged for the detention of the Sybille will make the same impression on your Excellency's judgment which they have produced on time

I entirely concui with your Excellency in opinion that the defence of the Company's possessions on the coast of Malabar, and the blockade of Tippoo's ports, demand your first attention. I confess that I do not now see the least prospect of any attempt of the Friend through the Persang gulf, and I conclude that you will exercise your discretion (justified by the actual state of circumstances) in the execution of such parts of the orders of the Lord's Communisoners of the Admirally as relate to the establishment of a cruize in that quarter.

I shall detain whatever large ships shall arrive from China until I shall receive your further commands, but I shall not aim them before I know that you require their assistance On this subject I shall expect your orders at Madras

I return your Excellency many thanks for your obliging congratulations on the late happy result of my measures at the Court of the Nizam

I have the honour to be, &c
MORNINGTON

No CXII

Minute in the Secret Department

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL. Fort William, 14th Dec 1798.

The military regulations contained in the separate letter from the Honomable the Court of Directors, of the 6th of June, 1798, having been carried into effect, as far as they related to the alterations in the establishments, and to the arrangement of regimental rank, I now pioceed to explain the motives which have determined me to suspend the execution of the orders of the Court, with relation to certain allowances granted by this Government in June, 1796

If the present temper of the army at this Presidency afforded any ground to suspect that the execution of the reductions of dered by the Court would produce either disrespectful remonstrance or intemperate opposition on the part of the officers, no custs, however extreme, would have induced me to modify the orders of the Court In such a case, the power and authority of the Government and the discipline of the army would have been at stake, and every other consideration must have been superseded by the indispensable necessity of subduing every remnant of the spirit of insubordination, and of preserving the main spring of our military strength But I am happy to declare my conviction that the army is now in a temper to receive, with dutiful submission, whatever regulations the Government may chuse to enforce The question of discipline (which must have precluded all exercise of my discretion) now no longer exists

On the other hand, I should not have deemed myself at liberty to evereuse any discretion in the execution of the Court's orders, if the circumstances of the present conjuncture had not been of a nature not only extraordinary, but unknown to the Court at the time of despatching the letter of the 6th of June

On any occasion of a different description, my duty would have been that of implicit obedience, whatever might have been my opinion of the policy of the regulations which I had been ordered to carry into effect

The Court of Directors could not be aware, in the month of June, of the dangers which now threaten every part of the Butish possessions in India.

On every point of our fionties we are threatened by the designs of powerful enemies, and the disclosure of those designs has already compelled us to call a large pair of our armies into the field, where we have every reason to apprehend that active and aduous operations may soon become necessary. As far as we can form any conjecture on the course of future events, it is probable that the actual service of the whole of our army may be required, at no distant period, to contend against the most formidable combination, by which the Bittish empire in India was sever menaced. Even in such a conjuncture I never would have submitted to make any compromise with a disobedient aimy. I should have considered the restoration of discipline and order in the aimy to be the most necessary of all preparations for war.

Although submission to a mutinous army is a weak policy in any conjuncture of affaus, a crisis, which demands every military exertion, is not the season in which any incentive to zeal and alacuty can be withdrawn from the army without a considerable aggravation of the existing danger, the continuance of a scale of allowance which the officers have enloved, and which they deem necessary to enable them to meet the losses and expenses incidental to actual service in the field, must operate as a considerable incitement to the cordial and willing discharge of duty under the pressure of accumulated labour and increased charges, while the reduction of such allowances, on the eve of a general war, might be expected to throw a damp upon the spuit of the whole service, and to send our officers into the field in a temper of less energy, promptitude and aidour, than might correspond with the exigency of the public service

It became my duty to enquine whether the immediate exeution of the orders of the Court of Dnectors was likely to produce this fatal effect, and, in examining this important question, I adverted to the several articles of reduction which have been ordered, and I considered the allowances of the several officers on the reduced scale, with a view to ascertain the proportion which their several incomes would bear to then respective ranks and duties, and to their expenses in the field.

The first article of reduction is the batta of brevet rank to the officers of his Majesty's regiments serving in India, and to the officers of the Company's army

In his Majesty's anmy in Europe, officers having rank by brevet, when serving in the field with mixed corps, and consequently doing duty according to their rank in the army, receive certain allowances under the denomination of bat and forage, correspondent to the rank which they hold by brevet, and the reason of this practice appears to be just. The officers by brevet pattake of the same duties with those holding the same ranks regimentally, and, in many cases, command those of the same regimental rank, the officers by brevet, therefore, necessarily have occasion for similar convemences and for similar means of meeting the expense incidental to similar duty

274

Batta in India can only be considered as a different denomination for the allowance of bat and forage granted in the manner described to his Majesty's officers in Europe, and the reasons for granting batta to the blevet officers in India appears to stand on grounds of equal necessity.

Although the instances of brevet tank in Bengal previously to the arrival of the late unlitary regulations were rate, his Majesty's officers, serving in other parts of India, have long been in the enjoyment of the batta of their brevet rank

If the vanous advantages gamed under the late regulations by the Company's officers ought to be considered as sufficient to counterbalance the reduction now ordered as far as it applies to their case, it is manifest that his Majesty's officers have not patterpated in those advantages, the proposed reduction will, therefore, fall with aggravated force on his Majesty's officers.

During the war in Mysore, Lord Connwallis, with a just consideration of the expenses of offices incident to their respective situations, piocuned for heutenant colonels, commanding wings of the army, the batta of colonel, and a certain allowance to offices commanding brigades, Lord Cornwallis also pennitted the captains performing the duties of field offices of the day to receive the batta and prize money of majors, though not possessing that rank by brevet, and certainly it appears necessary that the uncome of officers should be proportioned to the duty which they are obliged to maintain the rank which they are obliged to maintain.

On these grounds it appeared to me, that the officers by brevet would suffer a real hardship when called into service in the field, if not allowed to receive the batta of their brevet rank

The second reduction is table allowances of one thousand rupees per month to colonels on duty in India, not being generals on the staff

In order to ascertain the propriety of this allowance, it is necessary to state the monthly receipts of a colonel, which are 1050 Sonaut rupees, to which is to be added the supplies of the off-reckoming, not amounting to more than 550 rupees per month, making in the aggregate a monthly income of 1600 Sonaut rupees Even in time of peace, with the advantage of quarters, this income is not more than sufficient to maintain an officer in a manner suitable to the precedence which is assigned to the rank of colonel in civil society in India, or to enable him occasionally to entertain the officers of his regiment, and although it must be admitted, that the colonel commandant of artillery (to whom, and to the colonel commandant of cavalry and chief engineer, the table allowance of one thousand 1upees per month is continued by the orders of the Court) has the superintendance of a more extensive corps, yet it can larely happen that so large a proportion of officers can be present with him as is attached to an European or a native regiment It must also be observed, that upon whatever service the colonel is employed, however expensive and laborious, (excepting in the Vizier's dominions) his income admits of no increase No. is it less material to remark that, although the original regulations were understood to confer upon the colonel his regiment for life, even during his residence in England, (subject of course to be recalled to India whenever his services should be required), it has been subsequently explained, that it is the intention of the Honourable Court to subject the colonel of a regiment to the rules of retiring from the service in common with other officers By the late orders. the officers of the rank of colonel on actual service would suffer a diminution of more than a third of their present income, and would also be ultimately deprived of an indulgence which is considered in his Majesty's army as the reward of past services.

The third article is the superior batta to any officer under the rank of colonel in command of a regiment or battalion

This increase (in some matances only occasional and temporary) is not positively disallowed by the recent odders, excepting in some cases, where the the colonel shall be present with the regiment or battlainor. The Honourable Count appears to doubt the necessity of extending this indulgence to both the officers respectively in command of the two battalions of a native regiment.

The conclusion must be, that the allowance may be continued to the senior officer of a regiment when the colonel shall be absent, because the senior officer in that case will be exposed to an additional expense. For the same reason, the allowance ought to be continued to both the officers commanding the two battahons of a native regiment, when separated, and when the colonel shall not be present with either battahons, when the solonel shall be present with one of the battahons, the superior batta ought to be continued to the officer commanding the other battahon. As this separation of battahons must frequently happen, it may perhaps not exceed the Court's intention (which is not on this occasion preimption) expressed) if the superior batta be allowed to the officers commanding both battahons of a native regiment whenever the colonel shall not be resear with either battahon.

The fourth article relates to the additional pay of one rupee per day to captain heutenants, the continuance of which is left optional with the Government of India

The pay of a captain leutenant being the same as that of a heutenant, and his batta, when on half batta, only one rupee per day more, if the additional allowance of one rupee per day be reduced, he will in point of mome be placed in the same situation with a heutenant, excepting the difference in the gratuity, which is twelve rupees per month. I have, therefore, no heatation in declaims, that "the additional allowance is absolutely necessary to support the rank of captain heutenant."

Fifth The batta of captain to bievet captains (promoted in consequence of their having been of fifteen years standing) is ordered to be discontinued, and one supec per day to be established in heu thereof

The Court of Dnectors declare it to be impossible for them to concur in the mersure of giving captain's batta to the captains by brevet, who are the subject of this atticle, but in order to render the pecuniary situations of officers of this description adequate to their raik, the Court does not object to an allowance of one rupee per day to brevet captains, in addition to their usual pay and allowances of lieutenant

The difference between the half batta of a captain and that of a lieutenant is one rupee per day, consequently the bievet captains will sustain no loss in gaution and in cantoniments, but in the field, on full batta, they will suffer a diminution of one tupee per day, and on the Vizier's allowances of three tupees per day

The stration of these officers has a peculiar claim to attention. The Honomable Court of Directors, in consideration of their long service, granted superior rank to them, thereby advancing them out of the subaltern line, and raising them to an honorary distinction.

This description of officers forms the bulk of the most laborious and effective part of the officers of the aimy, and the reduction will fall upon them on their taking the field, in a situation of increased fatigue and expense

Since the abolition of the double batta on foieign service, the alecuity to engage in that service is considerably dimmished, not ought this to be a matter of astomishment when the fact is ascertained, that the present momen of brevet captains will handly bear the additional expenses which duty in the field necessarily occasions by the enhanced rate of servants' wages, by the increased price of provisions, by the wear and tear of camp equipage, and by the loss of cattle, always incident to such service.

It may be urged, that the additional rupeeper day gainted by the Honounable Court of Directors, by laising the income of brevet captains above that of lieutenants, preserves the due proportion, but we must also look to the proportion which the title and the lank which they really hold. It will be found on calculation that the moome of the brevet captains, with the additional lupee per day, will be 72 lupees per month less than that of captain, and 42 lupees per month less, even with the continuance of the captains batta. Under this last head, therefore, the reduction would fall heavily on the most efficient class of the officers of the anny at the moment when then services would be most necessary to the state.

The result of a deliberate examination of the operation of the proposed reductions convinced me that they would produce so considerable a diminution of the income of every class of officers, as well in His Magesty's as in the Honounable Company's serivee, as must be severely felt thoughout the whole army, that they would press with peculiar weight upon the most laborious and effective class of officers, the brevet captains of fifteen years standing, and that the pressure would be most severe upon the officers employed in the field, on whose zeal and exprisons must deemed our means of defence against the impending attack of the enemy. Under these circumstances, I thought it my duty to suspend the execution of such parts of the orders of the Honourable Court as appeared to me likely to cast any degree of damp upon the spurts of their officers at the same time, however, I took occasion to modify the Vizer's allowances, and to introduce a regulation for the purpose of piecluding all future claims to arieans of batta account under promotions by beyort

In examming the policy of reducing the military allowances at this cintical period, I was led to consider the extent of the asying which would be effected at this Presidency by that reduction, and to compare it with the charges as they will stand under the modification of the Court's orders, which I have thought it advasable to adout

The account No 1 will show the effect which would have resulted from the complete execution of the Gout's oldes at this Presidency, and the paper No 2 will show the comparative effect of the modification of those olders, accompanied by the regulation which confines the Vizer's allowance of regimental rank in correspondence with pay, instead of continuing it, as originally ordered, in correspondence with batta,

Upon the result of the two accounts it appears, that the monthly difference of charge at this Presidency will amount to Sonat Rupees 12,480

It must be observed that the heaviest part of this charge consists of the batta to brevet officers, and is not of a permanent nature, but must progressively decrease

If, however, the difference between the two accounts were to be considered as a charge of a permanent nature, I do not conceive that it would be deemed an object of sufficient magmitude to justify me in hazarding the consequences to be apprehended from any abatement of the spirit of the aimy in the present cuisis

I have already declared that if the actual state of affairs in India had either been of a less pressing nature, or had been known to the Honoiable Court of Directors in the month of June, 1798, I should not have piesimed either to have suspended the execution of their orders, or to have submitted any iemasks upon the justice or policy of the proposed reductions. But the peculiar exigency of this conjuncture having iendered the interposition of my discretion a matter of indispensible duty on my part, a considerable interval of time must necessarily elapse before the final judgment of the Court on this interesting question can reach their servants in India. Duning this interval it has appeared to me to be a part of my duty to lay before the Court such considerations as have occurred to me, not only with respect to the present expediency, but also to the fundamental justice and policy of the proposed reductions as applicable to the perumary situation of the King's and Company's officers serving in India-

It will rest with the wisdom of the Honorable Court, after a due examination of the foregoing remarks, to determine whether the allowances in question shall ultimately be continued or abolished

If it should be the final pleasure of the Court to abolish them, it will be my duty to enforce that order, whenever a change in the condition of political affairs in India shall appear to the Honorable Court to admit of such a measure. The step which I have taken has not been dictated by any remonstrance, or claim of right, on the part of the officers, but by the spontaneous operation of my own fice and unbiassed judgment, actuated by a deliberate sense of public duty. No pumple of discipline has been sacrificed, or even brought into question on the present occasion, and if I should ultimately be ordered by the Court to carry the proposed reductions into effect, I am satisfied that I shall be able to obey their commands without any difficulty arising from the temper of then aimy

I have thought fit to record my sentiments on this occasion in the Secret Department from a sense of the evils which have been produced on fomer occasions by the public discussion of the interests and claims of the officers of the aim, and with a full confidence that the Secret Committee will submit this Minute to the Honorable Court of Directors in such a manner as shall be best calculated to secure the object of my remarks

No CXIII

Lord Clive to the Earl of Morning ton

My Lord, Fort St Georg

Fort St George, 17th Dec 1798

From all the combined information received of Seringapatam, it is reasonable to conclude that the works going on there are in a very unfinished state, and that if the place can be attacked this season it will easily fall. I have the satisfaction to acquaint your Lordship, that it is Colonel Close's opmon, which I believe to be the best that can be had in this country, that with exertion the army may reach Seringapatam by the middle of March, and that six weeks is ample time for its reduction. There is reason to believe that the Sultaun's army is at present in a very indifferent state, but that with the assistance of some French officers, whom he has lately engaged in his service, it may become formidable in another year. Under these circumstances, I am induced to give it to your Lordship as my sincere opinion, that your coming to this country would be attended with the most beneficial consequences to the public cause. Your presence would preclude the delays of reference to Bengal, and your union with Sn A, Clark, who I am happy to hear we are so soon to expect, would give such weight and efficacy to your negotiations, or offensive operations, should you be obliged to have recourse to them, as would in all human probability insme success to your measures, and permit me to say that in case your Lordship shall determine to visit the coast, I shall have much more satisfaction in obeying your commands when present, than at the distance you now are

I cannot conclude this letter without testifying to your Lord-ship how much I feel the sentiments of finedship and regard expressed towards me, nor without assuring you with what pleasure I enter tam the offer of that connection, which you have the goodness to say you seek with me, upon grounds so honorable as those of mutually devoting our labours to, and sharing the difficulties, and honour of defending and saving so valua-luable a part of the British Empire, as our possession in India $^\prime$

I have the honour to be with the greatest respect and esteem, My Lord, your Lordship's,

Most faithful and humble servant

CLIVE

No CXIV

Tippoo Sultaun to the Earl of Mornington

18th Dec 1798

(Received at Foit St. George, 25th Dec. 1798

I have been made happy by the receipt of your Lordship's two friendly letters, the contents of which I clearly comprehend, (vide those written 4th and 8th November)* The particulars which your Lordship has communicated to me, relative to the victory obtained by the English fleet over that of the French near the shores of Egypt, nine of then ships having been captured and two burnt, on one of which of the latter was their Admiral, have given me more pleasure than can possibly be conveyed by writing. Indeed I possess the firmest hope that the leaders of the English and the Company Bahauder, who ever adhere to the paths of succenty. friendship, and good faith, and are the well wishers of mankind, will at all times be successful and victorious, and that the French, who are of a crooked disposition, faithless, and the enemies of mankind, may be ever depressed and ruined Your Lordship has written to me with the pen of friendship, "that in no age or country were the baneful and insidious arts of intrigue ever cultivated with such success as they are at present by the French nation. Would to God that no impression had been produced on my mind by that dangerous people, but that your Lordship's situation enables you to know that they have reached my presence, and have endeayoured to pervert the wisdom of my councils, and to instigate

^{*} It may be necessary to remark, that at this period the Governor General had never had any personal acquaintance with Lord Clive

^{*} Sec pages 321 and 326

me to war against those who have given me no provocation. That it is impossible that I should suppose your Loudship imporant of the intercourse which subsists between me and the Fiench, who I know to be the inveterate enemies of the Company, and to be now engaged in an unjust wa with the British, and that I cannot imagine your Loudship indifferent to the transactions which have passed between me and the enemies of the English.

In this Sinca (the gift of God) there is a mercantile tribe, who employ themselves in tading by sea and land. Their agents punchased a two masted vessel, and having loaded her with rice, departed with a view to traffic. It happened that she went to the Mauntus, from when forty persons, French, and of a dark colour, of whom ten or twelve were artificers, and the rest servants, paying the hire of the ship, came here in search of employment. Such as chose to take service were entertained, and the remainded departed beyond the confines of this Sircar (the gift of God), and the French, who are full of vice and decert, have perhaps taken advantage of the departure of the ship to put about reports with the view to ruffle the minds of both Sircars.

It is the wish of my heart, and my constant endeavour, to observe and maintain the atucles of the agreement of peace, and to perpetuate and stengthen the basis of friendship and umon with the Sircas of the Company Bahauder, and with the Sircas of the Maha Rajah Saheb, Sree Minit Peishwa Bahauder, and his Highness the Nabob Asuph Jah Bahauder And I am resident at home, at times taking the an, and at others amusing myself with hunting at a spot which is used as a pleasure ground. In this case, the allusion to wai in youn friendly letter, and the following passage, namely "that piudence required that both the Company and their alhes should adopt certain measures of precaution and self defence," have given me the greatest suprise.

It was further written by your friendly pen, that as your Lordship is desirous of communicating to me, on the behalf of the Company and then allhes, a plan calculated to promote the mutual security and welfare of all parties, your Lordship proposes to depute to me for this purpose Major Doveton, who formely waited upon me, and who will explain to me more fully and particularly the sole means which appear to your Loadship and the allies to be effectual for the salutary purpose of removing all existing distancts and suspicion, and of establishing peace and good understanding on the most duable foundations, and that therefore your Loadship trusts I will let you know at what time and place it will be convenient to me to receive Major Doveton. It has been understood, by the blessing of the Almighty, at the conclusion of the peace, the treaties and engagements entered into among the four Sincais were so firmly established and confirmed as even to remain fixed and duable, and be an example to the rulers of the age, not are they not will they ever be hable to interruption. I cannot imagine that means more effectual than these can be adopted, for giving stability to the foundations of friendship and haimony, promoting the security of states, of the welfare and advantage of all parties.

In the view of those who inspect nairowly into the nature of friendship, peace and amity are the first of all objects, as indeed your Lordship has yourself written to me that the allied Sucars look to no other object than the security and tranquillity of their own dominions, and the ease and comfort of then subjects Plaise be to God, that the sum of my views and the wish of my heart are limited to these same points On such grounds then a just and permanent observance of existing treaties is necessary, and these, under the favours of God, daily acquire new strength and improvement by means of amicable correspondence Your Lordahro is a great Sudar, a firm friend, and the rectifier of all things, and you possess an enlightened judgement I have the strongest hope that the minds of the wise and intelligent, but particularly of the four states, will not be sullied by doubts and jealousies, but will consider me from my heart desirous of harmony and firendship.

Continue to allow me the pleasure of your correspondence, making me happy by accounts of your health. What more shall be written,

Dated the 9th of Rujub, 1213, of the Hegirah, (answering to the 18th December)

A true Translation, N B EDMONSTONE, Persian Translator to Govt

No CXV

(Secret Department)

The Governor General's Minute

Fort William, 22nd Dec. 1798

The secent advices from the north western frontier of Hudostan, as well as from Fort St George, have induced me to suggest to the Commander-in-Clinef the necessity of an alteration in the anangement under which I had proposed to him to embalk for Fort St George

The reports of Zemann Shah's progress, which hitherto have been vague and contradictory, have now become more uniform and consistent Zemann Shah is now advanced to Lahore and appears determined to prosecute his design of proceeding at least as fai as Dellin

On the other hand the check which the Fiench have reeaved in Egypt, the destruction of then influence in the Deccan, the revival of our defensive alliance with the Nizam and the Peishwa, and the appearance of the fleet off the coast of Malabar, together with the advanced state of military prepurations on that coast and on the coast of Conomandel, appear, by late intelligence from Fort St George, to have excited in the mind of Tippoo Sultaun an apprehension of our power to enforce our just demands of santifaction, for his late infraction of the treaty of Seringapatam

The 'probability of military operations on the frontier of Oude is therefore increased, while a prospect opens of our being able to induce Trippoo Sultaun to listen to reasonable terms of accommodation without resorting to aims

Under these circumstances, it appears to me, that the public service will derive material benefit from the presence of the Commander-in-Chief in Bengal, and that it is my duty to proceed to Fort St George

In the present conjuncture, it would not be advisable that both the Governoi General and the Commander-in-Chief should be absent from Bengal at the same moment, and the frequent references which must be made to me, in the event of a negotiation with Tippoo Sultaun, iender in necessary that I should be as near as possible to his dominions. A single reference from Seiingapatam to Foit William, would consume a large part of the season which ought to be employed in military operations, if was should unfortunately become inevitable, Tippoo Sultaun would certainly avail himself of this advantage to protract, and probably to fustrate the issue of the negociation

It is, therefore, my intention to embark for Fort St. George, as soon as his Majesty's ship La Sybille shall be ready to receive me

During my absence, I request that his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, will act as Vice President and Deputy Governor of Fort William

Under the act of the 33hd of the King, cap 52, the ample powers and authorities exercised by the Governo General in Council at Fort William, will be transferred to Fort St George, during the period of my residence at the latter Presidency, and I shall also be invested, during the same period, with the powers and authorities of the Governor in Council at Fort St George

The Government of this Presidency will, therefore, be execticed during my issedience at Fort St George, in the same manner, and under the same limitations as the Governments of Fort St George and Bombay are now exercised by their respective Governors in Council, subject however, to the several restrictions contained in the act of the 35td of the King, cap 55

But feeling the propiety and necessity of apprizing the Council at Foir William of the geneal state of the British interests in India during my absence, I have directed copies of all such public documents, as relate more particularly to the Government General, to be regularly transmitted to this Presidency for the information of the members of the board, the original records of all such documents shall be brought to Fort William, whenever I shall be able to return from the coast of Coronandel

I lely on the Commander-in-Clinef and on the members of the Council, for such an administration of the Government of Bengal during my absence, as shall correspond with the pressing evigencies of the present difficult crisis, and shall promote those important objects of the public service, which four the common scope of our united views The Boald has been already appured by verbal communication of the progress, which, with the assistance of the Committee, appointed on 20th June, I have been enabled to make in the tevision of several branches of the civil establishments of this Presidency, the great pressure of other business has not yet admitted of my drawing the details of my plan into a connected foun, but the materials which I have already land before the Board, and which I now leave in the hands of Sir Alured Clarke, will I tuist be sufficient to enable the Board to issue the necessary orders for putting the proposed eductions in tain, and upon my return to this Presidency, I propose to submit the whole airangement to the Honorable the Court of Directors, together with a full statement of the principles on which the arrangement is founded, and of the means by which it is to be cauried into effect

am, &c , Mornington

No CXVI

(Private)

The Earl of Mornington to J Lumsden, Esq

SIR.

Fort William, 231d Dec 1798

The extraordinary pressure of public business in a conjuncture which demanded the most unremitting excition, almost from the moment of my arrival in Bengal, must plead my excuse for having so long delayed to acknowledge your private letter. I now request you to believe that I enteriam a very high sense of your talents and integrity, as well as of your diligence, and that I am perfectly satisfied with your conduct in your office as far as it has come under my observa-The necessity of providing for the defence of the Carnatic, and for the early revival of our alliances in the Peninsula, as well as for the seasonable reduction of the growing influence of France in India, has not admitted either of my visiting Oude, or of my turning my undivided attention to the reform of the Vizier's affairs There are, however, two or three leading considerations in the state of Oude, to which I wish to direct your particular notice, intending at an early period to enter fully into the arrangement in which they must Whenever the death of Almas shall happen, an opportunity will offer of securing the benefits of Lord Teignmouth's treaty by provisions, which seem necessary for the purpose of realizing the subsidy under all contingencies The Company ought to succeed to the power of Almas, and the management, if not the sovereignty of that part of the Doab which he now rents, ought to be placed in our hands, a proportionate reduction being made from the subsidy The effect of such an arrangement would be confined to the improvement of our security for the subsidy. The strength of our north western frontier, would also be greatly increased On the other hand, in the event of Almas's death we shall have to apprehend either the dangerous power of a successor equal to him in talents and activity, or the weakness of one inferior in both, or the division of the country among a variety of renters In the first case we should risk internal commotion, in the two latter, the frontier of Oude, would be considerably weakened against the attacks either of the Abdalli or of any other invader. The only remedy for these evils will be the possession of the Doab fixed in the hands of our Government The state of the Vizier's own troops is another most pressing evil To you I need not enlarge on then mefficiency and insubordination. My intention is to persuade his Excellency at a proper season to disband the whole of his own aimy, with the exception of such part of it, as may be necessary for the purposes of state, or of the collection of revenue Some expedient must be devised for providing a maintenance for such leaders and officers, as from their birth or habits, cannot easily be divested of their military pretensions, (I do not say military character, for I do not believe that any such description of men exist at Lucknow) In the place of the aimed rabble which now alaims the Vizier and invites his enemies, I propose to substitute an increased number of the Company's regiments of infantiv and cavaliv. to be relieved from time to time, and to be paid by his Excellency, I have aheady increased our establishment to the extent of 17 regiments of infantiv, with the view of transferring three regiments to the service of his Excellency, I imagine that under this plan, his force might be rendered much more efficient at a reduced expense, objects, which would probably meet the two prominent features of his character, timidity, and parsimony, I have not yet fixed the amount of the force which it might be deemed necessary for his Excellency to maintain with a view to the two objects of increased security, and diminished expense, but I request you to take these suggestions into your consideration, and to state your opinion to me in a private letter, you will also point out the time when you think this reform of the Viner's army might be attempted with the best prospect of success, and in the mean while you will constantly encourage all such patial reductions of the present military establishment, as may facilitate the final and total reduction of this useless charge

388

With respect to the Vizier's civil establishments, and to his abusive systems for the extortion of revenue, and for the violation of every principle of justice, little can be done before I can be enabled to visit Lucknow I am now under the necessity of proceeding to Fort St George, whence, I trust I shall be at liberty to return to Fort William, in the month of March, and I propose to set out for Lucknow at the conclusion of the month of June I must call your attention to another important subject The number of Europeans, particularly of British subjects established in Oude, is a mischief which requires no comment My resolution is fixed to dislodge every European excepting the Company's servants from Oude It is my intention to allow to those Europeans now established in Oude, a reasonable time for the settlement of then affans, limiting the period to twelve or eighteen months at furthest, you will transmit to me privately, a list of all the Europeans now m Oude, as complete as you can make it, with a state of their several occupations, and of the period which might reasonably be required by each for settling their affairs. My wish is to occasion as little private distress as possible, but the public service must take its course, and it is not to be expected, that some cases of hardship will not be found in the extent of so great a measure. In the mean while, I have refused permission to every European who has applied for leave to visit Oude, with the exception of a single case now under my consideration, that of M1 Prendergast, to whom I think it is possible, on a revision of his claims, that I may extend the indulgence of visiting Oude, (but not Lucknow) for the arrangement of his affairs. If I should permit this gentleman to return to Oude, he must not continue there beyond the period assigned for the general lecall of all Euopeans. You will understand it to be a fixed determination in my mind, never to lend the assistance of Government to any European residing in Oude, for the recovery of any private claims, either upon the Nabob or any of the natives.

I have the honour to be, &c

MORNINGTON

I wish that the Nabob could see, that it would be a more digmified counse to pay his subsidy without giving me the trouble of importuning him, he regularly falls into an ear, and as regularly pays up the arrivary whenever he leain a from me that it has attracted my notice, would it not be more for his honour and for my case, if he would not wait for my application, but pay punctually as the subsidy become due.

No CXVII

Lord Clive to the Earl of Mornington

MY LORD,

Fort St George, 31st Dec 1798

Hoping that your Lordship has had a prosperous and favourable passage, and that you are in perfect health, I have the honour to offer my most cordial congratulations upon your arrival in these roads, your presence in the present crisis will, I am convinced, be followed by consequences the most beneficial to the public welfare It will, I trust, produce a unity of action and a combined exertion, similar to that which prevailed during the war, conducted by Lord Cornwallis, and enable your Lordship to accomplish the great and important object you have in view, of placing the British interests in India upon a secure and permanent foundation Adverting to the friendly tenour of your letters, and to the unreserved and confidential communication with which you propose to honour me, and reflecting upon the advantage I may expect to derive from the assistance of your direction and advice, I have looked to your Lordship's arrival as a source of comfort and satisfaction

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect and esteem, my Lord, Your Lordship's most faithful and humble Servant,

No CXVIII

Proclamation by the Rt Hon the Governor in Council of First St George

Whereas in and by an Act of Pailiament made and passed in Great Britain, in the 33rd year of the reign of his present Majesty King George the third, and entitled, an act for continuing in the East India Company, for a further term the possession of the British territories in India, together with then exclusive trade, under certain limitations for establishing further regulations for the Government of the said territories, and the better administration of justice within the same, for appropriating to certain uses the revenues and profits of the said Company, and for making provision for the good order and Government of the towns of Calcutta. Madras, and Bombay, it is enacted, that when the Governor General of Fort William in Bengal, for the time being, shall find it expedient to visit the Presidency of Fort St George, or the Presidency of Bombay, or any province, or place in India, the powers and authorities of the Governor or other chief officer or officers of such presidency, province, or place, shall from the time of the proclamation of the arrival of the said Governor General therein, be suspended, (except with regard to judicial proceedings), and shall so continue to be suspended, until other proclamation be made to the contrary, by the order of the said Governor General, or otherwise until the said Governor General shall depart therefrom, and no longer, and that during that interval the powers and authonities of the said Governor, or other chief officer, shall be vested in the said Governor General with liberty, nevertheless for such Governor to sit and act as a Member of the Council of such Presidency, and that the said Governor General in Council at either of the said Presidencies of Fort St. George and Bombay, shall be invested with the powers and authorities of the Governor in Council of the same Piesidency or settlement respectively, and also with the same ample powers and authorities, as can, or may be exercised by the Governor General in Council at Fort William, by force and virtue of this act, and whereas the Right Hon Richard Earl of Mornington, Viscount Wellesley, of Dengan Castle, and Baron Mornington, of Mornington in the Kingdom of

Ireland, Baron Wellesley, of Wellesley in the county of Somerset in the Kingdom of Great Britain, one of his Majesty's most honorable Privy Council in the Kingdoms of Great Britain and of Ireland, Custos Rotulorum of the county of Meath, and Knight Companion of the illustrious Order of St Patrick, and now being Governor General of Fort William in Bengal aforesaid, has found it expedient to visit this Presidency of Fort St George, and is actually arrived at the same, with intent to exercise, and for the purpose of exercising the powers so vested, and intended to be vested in the Governor General in Council at this Presidency of Fort St. George aforesaid, under and by the virtue of the said act . and whereas such the arrival of the said Richard Earl of Moinington, &c &c &c , Governor General of Fort William aforesaid, has been duly notified to the Right Hon. Edward Lord Clive, Baron Clive, of Walcot in the county of Salop, and Plassy, of the Kingdom of Iteland, Governor General in Council of Fort St. George, and the said Edward Lord Clive Governor in Council aforesaid, has in consequence thereof. ordered, and directed such the arrival of the said Richard Earl of Mornington, &c &c &c , Governor General aforesaid, to be publicly proclamed, pursuant to the said act Now proclamation is hereby made accordingly of such the arrival of the said Richard Earl of Mornington, Governor General of Fort William aforesaid, and all persons are hereby strictly enjoined and required to take notice thereof

By order of the Governor in Council of Fort St George aforesaid, the second day of January in the year of our Lord 1799

J WEBBE

No CXIX

Minute by the Governor General

Fort St George, 2nd Jan 1799

The critical state of our actual situation with Tippoo Sultaun, must necessarily require frequent references to the authority of the Governor General in Council on a variety of important points, which will demand a prompt and immediate decision, my continuance in Bengal during such a class, might have been attended with great inconvenience to the public service, and the season for active operation might have been consumed, before my opimon could have been obtained on the several emergencies which may be expected to arise. the consideration of this inconvenience is the principal motive which has induced me to moceed to this Presidency, and I am happy to take this opportunity of declaring, that I should not have felt my presence to have been at all requisite in this place, for the purpose of adding energy or vigour to such branches of the public service, as fall within the particular duty of this Government I am perfectly satisfied with the conduct of this Government in the respectable hands to which it has been committed, and I am persuaded that I should always have found the same cordial, manly, and honorable support from your Lordship in Council, which has already obtained the public testimony of my unqualified approbation My object, therefore, in taking my seat at this Board, is no other than to deprive our enemies of the advantages which they might derive under the present circumstances, from the remote situation of the power entrusted to me, from the probable scene of action The provisions of the law, require that the authority of the Governor in Council at Fort St George, should be vested in my hands during my residence at this Presidency, the public acts and proceedings of this Government, must accordingly pass in my name But I am anxious as well from motives of personal respect, as from considerations connected with the public service, that my residence at this Presidency, should in no degree impair the present or future dignity and influence of Lord Chive I, therefore, am desirous of abstaining from all unnecessary interference in the details of this Government, nor do I wish to disturb the system established under his Lordship's immediate direction, by the interposition of my power of superintendence on the spot, beyond the limits of the ordinary exercise of that power at the seat of the supreme Government in Bengal I therefore, request that Lord Clive and the Members of this Council, will take the trouble of conducting the details of this Government, especially those which relate to the pationage of the Governor in Council, according to the principles which have been observed by his Lordship since his arrival in India, and I am satisfied, that I shall denive the utmost degree of advantage from the united zeal, at latents, experience, and assignity of those whom I have the honor to address, while my principal attention must be devoted to the superintendence of the general interests of all the Company's possessions, and of the security and defence of the Butish Empire in India, against the various dangers by which it has excently been meaced

2nd Jan 1799

MORNINGTON

The Board express them satisfaction, that then endeaours to meet the wishes of the Govennor Geneal, have received his Lordship's approbation, as well as them sense of the confidence which his Lordship is pleased to repose in them, and at the same time beg leave to assure him of them most contail cooperation, and assistance in them duous labours, in which his Lordship is at present engaged.

No CXX.

From Tippoo Sultaun

Dated 2nd January, 1799 [Received 11th January, 1799]

The agreeable aniwal of your Lordship's two* letters, denoting your welfine, 1900ecd and gratified me A khereeta, in reply to your Lordship's former friendly letter, has been written and despatched. It will no doubt, by this time, have been received, and the sincerity of my friend-hip and regard, together with proofs of my solicitude for trianquility and peace (my friendly heart being bent upon their incresse) will have been made apparent. Continue to rejoice me with happy letters

A true Translation, N B EDMONSTONE, Pulsian Translator to Govt

Original and duplicate of that written 10th December, 1798, see page 363

No CXXI

From the Governor General to Tippoo Sultaun

Fort St George, 9th January, 1799

My lettes to your Highness, of the 8th of November, s will have explained to your Highness the object of the military preparations, which have been advancing in every part of the dominions of the allies ever since the beginning of the month of July

On my arrival at Madras, I had the honour to receive your letter of the 18th of December, in answer to my two letters addressed to your Highness on the 4th and 8th of November ‡

I am happy to find that, in this letter, your Highness has been pleased to adunt, "that the English nation and the Honourable Company even adhere to the paths of sincerity, triendship, and good faith, and that they are the well-wishers of mankind." This declaration is peculiarly satisfactory to me in the present moment, because I am persuaded that a Pinice of your Highness's disceriment, would not express such sentiments without full deliberation. I, therefore, accept with pleasure this declaration, as affiolding not only an unequivocal testimony, on the part of your Highness, to the justice of that cause in which the English nation and the Company are engaged, but an unqualified admission, that you have no ground of complaint against the English Government

In answer to that part of my letter, of the 8th of November, in which I lamented the unhappy connection which you had formed with the Friench nation, your Highness is pleased to mention, "that, in the Sinkar (the gift of God) there is a mericantile tube who employ themselves in trading by sea and land that their agents purchased a two-masted vessel, and having loaded her with rice, departed with the view to traffic, that it happened that she went to the Mauritius, from whence forty persons, Friench, and of a dask colour, of whom ten or twelve were artifices, and the 1est severals, paying the hire of the shup, came to your country in search of employment that such as chose to take service were entertained, and the remainder departed beyond the confines of that Sinku (the grft of God) and that the French, who are full of vice and decet, have perhaps taken advantage of the departure of the ship, to put about reports, with a view to ruffle the minds of both Sirkas "

I had no knowledge of the transaction which your Highness has thus described, until I had the honour to receive your Highness's letter Noi was it to this transaction I adverted, when I expressed my concern at the intercourse which your Highness had established with the French. The facts to which I referred, were of a nature entirely different from those which your Highness has related If the transactions, of which I complained, had not indisputably proved the existence of a connection between your Highness and the French, entrely meompatible with your engagements to the Honourable Company and to its allies, neither the allies, no I, would have resorted to those measures of precaution and defence, which have attracted your Highness's attention

I will now fully and explicitly state to your Highness the encumstances, to which I referred in my letter of the 8th of November, wherein I remonstrated against the tendency of your intercourse with the French

Although I had been, for some time past, apprized, that your Highness had engaged with several powers of Asia in various negociations, of the most hostile tendency, towards the interests of the Company, and of its allies, and, although your continued military preparations corresponded with the spirit of your negociations, I still hoped that a sense of you own interests, and a regard to the acknowledged maxims of prudence and good faith, would have induced you to relinquish projects of aggression, so inconsistent with your own professions, with your real interests, and with the character of your wisdom and discretion But I had scarcely formed that decision on your Highness's claim to Wynaad (by which I had afforded an unquestionable testimony of my disposition to render impartial and ample justice to your rights, and to cultivate and improve the relations of amity and peace with your Highness,) when I received from the Isle of France an authentic copy of the proclamation, a Persian translation of which accompanies this letter

In addition to this proclamation, I possess full and accurate information of all the proceedings of your Highness's ambassadors during their residence in the Isle of France, of the whole of their conduct in exercising the powers delegated to them by your Highness, and of your Highness's conduct, since the return of your ampassadors

From the whole evidence in my possession, the following facts are incontestibly proved

You Highness despatched two ambassadous from your presence, who embarked at Mangalore, for the Isle of France, and a nived there at the close of the month of January, 1798. The ship on which your ambassadous were embarked, hosted your Highness's colours upon entering the harbour of Poit Nord Ouest, in the Isle of France, your ambassadous were received publicly and formally by the French Government under a salute of cannon, and every encumstance of distinction and respect, and they were entertained, during their continuance on the Island by the French Government, at the nublic expense.

Previously to the arrival of your ambassadors on the island, no idea or rumour existed there of any aid to be furnished to your Highness by the French, or of any prospect of a war between your Highness and the Company But within two days after the arrival of your ambassadors, the proclamation, of which I now forward to you a translation, was fixed up, in the most public places, and circulated through the town of Port Nord Outset

Your ambassadors, far from protesting against the matter or style of the proclamation, held without reserve in the most public manner the same language, which it contains, with respect to the offensive was to be commenced by your Highness against the British possessions in India and they even suffered the proclamation to be publicly distributed at their own houses

In consequence of these cucumstances, an universal belief prevailed in the island, that your Highness would make an immediate attack upon the British possessions in India.

You ambassadois were present in the island when the French Government proceeded to act under the proclamation in question, and you ambassadois aided and assisted the execution of the proclamation by making promises, in the name of your Highness, for the purpose of inducing recruits to enlist in your service. You ambassadois proposed to levy men to any practicable extent, stating their powers to be unlimited, with respect to the numbers of the forces to be raised in your Highness's name, for the purpose of making war on the Company

The ambassadors entered into certain stipulations and engagements, in the name of you Highness, according to the tenor of the proclamation,* with several Frenchmen, and others who entered into your service, particularly with Monseur Du Buc, whom the ambassadors engaged in your Highness's name, for the express purpose of assisting in the war to be commenced by your Highness against the English in India.

The proclamaton, therefore, is proved to have been the act of your ambassadors. It originated in their arrival at the Isle of Finnce, it was distributed by their agents, it was avowed in every part by their own public declarations, and finally, it was executed, according to its tenoi, by their personal assistance and cooperation

On the 7th of March, 1798, the ambassadors embarked at Port Nord Ouest, on board the French frigate La Prencuse, together with the force thus rused in your Highness's name

This Fiench figate, with your ambassadors, and with the troops raised in the enemy's country for your service, arrived at Mangalore on or about the 26th of April, 1798. Your Highness permitted this force to land in your dominions, and fan from manifesting the least symptom of disapprobation of the conduct of your ambassadors in any part of this transaction, you formally seewed them, and the French officers, and punicipal persons who accompanied them, with public marks of honour and distinction, and you now entertain in your service a large part of the force thus issued for the purpose of making war upon the Honourable Company.

From these several facts the following conclusions result —
First That the ambassadors, despatched by your Highness to the Isle of France, did propose and actually did con-

Nous pouvons assurer tous les Gitoyens, qui se feiont inscine, que Tippoo leul fera des traitements avantageuses qui seiont fix\u00e3a avec ses Ambassadeurs, qui s'éagageiont en outre au nom de leur Souveian, a ce que les Fiancois qui amont pits parti dinas ses Aimces, ne puissent namas y' ette retenus cutand ils voudront rentrer dans leur Petite clude an offensive alliance with the Fiench, for the express purpose of commencing a war of aggression against the Company, and consequently against the allies, the Peishwa and the Nizam

Secondly That you Highness's ambassadors demanded military succouts from the Fench, for the purpose of prosecuting the said war, and declared that you Highness had aheady completed your hostile preparations against the Company, (and consequently against the alles), and that you only waited the airival of effectual aid from the French to break out into oom hostilities

Thirdy That you Highness's ambassados levied a miltary force in the Lile of France, under the conditions of the proclamation, and for the avowed purpose of carrying into effect the offensive alliance, contracted in the name of your Highness, with the enemy of the Company, and of the allies

Fourthly That your Highness approved the conduct of your ambassadors, suffered the French force, raised for the purpose of making wan upon the Company and the allies, to be landed in your country, and finally, admitted the said force into your aimy

Fifthly That your Highness, by these several personal and unequivocal acts, has ratified the engagements contained in the proclamation published in the Isle of France, and his taken the preliminary steps for fulfilling those engagements, according to the tenio of that proclamation, and that you have thereby precluded whatever hope might otherwise have been entertained, that the proceedings of your Highness's ambassadors were unauthorized by you orders

Sixthly That your Highness has, for some time past, been employed in military preparations, conformably to the hostile spuri of your engagements, contracted with the enemy of the Company and of the allies

Seventhly That your Highness was prepared to make an unprovoked attack upon the Company's possessions, if you had obtained from the French the effectual succour which you had solicited, through your Ambassadors

Eighthly That you Highness, by these several acts, has violated the treaties of peace and friendship subsisting between your Highness and the allies

Such are the grounds on which I founded my complaint in my letter of the 8th of November, and such are the motives which now compel the allies to seek relief from that ambiguous and anxious state, in which they have been placed for some years past by the conduct of your Highness. The allies complain, that your frequent preparations for war, together with your hostile negociations, and offensive alliances with the enemy, continually expose them during a period of supposed peace, to all the solicitude and hazard, and much of the expence of war

Even under all these encumstances of provocation, the ullies entertain the most ennest desire to establish with your Highness, a real and substantial peace, accompanied by the intercourse and good offices, usual among friendly and contiguous states. We are, therefore, ready to renew and confirm the bonds of amity with your highness, on such conditions, as shall piechude the continuance of those pealousies, which must subsists so long as a final and satisfactory adjustment of all causes of suspicion shall be delayed

Your Highness is pleased to say, "that you cannot magine how means more effectual, than the existing treaties, can be adopted for giving stability to the foundations of friendship and harmony, or for promoting the security of the states, and the welfate and advantages of all parties".

In this sentiment I entirely concur with your Highness, and if your Highness's wisdom had not been perveited by evil councils, from a due observance of your engagements with the allies, no new or more effectual means would now be necessary, "for giving stability to the foundations of fi.indahip and harmony, or for promoting the security of the states, and the welfane and advantage of all parties" But a new arrangement is become indispensable, in consequence of your Highness's new engagements with the common enemy of the allies, and I again entreat your Highness to meet, with co-dulity, the finendly and moderate advance of the allies, towards an amicable settlement of every ground of jealousy and dange

Had your Highness received Major Doveton, that gentleman would have explained to your Highness, on the part of the Company and of the allies, how this advantageous arrangement is to be obtained

The allies heing always anxions to enter into this friendly

explanation with your Highness, I once more call upon your Highness, in the most serious and solemn manner, to assent to the admission of Majon Doveton, as a measure, which I am confident, would be productive of the most lasting advantages to all bartles

It rust that you Highness will favou me with a fixedly letter in reply to this, and I most cainestly request that you reply may not be deferred for more than one day after this letter shall reach your presence, dangerous consequences result from the delay of aduous affains

A true Copy, N B EDMONSTONE, Persian Translator to Govt I am, &c. Mornington

No CXXII

The Earl of Morning ton to the Resident at Poonah

SIR.

Fort St George, 11 January, 1799

No disposition appearing at piesent in the Court of Poonah to accept of my propositions of the 8th of July, I now direct you to abstain from any further solicitation on that subject. If the negotiation should be renewed by the Peisliwa or by his ministers, you will receive their advances with cordiality, but you will signify, "that although my anxiety to promote the weither of the Peisliwa and of the Mahratta State has suffered no diaminition, you are apprehensive that I may not possess the means of imparting to his Highness the full and immediate benefit of that minisagement which he had thought fit to decline Under the piesent circumstances, therefore, you can only declare the continuance of my disposition to execute the whole plan as originally stated in my instructions of the 8th of July, whenever the state of affans will admit of a 1c-newal of my propositions."

Although any negotiation on the basis of my original propositions is become inexpedient in the present moment, in extremely desirous of accepting the suggestion of Moonshee Gopal Row, that a detachment of the Company's troops, of equal strength with that which served during the last war, with Captain Little, in conjunction with Pursea am Bow, should join and act with the Pesishwa's present contingent, in the same manner and on the same conditions on which the services of that detachment were granted to the Mahrattas by Lord Cornwallis

I have accordingly directed the Government of Bombay to prepare the force necessary for this purpose with all possible expedition, and to inform you without delay at what period it will be in readiness to march from Bombay and to ioin the Peishwa's contingent, at such place as shall be appointed for the junction.

You will not announce the arrangement to the Peishwa and to Nana Furnavese, until you shall have received an intimation to this effect from the government of Bombay, and if the measure shall be approved by his Highness and by his minister, you will immediately proceed to arrange with them, and with the government of Bombay, all the details of the busmess

It is extremely desurable that the junction of the detachment from Bombay, with the Peishwa's contingent should be effected, as was the case last war, at an advanced point towards the frontier of Mysore, and you will, therefore, be careful to preserve this object in view But if the march of the Company's troops to Poonah should be anxiously desired by the Peishwa, you are to comply with his wishes It is probable that the suggestion of Gopal Row, originated in the motive which you suspect, but in the present conjuncting, it is an important object to conciliate the Peishwa, and to maintain both the reality and the appearance of harmony and good understanding between his Highness and the Company If, therefore, the result of my present orders shall be, that our detachment shall be detained at Poonah for his Highness's private purposes, so long as to preclude the hope of its services in the field. I shall still look with satisfaction to the extensive political advantages which must be derived from the presence of a Butish force at Poonah in the present crisis

In the event of a war with Tippoo Sultaun, which now appears highly probable, it will certainly be of the utmost importance that an early and powerful diversion should be made in the country of Bednore You will therefore urge the Peishwa to station a large force in a forward position, for 2 n this purpose, without delay, and without waiting for the junction of the Company's forces.

You will communicate to the Peislawa the correspondence between me and Tippoo Sultaun, (a copy of which will be forwarded to you by the Peisaan translator), and you will apprize his Highness, that although I shall leave the channels of panetin egottation open to the Sultaun to the latest possible moment, I shall not, on that account, relax or retard the movement of our aimy, being satisfied that no adequate satisfaction can be expected from the Sultaun until he shall find himself deprived of all hope of foreign aid, and of every resource of sulterfuge or procrastination.

You will not fail to call the attention of the Peishwa to the prevaileation and displicity of the Sultaini's statement of the nature of his metacourse with the Friends, and you will particularly observe the attifice by which he has evaded the amicable advance of the allies, by cluding the reception of Mario Doveton.

In the present state of affaus, I must misst on the immediate dismission of Tippoo's Vakeels from Poonah, and I direct you to remonstrate in the strongest terms against their continuance at the Court of the Peisliwa, as being wholly incompatible with the relation subsisting between his Highness and the Company You will assure his Highness that I shall constantly submit to him the state of any negotiation which Tippoo may open with me on behalf of the alhes, but the residence at Poonah of an embasy from Tippoo, in the actual crisis, must tend to encourage the hopes of the Sultauri, and to countenance rumours of disuntion and jealousy between the albes

I am aware that under the existing establishment of the Company's aimies in India, the expense of the detachment, proposed to act with the Peishwa's contingent, will exceed that of the detachment which was commanded by Captain Luttle duing the last war with Tippoo Sultaun but I consider it so essential an object, in the event of hostilities with the Sultaun, that a Butish foice should act in conjunction with the Mahrattas, that I duect you to wave the consideration in airanging the amount of the subsidy with the Court of Poonah

You will send your assistant with the detachment of the Company's troops, proposed to act with the Peishwa's contingent, for the puipose of conducting, in the flist instance, the intercourse between the commanding officer of the former and the Mahiatta commander, and eventually of serving as the channel of communication between the latter and the commanders of the Company's forces on the coasts of Malaban and Coromandel

I am, &c
Mornington

No CXXIII

Sit J H Craig to the Earl of Mornington

M: LORD, Camp at Anopsheer, 12th January, 1799

The army under my command assembled here on the 27th, as I make no doubt that you will have been informed from Calcutta. We are encamped close to the city and fort, and the more intimate knowledge which I have been able to obtain of the country has only served to convince me, that we could not have chosen a position better adapted to every cucumstance that may occur in the execution of your Lordship's instructions in the defence of the Vizier's dominions. Almas has somed me here with four battalions of sepoys and one of nuncebs, twelve very well provided guns and some horse I have not yet been able to get from him any exact statement of his numbers, but from having seen his battalions under arms, I compute the amount of the five not to exceed 2500 men As to the Nabob's troops, it is impossible for me to convey to your Lordship a more decided opinion as to then nullity, than I have already had the honor of communicating to your Lordship With the view, however, of drawing from them the only service which it seemed possible to hope for, I pressed strongly for the appointment of General Martine to the command of those stationed in Rohilcund, which the Nabob has acceded to, and the General is now on the duty of examining the fords of the river from Hurdwar to this place It is however extremely difficult to combat the obstacles which arise from the extreme pusillanimity and sordid avarice of the Nabob I have written in strong terms, and I am sure Mr Lumsden is indefatigable in his representations, for it is a duty, that I owe to that gentleman, to assure you Lordship that nothing can exceed the condulity and zeal with which he has seconded every view that has occurred to me on this occusion I am well assured that the Nabob's troops are neither aimed nor clothed, nor is there a gun in the district, which is put under General Mattine's command, that can be made use of. In consequence of our representations he has promised to send some guns, but he declines that he has neither aims nor clothing beyond what he must furnish to the battalions that he keeps near his person. He has indeed given directions for their regular payment, which Mr Lumsden thinks will be sufficient to ensure it. I own I have great doubts of it.

I do not know in what terms Coloniel Collins has communicated to Rajah Ambajee your Lordship's determination upon the proposal which he had made. It is however certain that he has industriously disseminated in the country the report that the Mahratta forces are to be joined by this army, and it is generally considered that our advance for that purpose is only delayed till the arrival of the boats in which our stores are supposed to be. The Mahrattas have in the meant time made some movements town ds Delylhi, but I do not find that they have it in their power to assemble any force of a magnitude to promise any considerable effect.

Zemann Shah was still in Lahore so late as the 31st of We had a report in all our intelligence that he had quitted it on his neturn to his own dominions the 27th I confess I considered it as probable, though the report did not appear to me to be sufficiently authenticated to ment entue confidence, and accordingly it has since turned out to have been false It would seem from all the intelligence we get, that he has been employed in repairing both the works and the dwelling part of the fort at Lahore, whilst he has restrained his aimy from the usual exercise of the right they claim of plundering the country, and has been anxious to conciliate the people to his government. This carries with it the appearance of an intention to establish himself there, but his unvaried declarations have always been, that he would soon advance to Delhi On the other hand the Serks are assembled in considerable numbers at Amiutsii, some skii-mishes have taken place, but nothing that can have any influence on the real state of the contest. They, however, impede the supplies to the Shah's army much, and there is no doubt that he has been year much distressed in that respect Notwithstanding the state of hostility with a common enemy, the chiefs of these people appear to be as much disunited, and to entertain as strong a realousy of each other as ever, and there is no doubt that they are all negociating with the Shah He sent a Vakeel to them in common, who is returned with general answers and nuzzus from them all, but besides this. each has sent a separate Vakeel with him to negociate for himself It is, I think, impossible to form an idea how this is likely to terminate, but to give your Loidship a notion of the opinion which generally prevails on the subject. I do myself the honor to enclose a copy of a translation of part of a paper of intelligence from my own people, which relates to I cannot conceive that confidence or cordiality can ever exist between them, and if they ever do come to an agreement, I should rather suppose that they will pay the Shah a sum of money under the denomination of tribute, with which he will return If, however, my conjecture should prove wrong, and they should actually submit, and ion him with their forces, there cannot exist a further obstacle to his progress to Delhi, where he will collect a very formidable force Every thing remains perfectly quiet in Rohilcund, nor is there any account of Gholaum Mahommed having joined the Shah I believe he is still at or near Nadoun

We have an account from Delhi, that it has been mentioned at the King's dui bai by Monsieur Peron Duvan, that he had heard that the French had penetiated through some islands, and had approached Heat and the Holy Muslied This appears to be uttely ly impracticable, as they could not bave reached any place from whence they could alarm those cities, in the time that has elapsed since we know them to have been in Egypt, even supposing them to have encountered no obstacle in their maich, but if the report is not totally destitute of foundation, it must proceed from some part of Buonapate's amy having made their escape from the immediate runn with which they were threatened in Egypt, and yet I cannot conceive any route by which they can liave done it, that must not have fallen under the cognizance of Mi Mannesty at Bussonah, who would, of course, have conveyed the information to your Lordship

I have the honour to be,

My Loid.

your Lordship's most obedient humble Servant, J H CRAIG

No CXXIV

To the Secret Committee of the Honourable Court of Directors

HONOURABLE SIRS, Fort St George, 13th January, 1799

The Govenment at Fort Wilham will have communicated to you, though the Secret Department, a detail of the affans of that Presidency, hom the date of my last despatches by the extra ship Eury gitce, to the period of my embarkation for the cast of Conomade!

I shall now lay before you the motives which induced me to adopt the measure of proceeding to Fort St. George

I had made an arrangement with the Commanden-in-Chief — in India, under which I had proposed to bis Excellency to proceed to Fort St George, for the purpose of taking upon himself the command of the army on the coast of Commandel, but my subsequent advices from the not he-westen fronter of Hindostan, as well as from this quarter, led me to suggest the necessity of an alteration in that airangement

From these advices, it appeared that the reports of Zemanu Shah's progress, which had until that period been vague and contradictory, were become more uniform and consistent; and that the Shah had actually advanced as far as Lahore, and appeared determined to prosecute his design of proceeding at least as far as Delhi. On the other hand the check which the French had received in Egypt, the destauction of their influence in the Decean, the revival of our defensive alliance with the Nizam and the Peishwa, and the appearance of our fleet off the coast of Milaba, together with the advanced state of our military preparations on that coast, and on the coast of Coromandel, appeared by my latest mitelligence from Fort St George, to have excited in the mind of Tippoo Sultauu an apprehension of our power to enforce our just demands of satisfaction for his late infraction of the treaty of Seringapatam.

The probability of military operations on the frontier of Oude was, therefore, increased, whilst a prospect was opened of our being able to induce Tippoo Sultain to listen to reasonable terms of accommodation, without resorting to aims

Under these encumstances it appeared to me that the public service would derive material benefit from the presence of Sn Aluned Clarke in Bengal, and that it became my duty to macced to Foit St George.

In such a conjuncture, it was not advisable that both the Governor General and the Commander-in-Chief should be absent from Bengal at the same moment, and the frequent references which must be made to me, in the event of a negotation with Tippoo Sultaun, rendered it necessary that I should be as near as possible to his dominions. A single reference from Seningapatam to Fort William would have consumed a large part of the season which ought to be employed in military operations, if was should unfortunately become inevitable, Tippoo Sultaun would certainly have availed himself of this advantage to protract, and probably to flustrate, the issue of the negotation

I, therefore, resolved to embark for Fort St George on board his Majesty's ship La Sybille, which was then in the river preparing for sea

I requested that during my absence his Excellency, Sir Almed Clarke, would act as Vice President and Deputy Goyerner of Fort William

The Government at Foit William had been apprized, by webbl communication, before my departure, of the progress which, with the assistance of the Committee appointed on the 20th of June, I had been enabled to make in the revision of the several branches of the civil establishments of that Presidency The great pressure of other business has not yet admitted of my diawing the details of my plan into a connected form but the materials which I have already laid before the Council at Foit William, and those which I have left in the hands of Sii Alined Clarke, will, I trust, be sufficient to enable him to issue the necessary orders for putting the proposed economical reductions in train, and, on my return to Fort William, I propose to submit the whole arrangement to the Honomable Court of Directors, together with a full statement of the principles on which that arrangement is founded, and of the means by which it is to be carried into effect

On the 25th Dec 1798, I embarked for Fort St George, and having reached the Sybille on the 27th, I arrived at this Presidency on the 31st

The public despatch of this date from me in Council to the Honourable Court of Directors will state the powers and authorities which it is my intention to exercise during my residence at this Presidency, and the circumstances which attended my taking my seat in Council at Fort St. George on the 2nd Jan 1799.

On my annual I received an answer from Tippoo Sultaun to my letter of the 8th of November |

You Honourable Committee will observe the prevancation and duplicity of the Sultainn's statement of his late intercourse with the French, and you will remark the evasion, by which he eludes the moderate and amicable proposition of the allies for opening a negotiation with him, through the mission of Majoi Doveton

To this letter from the Sultaun I returned the answer dated 9th January, 1799, in which I have renewed the proposition of opening a pacific negotiation

Subsequently to the despatch of my letter dated 2nd Jan in reply to a letter dated 1nd Jan in reply to a letter dated 10th Dec 1798, which I had forwarded from Fort William, apprizing him of my intention to proceed to Fort St George, and again uging the admission of Major Doveton The Sultaun's letter, dated 2nd Jan, is entuely silent on the latter point, and furnishes an additional proof his disposition to evade the pacific advances of the allies

In the mean while I have the satisfaction to inform you that the military preparations in the Cainatic are in the most for-

The despatch adverted to is a mere reference to the initiate and proclamation at pages 390 and 391

⁴ See n 381

ward state, having been advanced during the last two months with a degree of alaciity and vigoui which reflects the highest credit on this Government

The volunteers from Bengal had arrived at this Presidency a few days before me

His Highness the Nizam's Contingent, which is to consist of the whole of the Company's subsidiary toops, of 6,000 of the Nizam's infantity, and of 10,000 cavalry, under the command of Meet Allum, matched from the vicinity of Hydei abad on the 26th of December, and was expected to closs the Kistna on the 6th of this month, it will join a detachment of the aimy of this Plesidency under the command of Colonel Wellesley at Tippetty

His Majesty's 84th regiment, with a part of the Scotch bigade, and of the 28th regiment of light dragoons, from the Cape of Good Hope, arrived here in perfectly good condition on the 7th of this month

The last advices from Poonah afford every reason to expect the cooperation of a considerable Mahratta force in the event of hostilities with Tippoo Sultaun.

The Government of Bombay have employed every effort to forward the military preparations on the coast of Malabar, from whence a respectable assistance will be afforded if the occasion should require it

The coast of Tippoo Sultaun's dominions in Malabar is at present guarded by his Majesty's ships Suffolk and Victorious, and by the Company's ships Earl Howe and Princess Charlotte, armed under my orders at Calcutta

By accounts received from the Cape, it appears that Commodore Blanket was met at sea by the ship Mildred, in a position which leaves no doubt of his having reached his station, although no official accounts have yet been received of that event

Under all these circumstances, I trust that I shall possess the means of effectually precluding Tippoo Sultaun from the advantages which he expected to derive under his late offensive alliance with the French

The fate of the French army in Egypt is still unknown to me, but the forward state of our armies and alliances induces me to entertain a confident expectation, that I shall be enabled to attain effectual security against the hostile designs of Tippoo Sultaun, before the season will admit of any assistance reaching him from Egypt, even if any part of the French aimy shall have summounted the innumeable difficulties of their situation, and if the vigilance of his Majesty's squadrons shall have been flustrated on the Red Sea, and on the coast of Malaba

The intelligence which I have received this day from Lucknow, and from the resident with Scindiah, induces me to believe that the Shah will not venture to advance beyond Lahore during the present season

The Seiks have collected their forces at Amrutsu, as well as on other points of his proposed march, and have obtained some partial advantages over detachments of his aimy. And although they do not appear to possess a force sufficient to cope with his whole aimy in the field, he seems to thead the effects which might be produced by the embarrassments which they might bing upon the line of his march, if he should attempt to advance towards Delbi

Both the Malnattas and Seaks on the north-western frontier of Hindostan have manifested the most anxious desure to cooperate with our forces in opposing the progress of the Shah, I trust that this disposition may hereafter become the source of encreased security to the Company's possessions on that side of India

In the meanwhile I have the satisfaction to assure you, that the ainsy under the command of Sir James Craig is in the highest condition in point of discipline and equipment, and that the zeal, alacity and talents of that able offices, as well as of those who command under his orders, leave no doubt that any attack, which the Shah's impurdence might hazard, must teinimate to the lineour of the Bittsh aims.

The family and treasure of Golam Mahomed, the Rohilla Chief, have been conveyed under my orders to a place of security at Benares

Sved Khan, an active agent in the service of Golam Mahomed, is now imprisoned in the fortices of Chunar, and the remaining sons of Fyzoollah Khan, from whose movements distributione was apprehended in Rohilcund, are at present detained at Lucknow

Although the general appearance of affans promises an augmentation to the security of the British Empire in India, the expense of the necessary means of accomplishing that important object must be very heavy, and the exigency of the pecuniary demands of this Presidency is peculiarly uigent in the present moment

Even pievously to the appiehension of hostilities in India I submitted to your Honourable Committee, and to the Honourable Court of Directors, my delibrate opinion, that the state of your affairs in India absolutely required an immediate and large supply of treasure from Europe My duty now demands still more urgently that I should recommend to your serious consideration, in the most earnest manner, the indispensable necessity of adding, by a seasonable lemitance of supply, the efforts of your servants in India to rescue these valuable possessions from the accumulated danger which has lately menaced their transpullity.

With an anxious zeal for your service, and with a firm resolution to encounter, by every practicable effort, whatever difficulties may arise in the course of your affairs, the servants of the Company in India cannot be expected to sumount all the exigencies of the present conjunctine without some extraordinary and from home I, therefore, trust that you will take the earliest opportunity of affording effectual relief to the resources of the Government of Bengal, on the credit of which the whole system of your finances in India must depend

I am happy to take this opportunity of sepeating the assurance of my enture confidence in the condual and homourable cooperation of Loid Clive, and it is a peculiar satisfaction to me to be able to add, that since my airwal heie I have found in all your civil and military seavants, and in all the European and Aimenian inhabitants of this settlement an unanimous disposition to assist me in the despatch of the public service

I must refer your Honourable Committee to a minute recorded by me in the secret department of the government at Fort Wilham," which will be tansmitted to you by the first ships of this season, for the motives which induced me to modify the orders of the Honomable Court of Directors with respect to the allowances to the officers of the aimy. The regulation respecting regimental rank had been carried into execution in Bengal sometime previous to my departure

I have the honour to be, &c

Mornington

^{*} See page 381

No CXXV

From the Earl of Mornington to Major Bannerman

SIR.

Fort St George, 16th January, 1799

Judging it necessary in the present conjuncture to employ a person to reside with the Rajah of Travancore, I have been induced by the favourable report which I have received of your zeal, activity and ability, to select you for this service

The following are the objects to which you are to direct your attention -

- 1 You are to stimulate the Rajah, and his minister, to the necessary eventions for placing without delay the whole of the militury force of Travancoie in a forward state of preparation, for the purpose of effectual cooperation with the Company's aimses in the event of hostitities with Tippoo Sultain
- 2 You will unge the Rajah's immediate compliance with the requisitions contained in my letter to him *
- 3 You will call upon him, in my name, to give every possible encouragement to the himpailies and bazar dealers of his country to repan, with supplies, to the aimy on the coast of Malabai, by such routes, and at such periods, as you shall recommend
- 4 As the army under General Stuart will eventually be in great want of cooles for the pup soe of assisting in the transportation of provisions and stores up the Ghauts, you will endeavour to prevail on the Rajah to send as many of this useful class of people to the army as you may judge requisite
- 5 You will correspond constantly with Lieutenant General Harris and with Lieutenant General Stuart, and you will endeavour to comply with such requisitions as they shall severally make to you for supplies
- 6 In the event of hostilities with Tippoo Sultaun, you will event youself to engage the Rapah to employ his military force in the manner, which shall appear to you best calculated to promote the common cause, or according to such directions as you shall receive, either from Lieutenant General Hauis or from Lieutenant General Stuart

^{*} The letter referred to contains requisitions for the Rajah to furnish supplies of bullocks and coolies for the use of the Madras army,

- You will carefully endeavour to prevent the Rajah from committing any aggression against the state of Mysore until hostilities shall have actually commenced between the Company and Tippoo Sultaun
- 8 I understand that the Rajah entertams in his service several French and other European natives, or subjects of counties at was with Great Britam. You will, therefore, represent to the Rajah, and his ministers, in the most for cible terms, the great danger to his own government from the mischevous principles of the French, and the impropriety of his extending favour and protection to the inveterate enemies of the Britantion. You will pursue this representation by an assurance, in my name, that the Rajah cannot better consult his own true miterests, or my satisfaction, than by immediately dismissing from his service, and sending out of his country, all Europeans of the character described. Should he wish to replace the foregness employed in his military service by Britahs subjects, I shall be prepared to receive an application from him to that effect.
- 9 You will tansmit to me, as soon as possible, an account of the military forces and equipments of the Rajah, including a report of all the Europeans in his service, and you will regularly advise me of all material transactions in the Rajah's dominions, and in the adjacent countries.

I am, &c &c
Morningion

No CXXVI

The Earl of Mornington to Tippeo Sultaun

Fort St George, 16th January, 1799

Your Highness has already been furnished by Lord Clive with a translation of the declaration of war issued by the Sublime Porte against the French, in consequence of their having violated the sacred obligation of treaty with the Grand Signion, and of their having invaded Egypt in contempt of every principle of good faith, and of the law of nations. You have also received from me a translation of the manifesto published by the Potte on the same occasion, exposing, in just colours, the overbearing and alrogant spirit, as well as the treachery and falsehood, which the French have disclosed in their conduct towards all mankind, and especially towards the Sublime Porte

The Poste, justly outsiged by an aggression so attocious and unprecedented as the invasion of Egypt, has now untro me a common cause with the British nation, for the purpose of curbing the intemperance of the French, and the Grand Signition having learns the unfostunate alliance which you Highness has contracted with his enemies the French against his firends and allies the British nation, his Highness icsolved, from motives of friendship towards you, as well as towards the British nation, to wain you, in an amicable letter, of the dangers of this fiatal connection; and to exhort you to manifest your zeal for the Mussulman faith, by renouncing all intercourse with the common enemy of every religion, and the aggressor of the head of the Mahondan Chuich.

Letter from Sultaum Selim to the Indian Sovereign, Typpoo Sultaun, dated Constantinople, 20th September, 1798, delivered to Mr. Spencer Smith, his Britannic Mayesty's Minister Plenipotentiany, &c

We take this opportunity to acquaint your Majesty, when the Fiend, Republic was engaged in a war with most of the powers of Europe within this latter period, our Sublime Poste not only took no past against them, but regardful of the ancent smitr existing with that nation, adopted a system of the strictest neutrality, and shewed them even such acts of countenances alway given results of the part of other Counternances.

Thus friendly disposed towards them, and reposing a confidence in those sentiments of friendlauly which they appeared to profess for us, we gave no eat to many propositions and advantageous offers which had been made to us to side with the beliggenerat powers, but pursuant to our maxims of model action and mixec, we abstanced from breaking with them without direct motive, and finally observed the line of neutrality, all which is notorous to the would be

In this posture of things, when, the Freach having witnessed the greatent marks of attention from our sublime Poits, a perfect reciproseity was naturally expected on their side, when no cause excited to interrupt the continuance of the peace between the two matorias, they all of a sudden have exhibited the unprovided and treacherous proceedings, of which the following is a sketch

They began to prepare a fleet in one of their harbours, called Toulon, with most extraordinary mystery, and when completely fitted out and ready for sea, cinbarked a large hody of troops, and they put also on board several people versed in the Arabic language, and who had been in ^{*} The following is a copy of the letter -

Accordingly this letter (the testimony of friendship, and the fruit of wisdom, piety and zeal) was delivered by the minister resident at Constantinople, by whom it was transmitted to the

Roynt beinge, they gave the command of that armament to one of them generals, named Buonaparte, who first went to the Island of Malta, of which he took possession, and thence proceeded direct for Alexandria, where being arrived the 17th Muharem, all of a sudden landed his troops, and entered the town by open force, publishing soon after manifestoes in Arabic among the different tribes, stating, in substance, that the object of their enterprize was not to declare war against the Ottoman Porte, but to attack the Beys of Egypt, for insults and injuries they had committed against the French merchants in time past, that peace with the Ottoman empire was permanent, that those of the Arabs who should join, would muct with the best treatment, but such as shewed opposition, would suffer death with this further instituation, made in different quarters, but more particularly to certain Courts at amity with us, that the expedition against the Beys was with the privity and consent of our Sublime Poste, which is a horrible falsity After this they also took possession of Rosetta, not hesitating to engage in a pitched battle with the Ottoman troops, who had been detached from Cairo to assist the invaded

It is a standing law amongst all nations, not to enclosed upon each others' testirores, whilst they are supposed to be at peace. When any such events take place as leaf to a tupture, the motives, so tending, no repressionsly made known between the patters, not are any open aggressions attempted against their respective dominions until a formal declaration of war takes place.

Whilst, therefore, no interiuption of the peace, nor the smallest symptom of misunderstanding appeared between our Sublime Poite and the French Republic, a conduct so sudacious, so unprovoked, and so decerfully sudden on their part, is an undensable trait of the most extreme mustit and teachery

The province of Egypt is considered as a region of general venesation, from the immediate proximity of the noble city of Mecca, the Keldeh of the Mussulmen, (the point of the compass to which all Turks turn their face in performing their prayers) and the sacred town of Median, where the tomb of our blessed prophet is ixed, the imbabitants of both these sacred cities derruge from theme their subsistence

Independent of this, it has been actually discovered from several letters which have been intercepted, that the futther project of the French is to divide Araba into various republics, to attack the whole Mahommedian sect, in its religion and country, and by a gradual progression, to extraotal Musualmen from the face of the eath

It is for these cogent motives and considerations, that we have determined to repel this enemy, and to adopt every rigorous measure against these persecutions of the fault, we placing all confidence in the Ominipation God, the source of all succour, and in the intercession of him who is the glow of prophets

Honomable Mi Duncan, Governor of Bombay, who has forwarded it to Lord Clive, the day before yesterday this letter reached Madras, and a translation accompanied it, by which

Now it heavy cutant that, in addition to the general ties of reliquo, the bonds of aunity and good understanding have ever been firm and permanent with your Mugesty, so justly famed for your zeal and statechment to our fath; and that more than once such public acts of incendly attention have been pinctised between us, as to have cemented the connection substanting between the two countries, we therefore suncerly hope, from your Migesty's dignified disposition, that you will not refuse entering mic cement with us, and graying our Sublime Porte every possible assistance, by such an exertion of zeal, as your firmness and natural attachment to such a cause cannot fall to exerts

We understand that, in consequence of cestum secret intigues carried on by the French in India, driet their accustomed system) in order to destroy the settlements, and to sow dissensions in the provinces of the English there, as that connection is expected to take effect between them and your Mujestry, for whose service they are to send over a copps of troons by the way of Egypt

We are persuaded, that the tendency of the French plans cannot, me present daws, escape your Migestry's pencitation and notice, and that no manner of regard will be given to their decentful insinuations on your side and whereas the Court of Great Britanis is attually at war with them, and our Sublime Potte ungaged on the other hand in repelling their aggressions, consequently the French are enemies to both, and such a reciprocity of interests must exist between those Courts, as ought to make both parties eager to afford every mutual succous which a common cause requires

It is notorious, that the Flench, bent upon the overthow of all sets and religions, have unested a new doctine, under the name of labety, they themselves professing no other behelf but that of Debrees, (Epocarson, or Pythagocrasan) that they have not even spared the territories of the Pope of Rome, a country, since time immemorial, held in great received by all the European anations, that they have wested and shaked, with others, the whole Venetian State, notwithstanding that follow republic had not only abstaned from taking part against them, but had endered them service during the course of the war, thus effacing the name of the results of Venece from the anals of history

There is no doubt that their present attempt against the Ottomans, as well as their viteion design-(dictated by their availations view town and oriental riches) tend to make a general conquest of that country, (which may God never suffer to take effect') and to expel every Missisiman from it, under presence of annoying the English. Then end is to be once admitted in India, and then to develope what really her in their hearts, just as they have done in every place where they have been able to acquire a footine.

In a word, they are a nation whose deceifful intrigues and perfidious

I learn the valuable lessons of prudence and truth which it contains I now forward it to your Highness, you will read and conside it with the respectful attention which it demands, there you will find the same friendly admonitions respecting the dangerous views of the French nation, which I have already submitted to your consideration

When your discerning mind shall have duly examined this respected letter, you will no doubt draw the following conclusions from it —

First That all the maxims of public law, honour and religion, are despised and profaned by the French nation, who consider all the thrones of the world, and every system of civil or der and teligious fatth, as the sport and prey of their boundless ambition, insatiable 1 spine, and midscrimmate sacilege pursuits know no bounds They are intent on nothing, but on depriving people of their lives and properties, and on persecuting religion, wherever their arms can reach

Upon all this, therefore, coming to your Majesty's knowledge, it is sincerely hoped, that you will not refuse every needful exertion towards assisting your biethren Mussulmen, according to the obligations of religion, and towards defending Hindostan itself, against the effect of French machinations Should it be true, as we hear, that an intimate connection has taken place between your Court and that nation, we hope that, by weighing present circumstances, as well as every future inconvenience, which would result from such a measure, your Majesty will beware against it, and in the event of your having harboured any idea of joining with them, or of moving against Great Britain, you will lay such resolution aside. We make it our especial request, that your Majesty will please to refrain from entering into any measures against the English, or lending any compliant car to the French Should there exist any subject of complaint with the former, please to communicate it, certain as you may be of the employment of every good office on our side, to compromise the same, we wish to see the connection above alluded to, exchanged in favour of Great Britain

We confidently expect that, upon consideration of all that is stated in this communication, and of the necessity of assaing you brethren Mussulmen in this general cause of religion, as well as of cooperating toward the above procosing promice, being delivered from the hands of the enemy, your Magesty will employ every means, which your natural zeal will point out, to assist the common cause, and to corroborate, by that means, the ancient good understanding so happily existing between our empires

A true Copy, N B EDMONSTONE, Persian translator to Govt

Secondly That the French have insulted and assaulted the acknowledged head of the Mahomedan Church, and that they have wantonly raised an unprovoked and cruel war in the heart of that country, which is revered by every Mussulman as the repository of the most sacred monuments of the Mahomedan faith

Thudly That a firm, honourable, and intimate alliance and friendship, now subsists between the Grand Signior and the Butish nation, for the express purpose of opposing a barrier to the excesses of the French

Fourthly That the Grand Sigmor is fully apprized of the intercourse and connection unhappily established between your Hig ness and the French, for purposes hostile to the Butish nation, that he offers to your Highness the salutary fruit of that experience, which he has already acquired, of the numous effects of French intrigue, treachery and decert, and that he admonishes you not to flatter yourself with the vain hope of friendly aid from those, who (even if they had escaped from the valour and skill of the British forces) could never have reached you until they had profaned the tomb of your Prophet, and overthrown the foundation of your religion

May the admonition of the head of your Faith dispose your mind to the pacific propositions which I have repeatedly, but . in vain, submitted to your wisdom And may you at length receive the ambassador, who will be empowered to conclude the definite arrangement of all differences between you and the allies, and to secure the tranquillity of India against the disturbers of the world!

A true Copy, N B EDMONSTONE, Persian Translator to Govt

MORNINGTON

The East of Morning ton to the Resident at Huderabad

No CXXVII SIR. Fort St George, 21st Jan 1799

I have received a letter from Captain White, in which he informs me that 6000 of the Nizam's infantry had halted on the banks of the Kıstna and refused to proceed, and that Meet Allum was doubtful of being able to prevail on them to follow the army

The deficiency, which may be expected to take place in his Highness's contingent in consequence of this event, does not appeal to menace evils of so serious a nature, as those which may be apprehended from the continuance of a body of disaffected troops in his Highness's dominions, during the absence of our military force

These troops lately constituted a part of M Peon's amy, and although deprived of then European officers, then discipline is still superior to that of any other corps in the Nizam's service, they are well aimed, and have a train of field antillery attached to them Under all these encumstances, the greatest muschiefs are to be apprehended from their disposition and power. They may either desert in a body to Tippo Sultain, who might immediately replace their late officers by others of the same nation, or they may raise the standard of revolt in the heart of his Highness's country The Nizam and Azim ul Omia must, without delay, take every practicable measure for preventing either of these dangers.

My decaded opinion is, that these toops ought immediately to be disaimed and disbanded. At the same time I am aware, that his Highness may not possess the means, in the absence of the Company's troops, to effect this desnable object In this case it will be necessay to tempoise with the revolted troops, and to endeavour to break them into small panties. They must be withdrawn without loss of time, from their present station, and on no account be employed to the southward. Then guns should be separated from them as speedily as it may be practicable to attempt the measure with a prospect of success.

You must call upon the Nizam to supply the existing deficiency in his contingent, arising from the desention of these troops, by a temforcement of at least 4000 cavalry who must be ordered to join Meei Allium, by the route of Budwail and Doinal pass immediately

> I am, &c , MORNINGTON

No CXXVIII

The Earl of Mornington to His Excellency Rear Admiral Rainier

SIR, Fort St George, 21st Jan 1799

I trust that the ships Earl Howe and Princess Charlotte, are arrived on the coast of Malabar, and that their respective Captains will conduct themselves in such a manner as to ment your Excellency's approbation But feeling with your Excellency the necessity of investing you with a power of superseding the commanders of the Honorable Company's armed ships, during the period of their serving under your orders, I hereby authorize your Excellency accordingly, to supersede the commanders of any ships aimed by the Company and now serving, or which may hereafter be placed, under your Excellency's authority Although your Excellency has expressed your readiness to accept any such restrictions of this general power as I may deem expedient, I think the public service will be best promoted, by leaving to your Excellency the fice and unlimited excicise of your discretion, with respect to such supercessions or appointments. as you may think fit to make

I rely entuely on your Excellency's pudence, expenence and zeal for the public service, that you will use the power which I have vested in your hands in such a manner, as shall most effectually promote the interests of the Company, and of the Nation

I have signified to the Govenment of Bombay, the powers with which I have invested your Excellency, and I have directed that Govenment to notify my orders on this subject to the commanders of the Company's ships serving under your Excellency's authority.

I found Foat St George crowded with French pusoners, and I was informed that a considerable number of the same description remain in Pondichery In the event of a forward movement of the aimy, great danger is to be appachended from the tun-bulent disposition of these pusoners, and the only security against this danger would be to divert a considerable pointion of our European fonce from our operations in the held, for the express purpose of guarding the French pusoners in Fort St. George, and at Pondicherry Even this security might become precarious, in the course of certain events, which I need not suggest to your Excellency's experience

I, therefore, deemed the immediate removal of the Finends prisoners to be an object essentially necessary towards enabling me to prosecute the war against Mysore with confidence and vigour. I have accordingly taken up tonnage for the purpose of transporting the French prisoners to Europe without delay, being aware that your Excellency under the present encumstances could not be expected to afford any assistance in convoying the prisoners to Europe, I have thought it advisable to employ the Cornwelliss to accompany them as far as the Cape of Good Hope, from thence, I tuist, that the Admiral on that station will be able to guard them to Europe, if he should not, I shall direct the Captain of the Cornwelliss to proceed thirther from the Captain of the Cornwelliss to proceed thirther from the Captain of

The last intelligence from Europe received overland leads me to apprehend, that the French will at length make an effort (which I have long expected) to send a squadron into these seas Although I have little doubt that the vigilance of his Majesty's Ministers, will take an early opportunity of temforcing the fleet under your Excellency's Command, I feel it to be the duty of those on the spot to provide with every practicable degree of precaution, against the possibility of the French becoming superior to the British fleet in India I, therefore, take the liberty of recommending to your Excellency the detention of the Sceptre, after she shall have been repaired at Bombay, and as Sn Hugh Christian has directed Captain Edwards to attend to any suggestions which he may receive from the Government of India, I propose to convey my decided opinion to Captain Edwards, that he cannot better promote the safety of the British possessions in India, than by placing himself under your Excellency's orders, until further naval reinforcements shall arrive from Europe, or until all apprehension of the appearance of a French fleet in these seas shall have ceased

The Osterley will soon depart from this poit, with a supply of coals for the use of your Excellency's squadron

I shall direct the Government of Bombay to arm her with all expedition, if your Excellency should deem such a measure advisable

I shall also transmit my orders to Fort William, for the equipment of any large ships which may arrive in the liver Hooghly

I am extremely happy that my suggestions, with respect to the station of the Sybille, have met with your Excellency's approbation

My endeavours are still directed to obtain a suitable adjustment of our differences with Tippoo Sultaun, through the channel of negotiation, accompanying, however, my pacific propositions with such a disposition of our forces as may tend to give full effect to my representations

I sely with the most implicit confidence on your Excellency's assurances of cordual cooperation, in the event of war with Trippo Sultaun, being satisfied that I shall derive every degree of practicable assistance, from the squadron under your command, in my efforts to defeat the projects of the common enemy.

I have the honour to be, &c

MORNINGTON.

No CXXIX

The Earl of Mornington to the Resident at Hyderabad

Sir,

Fort St George, 22nd Jan 1799

It is of the utmost importance to ascertain the causes which impeded the operations of his Highness's cavalry during the last war, and to consider how those causes can now be removed

I am mformed that for the most part his Highness's cavalry weie sufficiently well mounted and aimed, and I have never heard that they manifested any peculiar deficiency in point of personal courage. Their unwillingness to engage the enemy during the last war must, therefore, have arisen from other causes

During the first campaign of Lord Cornwallis, the commander of the Nizam's cavalry was not zealous in the cause of the allies, and some of the iissallahdars were strongly suspected of having been conjuged by the enemy. These incumstances may reasonably be supposed to have contributed, in a great degice, towards then disgraceful inactivity. At present his Highness's contingent is commanded by a person of a very different disposition from Rajah Taiz Wunt, none of the suspected iissallahdars are now employed with it, and no leason exists to justify a suspicion of the faith of any of those now attached to it

Notwithstanding these advantages, certain radical defects remain in the system of his Highness's cavalry which require correction

The prancipal of these defects consists in the want of due encouragement to the sillahdia, or lined cavalry (of which description the Nizam's contingent of cavalry is, I beheve, almost entirely composed), to expose their horses in action For the horses being the property of individuals, and sometimes constituting the whole fortune of the horsemen, no risk will be meunied unless a previous indemnity be provided against the accidents of the field Engagements to this effect are sometimes formed with sillahdar horse by the native powers, but these engagements are frequently violated.

Another defect in the constitution of the sillahdar cavalty 13, that although a hoiseman should be disabled for life in action, no provision is made for him, he, therefore, is unwilling to expose his person.

The remedies for these defects are sufficiently obvious. The Nizam ought to engage to pay the proprietor for every house killed or disabled in action, according to its rated value, and his Highness ought also to make a suitable provision, during life, for such horsemen as shall be disabled in actual service.

You will, therefore, take an eally opportunity of stating to the Nizam, and to Azim ull Oma, the great advantages which would result to his Highness's service from the adoption of regulations of the nature here suggested, and you will endeavour, by every augment in your power, to induce the Minister to pursue the true interests of his Sovereign on this occasion

I am aware that his Highness will not readily adopt the proposed improvements to any useful extent, but if he will only signify his approbation of the plan, and will promise to adopt it, I am disposed (on the strength of such general assunances), to authorize Captain Malcolm, in concent with Meer Allum, to pledge the Company's government for the faithful performance, by his Highness, of whatever promises might be made to the hoisemen in his name

Without the guaranty of the Company, it is not to be supposed that any vague assurances from his Highness would produce the desired effect. That guaranty would of course be given with every degree of respect and consideration for his Highness

It is possible that the whole expense resulting from the proposed measures might ultimately fall on the Company But the advantages of the arnangement to the Company, as well as to the Nizam, would probably be very considerable, and might be of the most decisive nature in the approaching war.

I am, &c, Mornington

No CXXX

(General Orders.)

By the Right Hon the Governor General in Council

Fort St. George, 2nd Feb 1799

Whereas the despatch of the public service requires that the requisitions and orders of the Commanden-in-Chief in the field should be carried into effect with every practicable degree of promptitude and expedition, the Right Honomuble the Governor General in Council hereby orders and directs all civil servants subject to the authority of the Presidences of Fort St George, or of Bombay, and all military offices serving under the authority of either Presidency, respectively to pay an immediate and prompt obedience to all such requisitions or orders as they shall receive from the Commandenin-Chief of the Force of His Majesty, and of the Honouable the East India Company, on the coasts of Conomandel and of Malabai, and all civil servants and military officers are hereby informed, that any requisition on order under the signature of the Commander-in-Chief of the said Forces, shall be considered as a full and sufficient voucher for any advance or disbursement of money which such requisition or order shall authorize

The Right Honouable the Governor General in Council
further duects, that any civil servant or military officer receiving any such requisition or order from the Commanderin-Chief, shall report the same by the earliest opportunity though the regular official channels to his Loudship in Council, but the execution of the said requisition or order shall not therefore be suspended or delayed, and all civil servants and military officers are hereby informed that this order is to remain in full force until further notice from the Governor General in Cauncil

No CXXXI

General Harris to the Governor-General in Council

My LORD,

Camp near Vellore, Feb 2, 1799

Having had leisure since my arrival here to inspect the division of the army which has been since its formation under the orders of the Honoiable Colonel Wellesley, I have much satisfaction in acquainting you. Lordship, that the very handsome appearance and perfect discipline of the troops do honour to themselves and to him, while the judicious and masterly arrangements in respect to supplies, which opened an abundant free market, and inspired confidence into dealers of every description, were no less creditable to Colonel Wellesley than advantageous to the public service, and deservedly entitle him to my thanks and approbation

The other divisions of the army are under orders to take up their respective stations in the line, and as soon as they join, and when the officers at the head of the several departments of ordinance and stores and of supplies, have been fully provided with their cattle and carriage, I shall be able to state, for your Lordship's information, the probable period of om being leady to move towards the frontiers of Tippoo Sultann

I have the honour to be, with great respect, Your Lordship's obedient Servant, George Harris

No CXXXII

The Earl of Mornington to Lieut - Gen Harris, Commander-in-Chief
Sir. Fort St. George, 3d Feb 1799

You have already been furnished with copies of the correspondence which has taken place between me and Tippoo Sultain since the 24th of October last

I have duected copies of this collespondence to be transmitted to the Commissioners in Malabai, whom I have instructed to communicate the same to his Excellency Admiral Ramiel, and to Lieutenant-General Stuart, of the officer commanding the Company's toops on the Malabai coast

Having received no answer from Tippoo Sultaun to the letter which I despatched to him on the 9th ultimo, and in which I repeated for the third time, with increased earnestness, my proposal respecting the admission of Majon Doveton, it is reasonable to conclude that the object of the Sultaun's silence is to delay the commencement of decisive military operations until the season shall be so fail advanced as to renden the siege of his capital impracticable during the present year.

To defeat these views it is become necessary to suspend all negociation with the Sultauu until the united force of the arms of the Company and then allies shall have made such an impression on his territories as may give full effect to the just representations of the allied powers.

I, therefore, direct that you enter the territory of Mysore with the aimy now assembled under your command, with as little delay as possible, and that you proceed to the siege of Seringapatam

With respect to the division of the Company's aimy on the Malabar coast, its operations, and, consequently, those of the troops of the Rajahs of Coorga and Travancore (who are to be carefully prevented from making any premature movements), will be regulated by the orders which you shall transmit for that purpose to Lieutenant-General Stuart, or to the officer commanding in Malaban

I have instructed the Resident at Poonah to express to the Pershwa and to his Minister, Nana Furnaveese, my hope that the Mahratta empire will instantly pursue the necessary measures for the vigorous prosecution of hostilities against the common enemy, and the assurances which I have aheady received from that Court, lead me to expect that the northwestern territory of the enemy will soon be invaded by a considenable Mahratta force under Purseaum Bhow

My latest accounts from the Resident at Poonah induce me to believe, that he must have applied before this time to the government of Bombay for the assistance of a detachment of the Company's troops to act with the Peishwa's contingent. In the event of the government of Bombay having been able to furnish such a detachment (of which I have no doubt), they will apprize the commission in Malabay, and Lucutenant-General Stuart, or the officer commanding the troops of the Pessdency of Bombay in that quarter

The government of Bombay will also instruct the officer in the command of the detachment serving with the Mahiattas, to maintain as constant and regular a conrespondence with you, and with Lieutenant-General Stuart, as possible, and to exeit all his influence with the commander of the Peasiwa's contingent, to engage him to regulate the progress and operations of the Mahratta forces by your advice and directions, or by those of Lieutenant-General Stuart

Entertaining no views of aggrandizement, my objects in the war will be limited to the attainment of a just indemnity for the great expence to which the aggression of Tippoo Sultaun has subjected the allies, and of a reasonable security against the future violence and treachery of that Pinnee, but no negociation with a view to either object can be opened without danger to the common cause, until the Sultaun shall have been compelled to entertain serious apprehensions for the safety of Sermgapatam, and it is accordingly my resolittion to listen to no overtures from him, until we shall have attained such a position as shall sufficiently secure us against the effects of his misnicerity SIR.

I shall hereafter inform you of the manner in which I wish you to receive such overtimes as may be made to you by any of the inhabitants of Tippoo's dominions destrous of thin owing off the authority of that Prince I shall also, in due time, send you such further instructions as may appear to me to be necessary for your direction, previously to your entrance into the territory of Mysore

I have the honour to be, &c
Modnington

No CXXXIII

The Earl of Mornington to the Hon Jonathan Duncan
Fort St. George, Feb. 5, 1799

I return you many thanks for your exertions to procure intelligence respecting Zemaun Shah, although your success has not yet been complete. I trust you will ultimately be able to establish a channel of information which may hereafter be useful Zemaun Shah commenced his retreat from Lahore on the 4th of January, the principal cause assigned for his netreat is the appearance of Mahmoud, the Shah's brothen, in Balkh. From a comparison of dates, I think the movement of this Prince may possibly be the work of your agent, Mehedy Ali, which, if it should be proved, will establish his utility If you should be satisfied of Mehedy Ali's real efficiency. I think 2 lacs 10,000 rupees a sum not greater than the value of the service, and I authorize you to use your discretion on the subject accordingly The plan of subspdizing the whole aimy of Persia is more extended and expensive than circumstances require But I should hope that, by the judicious application of moderate sums of money, from time to time, not only the brothers of Zemann Shah might be maintained in such a state as to occupy the Shah's attention at home, but the Court of Persia might be induced to keep him in perpetual check without any decided act of hostility This system, well executed, would save us a large portion of the expense of drawing our armies to the frontier of Oude, whenever the Shah chooses to cross the Attock I, therefore, recommend the subject to your constant attention, and I shall willingly provide for a small annual expense in

Persia, which promises to save enormous contingent charges in Oude

I am much pleased with your attention to the affairs of Goa, and I should most anxiously wish to throw a garrison into that place, if we could at present space troops for the purpose. At present I can only request you not to lose sight of this important object

I have the honom to be,
with great respect and esteem, Sir,
your most faithful Servant,
Mornington.

No CXXXIV.

The Earl of Mornington to the Court of Directors of the Honourable East India Company

Hon. Sirs,

Fort St George, 12th Feb 1799

I have deemed it to be my duty to transmit to your Honourable Court, by the speediest conveyance, the advices which I have received from Bengal with respect to the inhuman murder of Mi Cherry and of several British subjects, perpetrated by Vizier Alli and his adherents, in the city of Benues, on the 14th of January, 1799

Your Honourable Cout is already apprized of the encumstances which induced Lord Teigmmouth to establish Saadut Alli on the Musmud of Oude, and to depose Vizier Alli, who had been raised to that situation in the confusion which ensued upon the death of Asoph ud Dowlah. You are also in possession of the evidence by which the spunious birth of Vizier Alli was incontrovertibly proved, and you have been informed that his Lordship had fixed the residence of Vizier Alli in the city of Benares, where he enjoyed an ample allowance hom the Nabob Vizier, and was treated with the utmost degree of indulgence and kindness by Mr. Cherry, agent to the Governor General, and chief judge of the Provincial Court of Circuit and Appeal for that distruct and Appeal for that distruct.

Within the short period of four months, during which Vizita Alli occupied the Musinud of Oude, he had betrayed symptoms of a ferocious, sanguinary, and to eacherous disposition, accompanied by an extraordinary degree of boldness and activity, Loid Teignmouth, from a knowledge of his character, recorded an opmon, that it might be advisable to take an opportunity of changing the place of Vizies Alli's residence to a situation more remote from the scene of his elevation and fall, and more convenient to the immediate supermetadence of the Governor General in Council

Since my arrival in India, valuous events have happened to convince me, that the removal of Vizier Alli to the vicinity of Calcutta was a measure essentially necessary to secure the tanquility of the province of Oude

The numerous retnue entertained by Vizzer All had more than once distribed the peace of the city of Benares, and the ordinary military force stationed in the district could not be deemed sufficient to preclude all danger, either of commotion, or of the escape of Vizzer All. Information had reached me, through different channels, which left no doubt on my mind, tat Vizzer All had despatched a vaked with presents to Zemanu Shah, a circumstance which sufficiently indicated the disposition of Vizier All to attempt any enterprize of which the success might be favoured by the approach of the Shah, and by the consequent diministro of the Bitish force in the interior pairs of the Province of Oud.

When the Shah had actually advanced to Lahore, and the army under Str J Ciag had been ordered to proceed to Anopsheer, the Nabob Vizier Saidut Alli applied, in the most pressing manner, for the removal of Vizier Alli to some position less favourable to the exercise of his adventurous and dating sunit

Under all these encumstances, it appeared to me to be my duty to effect an arrangement, which had been deemed advasable, on general grounds, by the experience and prudence of Lord Teigmmouth, and which the actual conjunctine of affans had rendeed highly expedient. I, therefore, directed Mr Cherry (some time previous to my departure from Fort William) to signify to Visare All in my wish that he should reside in the vicinity of Calcutta, and at the same time to assure him, that no dimunution of his allowances o appointments would be attempted, and that he would neither be subject to any additional restraint, not denied any indulgence at the Presidency which he had been sufficient to enjoy at Benaues

Being however aware of the difficulty of reconciling Vizier

Alli, by any accompanying measures of lently, to a change which must picclude his hopes of joining Zemann Shah, or disturbing the Government of the Nabob Vizier, I particularly enjoined Mi Chenry to use the necessary precautions for securing the effectual execution of my orders in any contingency which might arise.

The arrval of the Shah at Lahore, with the declared purpose of advancing to Delhi, and the defenceless state of the intervening possessions of the Seaks and of the Mahnattas induced me to assemble the main body of the aimy of Bengal on the frontier of Oude, and to station a large force within a few miles of Benaies, for the protection of that opulent city

The presence of this force seemed to have placed the tranqual accomplishment of the removal of Vizue Alli beyond all doubt, and I left Bengal without any apprehension of the possibility of the dieadful events which have ensued

When my orders were signified to Vizier Alli, he at first expressed, according to my expectation, considerable reluctance to leave his actual situation, but in a short time he appeared to be entirely reconciled to the change of his residence. and to be perfectly satisfied with the assurances which he had received of a continuance of the protection and indulgence of the Honourable Company The conduct of Mr Cherry towards Vizier Alli, on every occasion, had been an uninterrupted course of every office of kindness, delicacy, and conciliation, calculated to excite sentiments of affection and gratitude in any mind capable of such impressions Vizier Alli had uniformly professed to entertain these sentiments towards Mr Cherry m then utmost force, but his professions proved to be the artifice of the deepest dissimulation. designed to mask the unalterable purpose of a secret and implacable hatred. For it appears that the active exertion of M1 Che11y's emment talents in the negociation of the late treaty with Saadut Alli, and in facilitating the sudden depaiture of that prince from Benares to Lucknow at the period of the deposition of Vizier Alli, had fixed in the mind of the latter a spirit of personal revenge which no kindness could mitigate, and which no difficulty or danger could controll The evidence in my possession leaves no doubt that this spirit would have broken forth on the first favourable occasion, if Vizier Alli had been suffered to remain at Benares. but it does not yet appear whether the immediate cause of the muder of Mr Cherry was any augmentation of Vizice. Alli's inveteate resentment, exaspenated by the supposition that Mr Cherry had suggested my late orders, or whether the motive of Vizice Alli was merely to seize that opportunity of accomplishing a purpose which he had long determined, and which might have become impracticable after the seat of his residence had been changed

My concern for the fate of Mr. Cherry is much aggravated by the reflection, that he might have avoided all danger, it he humanty of his disposition had not been deceived by the artful dassimulation of his assassin, notwithstanding that Mr. Cherry had been repeatedly wained of his danger, the character of mildness and submission which Vizica Alli had assumed, had unfortunately induced that gentleman to omit those necessary precautions which were recommended by every principle of prudence, and particularly enjoined by my positive orders.

I am happy to be able to assure you, that no serious internuption of the tranquility, either of the province of Benares or of Oude, is likely to be the immediate result of this outrage. But it will require much consideration to devise such a system of measures as shall afford permanent security to your possessions against the ultimate consequences of an event of such evil impression and dangetous example.

I have the honour to be,

Honourable Sus, with the greatest respect,
your most obedient and faithful Servant,

Monningron

No CXXXV

From the Earl of Mornington to the Hon Jonathan Duncan

Sir, Fort St George, 13th February, 1799

My letter of the 5th instant* will have furnished you with sufficient authority to continue every encouragement to Mehedy Ali on the limited scale of from two to three lacs of

^{*} See page 428

rupees. I cannot express to you my satisfaction at the able manner in which you have executed my ideas with respect to the recal of Zemaun Shah A comparison of dates, combined with the whole tenor of my intelligence from Lucknow and Anopsheer, leaves little doubt on my mind that the Shah's sudden retreat was occasioned by the news of his brother's appearance at Balkh, and that the latter event was the fiunt of your agent's activity I beg you will provide, or order Mahedy Ah to provide, all the khelaats and presents which he desnes, and lit them be presented in my name You shall be finished with the letters required in a few days

I am destrous of extending and improving our relations with Persia to the utmost practicable degree, and I wish to receive your opinion with respect to such commercial or political objects as appear to you desirable and attainable under any teaty with the Court of Persia. The great political objects appear to me to be, the exclusion of the French, especially if they should make any attempt to penetrate through Persia to Hindostan, and the establishment of such a continual source of anxiety and apprehension to Zemaun Shah on the borders of his own dominions, as shall effectually preclude his future projects of advancing towards Hindostan.

I have the honour to be, Sn, your most faithful Servant,

No CXXXVI

From Tippoo Sultaun to the Right Hon the Governor General

Received* 13th February, 1799

MORNINGTON

I have been much gratified by the agreeable recent of your Lordship's two firendly letters, the first brought by a camelman, the last by hreuriahs, and understood then contents. The letter of the Pince, m station like Jumsheid, with angels as his guaids, with troops numerous as the stars, the sun illuming the world of the heaven of empire and dominion, the luminary giving splendour to the universe of the filmament of

^{*} On the 7th of February, Dubuc, the agent of Tippoo Sultaun embarked at Tianquebar to proceed on his Embassy to France

glory and power, the Sultaun of the sea and the land, the Kung of Rome (i e the Grand Signior), be his empire and his power per petial faddressed to me, which reached you through the British Envoy, and which you transmitted, has arrived Being frequently disposed to make excursions and hunt, I am accordingly proceeding upon a hunting excursion You will be pleased to despatch Major Doveton (about whose coming your friendly pen has repeatedly written) slightly attended (or unattended)

Always continue to gratify me by friendly letters, notifying your welfare

A true Translation, N B EDMONSTONE,

Persian Tianslator to Govt

No CXXXVII

From the Governor General to the Secret Committee of the Honourable Court of Directors

HONOURABLE SIRS, Fort St. George, 13th Pebruary, 1799

In my last letter to your Honouable Committee, under date the 13th of January, I mformed you, that I had addressed a letter to Trypoo Sultaun, on the 9th of January, and I enclosed a copy of that letter, as well as the whole of my correspondence, with that Prince

Soon after the 18th of January, I neceived from his Majest'y's Minister at Constantiouple a letter from the Ganal Sigmor, addressed to Tippoo Sultaun, which I despatched to Seimgapatam on the 16th ultimo, together with a letter from myself, renewing with ence seed enunestiess my proposition for the admission of an ambassador, with a view to the commencement of a pacific negotiation

To this hom I have received no answer from Tippoo Sultaun to either of those letters

It appeared to me, that the object of the Sultaun's silence could be no other than to delay the commencement of decisive military operations until the season should be so far advanced as to render the siege of his capital impracticable during the present year

In the mean while, the advices from Bussorah, Bagdad,

^{*} See p 406

Constantinople, and Bombay, were of so uncertain a nature, as to 'leave me still in doubt of the French amy in Egypt, the only safe conclusion which could be diawn from these advices being, that the French still maintained the possession of that country.

Reports had also reached me through varnous channels, stating, that a French squadron, under M Richany, destined to the Araban Gulf, and superior in force to that of Commodore Blanket, had left Europe so early in the season that it might easily have pre-occupied the intended station of the Commodore, and as no intelligence has been received directly from the Red Sea since the date of the advices by the Interpret, the state of our naval force, or of that of the enemy in that quarter, is not yet ascertained

In addition to these cucumstances, I was apprized by the most unquestionable authority, that while Tippoo Sultaun had declined to answer my several letties, three vakeels, from Seringapatam, accompanied by M Dubuc (one of the leaders of the French force raised in the Isle of France, under M Malatite's proclamation) were upon the point of embarking at Tranquebai, with an avowed mission from the Sultaun to the Evecutive Duectory of France

In order, therefore, to defeat the object of Tippoo Sultam's silence, and to avail myself of the actual superiority of our force, and of the advantages of the present season, before the French can effect any junction with him, I determined to commence hostilities without delay, and I am resolved to suspend all negotiation with the Sultam until the united force of the arms of the Company, and of their allies, shall have made such an impression on his territories as may give full effect to the just representations of the allied powers

With these views, on the 3id instant, I directed Lieutenant General Haris to enter the territory of Mysore with the army assembled under his command, and to proceed to the stege of Seringapatam with as little delay as possible

With respect to the division of the Company's aimy on the Malabin coast, its operations, and consequently those of the troops of the Rajahs of Cooig and Travancore (who will be carefully prevented from making any premature movements), will be regulated by the orders which Leutenant General Harris shall transmit for that purpose to Lieutenant General Stuart, or to the officer commanding in Malabar

I have instructed the Resident at Poonah to express to the Pershwa, and to his Minister, Nana Furnavese, my hope that the Mahiatta Empine will instantly pursue the necessary measures for the vigorous prosecution of hostilities against the common enemy, and the assurances which I have aliendy received from that Court, lead me to expect that the northwestern territory of the enemy will soon be invaded by a considerable Mahiatta foce under Purseram Bhow

My latest untelligence from the Resident at Poonali induced me to believe that he must have applied before this time to the Goveniment of Bombay for the assistance of a detachment of the Company's troops (which I know that Goveniment to be prepared to funish), for the purpose of acting with the Peishwa's contingent. In that event the Govenino of Bombay will instruct the officer in the command of the detachment serving with the Mahatata to maintain as constant and rigular a correspondence with Lieutenant General Hauris, and with Lieutenant General that, as now subject, and to exert all his influence with the commander of the Peishwa's contingent to engage him to regulate the progress and operations of the Mahiatta forces by the advice and directions of Lieutenant General Stant.

I have authorized the Commissioners in Malabai to icceive and encourage from any of the chiefs or public officers of Trippoo Sultaun on the coast of Malabai, any advances which shall appear to them to promise assistance to the Company in the prosecution of the war against that Prince

I am not at piesent in possession of information which enables me to judge with sufficient ceitanty of the general disposition and temper of the inhabitants of Thypoo's remaining dominions on the coast of Malabai. If, however, they should mainfest an inclination to revolt against his suthority, and the Commissioners should think it expedient to encourage them, I have left it to the discretion of the Commissioners to offer such support and protection to those disposed to abandon the cause of the Sultaun, as the state of the British force on the Malabai coast may admit I have also authorized.

rized the Commissioners to give to all tributaries, and others renouncing then obedience to Tippoo, and acting cordally in our favour, the most positive assuiances, in the name of the Company, that I will use my utmost efforts to compel that Prince to relimquish all claums upon then allegiance, and to assent to then becoming the dependants and subjects of the Honouable Company on such teams as shall hereafter be arranged under my orders

My instructions to Lieutenant General Harits respecting the manner in which he is to receive such overtures as may be made to him by any of the inhabitants of Tippoo's dominions, destrous of throwing off the authority of that Prince, will be framed upon similar principles with my directions on the same subject to the Commissioners in Malabar

His Excellency, Admual Ramner, is fully acquainted with the actual state of affairs, and I have informed him that I rely with confidence on his Excellency's zeal for the public seavice (of which I have already received the most unequivocal proofs), for his condual cooperation with the Commissioners in Malabar, and with Lieutenant General Stuart, in the vigorous prosecution of the war on the coast of Malabar, and I am ensuaded his Excellency will take the most effectual measures for enabling the fleet under his command to keep its present station, on the coast of Malabar to as late a period of the season as nossible

The whole teno of my mtelligence from Mysore induces me to believe, that there is a general aversion in Tippoo's councils and aimset to his intimate connection with the Flench, and I have already received intimations from various parts of his dominions, and from some of his principal ministers and officers, which promise considerable advantage in the prosecution of hostilities against him

The main body of the aimy of the Carnatic, under General Harris, matched from Vellote on the 11th instant, I trust that the Bariamahal, and the Southern Provinces, will be sufficiently protected by the force assembled under Colonels Reade and Brown

The Nizam's contingent, accompanied by the whole of the Company's subsidiary toops arrived within a few miles of the main body of General Haris's force previously to their departure from Vellore I have the satisfaction to inform you Honounable Committee that Zemaun Shah commenced his ethe at on the 4th of January, by a copy of a letter from Zemaun Shah's Vizier to Shah Allum, it appears that Zemaun Shah has finally rehrushed his project of invading Hindostan in the present year, but has engaged to return in the next season. The immediate cause of Zemaun Shah's precipitate retreat is stated in all the papers of intelligence to be the sudden appearance of his brother at the head of a military force in the neighbourhood of Head's.

The documents which I have directed the Governoi of Bombay to fawal aby this despatch, will shew your Honounable Committee that my attention was duceted at an early period to the establishment of such an intercourse with the Court of Peas as a should withdraw the Shah from the prosecution of his ambitious views of aggression, to the defence of his own dominions

I datten myself that you will approve the success of those executions which (with the and of Mi Duncan's ability and zeal for the public service), I have already been enabled to make in Persia, with a view to this desirable object, it would cettainly be a wise policy to apply annually a moderate sum of money to the same object, for the purpose of praceluding those annual alarms of invasion which have occasioned so large an increase of your multary charges in Bengal You may rely on my particular attention to the improvement of the intercourse now likely to be established with the Court of Persia, from which I tust to derive many advantages, in addition to those to which I have adverted in this despatch

The declared views of the French government, the position of the French samy in Egypt, the possible cooperation of a French squadion in these seas, added to the recent proceedings of Tippoo Sultaun, lender it indispensable to the security of the British empine in India, that the power of that restless and vindictive Prince should be speedily reduced. The deless, even of a few weeks, at this season, might enable him, in the next, to attempt the execution of his avowed projects of vengeance with a formidable accession of strength closed letter, No 5.* from Tippoo Sultaum His design is, evidently, to gain time, until a change of circumstances and of season shall enable him to avail himself of the assistance of France I shall endeavour to finistrate this design, and although I shall not decline even this taidy and insidious acceptance of my repeated propositions for opening a negotiation, I shall accompany the negotiation by the movement of the army, for the pulpose of enforcing such terms of peace as shall give effectual security to the Company's possessions against any hostile consequences of the Sultaun's alliance with the French I have just now received melligence that M Dubuc, with three vakeels from the Sultaun, has actually sailed from Tranquebar, upon an embassy to France, with considerable presents from Tuppoo to the Executive Directory.

I have the honour to be, &c

 $\begin{array}{ccc} & & & & & \\ & & & & \\ P & S & As \ I \ was \ closing \ this \ despatch, \ I \ received \ the \ en- \\ \end{array}$

I had despatched the Ostenkey with a party of the 28th dragoons, for the purpose of intercepting the vessel in which the embassy had embasked, but, unfortunately, the captain of the Ostenkey was not able to accomplish that desirable object

No CXXXVIII

The Earl of Mornington to the Resident at Poonah

SIR.

Fort St George, 19th Feb 1799

Your letter, No 86, requires the suggestion of some points necessary for your direction

My intention, in my letter of the 11th January,† was not that the Peishwa should be solicited, as a matter of favour, to receive the Bombay detachment in the manner suggested by Gopal Rao

On the contrary, my expectation was, that under all the circumstances of the case, the Bombay detachment would be received by the Peishwa as a testimony of my disposition to accord with his Highness's wishes

I, therefore, desire that you will not attempt to use any persuasion to induce the Peishwa to receive the detachment from Bombay, my experience of the policy of the Court of Poonah has already been sufficient to convince me of its disposition to view with suspicion the most amicable compliance with its own repeated and earnest requests. You will leave it entirely to the discretion of the Peishwa to accept or reject the offer of the detachment, declaring that his Highness's decision is a matter of perfect indifference to me

^{*} See p 133

You will understand that I am determined never to consent to any augmentation of the subsidiary force now officied to the Pershva, not to the continuance of this force in his service after the conclusion of peace with Tippoo, on any other conditions than those proposed in my letter of the 8th of July.*

You will peremptonly mist on the dismission of Tippoo's vakeels Under the present encumstances, then detention at Poonah is little short of an insult to the British government. From the several facts which you have stated, I confess that I cannot diaw conclusions favorable to the cordula cooperation of the Peishwa, in the present contest with the Sultaun.

The whole conduct of the Peishwa has betrayed a systematic pealousy, suspicion, and even insuceity, in retuin for the most liberal and unqualified offices of friendship and good will The time, I tust, is not far remote, when the Court of Poonah may lament the despicable policy which has governed its councils, in its late communications with the British government

In the mean while, you activity must be exerted to countenact the pule, imbechty and falsehood, of Baagy Rao. My object is to be charged with the sole conduct of the interests of the allies, in any negotiation with Tippo Sultiaum. My proposition respecting the Mahiatta vakeel to be sent to Foit St George, was intended merely to preclude any emotion of the lively realiousy of the Court of Poonah. But, as the Peishwa has not yet made any effort in the common cause, no is likely to make any, before every question with Tippoo shall be brought to an issue, his Highness might safely trust to me for the management of interests which he has abandoned, and which must ultimately be seemed by my exections You will, therefore, rather discourage, than endeavour to acceleiate, the appointment of a vakeel from the Peishwa, for the purposes proposed By reference to Hyderabad, you will find, that the Nizam has thrown the conduct of his interests with Tippoo entuely into my hands, and I know no reason, either of justice, policy, or real dignity, which should restrain the Peishwa from an equal degree of confidence in my friendship and good fath.

^{*} See p 11o

I applize you that I will not accept the Peishwa's mediation between me and Tippoo Sultam, nor can I conceive how the Peishwa can undettake the office of mediator in such a cause, without the most flagrant inconsistency As a member of the triple alliance, he has already declared himself to be a party agginered by the Sultaun, and in that view the Sultaun might naturally suspect the sincentry of his mediation but if he has really brought himself to that temper of impartuality which is the indispensable characteristic of a mediator, he has violated his faith toward is the allies, and they cannot accept a mediation founded on a violation of their reciprocal engagements.

Even if this reasoning could be controverted, after having rejected, in the most offensive manner, my profficed mediation between him and another branch of the triple alliance, the Peisliwa cannot reasonably expect that either the Nizam or I should admit him to mediate between us and the common enemy

It may not be useless to suggest to Scindiah, that although Zemanu Shah's icticat has icheved me from all apprehension of any interruption of the tranquility of the province of Oude, I think it advisable, under the present encumstances, to maintain a large force on the frontier of the Vizier's dominion

It will not be proper to use any mtimidation to Scindish, but I apprize you, that if he should enter into any connection with Tippoo, of a nature dangerous to the British interests, the security of his dominions in Hindostan will be exposed to hazard

> I am, &c Mornington

No CXXXIX.

The Earl of Mornington to his Excellency Lieutenant-General Hairis

Sir, Foit St. George, Feb. 22ad, 1799

I have leason to believe that many of the tubutanes, principal officers, and other subjects of Tippoo Sultaun, are michined to throw off the authority of that Prince, and to place themselves under the protection of the Company and of our alies. The war in which we are again movived, by the treachery and violence of the Sultaun, renders it both just and expedient that we should avail ourselves, as much as possible, of the discontents and disaffection of his people. It is, therefore, advisable, to arrange a plan for the regular

Being apprehensive that your more important avocations will not admit of your taking any past in the details of this business, I hereby direct you to constitute a commission for this purpose, to consist of the Honourable Golone Wellesley, Leutemant-Colonel Close, Leutemant-Colonel Agnew and Captain Malcolm, assistant to the Resident at Hyderabda 7, with Captain Maccallay, to act as secretary to the commission conduct of all negotiations connected with this object

The commissioners are to act constantly in communication with you, and to obey whatever directions you shall think proper to signify to them

They are to report their proceedings to me as frequently and as regularly as circumstances shall permit

They will correspond with the commissioners in Malabai on such points as shall be connected in any tespect with ebjects of this commission and for this purpose you will be pleased to furnish them with a copy of the Company's cypher, No. 11

Then duty is to consist, generally, in receiving and conindening all such oveitures from the subjects of Tippoo Sultaun (of whatever class), as may either be referred by you to the commissioners, or may be addressed to them through other channels

In cases which may not admit of reference to me, they will decide, under your authority, on the degree and nature of the encouragement proper to be given to such persons as may propose to place themselves under the protection of the Company The following extracts from my instructions to the commissiones in Malabai, (which you will be pleased to communicate to the officers named in the present commission), will explain the general principles by which their conduct is to be regulated

- "I now authorize you to avail yourselves, without reserve, of the overtures made some time since to M. Uthoff and to Captam Mahony, by Shehab-ud-Dein Khan, to whatever extent you may judge practicable and useful. You will also receive and encourage from any other of the chiefs, on public officers of Tippoo Sultaun, on the coast of Malabar, any advances which shall appear to you to promise assistance to the Company, in the prosecution of the was against that Pince
- "I am not at present in possession of any information which enables me to judge with sufficient certainty of the general disposition and temper of the inhabitants of Tippoo's remaining dominions on the coast of Malahar If, however. they should manifest an inclination to revolt against his authority, and you should think it expedient to encomage them. I leave it to your discretion to offer them such support and protection as the state of the British force on your coast may enable you to afford I also authorize you to give to all tributaries, or others, renouncing their allegiance to Tippoo, and acting heartily in our favour, the most positive assurances, in the name of the Company, that I will use my utmost efforts to compel that Pince to relinquish all claims upon their allegiance, and to agree to their becoming the dependents and subjects of the Honorable Company, on such terms as shall hereafter be arranged under my orders "

The enclosure No 1 contains an account of the overtures from Shehab-ud-Dien Khan, referred to in the foregoing extract *

It will be obvious, however, that the instructions apply

[•] This document not only states the overtures made for a junction with the English, by some of Tippoo's chiefs, but declates also the fact, that "Tippoo had formed a close alliance with the Flench, to the extent of declaining that the enemies of the one were to be considered as the enemies of the other, and that he (Tippoo) had engaged to guant them (the Flench) the foit of Honowir (Onore) to facilitate their communication with his dominions"

more particularly to tributaries, or zemindars, possessing or clamming such districts on the borders of the Company's terlifory as may be annexed to it, in the favourable event of a further reduction of the Sultaun's power, and of a partition of his present dominions

The commission will communicate with Meei Allum, with respect to all such proposals as may appear likely to concein the interests of the Nizam. Any overtures which may be made by tributanes, or other subjects of the Sultaun, adjacent to the present frontier of his Highness, will be considered with Meei Allum's assistance, the necessary encouragement and assurances to such persons being, more properly, to be adjusted by the powers to whom their allegiance may eventually be a mansferred

The same punciple must be applied to any offers which may proceed from districts bordering on the present Mahiatta dominions Should a Mahiatta force hereafter join your army, the commissioners will (in the cases to which I now refer), consult with the commanded of that force, as will as with the commanding officer of any British detachment from Bombay which may be acting with the Mahiattas.

But, although in the two last cases, authoritative assurances and encouragement would most properly proceed from our allies respectively, it is not improbable that, on some occasions, the guarantee of the Company may be required to such engagements, and even be made an indispensible preliminary condition by the parties proposing to abandon the cause of Tuppoo

It is desuable to avoid all such engagements of the nature of a guarantee, the commissioners, threefore, will be careful not to guarantee any engagements which the allies may be inclined to form with persons renouncing then allegiance to Tippoo Sultam, excepting in cases where the proposed advantage shall be important to the common cause, and evidently unattunable without a formal guarantee. In general, therefore, such contracts must be avoided, but if a case of peculian exigency should arise, without a possibility of a previous reference to me, the commissioners will regulate their conduct as nearly as possible on the principles which I have already established, for cases more immediately affecting the particular interests of the Company.

The finn foundation on which out connexion with the Count of Hydeiabad is now happly placed, disposes me to guarantee, with less hesitation, any engagements which the Nizam, or Meei Allum, on his Highness's behalf, might be willing to foun with the tributaries of the enemy on the side of his Highness's fionter than pudence would require in any similar transaction under the Malnatta power

With respect to overtures proceeding from the more cential parts of the enemy's country, and, therefore, from persons whose possessions are not likely, in any event, to be transferred to any of the allies, it is evident that such overtures cannot be received or encouraged in the same manner as those which have been already considered. To offers of this description, the commission must return merely such assurances of aid and support (whether military or pecuniary), as it may be immediately practicable to afford, avoiding, carefully, any engagements which might ultimately embariass a negotiation for peace With regard to pecumary aids, I authorize you to give your sanction to such advances of money as the commissioners may deem essentially necessary to promote the objects of these instructions, apprizing you, however, that these advances of money must be confined within the limits of moderation, and with due attention to economy

With these instructions you will receive copies, in Peissan and English, of a declaration which I propose to publish for the purpose of justifying to the powers of Hindostan the measures which the conduct of Tippo Sultaun has compelled the Company and their allies to adopt You will communicate this document to the commissioners, who are to prepare and publish, in your name, such proclamations as shall appear to them to be best adapted to the state of the different pairs of the enemy's country through which you may pass, or with which you may open any intercourse, conforming the general tenor of all such proclamations to the principles and spirit of the declaration.

You have aheady been funnshed with copies in Peisian and English, of my coniespondence with Trippoo Sultaun, as well as with translations in Persian, of the Grand Sigmor's manifesto, and of his Highness's letter to the Sultan, you will communicate these papers to the commissioners.

sages of the correspondence, and of the documents received from Constantinople, which expose the character of the French republe, and the outages committed by the French against the acknowledged head of the Mahommedan chunch, may, in particular, be employed to produce an useful impression on all the Mussulman inhabitants of Mysore. The commissioners will make any further use of these documents which may appear advisable

I also enclose (No 2) copies, in Persian and English, of an agreement which has been lately concluded, under my direction, with certain chiefs of the Ghyre Mehdy sect of Mussulmans For an account of the banishment of these sectaties from the dominions of Tippoo Sultaun, I refer you to the accompanying extract of a letter from the Resident at Hyderabad, under date the 4th of January last, making the inclosure No 3 Among these exiles are many persons who formerly held situations of great trust under the government of the late Hyder Alı Khan, as well as under that of Tippoo Sultaun , and it is obvious that all these persons must be intimately acquainted with the country of the enemy It will be the business of the commissioners, under your orders, to consider how the knowledge and probable connexions of these people, may be best applied to the promotion of the objects of then commission It appears that the Sudars, whom, together with 400 Sillahdar horse, I have agreed to entertain for the present (principally with a view to the advantages which may be derived from their local knowledge and connexions) possess the means, as well as the inclination, of levving for our service a considerable body of cavalry, consisting of their exiled associates, now dispersed throughout the dominions of the Peishwa and of the Nizam To employ then whole force in the field would be extremely burthensome, and I trust we shall never be under the necessity of resorting to such assistance beyond the extent of the arrangement already concluded with Jaffier Khan and Syed Yacoob

The commission will be confidentially informed by Captain Malcolm of the progress which may have been made in a certain seciet negotiation which has been opened by Meei Allian, in communication with Captain Malcolm since the conduct of Tipoo Sultain commelled in to adout the resolution of attacking his territories. It is impossible for me, in the present stage of this negotiation, to give the commission any precise instructions for the regulation of their proceedings with relation to this very peculiar and important case, and, therefore, I must leave the management of it to then discretion, aided by that of Meer Allum. If, however, they should be able to transmit to me any report on this delicate point before the communication between the army and this Presidency shall become precarrous or difficult, it is my desire that they should write to me in cypher, a caution which they must always observe in their coirespondence with me, from any position which may render their despatches hable to be intercepted.

The enclosure No 4, consists of a memorandum of a most secret and delicate nature, relating to the family which governed Mysore previously to the usurpation of Hyder Alli Khan

It is obvious that no advantageous negotiation can be opened with any of the surviving bianches of this family under any other circumstances than a determination, accompanied by undoubted power, to effect the total removal of the ruling dynasty. Such a determination in the present stage of our contest with Tippoo Sultaun would be premature, and incompatible with the principles on which my instructions to you of the 3rd instant were founded. My orders for the match of the aimy being grounded on the necessity of providing for our own indispensable security and reasonable undemnty, and being strictly limited to those justifiable objects. There is, besides, no reason to suppose that any of the persons mentioned in the accompanying menion could be rendered useful (in any material degree) in the prosecution of the war.

The commissioners must, therefore, confine their proceedings on this subject to enquiries into the state of patities in Mysore, with a view to the practicability of restoring that family with or without the consent of the principal Mussulman chefs at present in authority in the country. The commission will readily perceive that these enquiries must be conducted with the utmost caution and piudence, for if their object were to transpire, the discovery might check, if not sages of the correspondence, and of the documents recurved from Constantanople, which expose the character of the French republic, and the outrages committed by the French against the acknowledged head of the Mahommedan chunch, may, in particular, be employed to produce an useful impression on all the Mussulman inhabitants of Mysore. The commissioners will make any further use of these documents which may appear advisable

Î also enclose (No 2) copies, in Persian and English. of an agreement which has been lately concluded, under my direction, with certain chiefs of the Ghyre Mehdy sect of Mussulmans For an account of the banishment of these sectaties from the dominions of Tippoo Sultaun, I refer you to the accompanying extract of a letter from the Resident at Hyderabad, under date the 4th of January last, making the inclosure No 3 Among these exiles are many persons who formerly held situations of great trust under the government of the late Hyder Alı Khan, as well as under that of Tippoo Sultaun, and it is obvious that all these persons must be intimately acquainted with the country of the enemy It will be the business of the commissioners, under your orders, to consider how the knowledge and probable connexions of these people, may be best applied to the promotion of the objects of then commission It appears that the Sudais, whom, together with 400 Sillahdar horse. I have agreed to entertain for the present (principally with a view to the advantages which may be derived from their local knowledge and connexions) possess the means, as well as the inclination, of levying for our service a considerable body of cavalry, consisting of their exiled associates, now dispersed throughout the dominions of the Peisliwa and of the Nizam To employ their whole force in the field would be extremely burthensome, and I trust we shall never be under the necessity of resorting to such assistance beyond the extent of the arrangement aheady concluded with Jaffier Khan and Sved Yacoob

The commission will be confidentially informed by Captain Malcolm of the progress which may have been made in a certain seciet negotiation which has been opened by Meei Allum, in communication with Captain Malcolm since the conduct of Tippo Sultain compelled me to adopt the resolution of attacking his territories. It is impossible for me, in the present stage of this negotiation, to give the commission any piecise instituctions for the regulation of their proceedings with relation to this very peculin and important case, and, therefore, I must leave the management of it to their discituding and the point before the communication between the aimy and this Presidency shall become precaious or difficult, it is my desire that they should write to me in cypher, a caution which they must always observe in their correspondence with me, from any position which may render their despatches liable to be intecepted.

1

The enclosure No 4, consists of a memorandum of a most secret and delicate nature, relating to the family which governed Mysore previously to the usurpation of Hyder Alli Khan

It is obvious that no advantageous negotiation can be opened with any of the surviving bianches of this family under any other incumstances than a determination, accompanied by undoubted power, to effect the total removal of the ruling dynasty. Such a determination in the present stage of our contest with Tippoo Sultain would be prematine, and monompatible with the principles on which my instructions to you of the 3rd instant were founded. My orders for the march of the army being grounded on the necessity of producing for our own indispensable security and easonable endemity, and being strictly limited to those justifiable objects. There is, besides, no reason to suppose that any of the persons mentoned in the accompanying memon could be rendered useful (in any material degree) in the prosecution of the war.

The commissioners must, therefore, confine their proceedings on this subject to enquiries into the state of parties in Mysore, with a view to the practicability of restoring that family with or without the consent of the principal Mussulman chiefs at present in authority in the country. The commission will readily perceive that these enquiries must be conducted with the utmost caution and prudence, for if their object were to transpine, the discovery might check, if not prevent, many advances which would otherwise be made from persons attached to the Mussulman Government

The personal safety of the surviving adherents of the ancient family of the Rajahs of Mysoie, and even of the Ranee heaself, also requires peculian discretion and secrecy in the conduct of this part of the business of the commission. The most dreadful scene of vengeance and slaughter would be the ploable consequence of Typoo's receiving the slightest mumation of the contents of the accompanying memon, which, therefore, after being attentively perused by the commissioners, must be destroyed

You will direct Captam Macleod, of the intelligence department, to communicate, from time to time, to the commission whatever intelligence he may receive of a nature connected with the objects of the commission, with which I authorize you to make him fully acquanted.

> I am, &c Mornington.

No CXI.

Declaration of the Right Honourable the Governor General in Council, for all the forces and affairs of the British nation in the East Indies, on behalf of the Honourable the East India Company and the allies of the said Company there, his Highness the Nisam and the Peishina

Fort St George, 22d Feb 1799

A solem treaty of peace and friendship was concluded as Scringapatam, between the Honousable Company and the Nabob Asoph Jah and the Peashwa on the one pair, and the Nabob Tripno Sultaum on the other part, and fiom that day all commotion and hostility ceased Since that day, the three alhed states have invariably manifested a sacred regard for the obligations contacted under that treaty with the Nabob Tripno Sultaum Off this uniform disposition, abundant proofs have been afforded by each of the alhes Whateven differences have arrsen with segard to the limits of the tearntoy of Mysoic, have been annuably adjusted without difficulty, and with the most exact attention to the principles of equity, and to the stipulations of heaty Such has been the solutude of the alhes for the pieservation of tranquility, that they have viewed with forbearance, for some years past, various embassies and military preparations on the part of Tippoo Sultaun, of a tendency so evidently hostile to the interests of the allies, as would have justified them, not only in the most serious remonstrances, but even in an appeal to aims On the part of the British Government every endeavour has been employed to conciliate the confidence of the Sultaun, and to mitigate his vindictive spirit, by the most unequivocal acknowledgment and confirmation of his just rights, and by the removal of every cause of jealousy which might tend to interrupt the continuance of peace These pacific sentiments have been most particularly manifested in the Governor General's recent decision on Tippoo Sultaun's claim to the district of Wynaad, and in the negotiation opened by his Loidship with regard to the districts of Ameiah and Souleah In every instance the conduct of the Butish Government in India towards Tippoo Sultaun, has been the natural result of those principles of moderation, justice, and good faith, which the legislature of Great Britain and the Honourable the East India Company have firmly established as the unalterable rule of their intercourse with the native princes and states of India

The exemplary good faith and the pacific disposition of the allies, since the conclusion of the treaty of Seningapatam, has nevel been disputed even by Tippoo Sultaun Far from having attempted to alledge even the pietext of a complaint against their conduct, he has constantly acknowledged their justice, sincerity, and good faith, and has professed, in the most cordial terms, his desire to maintain and strengthen the foundations of haimony and concord with them

In the midst of these amicable professions on the part of Tippoo Sultaun, and at the moment when the British Government had issued orders for the confirmation of his claim to Wynaad, it was with astonishment and indignation that the allies discovered the engagements which he had contracted with the French nation, in direct violation of the treaty of Serrigipatam, as well as of his own most solemn and recent professions of friendship towards the allies

Under the mask of these specious professions, and of a pretended veneration for the obligations of treaty. Tippoo Sultaum despatched ambassadors to the Isle of Fiance, who, in a peirod of profound peace in Indis, proposed and convol. I

cluded, in his name, an offensive alliance with the French, for the avowed purpose of commencing a war of aggression against the Company, and consequently against the Peishwa and the Nizam, the allies of the Company

The ambassadors, in the name of Tippoo Sultaun, demanded military succours from the French, and actually levied a military force in the Isle of France, with the declared view of prosecuting the intended war

When the ambassadors returned, in a French ship of war, from the Isle of France, Tippoo Sultaun suffered the military force, which they had levied for the avowed purpose of making war upon the allies, to land in his country, and finally, he admitted it into his aimy by these personal acts tartfying and confirming the proceedings of his ambassadors

This military force, however, was not sufficiently powerful to enable him immediately to attempt his declared purpose of attacking the Company's possessions, but in the meanwhile he advanced his hostile preparations conformably to his engagements with the Fiench, and he was leady to move his aimy into the Company's tentitories whenever he might obtain from Fiance the effectual succours which he had assiduously solucted from that nation

But the providence of God, and the victorious arms of the British nation, flustiated his vain hopes, and checked the epresumptious cancer of the French in Egypt at the moment when he anxiously expected then arrival on the coast of Malabai

The Butish Government, the Nizam, and the Peshwa, had not omitted the necessary precaution of assembling their forces for the joint protection of their respective dominions. The strict principles of self-defence would have justified the alles at that period of time in making an immediate attack upon the territories of Trippo Sultam, but even the happy intelligence of the glorious success of the British floet at the mouth of the Nile did not abate the anxious desire of the allies to maintain the relations of amity and peace with Trippo Sultam. They attempted, by a moderate representation, to recall lim to a sense of his obligations, and of the genuine principles of prudence and policy, and they employed every effort to open the channels of negotiation, and to facilitate the means of ameable accommodation. With these salutary views, the Governor General, on the 8th November, 1798. in the name of the allies, proposed to despatch an ambassador to Tippoo Sultaun, for the purpose of renewing the bonds of friendship, and of concluding such an arrangement as might afford effectual security against any future interruption of the public tranquility, and his Lordship repeated the same proposal on the 10th December, 1798 Tippoo Sultaun declined, by various evasions and subterfuges, this friendly and moderate advance on the part of the allies, and he manifested an evident disposition to reject the means of pacific accommodation, by suddenly breaking up, in the month of December, the conferences which had commenced with respect to the districts of Amerah and Souleah, and by interrupting the intercourse between his subjects and those of the Company on their respective frontiers. On the 9th January, 1799, the Governor General being arrived at Fort St George (notwithstanding these discouraging circumstances in the conduct of Tippoo Sultaun) ienewed with increased earnestness, the expression of his Lordship's anxious desire to despatch an ambassador to the Sultaun.

The Governor General expressly solicited the Sultaun to return an answer within one day to this letter, and as it involved no proposition either injurious to the rights, dignity, or honour of the Sultaun, or in any degree novel or complicated either in form or substance, it could not require a longer consideration The Governor General waited with the utmost solicitude for an answer to the reasonable and distinct proposition contained in his letter of the 9th January, 1799, Tippoo Sultaun, however, who must have received this letter before the 15th of January, remained silent, although the Governor General had plainly apprized that prince, that dangerous consequences would result from delay In the meanwhile the season for military operations had already advanced to so late a period, as to render a speedy decision indispensable to the security of the allies. Under these circumstances. on the 31d of February (eight days having elapsed from the period when an answer might have been received from Seringapatam to the Governor General's letter of the 9th January) his Loidship declared to the allies, that the necessary measures must now be adopted, without delay, for securing such advantages as should place the common safety of the allies beyond the reach of the maincenty of Tippoo Sultaun, and of the volence of the French With this view, the Governor General, on the 3rd of February, issued orders to the British armse to match, and signified to the commander of his Majesty's squadron, that the obstinate silence of the Sultaun must be considered as a rejection of the proposed amicable negotiation

Āt length, on the 13th of February, a letter from Tippoo Sultaun reached the Governor General, in which the Sultaun signifies to his Lordship, "that being frequently disposed to make excusions and hunt, he was accordingly proceeding upon a hunting excussion," adding, "that the Governor General would be pleased to despatch Major Doveton to him, unstended or slightly attended"

The alhes will not dwell on the peculiar phrases of this letter, but it must be evident to all the states of India, that the answer of the Sultaun has been deferred to this late period of the season, with no other view than to preclude the allies, by insidious delays, from the benefit of those advantages which their combined military operations would enable them to secure. On those advantages alone (under the ecent experience of Tippoo Sultaun's violation of the treaty of Seingapatam, and under the peculiar circumstances of that prince's offensive alliance with the French) can the allies now venture to rely for the fauthful execution of any treaty of peace concluded with Tippoo Sultaun.

The allies cannot suffer Tippoo Sultaun to profit by his own studied and systematic delay, nor to impede such a disposition of their military and naval force, as shall appear best calculated to give effect to their just views

Bound by the sacred obligations of public faith, professing the most amicable disposition, and undisturbed in the possession of those dominions secured to him by treaty, Tippoo Sultain wantonly violated the relations of amity and peace, and compelled the allies to aim in defence of their rights, their happiness, and their honour

For a peniod of three months, he obstinately rejected every pacific overture, in the hourly expectation of receiving that succour which he has eagerly solicited for the prosecution of his favourite pur poses of ambition and revenge. Disappointed in his blopes of immediate vengeance and conquest, he now iesoits to subterfuge and procrastmation, and, by a taidy, reluctant, and insidious acquiescence in a proposition which he had so long and repeatedly declined, he endeavours to frustrate the precautions of the allies, and to protract every effectual operation, until some change of cucumstances and of season shall ievive his expectations of disturbing the tanguality of India, by favouring the nruption of a French army

The allies are equally prepared to repel his violence, and to counteract his artifices and delays

The allies are, therefore, resolved to place then amy m such a position as shall afford adequate protection against any artifice or immeerity, and shall preclude the return of that danger which has so lately menaced their possessions. The allies, however, retaining an anxious desire to effect an adjustment with Tippoo Sultaun, Leutienant General Hailis, Commander-in-Chief of his Majesty's and the Honourable Company's forces on the coast of Coronandel and Malaban, is authorized to receive any embassy which Tippoo Sultaun may despatch to the head quarters of the British army, and to conceit a treaty on such conditions as appear to the allies to be indispensably necessary for the establishment of a secure and per manent peace.

Dated Foit St. George, 22nd February, 1799, by order of the Right Honomable the Governor General in Council,

A true Copy, N B EDMONSTONE, Persian Translator to Govt

Jos. WEBBE.

No. CXLI

From the Right Hon the Governor-General to Tippoo Sultaun

Fort St George, 22d Feb 1799

I had the honour, on the 18th instant, to receive your letter, acknowledging your receipt of my two letters of the 9th and 16th January,† informing me of you intention to proceed on a hunting excursion, and desuing me to despatch Major Doveton unattended to you.

2

^{*} See p 433

I lament most sincerely that the friendly intimation contained in my letter of the 9th January,* legal ding the dangers of delay, produced no effect on your discerning mind, and that you deferred your reply to that letter to so late a period in the season. Your long silence on this important and pressing occasion, compelled me to adopt the resolution of ordering the British forces to advance in concert with the aimies of the allied powers. You are not ignorant that the period of the season rendered the advance of the aimy absolutely necessary to the common security of the allies. This movement of the army is to be imputed entirely to your repeated rejection of my amicable proposal of sending an ambassador to your piesence.

Under the present circumstances, to send Major Doveton to you, could not be attended with those advantages which would have resulted from his mission at a proper season

The allies, however, retaining an anxious desine to effect an adjustment with you, Lieutienant General Harris, commander of the British thoops, has been empowered to receive any embassy which you shall despatch to him Leutienant General Harris will also authorize such persons as he may think proper, to concert, in communication with your ambassadors, a new treaty of hieradship with your Highness, founded on such conditions as appear to the allies to be indispensably necessary to the establishment of a secure and permanent peace.

A true Copy, N B EDMONSTONE, Persian translator to Govt

No CXLII

(Secret)

The Earl of Mornington to Licut-General Harris, Commander-in-Chief Sir, Fort St George, 22nd Feb 1799

Fort St Gemige, 22nd Feb 1799
In my letter of the 3rd of February, I apprised you, that

Is should in due time inform you of the manner in which I wished you to receive such overtimes, as might be made to you by any of the inhabitants of Tippoo Sultaun's dominions

See p. 394.

desnous of throwing off the authority of that Prince, and that I should also send you such further instructions, as might appear to me to be necessary for your direction previously to your entrance into the territory of Mysore

With regard to the first of those objects, the enclosed mistuctions of the adae, and ext you to form a commission for the special purpose of assisting you in the conduct of such negotations as may eventually be opened with any description of Trippo's subjects

As the intercourse between your anny and the Preadency must become liable to interruption after you shall have passed the fronties of Mysore, I shall now furnish you with such instructions as appear to me to be necessary for your direction, not only previous to your entrance into the dominions of the Sultain, but during your progres towards his capital, and after you shall have commenced the seige of that city.

The enclosus No 2,† contains a copy of a letter icccived by me from Tippoo Sultaun, on the 13th of February, the original of my answei to which, is contained in a sealed packet made up for despatch to the Sultaun, and forming No 3 No 4,‡ contains copy of that answei for your information No 5,§ contains copies in English, Peisian, and Malabin, of the declaration of the allies, with respect to the causes of their present measures

When you shall arree within one day's march of the point by which you propose to enter Mysore, you will transmit the original letter addressed to the Sultain contained in the sealed packet No 3, to Major Doveton, with directions to forward it to Tippoo Sultain

You will not delay the march of your army one hour after the receipt of this despatch, and you will proceed to enter the territory of Mysore, and to advance towards Seringapatam with the utmost possible degree of expedition

On passing the frontiers, you will circulate among Tippoo's subjects as many copies as possible of the declaration of the allies, and you will issue a proclamation in your own name promising protection to the persons and properties of all such subjects of the Sultanu as shall, on just and reasonable terms, assist the army in its march by supplies of cattle, grain, forage, and provisions of any description, and further assuring the inhabitants of Mysoic en general, that no person shall be molested excepting such as shall appear in arms, or shall impede the march of the aimy by the removal of those stiples (the produce of the country) which may be useful to its progress or subsistance. The advance of the army is not, however, to be in the least, retarded for the purpose of preparing and issuing these proclamations

In the course of your advance through Tippoo's territories you will employ, and also engage Meet Allum to employ, every means to concludate the subjects of the Sultaun, as well by the conduct of the company's and the Nizam's forces, as by publishing from time to time such assunances as shall appear best adapted to the occasion

You will order Lieutenant Colonel Browne, or the officer in command of the Southern division of the aimy, to commence his operations at such time, and to direct them to such points of attack on the possessions of the enemy, as you shall judge most advisable.

If Tippoo Sultaun, availing himself of the channel of negotiation still left open by my letter No 3, either previously to your arrival at Seningapatam, or previously to your having taken a position for the siege of that capital, should signify to you a desire to send an embassy to you, I authorize you to receive any such embassy, exercising your discretion with regard to the particular time and place of receiving it. But at whatever period you may judge proper to comply with the proposal in question, I most earnestly and particularly recommend to you to observe with the utmost care, all those measures of precaution and vigilance, which the artful and treacherous character of the enemy renders peculiarly necessary on such an occasion It must never be forgotten, that he may possibly despatch ambassadors to you with the sole view of obtaining intelligence of your designs, or of tampering with some of the Sirdars of the allies Under this constant impression, you will be particularly careful not to halt for an hour nor to relax any operation, necessary with a view to the siege, on account of any overtures which you may receive from the Sultaun in any stage of your progress towards his canital

You will communicate this letter to the commissioners named in the instruction, and you will consult with them on all points relating to any negotiation with Tippoo Sultaun

You may possibly think it unadvisable to disclose to Tippoo Sultaun, the nature and full extent of the demands of the allies, before you shall have effected a junction with the army of Bombay, or before you shall have taken your position for the siege of Seingapatam, and shall have been satisfied that all your preparations for that purpose are com-But after having attained such a position you will without delay (and before you open your batteries, or throw shells into the town) communicate to Tippoo Sultaun, either through the channel of any embassy which you may have admitted from him, or by a flag of truce, the demands of the allies, comprized in the draft of preliminary articles making the inclosure marked A * The blanks of those preliminary articles you will previously fill up, according to your information and judgement, with the assistance of the commissioners appointed to aid you in all matters relating to negotiation. either with the Sultaun, or with any of his subjects

You will require the signature of the articles under Tippoo's seal, and the delivery of the hostages specified in the 8th article, within 24 hours from the communication of the articles to the Sultaun, either by his embassadors, or by the flag of truce You will at the same time signify to Tippoo Sultaun, that in the event of your being compelled to open your batteries against his capital, you will not afterwards desist for an instant from your operations, on any conditions more favorable to him than those contained in the inclosure marked B, and accordingly after having opened your batteries against the place, you will not admit any embassadors from Tippoo, unless you shall know them to be charged with his formal assent to the articles contained in the inclosure B, and to bring with them to your camp, both the money 1equired under the draft of preliminary aiticles B, and the hostages required by the 8th article of both drafts of preliminat v atticles A and B

Should Tippoo Sultaun agree, either before or after the commencement of your attack, to the conditions respectively

^{*} See p 460

to be proposed m either case, and should be deliver up the required hostages, you will mmediately make the necessary dispositions with General Stuart, for taking possession of the ceded tentitory on the coast of Malaban, you will also direct the Commissiones appointed to assist you mail matters of negotiation, to arrange and conclude with all practicable despatch, in concent with Meet Allium, with any Minister who shall have been empowered by the Peishwa for that purpose, and with the embassadors of Tippoo Sultaun, a definitive teaty of peace and fitendship on the basis, and agreeably to the conditions, of the preliminary atticles which shall have been nevously sured by the Sultaun.

The only difficulty which can occur in framing the definitive treaty, will consist in the adjustment and specification of the territories to be ceded to the allies respectively, according to the pieliminaries, which may have been settled. It is impossible for me to give you any detailed instructions, with regard to the particular countries to be ceded to the Nizam and to the Peishwa, whose respective ministers must make their own selection under your control The territories to be ceded to the Company under the draft of preliminaries marked A , are enumerated in that draft. The additional cessions which would be demanded for the Company under the draft of preliminaries marked B, must be determined with a view to the improvement of our southern frontier, according to the best opinions and information which you shall be able to obtain from the Commissioners, or from other authorities in your army

If no Mahiatta force shall have jomed your army, previously to the conclusion of the preliminary articles, you will still insist on the payment of the whole of the money stipulated to be paid by the 6th article, into the hands of the allied powers on the spot, who will be answeathle, in that case, for the due delivery to the Penshwa of his third share of the sum paid into your hands. If at the conclusion of the definitive treaty, no Mahratta vakeels should be present, you are to engage, in concert with Meei Allium, to piocure the Penshwa's assent to the teaty, before the expination of three months, securing and reserving to the Peishway, the same full and ample power of selecting the districts to be ceded to him conformably to the 4th article of the proposed picliminary treaty, as he could have exercised if he had been represented during the negotiations by a regularly accredited Minister

Although you should be in possession of the iequined hostages, you will not quit your position in the vicinity of Semigapatam, until the aimy of Bombay shall have reached such a point on its ieturn to the Malabai coast, as may place it beyond the effects of any treachery, which might be attempted against it by Tippoo Sultaun With a view to this and other advantages, you will ieseive to youiself the libeity of remaining in the vicinity of Semigapatam, until the allies shall have been actually put in possession of any three of the fortresses to be ceded to them, which they may respectively select.

I have now furnished you with instructions for your conduct in the two cases of a negotiation, being opened with Tippoo Sultan, either previously, or subsequently to the attack of Scringapatam

The case of your being compelled to prosecute the siege of Seringapatam to the last extremity, and of your obtaining possession of that city would open so extensive and complicated a change in the political state of India, as to require the most complehensive system of new allangements At present it appears to me to be sufficient to recommend that m this event, you should adopt the necessary measures for effectually securing your position in the city, for supporting those inhabitants of Mysoie, who may have placed themselves under the protection of the allies, and for opening a safe and easy communication between your army and both coasts In such a conjuncture, particular operations must depend on the nature of the political and military situation and strength of the enemy, subsequently to the reduction of his capital. and on a variety of other cucumstances which it is impossible to foresee. I rely on your discretion for acting under such cucumstances in the manner best calculated to maintain your advantages, until I shall be enabled to transmit specific instructions for your direction.

Whether in the last case supposed, the person of Tippoo SWhether in the last case supposed, the person of Tippoo Switch and the last case of the country and the final settlement of the country, either with that prince or with any other persons, until you shall have received special authority from me for that purpose

I have directed a copy to be sent to you of the dary of the proceedings of the deputies, who conducted the negotiations at Seningapatam in 1792, which I desire you will be pleased to deliver in charge to the Commission appointed in my separate instructions of this date. This dary may eventually affood great assistance to the Commissioners in the management of any negotiations which they may be required to conduct with Tippoo Sultaum

I am, &c. Mornington.

[The following are the Enclosures referred to in the preceding letter]

Draft of preliminary Articles -A

Preliminary Articles for the re-establishment of the antenn frendship, and for the adjustment of easting diffenences, between the Honourable Enginsh Company, the Nawab Asoph Jah, Row Pendit Purdham, and Tippos Sultans, settled by Least -General George Herris, &c., in virtue of powers delegated to him by the Right Honourable the Earl of Mornaton, K. P. Governo General, by Meer Allium, Behndun, on the part of the Nawab Asoph Jah, by , on the part of The Pashwa, and by , on the part of Toppos Sultans

Article 1st Ippoo Sultaun to receive and honourably entertain an ambassador from each of the allies as often and for as long a period time as any of the said allies shall require, the allies, on their part, severally consenting to receive and entertain in the same manner, and on the same terms, an ambassador from Tippoo Sultaur.

Article 2nd Tippoo Sultaun to dismass without delay from his service, and to remove from his dominations, not only all Frenchmen or natives of the Islands of France and Bourbon, or of any other countries now subject to France, but also all Europeans, natives, or subjects of countries now at war with forest Buttaun.

Article 3rd Tippoo Sultaun to renounce all connection with the French nation, and to engage that none of the subjects of that nation shall ever hereafter be entertained in his service, or be allowed to reside within his dominations

Article 4th Tippos Sul'aun to cede to the Company in perpetuity the whole of the seasonst of Malaber below the Ghauit, in his possession at the commencement of the present war that is to say, all the territory below the Ghauit, satusted between the river Cavar (which forms the present boundary of the Company to the northward) and the Portuguese processions on that coust * Tippos us to cede in like manner to the

And including the district of Belguy on the coast of Malabar, unless Tippoo can clearly prove that this district is above the Ghauts

Company the district (including the fortress of Sacragerry) which is atuated between Paulgacherry and Pliney, and which comprehends Anmaliae and other Talooks * He is likewise to cede in perpetuity to their Highnesses, the Nizam and the Pealawa respectively,† a territory adjacent to their present respective boundaries, and agreeably to their selection, equal in net revenue to the districts to be ceded to the Company, and it is hereby determined and agreed, with a view to the prevention of delays, that the several districts to be ceded by Tippoo Sultann shall be taken at the valuation at which they were respectively rated in the accounts delivered in by his vakeels during the negotiation of the treaty of Seringapatam in 1792

Aitcle 6th Tuppo Sultanu to relanquash for ever all clasm to the lately disputed districts of Amera and Soulosh, and Ersawarseemy, to any part of the ternitory possessed by the Bajah of Coorga, at the commencement of the war, to the whole of the Tambacherry Pass, and generally to all places on the present borders of any of the allies which may at this time he in dismite.

Article 6th One crore and a half of sicca rupees shall be paid by

Tippoo Sultaun to the allies, agreeably to the following particulars — lst Seventy-live lace shall be paid immediately in pagodas, or gold mohrs, or runces of full weight and standard, or in gold or silvel bul-

2nd The remaining seventy-five lacs shall be paid within six months from the date of the present treaty

Article 7th All prisoners in the hands of the several powers to be fairly and unequivocally released

Article Sth Until the due performance of the articles of the present teaty, two of the three dides tons of Tppoo Sultam shall be delivered as hostages into the hands of Leest-General Hairis, and as a further security for Tppoo's faithful execution of the same, the fortress of foitresses of the same of the same of the same of the same of the treases of the same of the same of the same of the same of the three treases of the same of the same of the same of the same of the treases of the same treases of the same of th

[•] Memorandum —The object of this cession being to open a free and short communication between Paulgacherry and Dindigul, the Commandet-in-Chief is referred to the proper officers for the necessary information with repart to the particular Talooks which are to be demanded for this purpose, and, accordingly, this article will admit of variation, according to the judgment of the Commander-in-Chief and of the Commissioners.

[†] That is to say, to each of the other allies a territory equal to that ceded to the Company, so that the cession to the Company shall constitute one-third part of the total cession to the three allied powers

[†] This blank to be filled up by the Commander in Chief, but it is to be observed, that, it is not to be filled by the word (Seringapatam)

N B The fortress or fortresses here to be specified, are to be exclusive of those within the districts to be ceded (see the conclusion of this article) Gopaul Droog was in contemplation in this passage

ment of the first morety agreed to be paid by the 6th article, a cessation of hostilities shall take place. But the army of the allies shall not quit their position before Seingapatam until the fortiess (or fortresses) of before mentioned, shall be actually in the possession of the Company's troops And whereas the territory to be ceded to the alines will contain several forts, it is hereby further agreed that of the said forts the alines shall be an inheritor to require the high grouper to be put in actual possession of any three of them which they may think fit to select, before Toppoo Suitsum shall be entitled to require the departure of the alled armset from the victury of Senngapatum.

Article 9th When an agreement, containing the articles above written, shall arrive, bearing the seal and signature of Tippoo Sultaun, counteragreements shall be sent to Tippoo Sultaun from the alhies and after the cessation of hostilities, a definitive treaty of perpetual friendship shall be settled and entered into by the several powers.

Memor andum

In the event of no Mahratta force having joined the army at the time when preliminary articles shall be concluded, the Commander-in-Chief, or Commissioners appointed to treat with Tippos Sultaun shall, notwrith standing, insist upon his paying the whole of the mony supulated to be paid by the 6th article, into the hands of the allied powers on the spac, who will be answerable for the due delivery to the Penishwa of his share, namely, one-third of the whole stipulated sum If on concluding the definitive treaty, no Mahratta vakeels should be present, the other allies are to engage to procure the Penishwa sessent to the treaty in the course of three months. Some procure the Penishwa state to the treaty in the course of them south of the standard ample power of selecting the districts to be ceded conformably to the 4th article of the preliminary treaty, as he would have excressed if he had authorized a minster on the spot to again and excut for him

It is probable that the territory to be ceded to the Nizam and Peishwa. under the 4th article of the preceding treaty, would consist of Gurramconds. Gooty, Anagoondy, Roydroog, and Harponelly (to be divided between them as they may agree.) the forts of which it would be proper, in this case, to require the immediate surrender as additional securities before the army should quit the vicinity of Seringapatam, would, perhaps, be Gooty to the Nizam, Roydroog to the Peishwa, and Shuddasoo Ghur (on the Malabar coast) to the Company But as it is proposed that a fortress of Tippoo's, over and above those to be ceded (perhaps Gopauldroog) shall be delivered into the temporary possession of the Company as an additional security for his faithful performance of the treaty, perhaps, instead of Shudashoo Ghur, the immediate delivery of Gurrumconda to the Nizam, in addition to Gooty and Roydroog, would operate more effectually as a restraint upon the Sultaun, who would not venture to provoke a renewal of hostilities, after the allies were in possession of the four strong holds which have been specified

463

Draft B

Article 1. 2. and 3. the same as in draft A

Article 4—One half of the dominions of which Tippoo Sultam was no possession before the war, to be celed to the allies from the countries and jacent to their present respective boundaries, and agreeably to their selection. And it is helder agreed and determined with a view to the picturion of delays, that the several districts to be ceded by Tippoo Sultam, shall be taken at the valuation at which they were respectively rated in the accounts delivrated in by his Valcels, during the negotiation of the treaty of Soungapatiam in 1792.

Article 5, as in diaft A

Atticle 6, two crores of sieca rupees shall be paid by Tippoo Sultaun to the allies, agreeably to the following particulars

1st One croic shall be paid immediately in pagodas, or gold mohrs, or tupees of full weight and standard, or in gold or silver bullion

2nd The remaining crore shall be paid within six months from the date of the present treaty

Article 7, 8, and 9, as in diaft A

Memorandum with a view to the case of Tippoo's being compelled to cede half of his present dominions to the allies, February 26th, 1799

Thypos stated his reremues to amount in 1792, to seventy lace of kanteran pagodas, or two crores and ten lace of upone. The alines, however, harung reason to believe this to be an under statement, insisted on adding mue lace of pagodas to the amount, and, consequently, on during 79 lacs, instead of 70 lace of pagodas. Hence the amount to be ceded, agreeably to the preliminary treaty, was 394 lace. Accordingly, the Company secured districts to the amount, eccoding to Typor's cere substation of them, of 13,16,765 % pagodas, the Nizam 13,16,666 % pagodas, and the Peathwn 13,1666 % 72 pagodas, making together 395,6047 pagodas

Consequently Tippoo possesses at present countries yielding, according to his own account, corrected by the allies, 394 lacs of parodas

If, therefore, he should be again compelled to cede half of his dominions to the allies, the latter would each be entitled to districts yielding 6.58.333 negodas, making together 19.75.000 negodas

In this case, the Company's division might be composed as follows

Canner, on the Malaber territory below the Ghants, including Bilgray, say 3,20,000, Combaton 80,000, Denmen Notah 35,000, Den proper and Chucken gersy 64,000, Sutuming al 30,000, Chichwar 27,000, Chinchen 27,000, Indone 8,000, Errond 20,000, Cangum 20,000; Can oer 45,000, total 6,75,000

It is to be observed, that Canara is rated above at much more than it would appear to be rated at in Tippoo's own statement of 1792, which is to be the bissis of any new partition. However, as the districts of Bednoie which compose Canara, cannot at present be accurately distinguished (two or three of the number being doubtfull) the revenue has, for the greater caution, been assumed at 3,20,000 pagodas, although the most that can be made out from Tippoo's list is three lacs

Possibly, some of the southern dustricts below the Ghants may be omitted in the preceding enumeration. On the whole, however, it is sufficiently clear from this abstract, that the cession to the Company of all the countries below the Ghants on both coasts, would little evceed of fall abort of their relative of half the Sultanu's remaining possessions of for a strict examination it were found to exceed, an equivalent might be offered, or some adjustments of the difference be made with the allegation.

The share of the Nizam might consist of Assgroudy 60,101, Ku nod trubute 65,666 4, Gody (as per memorandum at the end of this paper) 2,08,200 31, Gin rumconda 2,74,673 41, Jungemental 13,000, Pangason 15,000, total 6,37,641 4, or about 21,000 pagedias short of the Nizam's share. The deficiency might be made up from some of the Otar districts, or within a small sum, from the overplus of the cessions to the Company according to the preceding at ticle

The share of the Pesshwa might be composed of Bedinore, above the Chaute, or all the parts of Bedinore not ceded to the Company, say 3,64,466, Hanponelly, 1,10,000 84, Regulong, 1,15,019 34, total 5,89,5616 22, or about 69,000 pagodas short, which might be made up from the districts of Chittledrone.

It is probable, however, that Bednore above the Ghauts may prove, on a structer canamaton of Tippoo's statement of 1792, to be rateable at more than 3,64,666 pagedas. For the whole 31 talooks of Bednore stand m hs account at 6,84,666 pagedas, and, therefore, in proportion as the talooks below the Ghauts may fall short in valuation of the 3,20,000 pagedas assumed, those above the Ghauts (proposed to be ceded to the Passkow) will exceed the sum of 3,64,466 pagedas.

There would remain to Tippoo, under the foregoing arrangement, the greatest part (if not the whole) of Chittle Droop, Sara, Bangalore, and other talooks of Seringapatam (enumerated in his lat of antient possessions) which the allies are entitled to consider as yielding a revenue of 19,75,000 pagedas. If they should not, in fact, be so ralunble, (which, however, there is no reason to suppose) the Sultanu would only suffer by his own decent. At all events, the alhies will be entitled, in justice, (under the trets) own in contemplation) to select their mosty first, learning the remaining half to the Sultann and accordingly, this is a principle which ought to be carefully addered to in the case supposed.

A more moderate arrangement than the preceding one would be, to take the Sultaun's present dominions at 35 lacs of pagodas (instead of 394 lacs) or half of what he himself stated the revenue to be in 1792, and to divide accordingly

In this case the allies would have to divide among them only 17,50,000 pagodas, instead of 19,75,000 pagodas, and at this rate each would be entitled to a country of no more than 5,83,333\frac{1}{2} pagodas, instead of (as above) 6,68,333\frac{1}{2} pagodas.

Upon this principle, it is evident that we should be under the necessity of leaving Tippoo in possession of a great part of the southern countries below the Ghauts Our share might, nevertheless, be as follows

Canas a (as before), 3,20,000; Coumbaton, 80,000, Dat anon and Chuchero cery, 64,000, Erroad, 20,000, Cangum, 20,000, Carroor, 45,000; Dennicar Kotah, 35,000 Total, 5,84,000

Or, perhaps, in preference to some of these,

Vencatagheer ucotah and Punganor e above the Ghauts

The Nizam's share might, in the case now supposed, consist of Gooty (as before), 2,08,200 34, Gurrumconda, 2,74,673 44. Anao oon-dy, 60,101, Kurnool tribute, 66,666 67 Total, 6,09,641 4 The excess, or 26,308 pagodas, might be made up to Tippoo from Guilumconda or Gooty, according to the pleasure of the Nizam or of his Minister The Peishwa's share, on this principle, might be,

Bednore (as before), 3,64,466, Harponelly, 1,10,030 81, Roydroog, 1,15,019 32 Total, 5,89,516 2, being an excess only of 6,200 pagedas, to be deducted from some of the proposed cessions

The foregoing divisions are suggested only as outlines to be filled up and improved, upon strictci enquiry and better information

Gooty consisted of nineteen talooks, yielding 2,58,353 44 Deduct ceded in 1792 to the Nizam, four talooks, 51,782 81, to the Peishwa, one talook, 10,000, total, 61,782 84. 1,96,570 6t Add those parts of Koorgoor and Dummoor which remained with Tippoo at the peace, 11,629 74 Remains to be ceded, 2,08,200 34

No CXLIII

The Earl of Mornington to Lieut General Harris

SIR.

Fort St George, 23rd Feb 1799

If contrary to present appearances and to every reasonable expectation, any untoward event should occur, of a nature to render the reduction of Seringapatam within this season evidently impracticable, I authorize you to recede from the demands contained in the draft A., (inclosed in my letter of the 22nd instant,) in proportion to the improbability of your being able to accomplish the reduction of that place But whatever may be your own sense of difficulties, it will be of the utmost importance that you should not disclose it, and that you should still endeavour to excite the apprehensions of Tippoo for the safety of his capital On those apprehensions alone, can you depend for obtaining any concessions whatever from him

Although I have judged it necessary to authorize you to recede, under certain cucumstances, from the demands specified in the daft A before referred to, you will rather conclude no treaty with Tippoo Sultaun, than one which shall not put the Company in possession of the whole of the covat of Malaban, and secure, besides, some degree of indemity for the expenses of the wal. In fraining any treaty under these unfavourable encumstances, you will always be careful to understand that every advantage, either of territory or of money which may be strubtated, is to be equally divided among the allies in such a manner, as they shall hereafter adjust

In the event of your neither being able to reduce Seinigapatam this season, no to obtain the diminished advantages herein stated, you will dismiss the Bombay army with such reinforcement as you may have the means of spaining, and after having ascertained its safe airwal at the head of the Poodcherium Ghaut, you will keep the field in the enemy's country with the remander of your force, in such mismics shall appear most advisable, as well with a view to secure your own subsistance, as to rest air Tippoo from any undertaking against the Camatic, until a favourable change of cicumstances shall enable you to resume the siege of that capital with bette hopes of success

I am, &c
MORNINGTON

No CXLIV

The Earl of Mornington to the Peishna

Fort St George, 24th Feb 1799

I have regularly communicated to your Highness the progress of my correspondence with Tippoo Sultaun, respecting his inflaction of the treaty of Seringapatam, and I have had the satisfaction to find your Highness concurring in all the measures which I have deemed it necessary to adopt, for the common security of the Company and their allies I is as a first and the satisfaction to me to reflect, that no endeavous have been omitted to recall the Sultaun to a sense of the obligations of treaty, and to effect an amicable accommodation of the differences, which his ambition and insatiable revenge have produced between him and the allies

It is a subject of extreme regret, that these conciliatory and friendly measures have failed to produce a correspondent effect on his mind, and have rendered it absolutely necessary, upon principles of self defence, to resort to aims After the Sultaun's repeated rejection of the proposition to send an Ambassador to his Court, notwithstanding the wainings he received, his tardy and reluctant acquiescence, (intimated to me in a letter received on the 13th instant, of which a copy will be communicated to your Highness), so far from indicating a spirit of conciliation, can only be considered as an insidious attempt to protract the operations in the field, in the hope of prosecuting his hostile designs against the allies with a better prospect of success I have, therefore, signified to the Sultaun, in my 1eply, of which a copy will also be submitted to your Highness by the Resident, that his compliance with the proposal, at this protracted period, cannot produce any change in the determination of the allies to put their respective troops in motion Deeming it advisable that the grounds of this determination should be publicly made known, I have drawn up a formal declaration on the part of the Honorable Company and then allies, setting forth the conduct of Tippoo Sultaun, and the nature of the various measures which have been adopted by the allies to effect the accommodation they have so carnestly and so unremittingly sought I have forwarded a copy of the declaration to the Resident for your Highness's perusal, I am fully convinced that your Highness, sensible of the absolute necessity of the resolution therein expressed, will zealously exert the full extent of your present means to cooperate with the Company and his Highness the Nizam, in the prosecution of the war with the common enemy

I am persuaded that you Highness will be perfectly satisfied, that no overtunes towards accommodation can now be received from Tippoo Sultaun with any degree of consistency, or any beneficial negociation be opened with him excepting at the head of the aimies, which are actually entering his country

For this reason, your Highness will no doubt perceive that no advantage can possibly ause from the presence of any Vakeels from Tippoo Sultaun at your Court, on the contary, it must be evident to you that your entertaining any Vakeel, from that Plince, under the present circumstances, must more highly prejudical to the alled interests, by m-spining Tippoo Sultaun with the hope of dividing the allies, and by disseminating general doubts of the sincerity of your Highness's attachment to the common cause

I, therefore, earnestly entent your Highness immediately to dismuss the Vakeels of Tippoo Sultann now at your Court, and I, with the same earnestness, exhort your Highness not to receive any other immsion from that Prince dump the wan If he should express any desire to open a negociation, I request your Highness to refer him to the representatives of the allies, accompanying their aimes in the field. Any negociation carried on at a distance from the aimy would prove fruitless and indicessive

If (which God aveit and my fineally confidence will not anticipate) your Highness should neglect my present earnest matances, and should either delay the dismission of the Vakeels of Tippoo Sultaun now at Poonsh, or hereafter receive others from that Pinee during the wan, I think it the duty of a friend and an ally to apprize your Highness, that I shall be under the necessity of considering such conduct to be a departure from the true spirit of the defensive engagements subsisting between your Highness, his Highness the Mizzam, and the Honorable Company And I know not the extent of the evils which may follow so unexpected a relaxation of the boulds of friendship and alliance.

On the other hand, it is a pleasure to me to beheve, that youn Highness will duscharge the duty of a faithful friend and coddal ally by instantly dismissing the vakeels, by refusing, during hostilities, to receive any others, and by zealously exeting the full extent of your present means to cooperate with the Company and his Highness the Nizam, in the prosecution of the war with the common enemy. Under this expectation, and in a firm confidence that you will remember the ancient connection between the Company and your family, as well as the proof which I have recently afforded of my sincere desire to improve the relations of fitendship with you, I assure your Highness that no negociations shall take place, or any agreement be concluded with the enemy in which your interests shall not be, in all respects, placed on the same grounds with those of the Company and of the Nizam. In the mean time, I shall be very happy to hear and to consider any particular views which your Highness may entertain in the event of a negociation with the enemy, whether conveyed to me in writing from yourself, or through the channel of Colonel Palmer

> I am. &c. MORNINGTON.

No CXLV

The Earl of Mornington to Lieutenant General Stuart

(Private)

SIR,

Fort St George, 24th Feb 1799

I learnt, with great anxiety and uneasiness, the state of your health as well on private as on public grounds, and it was a considerable satisfaction to me to hear that you had allived on the coast of Malabai so much better, as to be able to undertake the fatigues of the approaching campaign

It is unnecessary for me to assure you of my entire confidence in your conduct of that part of the present important enterprize committed to your charge You are already apprized of my sentiments with regard to your merits, I have received great pleasure from the accounts of General Hartlev's preparations for your reception, and of the state in which he has delivered over the command to you. An union of the talents and zeal of all departments of the service in India will enable me to avail myself of the advantages of the season, and to render the Sultaun a contemptible ally to the common enemy, long before either party can hope to avail itself of the alliance lately formed against the British power

There is one point, however, which, although highly improbable, I wish to suggest to your early consideration by any accident the French should land a force on the coast of Malabai during the siege of Seringapatam, what would be the best arrangements for checking their progress? This subject deserves serious consideration, and you should communicate your opinions on it both to the Admiral and to General Hairis, so that you may not be taken by surprize

Another point regumes timely notice If the whole of the coast of Malabai should come into our possession under a new treaty with the Sultaun, what would be the best distributton of force, with a view to the disappointment of any attempt on the part of the French to assist the Sultaun or to dispossess us

A third question will be Peace being concluded with Tippoo, and the coast of Malabai in our possession, can we afford a force to garrison Goa, and will the Portuguese accent a garrison from us? Both of these points, as well as the first, should be considered with General Harris

I also wish, before you enter Mysore, that you would en deavour to concert with the Admiral any practicable means of employing his powerful squadion on the coast in concert with our remaining forces, or with any disaffected subjects of the Sultann below the Ghants

Recommending these suggestions to your attention, and sincerely wishing that your zeal for the public service, and your ability to promote it, may not in any degree be counteracted by the state of your health, I have the honour to be, with great esteem and respect, Sir, your faithful servant,

MORNINGTON.

No CXLVI

Lieutenant General Harris to the Earl of Mornington

Caukengena, 7 miles W of Tripatore, 25th Feb 1799 MY DEAR LORD.

Your Lordship's final instructions are received, and then very satisfactory contents perfectly understood

I shall not attempt an elaborate letter of thanks for them. or for all the noble and liberal confidence and encouragement they contain, but I trust to that Providence on whom I depend, that your Lordship shall be paid by a thorough conviction that every thing to the best of my abilities shall be tried to ensure that success which your Lordship's exertions give so fan a prospect of, and allow me here to relieve your Loidship's mind from the feat that I shall permit myself to become a desponder* in the business, by the assurance—that never in my life was I known to have the smallest tendency of tun that way—on the contrary, in some severe truls I have been most cheefful in the support of others, and thank God have always found my sprits to rise in the hour of danger. It is true I am anxious to examine the worst side of things, in older to provide a substitute if possible, but when prevention is no longer in my power, I trust you will heat that I make the best of every thing, and meet with cheerfulness the accidents which must happen in our peregrinations. At present we are in a great way of supplies, and with Read and Macleod's exertions, I have great hopes we shall escape similar distresses to those we experienced last war.

You may depend there is no man in the aimy wishes the business over more than myself, but no selfishiness, or, I tues, persuasion shall induce me to push the cattle beyond then powers, for that would be risking every thing. On them we must depend for getting our noble buttering taim along, and we will soon make up any time supposed lost in this way when once we begin the stege.

You Loadship's last communications have been particularly grateful to me, and as you have taken care to secture me by every tie dear to man—by gratitude, by my own honour and conscience being pledged, and even by the Eastern policy of havingry my wife and children in your hands, I think you will not be deceived, that you may not is my earnest prayer! and that your Lordship will believe me,

My dear Lord, with great esteem.

Your devoted and faithful Servant,

GEORGE HARRIS

^{*} A "despondie" is an Hindostanee word, which appears in the Revenue transactions Lord M had applied it in a ludicious sense to those who "desponded" of success in the war

[†] Mis Hairis and the General's children were all lett at Madras, under the Governor General's care

No CXLVII

The Earl of Mornington to Lieutenant General Harris

(Secret)

SIR,

Fort St George, 25th Feb 1799

The intelligence lately received from Seringapatam renders it probable that Tippoo Sultaun will take the field immediately at the head of the main body of his army

He may, therefore, attempt either to obstruct your progress towards Seringapatam by force, or to negotiate with you, interposing his aimy between yours and that city, and endearouring to protact the negotiation with the same views which he has already manifested, of gaming time, until the supposed season for the siege shall have elapsed

Although the genetal punciples of my instructions of the 28d instant would furnish a sufficiently distinct rule for your conduct m any of these cases, I think it may be satisfactory to you to receive a more particular explanation of my sentiments

If the Sultaun should attempt to oppose your progress by force, no instruction can be necessary to induce you to repell it

No attempt which, at any time, or from any position, he may make towards negotiation, must be sufficied to retard you progress towards Seringapatam, and if his army should occupy any position which shall appear suspicious, or embariassing to your line of manch, you will attack him if you should think it advisable, having flist dismissed his vakeels, if they should be near your camp

You are invested with a discretional power of deeding the time when it may be expedient to admit any vakeel from the Sultaum. In exercising that discretion, the primary considerations must be the security of your army, and the success of the expedition. If either of these considerations should at any time render it necessary to decline any overture from the Sultaun, you will take cate to apprize him that, at a proper season, you will be ready to listen to his proposals

At whatever period of your march you may think fit to admit an embassy from Tippoo Sultaun, you will understand it to be my intention, applicable to every possible case, that no treaty, either preliminary or definitive, should be concluded with him, until your aimy shall have effected a junction with that of Bombay, and shall be in a situation to commence the sege of his capital with a reasonable prospect of success

If Tuppoo Sultaun's army should meet yours in the field, and the result shall be, as (under providence) I trust it will, a signal victory to the British aims, you will not consent to negotiate, but you will continue to advance towards Seringapatam. The result of such an action might possibly be the immediate reduction of that city. In this case you will proceed according to my former instructions, applicable to the case of a successful siege. But if the fall of the city should not be the immediate consequence of the supposed victory in the field, you will propose to Tippoo Sultaun, at whatever period of time you may deem most expedient, the preliminary articles marked B, from which you will not depart.

If the person of the Sultaun should fall into your hands after any action with his aimy, you will not on that account delay your maich to his capital

You will observe, from the whole tenor of my instructions, that it is my decided opinion, that no treaty can be safely concluded with Tippoo Sultaun until your army shall either be in actual possession of his capital, or shall command the effectual means of securing its reduction

I take this opportunity of suggesting to you the indispension of never admitting any vakeels from Tippoo Sultaum within the precincts of your camp. If any conferences shall become necessary, they must always be holden at such a distance flom your lines as to pieclude the possibility of any effect of the treachery of the enemy

I am, &c

MORNINGTON

No CXLVIII

The Earl of Mornington to the Earl of Macariney, Governor of the Cape of Good Hope

My LORD, Fort St George, 26th Feb 1799

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Lordship's letters of the 11th and 18th of September, and of the 18th of October The Sceptre, conveying the transports from the Cape, arived here on the 7th of January, with the troops under the command of General Band. Owing to the heavy sailing of two of the transports, a considerable part of the Scotch brigade did not arrive until some days after the convoy. They reached this place in sufficient time, however, to join the grand aimy, and they now form a part of General Harriss force in the field. This seasonable reinforcement, the timely aimiral of which must be attributed to the alacity and vigour of your Lordship's Government, has not only placed the safety of these possessions beyond the reach of all immediate danger from the enemy, but will, I tust, enable me to obtain effectual security from him against any advantages which he might have expected to derive hereafter from his alliance with the Eread.

I have sent the 84th to Bombay to reinforce that garri-

The reports of the state of the French army in Egypt since the victory of Bekir are so vague and containation; that it difficult to draw any certain conclusion from them It appears, however, that the French army is not yet destroyed No authentic advices from the Red Sea have been received by me since the 26th of August, and I am, therefore, ignorant whether Commodore Blankett has yet reached his station, but whatever may be the state of affairs in that quarter, the early measures which I adopted for the defence of India, added to your Lordship's assistance, preclude all apprehension of any mischief

By this despatch I have transmitted to Mi. Secietary Barnard an abstract of the state of political affairs in India, which will apprize your Lordship of the circumstances of our actual situation with respect to Tippoo Sultaun and the other country powers

In consequence of your Lordship's recommendation, I have shown every mark of civility and attention to Captain Michell Although it was not in my power to comply with your Lordship's wishes, in his favour, by grung him a Company's fieight home I have been enabled to allow him to take in capco, on private account, under certain regulations lately established in Bengal, this indulgence will, I taust, secure him against any possibility of loss by his voyage from the Cape to this place I have, at his particular request, permitted him to touch at the Cape

I have the honour to be, &c.

Mornington

No CXLIX

The Earl of Mornington to Colonel William Palmer

(Private)

SIR.

Fort St George, March 3d, 1799

I employ this private mode of communication for the purpose of informing you of a circumstance which has just now come to my knowledge

An original letter from Ambajee Scindiah's principal commander in Hindostan has been found amongst the papers of Vizier Ali, which were taken at the attack of Mahdoo Doss's Garden, from which it appears that a treaty has been secretly concluded by Ambajee, on the part of Dowlut Rao Scindiah, with Vizier Ali

The agents which have negotiated this treaty, on the part of Viziei Ali, are Hakeem Namdai Khan, and Kamgai Khan, and Iolah Induman

The teaty itself is not in possession of Government, but from the letter from Ambage, and from the letters from Kamgai Khan, Namdai Khan, and other papers belonging to Vizier Ah, there can be no doubt that the pimerpal objects of this treaty are of the most hostile nature to the Company, and that they are proposed to be accomplished by placing Vizier Ah on the Musmid of Oude, by means of the assistance of Scindiah, and by the establishment of an union of interests between Scindiah and Vizier Ah

You will be cautious not to disclose your knowledge of this cincumstance to any person whatever, but you will endeavour, consistently with this caution, to obtain every information which may tend to throw light on the motives and objects of this flagmant act of treachery on the part of Dowlut Rao Scindiah, and you will keep a vigilant eye on all his pioceedings, giving the eai hest information of them to me, to the Government of Foit William, and to the Resident at Hyder-

The papers which have reached me from Calcutta do not enable me to ascertain the precise time when the negotiation with Ambaiee was reduced to the form of a treaty, but it appears that the negotiation commenced some months mevious to Ambaiee's airival at the city of Muttia, for the puipose of arranging the affairs of Scindiah in Hindostan, and that it terminated in a treaty either during the residence of Ambajee at the city of Muttia, or shortly after his departure from thence. The considerable force now under the command of Sir James Craig, will remain assembled on the frontier of Oude, and I should hope that the knowledge of that on cumstance would prevent Scindiah or Ambaree from making any movements, of a hostile tendency, to the interests of the Company There is every reason to suppose, by the last accounts from Oude, that the person of Vizier Ali will soon be apprehended, not is there the least ground for entertaining any alaim with respect to the number or character of his adherents

The amy, under the command of General Hanis, will enter Mysore in the course of a few days, and the general appearance of encumstances in that quaiter, affords me every reason to hope that I shall soon be at liberty to take effectual measures for fust ating the designs of Dowlut Rao Scindah. It is possible, however, that, in the interval the lashness and violence of his character may impel him to make some attempt either against the Peishwa or the Nizam. You will endeavour to give the earhest intimation of any symptom which you may be able to discover of such a disposition on his part.

On the flight of Vizier Ah from Benaues, I addressed letters to all the neighbouring powers of Hindostan, requiring them respectively to deliver up to justice the person of the assassin, in case it should fall into their hands. Amongst others, a letter was despatched to Ambayee, as the principal officer of Dowlit Rao Scindiah on the spot I enclose a copy of my letter to Ambayee, which I desse you will communicate to Dowlit Rao Scindiah, together with my request, that he will despatch such orders to Ambayee as shall promote the will despatch such orders to Ambayee as shall promote the object of my letter to the latter I do not expect that this communication will lead to any disclosure of Scindiah's real sentiments with respect to Vizier Ah, but it may be useful with a view to the effectual concealment of my knowledge of Somdah's treachery, and may tend to quiet his apprehensions, and to pievent his motions, until a favourable moment shall arrive for calling him to account. In communicating the letter in question to Dowlut Rao Sandiah, you will express my confident expectation, that Vizier Ah will be apprehended and brought to justice before he can reach the dominions of Sandiah, and you will endeavour to impress Dowlut Rao with a just idea of the insignificance and weakness of Vizier Ah, whose only claims to notice are to be found in the atoctous depravity of his disposition, and in the execuable enomity of his crimes

I am, &c
Mornington

No CL

The Earl of Mornington to Captain Kirkpatrick

(Private)

Sir,

Fort St George, March 3d, 1799

I enclose for your information a copy of my letter of this date to the Resident at Poonah, and I recommend the important intelligence which it contains to your most serious attention, relying on your discretion for an exact observance of the same secreey which I have enjoined Colonel Palmer to observe It does not appear to me advisable, in the present moment, to hazard the disclosure of Scindiah's views, in then full extent, to Azım ul Omıa, but I think it would be highly necessary, in my name, to point that minister's particular attention to the probability of some attempt on the part of Dowlut Rao Scindiah against the Nizam's territories, during the progress of our operations against Seringapatam this view, it will be prudent to assemble whatever force can be collected in his Highness's dominions at the station which may be deemed best calculated for resisting any such attack, observing, as far as may be practicable, the necessary caution of concealing the quarter from which danger is apprehended

You have been already apprized of the embassy which I have despatched to the Rajah of Berai The moment appears to approach when the advantage to be derived from the connection with the Court of Nagpore may become highly important in the scale of our political relations It would be desnable to cement this connection through the means of the Court of Hyderabad, and perhaps, ultimately, to form a de fensive alliance, of which Scindiah as well as Tippoo should be the object To such an alliance (if it were possible to anticipate any vicissitude of the mesolute and capricious pohey of Baagy Rao) it might be supposed that he would rea dily accede, the advantages of it to his power and authority being obvious and considerable, indeed it is difficult to foresee any other issue to the present distractions of the Government of Poonah than the total 1 uin of the Peishwa's authority and power, or the reduction of Scindiah's influence and force and it is equally evident, that the Peishwa can never obtain the means of effecting such a reduction without the assistance of the Nizam and of the British force Until the war with Mysore shall be brought to a conclusion, it will not be mudent to undertake any hostile operations against Scindiah. and it must depend upon the nature of his views, as well as of his means of carrying them into effect at the conclusion of the war with Mysore, whether it may be necessary or expedient to tuin our arms against him

If he should pursue his piesent pendious and unpinicipled course, every consideration, both of justice and policy, will require us to take the most effectual measures for the reduction of his power, and as no improvement can ieasonably be expected in the character of his policy, we must now lay the foundations of such a system as may enable us to defeat his unwainantable and destinctive views I enclose a letter for Mi Colebiooke, Readent at Nagpoie, which I have left open for your perusal, and of which a copy shall be sent to you by the flist opnortunity

I am, &c
Mornington.

No. CLI

The Earl of Mornington to H Colebrooke, Esq. Resident with the Rayah of Berar, Nagpore

[Enclosed in the Governor General's letter to Captain Kirkpatrick of the 3rd March, 1799]

SIR,

With this letter you will receive copies of my private despatches of this date to the Residents at Poonah and Hyderabad

You will understand the injunctions of secrecy contained in those despatches to apply to yourself, as well as to those to whom they are immediately addressed

My we bal instructions to you on youn departure from Fot William, puoceeded no fur ther than to dheet you to endeavour to ascertain and report to me the character, disposition, views and interests of the Rajah of Berar, the nature and extent of his resources and military force, and the best means of availing ourselves of his alliance, in the event of hostilities, either with Zemanu Shah or Tippoo Sultain.

The local position of the Rajah's territories appears to render him a peculiarly serviceable ally against Dowlut Rao Scindish, if the progress of that chief's imjustifiable designs should induce a necessity of reducing his power in Hindostan

The enclosed letters will afford sufficient proof of the probability of such a contingency, against which early precautions must be taken.

I, therefore, wish you to turn your attention immediately to the consideration of a treaty of defensive alliance, against the detected projects of Scindiah, between the Rajah of Beran, the Nizam, and the Company, with power to the Peishwa to accede to it wheneve he shall think fit.

The fundamental principle of the treaty should be a reciprocal guarantee of the respective possessions of the contracting powers, including the rights of their allies.

However evident the hostile designs of Scindiah may be, in the actual state of affans, it is not prudent to propose to the Rajah of Berar, or even to the Peishwa or to the Nizam, a treaty of defence nominally against Scindiah Even the pelmanay measures for ascertaming the disposition of the Rajah of Bena on this subject, must be taken with the great-est caution. The object of our apprehension should appear to be Tippoo Sultaun, and although "any other enemy of the contracting powers" may be named in general terms, no suggestion should yet be given by which the name of Semdah could be bought into question. The Rajah of Bena, as an estate of the Malnatta empine, is a party to our defensive engagements with the Peishwa against Tippoo Sultaun. But these engagements do not preclude a more particular connection, founded on the same basis, and directed to the same senseal objects.

A teaty might, therefore, be proposed to the Rajab, the immediate and ostensible object of which should be to strengthen and define his defensive engagements against Tippoo Sulfaun, but the tenus of which should be such as to admit the insettion of Scindiah's name, if such a measure should become necessary previously to the conclusion of the treats.

With these suggestions in your mind, I wish you to proceed to collect such information as may be safely attainable concerning the degree of assistance which we might expect from the Rajah of Berai in any contest with Seindiah, and I desire you also to commence the negotiation of a treaty grounded on the principles which I have stated You with take care not to encourage any sentiment in the mind of the Rajah incompatible with the feudatory duties which he owes to the Peishwa I have no leason to believe that he now entertains any sentiment of this nature, but I warn you against the possible effects of any such disposition

You will omt no endeavout to facilitate the intercourse between Nagpose and Hydea abad, and you will regularly tansmut copies of all your despatches to me to the Resident at the Nizam's Court, with whom it might also be desirable that you should open a private correspondence You will transmut to the Government at Fort William copies of all your despatches to me

I am, &c.
Mornington

No. CLII

(Private)

So Almed Clarke to the Earl of Mornington

MY DEAR LORD,

Fort William, March 5th, 1799

Your letter of the 19th last, reached me on the 3rd instant, and relieved my mind extremely by the manner in which you mentioned the progress of the aimy, and the extent of the provision that the supply of treasure sent from hence afforded it, as I was very apprehensive lest the delay of its arrival at Madras should have been attended with serious inconvenience *Cooke made a more expeditious voyage from the mouth of the liver than we expected, and he seems to have moved with redoubled alaciity in pursuit of the enemy you heard of, and that he afterwards learnt was blocking up this post, and capturing our vessels at the Sand-heads, where he met with the formidable ship La Forte on the night of the 28th, and took her after an engagement of one hour and forty minutes The action was highly honorable to him, and the British navy, and in these points of view must be gratifying to us all, but alas ! the melancholy cloud that is thrown over the bright prospect by the severe, if not mortal wound that our truly gallant friend has received, and the loss of that worthy officer, Captain Davis, of your Lordship's family who accompanied him, has cast a ciuel gloom on the spirits of every one, and grieved me to a degree that I cannot describe, but which I have reason to think your own feelings will enable you to estimate

My dear Lord, with great truth and esteem, Your most obedient,

And most faithful humble servant.

ALURED CLARKE

VOL I 2 I

^{*} Captain Cooke, of his Majesty's ship the Sybille, who was sent by the Governor General in pursuit of the La Forte He was an officer of the highest merit, he died of the wounds received in this gallant action

No CLIII

(Private.)

So Almed Clarke to the Earl of Mornington

My DEAR LORD, Fort William, March 8th, 1799

The vexatious conduct of the Burmahs on our eastern frontier, where we were so slenderly provided with troops, and the check we met with on the attack of one of then posts, has given me some uneasmess. I, therefore, on finding the 76th regiment could be left with us, determined to send part of the 1st european regiment to Chittigong by sea. with a few pieces of heavier ordnance than was there before. in order to force their stockades, which were too strong for hight artillery, if that should become necessary, and to put the whole under the command of Major General Deare, and an angements were making for it, but yesterday we received an account of the Burmahs having evacuated then works with an intention to quit our territories, leaving letters, sealed up in bamboos, attached to poles bearing flags, directed for our Commanding officer, copies of which with the lest of the correspondence shall be sent to you What then real intentions may be it is difficult to know, but these strange letters manifest a determination to persevere in the recovery of the Mugg refugees, who they say we protect, and withhold from them contrary to right and justice, and that there can be no peace between them and the English, while the Muggs and we are one I, therefore, still think it night to send the additional ordnance and stores, with a smaller detachment of Europeans than I at first intended, as they can easily be brought back if not wanted, and General Deare will have orders to examine the country thoroughly, and report his opinions of the best posts, and fittest means to afford it protection against the incursions of these people, by either land or water in future

I am, with true respect and esteem,
My dear Lord, your most obedient
And most faithful humble servant,

ALURED CLARKE.

No CLIV

Lieut -General Stuart to the Earl of Mornington

My LORD.

Seedanore, 8th March, 1799

I had the honour to address your Lordship on the 20th ultimo, and having marched from Cananoic on the following day, agreeably to my intimation of that date. I arrived at the top of Pooducherum Ghaut, on the 25th of the same month

I informed your Lordship, that it was my intention to assume a defensive position close to the frontiers, and there await, in conformity to General Harris's instructions under the 24th of December, his further orders

In pursuance of this plan I moved the corps successively forward, and placed them in such situations, as might enable me the most promptly, to form the proposed function with the principal aimy.

On the 2nd instant, the night brigade consisting of three native battalions under the command of Lieut -Colonel Montresor, took up then ground at Seedasere, the boundary of the Coorga country, and about seven miles distant from Perianatam

The main body of the aimy, with the park and provisions, remained at Seedapore and Ahmootenaar, the first eight miles and the latter twelve, from the advanced position

It may be necessary to inform your Lordship, that I was in some measure compelled from the nature of the country, which is every where covered by thick jungle, to place the army in several divisions, but I had a further view in occupying the post at Seedaseie, in oider to preserve a more ready communication with General Hairis, as this was the only spot from whence the signals established between the two armies could be observed Although I had no leason to apprehend any immediate attack, I thought it advisable to adopt the precaution of encamping the corps at such short distances, as would either enable me to move without much loss of time into the enemy's territory, or to support, if occasion should require it, any quarter that might stand in need of assistance

In the course of the morning of the 5th, an extensive encampment was unexpectedly observed to be forming on this side of the fort of Peiapatam This circumstance was discovered at 10 o'clock in the forenon, as the enemy were taking up then ground, by a party of obscivation on the summit of the high hill of Seedassie, which commands a row of the Mysole almost to the environs of Seringapatam Before the evening, this encampment assumed a very formidable appearance and covered a great extent of ground

We were able to count from 3 to 400 tents, amongst the number some of large dimensions were distinguished, and narticularly one of a green colour, that seemed to denote the presence of the Sultaun However much the probability of of this circumstance might be strenghtened by the respectable appearance of the encampment, it was contradicted by the evidence of two huncariahs, who had recently arrived from Seringapatam These men generally reported, that Tippoo had marched with all his forces on the 20th ultimo, to oppose the progress of the Madras army, and that the Benky Nabob commanded the only force in the field, that remained in the neighbourhood of Seringapatam This force was represented to be encamped at Caneambaddy and to consist of 5000 Piadas or irregular infantry, who were said to be intended as a covering party to 7000 Brinjaries, and directed to bing as much provisions, as they could collect about Perianatam to the capital

In this state of uncertainty, I thought it paident to temforce Lieut-Colonel Montieson's brigade with an additional battalion of Sepoys, and waited for more correct intelligence, which I expected houlty, to act with the whole of my forces as affairs might render necessary

On the monning of the 6th, Major General Hartley went forward to recommonte, and at break of day from the hill of observation, the whole of the enemy's army was discovered to be m motion, but their movements were so well concealed by the woodness of the country and the haziness of the atmosphere, that it was impossible to ascertain their object, nor in fact was this discovered, until they had penetiated a considerable way in the jungle, and commenced an attack upon our line, which happened between the hours of 9 and 10

The enemy pieced through the jungles with such surety and expedition, that they attacked the rear and the front of our line almost at the same instant This despatch prevented more than three of our cops being engaged, as the fourth, which was posted two miles and a half in the real, was unable to form a junction, from the enemy having cut in between them and Seedasere The communication was effectually obstituted by a column, which, according to the reports of our pisoners, consisted of upwards of 5000 men under the command of Baber June

Fortunately before the enemy had accomplished their purpose, Major General Hartley had time to appuse me of their attack, and remained himself to give any assistance that might be necessary. The best position was assumed for repulsing the enemy, and in this alianing situation the copie defended themselves with so much resolution, that the Sultaun's troops were unable to make any impression. The brigade was on every side completely suirounded, and had to contend against a vast dispanity of numbers, besides other discouraging cucumstances.

As soon as I received intelligence of the penilous situation of the right brigade, I manched to their assistance with the two flank companies of his Majesty's 75th regiment and the whole of the 77th, I arrived about half past two in sight of the division of the enemy, who had penetiated into the rear, and possessed themselves of the great road leading to Seedaseic. The engagement lasted nearly half an hour, when after a smart fine of musketry on both sides, the enemy were completely routed, and fied with precipitation tho ugh the jungles to regain then column, which still continued the attack in front. On arriving at Lieut-Colonel Montresor's post, I found his men exhausted with fatigue, and then ammunition almost expended. At 20 minutes past 3 the enemy retreated mall directions.

For this decisive, and, I hope your Loidship will allow, brilliant success, considering the small number of thoops who engaged, under very great disadvantages, probably the flower of Thippo Sultam's army, I feel myself peculiarly indebted to the judicious disposition for defence made by General Hattley. He embiaced the opportunity of observing the motions of the enemy from the hill, I have above mentioned, and was thus enabled to advise Lieut.-Colonel Monticson of the best method for defeating them. I beg leave also to inform your Loidship, that my best thanks, are due to Lieut-Colonal. Montieson for his very active exertions, and to the officers and men, including the atillery of his brigade, for their galant and steady behaviour throughout the whole of this aduous affair Lieut-Colonel Dunlop and the European division under his command, are hkewise entitled to my particular approbation for their spirited conduct, which finally routed the enemy

Our loss on this occasion is far less than could reasonably have been expected, and I have the honour to enclose for your Lordshm's information a return of this circumstance

It was impossible to ascentain the exact loss sustained by the enemy, but it must have been heavy, as in the course of so long an action they were often exposed in crowds to the fite of grape shot and volhes of musquety Serval men of distinction were killed, and some wounded officers have been made pisoners. I have the honor to enclose the information of Mozdin Khan Bhukhishy and the Commanden of a Kutchery, the pisoner of greatest rank, who has fallen wounded into our hands, but concurring reports state that Meer Ghôrd is amongst the slam.

As the allival of General Harlis at Selingapatam will not happen at so early a period, as he first intended, the immediate possession of the post of Seedasere was no longer an object of such consequence, and to retain it, while Tippoo continued in force at Periapatam, became an affair of serious difficulty The secresy and expedition, with which he had planned his late enterprise, and the correct intelligence, that the leaders of his columns appeared to have obtained of the private routes through the Coorga numgles, led to an opinion. that he would not remain satisfied with this abortive attempt, but might endeavour to penetrate by another direction to the southward, still more open than the passage of Seedasere, where he would only be opposed by Coorgs This consideration derived a greater weight, as if he succeeded in forcing this entiance, it would throw him into our rear and put him in all probability in possession of the great depôt of rice collected by the Coorga Rajah These motives have induced me to relinquish the post at Seedasere, and to collect the whole of my force at this place. I have accordingly made a disposition, either to defend my position against the Sultann. if he should again adventure to attack it, or to move in defence of any part of the Coorga Rajah's territories that the enemy may threaten, provided it shall endanger our magazine of provisions, otherwise I shall remain on the defensive, until I receive advice from General Hairis

Since the action of the 6th, the enemy have continued in their camp at Penispatam, non have I any intelligence either of the Sultaun's designs, or of the motives, that induced him to undertake his present enterprise. It is not likely that he will remain longer in this neighbourhood, than after he receives mitelligence of General Harris having entered the Mysore

As my communication with General Hairis is become insesure, I must take the liberty of requesting your Loidship to inform him of such part of these particulars as may appear to you necessary

I have the honout to subscribe myself most respectfully, My Lord, your Lordship's

Most obedient humble servant

J STUART

PS By some pusones, who have been just now brought in by the Cooga Rajah's people I am informed, that the loss of the enemy was voy great, and that many men of the first distinction fell They mention Seyed or Meer Ghofia and the Binky Nabob, who led the center attack among the killed It is added, however, that the Sultaun is collecting more forces, and is deterimined to make a second attack

No CLV

(Private and Secret)

The Earl of Mornington to Lieut -General Sir Almed Clarke

My DEAR SIR,

Fort St George, 8th March, 1799

- 1 A letter received to day from Mr Bailow, enclosing an extract of news from Ambajee's camp, of the 4th and 5th of February, appears to require that I should funnish you with a patitudial statement of my sentiments, with regard to the distribution and conduct of our military force on the north western frontier of Oude
 - 2 In every private letter which I have written to you since the retreat of Zemaun Shah appeared probable, I have unformly desired that a respectable force should be maintained on that fiontier, with a view to check the possible designs of Dowlist Eap Somdub.

- on that nontier, with a view to eneck the possible designs of Dowlut Rao Sendiah

 3 I am persuaded, therefore, that notwithstanding the separation of Sir James Craig's army, you have still left a considerable body of troops in the viemity of those districts, which would probably become the theatic of war in the event of hostithies with Sendiah, or with those who command his
- army in Hindostan

 4. The papers found in Vizier Ali's house after his flight, leave no doubt that Ambayee has concluded a treaty with Vizier Ali of a tendency evidently hostile to the Nabob Vizier, and to the Company, and Semdah must be responsible for the acts of Ambayee, who is his avowed Lieutenant, and who refers directly to his authority in the papers relating to the treaty with Vizier Ali.
- 5 It is unfortunate and unaccountable, that the Magistiate of Benaies, should not have followarded to Calcutta at a much eather period the papers relating to this treaty, nearly a month has been lost by this stange and censuiable delay mught have been of fittal consequence. One evil has already anisen from it, which however I trust may soon be remedied, I mean the dispersion of Su James Cinag's aimy, a measure which would not have been recommended by me not adopted by you, if we had been in possession of the papers of Vizici Ah.
- 6 My wish is, that you should without delay leassemble in Oude, such a force as you may deem adequate to the object of checking not only the army now under the Command of Ambajee, but eventually the whole of Scindiah's force, if that Chief should leturn into Hindostan You will also keep in view, the piobability of early offensive operations against the dominions of Scindiah
- 7 The reassembling of the army may possibly alaim Anbagee and Scindiah, and an explanation may be demanded of the motives of such a step. You will secribe it to the escape of Vizier Ali from Benares, to the probability of his attempting to Join Zeinaun Shah, and to the consequences which that event might produce.

- 8 The force being assembled, which you may deem necessary for the accomplishment of the stated objects, you will regulate its operations according to the following suggestions
- 9 If Ambajee on Semdiah, or any part of the forces of either, should commence actual hostilities against the Company or the Nabob Vizier, or should make any movement evidently of an hostile nature against the possessions of either, you will of course iepel the aggression, and you will further take such steps as may appear most likely to distress the enemy, limiting, however, the operations of the aimy to the countries situated within the Dooab, with the exception of the City of Agra which you will seize, if it should appear advisable to possess it
- 10 If hostilities should commence in the manner supposed in the pieceding pasagaphs, you will use every endeavour to excite the Rapposts and other tributaries against Scindiah, and to induce the Rajahs of Jynagur and Jodopoie to enter zealously into the war, you will at the same time take the proper steps for supporting and encouraging the excitons of the patizans of the Bhyes and Luikwaje Dada, together with all persons in the family or service of Scindiah, who may be disaffected to his Government.
- 11 By remaining within the Dooab, (undet the exception stated, with respect to the city of Agia.) you will afford more effectual protection to the possessions of the Vizier and of the Company than you could expect to furnish, if your army were to advance further into the hereditary dominions of Scindish, where, as well as in his possessions between the Chumbul and the Jumna, he will be sufficiently distressed by the operations of the Rajpoots and of other internal, and domestic enemies.
- 12 Unless the possession of Delhi should be deemed absolutely essential from military considerations, the operations of our army should not be directed against that city Whatever advantages might be expected in any collateral view from that possession, the political embarrassments which must be the immediate consequence of its falling into our hands are so numerous and inextincable, as to rende me peculiarly auxious to avoid the possibility of such an event
 - 13 The movement of Ambajee into Scindiah's possessions

in the Dooab, would become suspicious in proportion to the magnitude of the force employed in a position so favorable to the invasion of Oude And if the whole or the greater part of the army of Amhaiee should pass the Jumna, with whatever motive, no doubt will asise in my mind, that, with the knowledge which we possess of the engagements existing between Ambaice and Vizier Ali, the justice of our attacking the former under such circumstances would be incontrovertible. I am equally satisfied of the policy of reducing the power of Scindiah, whenever the opportunity shall appear advantageous But while Scindish shall remain in the Deccan, and while our armies shall be engaged in war with Tippoo Sultaun, Scindiah will possess considerable means of embarrassing us in that quarter, for this reason it is extremely desuable to avoid hostilities with him until either his return to Hindostan, or a peace with Tippoo Sultain shall place our affans in a condition, which may enable us to punish the treachery of Scindiah with more effect. I consider the ninction of Scindiah's aimy with that of Ambaiee, even if then combined object should evidently be the attack of Oude, as an event much less formidable to us in the present moment. than the consequences to be apprehended from the operations of Scindiah's aimy alone, either at Poonah, in the dominions of the Nizam, or in Mysore Notwithstanding, therefore, the just suspicions which would arise from the arrival in the Dooab of the whole or of the greater part of Ambaree's force, hostilities must not be considered as the necessary consequence of such a movement

I4 If, however, that movement should be evidently connected with a design of invading the possessions of the Nabob Vizier, and of the Company, and if the success of such a movement would essentially facilitate the prosecution of that design, self defence must require you to anticipate the projects of the enemy by the seasonable commencement of boxphites.

15 But you will never forget, that every consideration of policy should induce us to abstain from hosthities with Scindink in the piesent moment, and you will accordingly give the stongest caution to the officer who shall command the army to be assembled in Oude, not to proceed to extremity unless the safety of our possessions, or of those of the Vizier should absolutely demand the attack of Ambaiee's army If Vizier Ali should effect his escape and should be received by Ambaice, previously to the arrival of the latter in the Dooah, you will demand the delivery of Vizier Ali's person according to the established mactice of all civilized nations, which authorizes the demand of the persons of assassins and 10bbers flying from justice The refusal of Ambaice is not in this case, however, to be deemed a sufficient ground of hostility But if Ambaice shall airive in the Dooab with the whole or with the greater part of his army, if Vizier Ali in that position should accompany Ambajee's forces, and Ambajee under such cucumstances shall refuse to deliver him up to the Company's Government, I authorize you to commence hostilities against Ambajee In any case in which hostilities shall be commenced you will understand it to be my wish, that they should be prosecuted according to the principles stated in paragraphs 9, 10, 11, 12, of this letter

16 If Semdah should return to Hindostan from the Deccan, and on any pretence should enter the Dooah with his whole army, or with a considerable part of it, such a step would be so evident a proof of his design to fulfil his engagements with Vizier Ah, that I have no hesitation in authorizing you in this case to commence hostilities without delay.

I am, &c &c,
Mornington

No CLVI

Lieut -Colonel Read to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord,

Camp near Ryakota, 12th March, 1799

I have patitudia satisfaction in acquanting you. Loudship, that I have just returned from the aimy, after having delivered over 25,000 loads of different articles of supply in safety, which upon a calculation delivered into General Hairis, appears to be a month's provision for 30,000 fighting men and 40,000 followers

My Lord, your Lordship's,

Most obedient humble servant,

Alexander Read

No. CLVII

From the Governor General to Hausee Khulleel

Fort St George, 15th March, 1799

I have been informed, by the honorable Mr Duncan, of the zeal you have manifested in promoting the success of the concerns entrusted to Mehedy Alı Khaun, which has afforded me great pleasure and satisfaction I entertain a high sense of these your landable endeavours, and, considering you as a sincere friend and well wisher of the English, I look with confidence to expenence, still further, the benefits of this good disposition in the continuance of your labours and exertions. May the Almighty daily add to the number and celebrity of your good qualities I beg you to consider me at all times solicitous for your welfare, and desnous of your attachment As a testimony of the satisfaction which your conduct has offorded me. I have transmitted a Khelant for you through Mehedy Ah Khaun. You will no doubt consider it as a mark of my sincere regard, and continue disposed, as hitherto, to promote the service of the British nation For further particulars I refer you to Mr Duncan's letters

No CLVIII

The Earl of Mornington to Rear Admiral Rainier

Sir.

Fort St George, 16th March, 1799

While I offer you my most condual congustulations on an event so honousable to your command, and to the reputation of the Birtish aims in India, as the captine of the French fingule La Forte by the Sybille, it is with inexpressible soniow that I condole with you on the probable [I fear almost certain fate of the gallant and able officer who has so buillandly distinguished himself on this occasion. My pain ticular linendship for him will reade his loss a most serious object of regret to me I am still willing to flatter myself that his wounds may not prove mortal, and his having survived the action so long, affords a faint ray of hope that he may not be lost to his friends and to his country. Captain Davies was one of my

Aides-de-Camp and Foit-Adjutant at Foit William He obtained my permission to accompany Captain Cooke as a volunteer

I take this opportunity of recommending again to your serious consideration the necessity of stationing some of your strongest ships at Bombay as soon as the navigation of the Red Sea shall be opened The necessity of this suggestion would become less ungent if you should soon learn that Commodore Blankett had reached his station, and was superior to the enemy in that quarter, or if you should receive authentic accounts of the destruction of the French army in Egypt But in any event the garrison of Bombay has been so much neduced by the necessary drafts for the coast of Malabar. that it would be extremely desnable to protect the harbour of Bombay during the whole of the approaching monsoon by a strong naval force I have already stated to your Excellency, in a former despatch, that this is an object of great anxiety to the Government at home, and all the consideration which I have been enabled to give to the subject, induces me to take the liberty of adding my opinion to thens, and of submitting the matter to your judgment with an anxious hope that it may appear to you in the same light in which I have viewed it If your Excellency should intend any distribution of your force, founded on the principle which I have stated, an early communication of it to the Government of Bombay would tend to quiet then alaims

I have the honour to be, &c
Morningion

No CLIX

The Marquis Corni allis to the Earl of Mornington

My DEAR LORD,

Dublin Castle, March 18th, 1799

I little thought when we parted that my flist letter to you would have been dated from this place, but my evil stas have determined that I never should enjoy quiet or comfort, and after icheving me flom what I then thought a painful task, (a second embar kation for India) have divern me into a situation ten times more aiduous, and in every respect more intolerable You have many fitends that will send you Itish news, and as I can say nothing on the melanchloj situation of this unhappy country that can affold you satisfaction, I shall not enter into a detail of our calamities. Your letter, dated July 5th, gave me much concein from the account you give of your health, the failure of which is the only thing which alaims me about youiself or your government, in all other respects I have no doubt of your complete success.

With the most sincere good wishes for your welfare, power and happiness,

I am, my dear Lord, Most truly yours, Cornwallis

No CLX

The Earl of Mornington to the Rendent at Poonah

SIR,

Fort St George, 19th March, 1799

The attempt of the Cout of Poonah to divert the servaces of the detachment, undet the command of Leutenant-Colonel Lattle, from then proper object, does not surprize me It is consistent with the policy which for some time past has directed its conduct towards the British Government You will continue steadily to resist the attempt whenever it may be enewed.

You will be pleased to funnsh me, as soon as possible, with as full and distinct an account of the Guyckwai family, and of the views and disposition both of the reigning Rajah and of the Court of Poonah, with respect to the succession to that principality, as you may be able to procure without beinging any extraordmary soluctude or curiosity on the subject

I am, &c &c
MORNINGTON

No CLXI

The Earl of Mornington to the Honourable the Court of Directors

Hon. Sirs, Fort St George, 20th March, 1799

My separate despatch, under date the 21st November, forwarded by the Eurydiece, will have apprized your Honourable Court of the measures which I took for the purpose of restoring to his Highness the Nizam the power of fulfilling his defensive engagements with the Company.

At the same time my endeavous were employed with equal assiduity to give vigou and effect to the treaties subsisting with his Highness the Peishwa The return of Nana Furnaveese to the administration afforded for some time a just expectation that our alliance with the Mahiattas would speedily be restored with additional vigour and advantage, but the mic easing distractions of the Mahiatta empire unfortunately frustrated the wise counsels of that experienced and able statesman, and disappointed my views at the Court of Poonah I had, however, the satisfaction to ascertain that the disposition of that Court, under the administration of Nana, continued perfectly favourable to the British interests, and that want of power would be the sole cause of its innection in the event of a was with Tippoo Sultam

From the moment of my arrival at Fort St George all the inhabitants of this settlement, and every officer, civil and military, appeared to be animated by an unanimous determination to discharge their respective duties with a degree of cheerfulness and ardour correspondent with the exigency and importance of the occasion, and I was soon satisfied that the disposition, of which I lamented the appearance in the months of July and August, had either been subdued by the just exercise of authority, or corrected by reflection, and by the more full disclosure of the views of the enemy The zeal, alacrity, and public spirit of the bankers and commercial agents at Madias, as well as of the most respectable of your civil servants at this Presidency, enabled me, within a few weeks, to raise a large sum of money, by loan, for the public service Previous to my departure from Bengal, I had remitted twenty lacs of jupees in specie for the use of this Presidency, I now despatch the Sybbile to Calcutta for a further supply, and the extraordimay evertion of his Excellency the Vice-President in Council, assisted by the dhigence and ability of Mr Thomas Myeis, the Accountant-General of Bengal, finnished me with an additional and of twenty lacs within so short a time, that the movement of the aimy was not delayed for an instant on account of a deficiency of treasure, and Leutenant-General Hauts was provided with a sufficient supply of specie to maintain his aimy in the field until the month of Max.

Tippo Sultaun remaining silent for a considerable time, after the receipt of my letter of the 9th of January, I concluded that his object must be to delay his answer until the season should be so far advanced as to render the capture of Seinganatam immatchable during the present vear

In the mean while the advices from Bussorah, Bagdad, Constantanople, and Bombay were of so uncertain a nature as to leave me still in doubt with respect to the condition of the French aimy in Egypt, the only safe conclusion which could be drawn from those advices being, that the French still mamtained the possession of that county with a large aimy

No intelligence had been received from the Red Sea respecting the anival of any of his Majesty's ships on that station, nor had I been able to ascertain, with any degree of accuracy, what means the French might either have provided, or might find on the spot to enable them to reach the Sultain's dominions

In addition to these cucumstances, I knew that, while

Thypoo Sultaun had declined to receive an ambassador from the Honourable Company, and had omitted to sanswer my late letters, he had despatched native vakeels from Seringapatim, who, togethei with M Du Buc, (one of the leaders of the French force, isased in the Isle of France under M Malaitic's proclamation) were on the point of embasking at Tranquebau with an avowed mission from the Sultaun to the Executive Directory of France

On the 3rd of February I had received no answer from the Sultaun to my letter of the 9th of January, although the communication between Seingapatam and Fort St George does not require, at the most, a longer time than eight, and is sometimes effected in frour, days In order, therefore, to defeat the object of the Sultaun's silence, and to avail myself of the actual superiority of our force, and of the advantages of the present season, before the French could effect any junction with him, I determined to commence hostlities without delay, and to suspend all negotiation, until the united forces of the Company and of then allies should have made such an impression on the territories of Mysore, as might give full effect to our just representations.

With these views, on the 3d of Febiuary, I directed Leut-Geneial Haris to enter the territory of Mysore with the aimy assembled under his command, and on the same day I issued orders to Lieut-Geneial Stuart, to be prepared to cooperate from Malabar, and I signified to Rear-Admial Raimer, and to the several allies of the Company, that I now considered the British Government in India to be at war with Timooo Sultain

At length, on the 13th of February, I received from Tippoo Sultain the letter marked No 7,8 mfoirming me, that, "being fequently disposed to make excursions and hunt," he was, "accordingly, proceeding upon a hunting excursion," and desiring that I would "despatch Major Doveton slightly attended." or "unattended"

But the season for negotiation, through the pacific channels, so often offered by me, was now elapsed After mature deliberation, on the grounds aheady stated, I had directed the advance of the army into the territory of the Sultaun. and I had signified to the allies my determination to proceed to hostilities To have delayed the advance of the army, would at once have thrown the advantages which I then possessed into the hands of Tippoo Sultaun, and have rendered the siege of his capital impracticable during the present sea-On the other hand, an embassy, combined with the hostile nruption of our army into Mysore, would have been hable to the imputation of insincerity towards Tippoo Sultaun, and while it boie the appearance of indecision in the eyes of the allies, would have promoted, and perhaps, warranted a similar degree of instability in their councils and operations

The design of this taidy, reluctant, and insidious assent to the admission of an embassy from the British Government could be considered in no other light than that of a new attifrice for the purpose of gaming time, until a change of cucumstances and of season might enable the Sultaun to avail limiself of the assistance of France. This conclusion was now confined by my knowledge of the actual embaskation of M Du Buc and two native vakeels on an embassy from Tippoo to the Executive Directory of France, an event which took place at Tanaquebia on the 7th of February

I, therefore, replied to the letter of Tippoo Sultaun in the terms of the enclosuse, No. 8,* in which I have declaired Lettert. General Hains to be the only person now authorized by me to receive and to answer whatever communications the Sultaun may think fit to make, with a rive to the restolation of peace on such conditions as appear to the allies to be mispensably necessary to their common security. This letter I directed General Hains to forward to the Sultaun, on the day on which the aimy under his command should pass the frontier, and at the same time I instructed him to issue, in the name of the allies, the accompanying declaration marked No. 9 †

^{*} See p 453

[↑] The following is a copy of the declaration —

The Proclamation of Lieut-General George Harris, Commander-an-Charley of all has Mugaty's and the Homounable Company's fonce on the coasts of Commandel and Malabon, to the Zemandas or Poigs are, Demonols, Depondues, Gunongeen, Nava query, Poetuls, Shandayous, and to all Amulders, Scrubiculous, Kelludurs, and other inhubitants of Musore, who skull recrease the Company's Coule

Whereas Typpoo Sultanu having concluded an oftensiv. alliance with the French, the unvetation tensience of the English, the Pesalwa, and the Nizam of Decan rejected all overtures on their pair for effecting an accommodation, and gruing pioofs that he only wated the arrival of the French to involve all India in a war, the allies have sent their armics into this country, under my command, to fusitate the ambitions designs, and to secure their possessions against the future attempts of such insidious enemies

These being the views of the allies, I come not to make was upon the defenceless inhabitants of this country, but to receive you under their protection, and promise you perfect sceniry under their government, faultitate the carrying these intentions into execution. Licuit Colonel Alexander Read, the same officer under whose administration you expe-

The Nizam's contingent consists of above 6000 of the Honourable Company's toops subsidized by his Highness, of about the same number of his own infantry, (including a propoint of M Peion's sepoys, now commanded by Biitish offices), and of a large body of cavalty

This foice, under the general command of Meet Allum, for med a junction with the British aim on the 19th Febru any and it is with the greatest satisfaction that I remark to your Honounable Court the beneficial effects which the Company has already derived from the recent improvement of our alliance with the Court of Hydenabad. The Nizam's contingent actually airwed in the viewint of Chitoto, in a state of preputation for the field, before General Harris was ready to proceed on his man ch from Vellore.

I have annexed to this despatch the last return of Lieut-General Harris's auny, previous to his passing the fiontier, an auny more completely appointed, more amply and liberally supplied in every department, or more perfect in its discipline, and in the acknowledged experience, ability, and zeal of its renered last was the benefits of a Bittsh Government, a signa appointed to supernited the affairs of all the districts dependent on Mysou that may be inclined by the aimes of the Benjish, and as a further indication these of, cooke flags shall be distributed over the country, and safe-gas sent to all the villages in the right properties. The secure the mhabitants from depredation

These measures being taken, and the allied aimies sufficiently powerful to afford all the districts in their reas effectual protection, you will remain in your villages, proceed in the cultivation of your lands, and enjoy all the blessings of profound peace

Benefiting so considerably by the liberal policy of the allies, it will become a duty on you part to ment their protection by seiring them as obelient subjects, and rendering them the dues of the Sirkin, in the exaction of which will be erinced that moderation and justice, which distinguish the Bittish from all the other nations of Europe in their conduct towards natives of India

The general good of the people under them being the study of their Government, it evidently follows, that, whoever shall render them particular services during the present war, such as siding Golonel Read in ascertaining the sources of the public rerenue, in regulating the police, in procuring supplies for the army, or in giving intelligence of the enemy's designs, may be suit of rewards suitable to the importance and success of their endeavous.

Written at Head Quarters, 5th March, 1799 officers, never took the field in India. The army on the coast of Malabai is in an equally efficient and respectable condition, and the extraordinaly efforts which have been made by Lieut. General Stuart and Major-General Hardley, seconded by the cordial attachment and uniemtting assidiately of the Rajah of Coorga, have collected within a very short period of time a supply so abundant, that I am induced to transmit the particulars of tito your Honou able Court, as a testimony of the distinguished menuts of those valuable officers, and of the loyalty and active exection of that faultful tributary of the Honou able Commany

A considerable force, under the command of Lieut -Colonels Read and Brown, will cooperate with Lieut -General Harris in the southern districts of the Carnatic and Mysore

Under these circumstances, General Harris entered the territory of Mysore on the 5th of March, with orders to proceed directly to Seringapatam

Having thus submitted to your Honourable Court, according to the order of dates, a detailed relation of the events which have led to the war in which we are actually engaged, and having declared to you the motives and objects of my conduct in every stage of this important transaction, I must request your permission to conclude this despatch, with such reflections as a lise in my mind from the review of my past measures, and from the prospect of their ultimate consequences and permanent effects

From the first disclosure of the native and object of Tippoo Sultain's embassy to the Isle of France, every principle of justice and policy demanded from your Govennment in India that an instantaneous effort should be made to reduce his power and resources before he could avail himself of the advantages of the alliance which he had concluded. The defect of means is the sole consideration which can justify me for not having made that effort at the early peniod when its success would have placed the security of your possessions on a foundation, which the invasion of India by a French force could not have impanied. For without the aid of some native power it is searcely possible that the French should ever make any perimanent impression on your empire in India, and no native power (excepting Tippoo Sultain) is so inflated as to be disposed to assist or icetery a French armst

The progress of events since the date of my orders of the 20th of June, 1798, has not only confirmed the principles of justice and policy, by which an attack upon the Sultaun was at that time demanded, but has manifested, that the designs of France as well as of the Sultaun, were of a much more extensive and formidable nature, than any which have ever been attempted against the British Empire in India, since the hour of its first foundation

While the magnitude and danger of these designs were gradually disclosed, I had the satisfaction to feel, that the means of aveiting them were augmenting in a proportion nearly equal by the success of the negotiations at Hyderabad, and by the progress of the military preparations which I had ordered throughout your possessions

At the commencement of the month of February the cursuaurived in which I was called upon to form my ultimate decision on the important question at issue with Tippoo Sultaun, and to determine the final result of the whole system of my measures

On the one hand, the apparent establishment of the French army in Egypt, and the uncertainty of the state of our naval power in the Red Sea, rendered the danger still urgent from that quarter, while Trippoo Sultaun's repeated evasions of my proposals for negotiation, combined with his embassy to the Evecutive Directory of France, under the conduct of M Du Buc, appeared to preclude all hope of detaching the Sultaun, from his recent alliance with the enemy. On the other hand, I now possessed ample means of flustrating he most dangerous effects of that alliance, by a seasonable application of the powerful force which the treachery and aggression of the Sultaun had compelled me to collect at a heavy expense to your finances.

You Honouable Court will detenmine whether in this state of affairs my orders of the 3rd of February were premature, and whether I should have been justified on the 13th of February in recalling those orders, for the purpose of admitting at that late period a negotiation, which would have enabled Tippoo Sultaun to defeat every object of the armament of the allies for the present season, and would have afforded him ample time to reap the full benefit of his conforded with a superior and the sum of the

nection with France before the season for besieging his capital

In deciding these important questions, you will necessarily consider, what degree of relance could be placed on the sincity of the Sultaun's disposition to conclude an amiciable adjustment with you Government at the very moment, when he had actually despatched on an embassy to the Executive Directory of Fiance the commander of the French toops, laised in the Mauritius and admitted into the Sultaun's service for the express purpose of carrying on a war of aggression against your possessions in India

The admitable condition of your armies on both coasts, and the unequalled perfection of their equipment in every department, added to the extraordinary spirit and animation with which the campaign has been opened, afford every cason to hope that the issue of the war will be speedy and prosperous, and that it must terminate in a considerable reduction of Trippo Sultain's iessuices and power

The wisdom of your Honomable Court will anticipate the extensive benefits which must result to your interests from an event now become essential to the peace and security of your possessions in India

The poley of the teaty of Seningapatam certainly was not to maintain Tippoo Sultain's power in such a state as should leave him a constant object of alarm and apprehension to the Company That he has been justly so considered for some years past, cannot be doubted by any petison acquainted with the records of any of you Governments in India The present is the second crists, within the last thee years, in which the Government General has thought it necessary to assemble the aim on the coast of Commandel for the sole purpose of checking his motions, and the apprehension of his intentions has obstructed our operations against our European enemies in India during the course of the piesent war

The continuance of Tippoo's power on its actual scale, and under such circumstances, must have proved to the Company a perpetual source of solicitude, expense, and hazaid But the engagements which he has contacted with the Fiench, the public proofs which he has given of his eagerness to receive in Mysoice as large as force as they can funish, combined with the prodigious magnitude of their preparations, and the moredbible progress of their aimy, evidently directed to the destruction of the British power in India, form new and prominent features in our political situation in this quarter of the would

Admitting the wisdom of that policy which dictated the preservation of Tippoo Sultaun's power, at the close of the last war with Mysore, the spirit of our present Councils must be accommodated to the variation of circumstances, and to the actual position, character, and views of our emmes

In such a conjuncture of affants I am persuaded that your honourable Court will be of opinion, that no object can be deemed so urgent, or so necessary to the safety of your possessions, as the effectual reduction of the only declared ally of Fiance now existing among the native nowers of India

If Tippoo Sultaun had been disposed to content himself with the quiet possession of his present dominions, if he could have been brought to a sense of his own peril in forming a connection with the French, the representations which I addressed to him would have produced an early and salutary impression, whatever speculative opinions might have been entertained with respect to his interests, views, and power, the justice and moderation of the British Government would never have disturbed his tranquility. But he resolved to attempt the recovery of his lost dominions at the hazard of those which he still retains, and, in the ardour of his passionate pursuit, he overlooked not only the certain destruction of his own independence (the inevitable consequence even of the most prosperous success of any alliance with France,) but also the predominant influence of the English East India Company, and the vigilance of its Governments, which would probably detect his treachery, and turn against his own empire the 1um which he had meditated against theirs

The secrecy of his councils, the promptitude of his resources, his constant and active state of equipment for war, added to the facility of his intercourse with the French though his remaining tenitories on the coast of Malaban, are the most dangerous cucumstances in the actual condition of his power and dominion, and constitute his principal means of offerce If success should attend you arms in this wai, I entertain a film confidence that those dangers will either be wholly averted, or so considerably dimmished, as to afford to you government in India the prospect of durable security, and genume peace.

I cannot close this letter without repeating to you honounable Court the cordial expression of my entire satisfaction in the zealous and honounable co-operation of Loid Clive, as well as of all the Members of this Government. The beneficial effect of their cheefful and ready concurrence in forwarding all my views, is manifest in the rapid progress and perfect completion of the equipments of the aimy in the field, and funnishes a striking and salutary example of the mestimable advantages of unanimity and concord among your servants in India.

I have the honour to be,

Honourable Sis, with the greatest respect,
your most obedient and faithful Servant,

Mornington

No CLXII

The Earl of Monning ton to Lieut -General Stuart

Sir,

Fort St George, 21st March, 1799

I take the eathest opportunity to congratulate you on the brillant and important success of the toops under your command on the 6th of March. The victory is highly honourable to your ability and resolution, as well as to the promptitude and valour of those who executed your orders. I sincerely hope that the effect of this success may be felt not only in the additional security of the supplies collected in Coorg, but in the tranquillity of Malabar, and in accelerating the conclusion of the way.

I request you to express to General Hartley, to Colonel Montresor, and to the several officers under your command, named in your despatch, the high sense which I entertain of their conduct on the 6th of March

Sincerely wishing that fortune may continue to throw in your way the happy means of adding to your own reputation, and to the security of the British power in India,

I have the honour to remain, your faithful servant,

Mornington.

No CLXIII

Copy of a Letter from General Harris to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord, Camp at Malvelly, 27th March, 1799

The army marched this morning, many horse were seen as it approached Malvelly, and a large force appeared posted on a high commanding ridge, three miles beyond that place. The rums of the fort were occupied by a part of our advanced guard, when at 10 o'clock A M Tippoo Sultaun opened a canonnade from several heavy guns, so distant, that I paid it little attention, and ordered the ground to be marked for encampment, the shot, however, falling in our lines, and horse menacing our picquet, the 1st European brigade, and two cavalry corps, were ordered to support it on the right, while Colonel Wellesley's division advanced on our left, this brought on a general action, in the course of which, a small body of horse charged the 1st European brigade, some individuals picicing the line, but most of them falling before it Colonel Wellesley's division turning the right flank of the enemy, gave occasion to General Floyd, with three regiments of cavalry. to disperse a cutchery of infantry, cutting many of them in The enemy retired about one o'clock, having been driven completely from every position he attempted to maintain It was my wish to have encamped on the ground he quitted, but a total want of water, obliged me to return to the ground I had first taken up at Malvelly The whole of the enemy's force was, I believe, in the field, then loss I cannot ascertam, ours is trifling. The conduct of the troops on this occasion was such as I could not but approve, our baggage was, during the action, well secured by the left wing of the army, under Major-General Popham I shall hereafter have the honour to transmit accurate returns of the small amount of our loss I shall march to-morrow morning to a large tank in the direction of the Cavery, to secure water by approaching the river

Captam Kinnedy, of the 19th diagoons, Leonard and Stachan, native cavality, Moore, 74th, are wounded Part of his Highness the Nizam's horse were engaged, and behaved extremely well

I have the honour to be, &c George Harris

Calcutta, 27th March, 1799

No. CLXIV

Sir John Anstruther, Chief Justice at Bengal, to the Earl of Mornington

MY DEAR LORD,

I had the pleasme of your very kind letter yesterday, and feel very much obliged to you for your attention at a period when so many important objects press upon your mind

You may believe the success of your measures gives me very sincere pleasure, both upon public and private grounds I was early satisfied of the necessity of the vigorous exertions of the governor of this country, and I am perfectly convinced, however forward the army may now be, that it would still have been at the gates of Madias had you not gone to that settlement Men concerned in the Government of India before your airival, appear not only totally to have overlooked the nature of the war we were engaged in and the enemy we had to contend with, but to have contracted a narrow limited view of the political interests of England in India, every difficulty was a reason for maction, and temporary pecumany embanassment afforded a satisfactory ground for neglecting the essential, permanent and political interests of the country, you have taught them a larger way of viewing the question, and shown them that difficulties vanish before activity, courage, and perseverance It was by the vigour of our Councils, and the active energy of our preparations, that we acquired this country, and it will cease to be ours if for any length of time our Government wants these qualities By this time every state in India, and what, perhaps, is of as great consequence, every man in the Company's service must be convinced they will not be wanting during your Government, the consequence is, that this brush once over, you will, during your stay in India, have peace abroad and exection at home. In all new Governments, but especially in all Indian Governments, much more depends upon the individual character of the Governoi than men are willing to allow, especially those who have only looked to the old governments of Europe, these may and have gone on with little variety or change by the force of custom and liabit, such governments as this never could so go on, and I believe since the French revolution it will be long before the European governments do so again

Every day increases our anxiety to hear from the aimy, although few have any doubt of the event, and the preparations and exertions seem almost to set fortune at defiance I am not suite that I have made up my mind to wish submission on the part of Tippoo without some action which shall disperse or destroy part of his aimy, and tarnish his military reputation. A treaty following a battle operates more powerfully upon the mind than one which leaves the aimy entire.

We all wish your presence here as soon as the more important affains will allow, there seems much to do to regulate the submission of the provinces as well as the dominions of Oude. It does appear as if these provinces were not quite free from the trubulent spuir which agitates the would. Many here are disposed to ascribe it to the mild spuir of our Government, and the decrease of respect for the European character, and particularly to the diminished visible effects of authority, in consequence of the equality of rights into duced by the late system for the administration of justice, and, as usual in India, instead of correcting the present, would propose to recur to the old.

It may be here, and probably it is, that being more acquainted with the European character, acquaintance has diminished respect, and that security, while it has banished fear, has led a corrupt, unprincipled people, in many instances, to abuse that security, and to use it as the means of misusing a freedom of action they are not yet quite fitted to possess It may also be true that they are as yet short sighted enough to prefer present advantage to distant reliabition. Yet still I am satisfied, that if the system be vigorously adhered to they will not only feel its benefits, but dread its effects, capitally with the old. The existing evil seems to be the delay and areau of judical business which afford a security to injustice, in no way the fault of the system. This will probably call for much of your attention. It strikes me that many of the regulations are passed with a distrust of the instruents who are to execute them, and in consequence all discietionary authority is at an end, and every tufning dispute which might be settled by a magistrate, like a justice of peace, in a summary way, is loaded with all the form and guarded with all the care as if it was a dispute about the Zemmdary of Burdwan.

I have insensibly got into a subject very foieign to youn present business, which, anxiously as we wish you here, I hope will not be till it is completed, at all events, whatever you leave to be done, will be much better done for your having been upon the coast

I am suie amidst the pleasure you felt at the capture of La Foite, poor Cooke's and Daree's flate would grieve you I am sony to say that poor Cooke is still ma very dangerous way, after apparently recovering as well as possible, he was taken last week with a fever, and upon Friday and Saturday was in very great danger, upon Saturday an incission was made into the wound in his side, and a seton passed through part of it. Monday and Tuesday he was rather better, although still feverish and very weak, his wound also put on a better appearance, to-day he is much the same, but still there are considerable apprehensions, more especially as the fever is not accounted for from any apparent cause.

I am, my dear Lord,
Youn's, very sincerely, ever,
J Anstruthers.

No CLXV

The Earl of Mornington to R Liston, Esq , his Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States, Philadelphia

Sir. Fort St C

Fort St George, April 1, 1799

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letters of the 22nd June and 17th July

I have issued the necessary orders to the Board of Trade at Calcutta to forward by every means in their power the views of the Captams of the American vessels recommended by you, and you may lely upon my manifesting every disposition to favour such American slips as may find it expedient to touch at any post within the limits of the Government-General of the British possessions in India.

I have, &c.

MORNINGTON.

No CLXVI

The Earl of Mornington to Colonel Palmer, Resident at Poonah

Sir, Fort St George, 3rd April, 1799

From the tenor of your latest despatches, I conclude that Lieutenant-Colonel Lattle's detachment must have been recalled from Jyeghur before you can receive this letter.

The reasons which induced me to order the recall of the detachment must be obvious to the Durbar of Poonah, and, I magme they have aheady been fully stated to you. It is, however, desnable that the whole subject of the late negociations at Poonah and of the conduct of the Peishwa should undergo the most detailed and formal discussions—I, therefore, direct you either at an audience, to be demanded for the purpose, or by a written memorial to state to the Peishwa and to Nana Furnavese, without reserve, the whole course of my sentiments on this occasion, observing the general outline of the statement contained in this letter.

At the period of my arrival in Bengal, the Peishwa's affan s were in the lowest condition of disorder and distress, and the destruction of his authority, if not of his office, was menaced by Dowlut Rao Semdiah In this cuisis Baagy Rao unged the most earnest entreaties for the assistance of the Company's noops, and also form yood offices with the Nizam, who et that moment possessed the means of affording considerable assistance to the cause, either of the Poshwa or of Semdiah The laws of my country testrained me from adding the

Peishwa in the manner required by himself, until the period arrived when the hostile preparations of Tippoo Sultaun released me from all restraint with respect to such engagements with any of the country powers as might appear to me beneficial in the event of hostilities with that Prince I then embraced the earliest opportunity to offer to the Peishwa the aid which he had required in troops, as well as my mediation with the Nizam, on conditions not only just and liberal, but calculated to strengthen and perpetuate the internal authority of the Peishwa's Government, by the accession of the whole consolidated weight of the tuple alliance. The cucumstances under which my propositions were made, as well as the nature of those propositions, and the various explanatory discussions by which they were followed, sufficiently demonstrated my utter repugnance to any officious interference in the Peishwa's affans, or to any intrigue calculated to favour the views of any party or individual at the Court of Poonah, my object was evidently to give efficacy to the public engagements of the State by acceding to the declared wishes of the reigning Prince, to be extricated from the usurpation of one of his feudatory Chiefs, and my off of affording to the Pershwa a retreat at Bombay in the most desperate state of his affairs. is an unequivocal proof of the sincerity of my wishes for his safety and honor

To propositions founded on the Peishwa's repeated and anxious solicitations, and directed to no other objects than the equal and recipiocal benefit of the Company, of the Peishwa himself, and of the Nizam, I was surpused and disgusted to receive the ummerited return of jealousy, distrust, and evasion Since that period your despatches have abounded with the proofs of a system of studied neglect, of mysterious reserve, and of ungenerous suspicion, wholly incooncileable with the character and spint of alliance and friendships.

Under these cucumstances, the proposition for employing a detachment of the Company's troops with the Peishwa's contingent in the eventual prosecution of hostilities against Tippoo Sultaun, did not originate with me, but with the Peishwa himself. In acceding to that proposition, I manifested a pecular consideration for the embariassments of his Highnesis situation by waving the Company's just title to an augmentation of the former subsidy, proportioned to the actual increase of the charges of the detachment. In this instance, a degice of muligence was shewn to the Peishwa's pecumiary difficulties, which has not been extended to the Nizam, whose present subsidy is calculated upon the actual charges of the detachment in his Highnesis's service.

In order to comply with the wishes of the Peishwa for the service of the detachment in question, I made considerable sacrifices of interest and convenience, in the confidence that his Highness applied for the detachment with a sincere desine of cooperating, to the extent of his power, with the Company and the Nizam, against the common enemy

But it appears that, in this instance also, my compliance with the Peishwa's own wishes has only solved to evoite in his mind fiesh emotions of distrust, and to open a new scene of subfurfuge and insincenty. Every artifice of vexatious delay has been employed to flustrate the necessary means of enabling the detachment to move from Jyeghui. It has been placed in a position, where its services can contribute nothing to the common cause. The necessary funds for its subsistence have been neglected, and your repeated attempts to draw the attention of the Peishwa to your just representations have been treated with a disregard, which demonstrates that in applying for the use of the detachment, the Peishwa had nothing less in view than to employ it in active operations against the enemy

Such conduct has a necessary tendency to impai the efficiency of the triple alliance, and to encourage the hopes of Trippoo Sultaun

The detention of the Sultaun's vakeels at Poonah, in contempt of my nepeated temonstrances, must produce effects of the same mischievous tendency. The arguments of Nana, drawn from the last war with Mysore, are not applicable to the present case. The connection between the Court of Poonah and the Company had not at that time been so defined and cemented as to render the admission of vakeels from Typoo Sultaun meompathle with the spuit of the subsisting treaties. But under the present encumstances, the Penshwa must be considered to be actually at war with the Sultaun, and in this case, therefore, the reception of ambassadors, in opposition to the declared sense of the allies actually engaged in the war, is nearly equivalent to a violation of faith, and to a dissolution of the alliance

These considerations compelled me to direct that the detachment under the command of Lieut -Colonel Little should quit a position in which its services must be equally lost to the Peishwa and to the Company

I am fully aware of the justice of Nana's observations on the present distracted state of the Peishwa's Government, and its consequent inability to engage with effect in foleign war Is would be equally unjust and ungenerous to take advantage of any failme in the Peishwa's engagements, anising from a defect of power, and from the unfortunate condition of his affairs, even in this view, however, I might remark, that the actual distries of the Peishwa is to be attributed puncipally, if not solely, to his unaccountable rejection of my propositions of the 8th July, 1798,* which would have placed his dignity, authority and power, on an immovable foundation

If the Peishwa had candidly declared his present inability to assist in the war against Tippoo, accompanying that declaration by any satisfactory proofs of good faith, or good will, I should have lamented, but I never should have censured his misfortune. But the dismission of the vakeels of Tippoo Sultaun, an amicable attention to the just representations of the British Resident, and a more upright and sincere policy in the demand of the detachment were within the power of the Pershwa, even in his present reduced condition, and the ancient friendship subsisting between his family and the Company, as well as the pecuhar anxiety which I have manifested for his prosperity and honour, entitled me to expect from him, in his intercourse with the British Government. a disposition of more candour, integrity, and justice Whatever may be my disappointment, it shall not influence my conduct in the event of any treaty of peace with Tippoo Sultann

^{*} See page 96

It is evident, that, if the Peishwa, either from want of will or power, shall continue neutral in the war, he cannot be entitled, on any ground of right, to share with the other allies the eventual advantages of the terms of peace

My confident expectation is, that the allies will speedily reduce the vindictive spirit of Tippoo Sultaun to submission without the aid of the Peishwa, and if that event should take place, notwithstanding the perveise and forbidding policy of the Court of Poonah, I shall not fail to secure for the Peishwa an equal participation with the other allies in any cessions which may be enforced from Tippoo Sultaun I authorize you to make this declaration, in the most unequivocal terms, to the Peishwa and to Nana If even this declaration shall fail to evente the Peishwa to employ every practicable effort to fulfil his defensive engagements with the Company, I trust it will, at least, serve to prove the disinterested attachment of the British Government to every branch of the triple alliance

I am, &c

No CLXVII

The Earl of Mornington to Lieutenant-General Harris

Sir,

Fort St George, April 3rd, 1799

I take the earliest opportunity of congratulating you, on the important success of the Troops under your Command engaged with Trippoo Sultam's Aimy on the 27th, of March, and I request that you will signify to the Officers and Men, who distinguished themselves on that day, my cordial approbation of the user vices

It gives me particular pleasure to learn from you that the Nizam's forces have conducted themselves with so much credit, and I must also request you, to convey my thanks to them, in the most public manner

I am very happy to mform you, that Mrs Hanrs is quite well, and highly pleased at this early instance of your success. I entertain no doubt that victory will continue to attend the powerful army under your Command.

2 L

I have the honour to be, &c

No CLXVIII

Licut -Gen Harris, to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord, Camp before Seringapatam April, 5th, 1799

I have patieular satisfaction in reporting to you Lordship that the army under my command, encamped this morning before Seingapatam, taking up the position, which with little variation it will be expedient to occupy, till the Division under Genetial Steart joins me A strong detachment, commanded by Majoi Genetial Floyd, marches to morrow morning to facilitate the junction, and I take the occasion of addicessing your Lordship, by what I consider as a safe channel of communication, to report generally what I have by various hicanahis attempted to transmit to your Lordship has the Aimy advanced on its match

I left Kıllamungalum on the 10th of March, and our first movement shewed a very serious deficiency in the Bullock department, particularly in those attached to the Commissary General of Stores The succeeding march of the 12th, although short and with an intermediate day of halt, marked this deficiency more strongly, crippled in our movements from this cause, our marches have been tedious though short, our halts have been frequent and our progress has been slow, unremitting attention to every species of arrangement by which the stole department could be assisted or lightned, was indispensably necessary some losses were daily sustained. The zeal of individuals was called forth with considerable advantage, and we have succeeded in suimounting these difficulties. and taking our position before the capital of Mysore, with an ordnance equipment which I hope is amply sufficient for its reduction

The amy matched by the toute of Ameul, Talgautpoiam, Caghapotam, Kankanhilly, and Sultampett to Malavelly where I arrived on the morang of the 27th of March The army of Tippoo Sultaun occupying the heights beyond the town from which at about 10 o'clock he commenced a distant camonade, some shot falling in the line marked for our camp, and a body of borse menacing the picquets of our 11ght, it became necessary to advance cops for their support, which led to a general action The Infantity line of the Enemy was on commanding ground in real of his artillery His Cavalry advanced under cover of his cannon, and a cutcherie or Brigade of Infantry was pushed forward in front of each flank of his Line, mixed with many tocket men The right wing of the aimy under my command formed on the picquets of the 11ght, Colonel Wellesley's division, advanced from a considerable distance on the left to attack the right flank of the enemy, and Major General Floyd with the 19th and two regiments of native cavalry moved between these corps. The 25th dragoons and a native regiment keeping in check a body of the enemy's cavalry, which had assembled on our right, while the left wing of the aimy and a regiment of native cavalry remained halted to protect our stores and baggage. The weak state of the artillery bullocks considerably retailed the advance and formation of our line, with which they were unable to keep pace A small body of horse, profiting by this cucumstance, made a daring charge on the 1st European brigade, they were received with firmness, and repulsed with considerable loss, then infantly in front of our night, being at the same time driven from their position. On the left, the corps of infantry called the Kerim Ketcheric advanced on Colonel Wellesley's column His Majesty's 331d regiment which opposed soon put them in confusion, and the cavalry under Major General Floyd advancing at this moment to the charge, cut them to pieces Six colours were taken. The 1etreat of the enemy soon became general, then cannon were drawn off, and at two o'clock the action had entirely ceased, our line halting on the heights whence theus had been driven a total want of water preventing our encamping there, the line returned to the ground originally marked for its encampment at Malayelly The loss of the enemy as collected from various accounts received since the action, amounted to near two thousand killed and wounded, a return of the casualties of this army is enclosed

At an early period of our march it had occurred to me, that if it were possible to cross the Cavery, at a ford some distance below Sciingapatam, the measure implie to attended with considerable advantage, by embarrassing the motions of the enemy, defeating the preparations he might have made to oppose us on the Northern side of the livet, and facilitating our communication with the aimy of Malabai and the force under Colonel Brown and Read. In addition to these inducements the ford was said to be easy, we had teason to hope the country was still undestroyed, and the southern part of Seringapatam was considered as the least capable of defence The destruction of the tanks on the road from Malvelly to Atakeery, rendered an oblique movement towards the Cavery less hable to suspicion than it might otherwise have been, and we arrived on the 29th of March at Sosilly on the Cavery, before any measures had been taken to oppose our movement. by destroying forage, or driving off cattle, of which we here procured a considerable supply The army crossed the river the next day without difficulty, and after halting on the 30th to arrange our departments, marched on the succeeding morning towards Harwelly, the weak state of our cattle, the barren nature of the soil, the total destruction of forage, which immediately followed our passage of the river, and the necessity for regulating our marches by the situation of water. the road leaving the river at some distance on the right, obliged us to make five marches from Sosilly to our present camp, three of which have been in sight of Seringapatam Numbers of house have daily watched our motions, but, although the ground was favourable, no attempt has been made to oppose our progress

The detachment with Major General Floyd consists of H M 73rd regiment, three Bengal and two coast battahons of Sepoys with then guns, and one regiment of European and three of native cavalry, with their galloper guns, and a party of the Nizam's house During the absence of this party, I shall be employed in preparing materials for the more active ope-1 ation of the siege, which will commence with the junction of General Stuart's force and I am happy to add that on this side of the liver. I apprehend no want of materials for the siege We have a sufficient stock of provisions to subsist the troops beyond the time, when the umon of our forces, from the opposite coasts may enable me to spare an aimy of sufficient force, to cover our communication with the stations, whence our supplies are prepared to join us, the cattle now with the camp must in the mean time suffer greatly, but this is no longer an object of consequence

Numbers of people are employed on this side of Seringa-

patam, in repairing the fort. It seems to us to require all their labour, appearing to be in a very imperfect state *

I cannot conclude without expressing to your Lordship, in the strongest terms, the obligations I feel myself under to Meer Allum Bahadu, to the promptitude with which he has in every instance met my wishes in the cooperation, required from the forces of His Highness the Nizam Then aid in transporting the shot, has been of the greatest use, and it is an act of justice due to Captain Malcolm, to report to your Lordship that his uncessing zeal, in pointing out the manner in which the contingent could promote the common cause of the allies, has been equalled only by the chentful readmess shewn by Meer Allium, in adopting his suggestions

I have the honor to be,
My Lord,
Your Lordship's most obedient and faithful Servant.

GEORGE HARRIS.

No CLXIX

The Earl of Mornington to Colonel William Palmer

SIR,

Fort St Goorge, 7th April, 1799

However proper it might be on general grounds that you should accompany the Peisliwa in the event of his being obliged to retrie from Poonah, yet as it is to be apprehended that your doing so might lead to an interruption of the communication between Bombay and the other Presidencies, which it is of peculiar importance to maintain in the present conjuncture, I must desure that you will suspend the execution of that measure, in the event of the Peishwa's flight, until you shall receive my further instructions on the subject

I am, &c , Mornington

^{*} Lord Conwalla's attack was due,ted to the northern side of the Fort of Senngapatan, Typno therefore expected General Harus to the has attack on the same quarter, where he had prepared means of teastance, but General Harus's most puderous and able movement to southern side of the Fort, had all the effect of a surprase, and entirely desconcated Typno's plans of defence

No CLXX

Lieut -Gen Harris to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord, Camp before Seringapatam, 7th April, 1799

After crossing the Cauvery on the 30th ultimo at Sosilly, where the army halted the next day, I advanced by easy marches to this place, and took up my position within two miles south-west of Seringapatam without opposition the 5th of this month, wishing to occupy the post where Gen Abercromby's picquets were attacked in 1792, and the large tope and village of Sultanpetta, both were attacked the moht of our arrival, but owing (in oreat measure) to the darkness of the night, the attack on the first only was partially successful We sustained some loss from the fire of the enemy, which continued heavily till late next morning, when the posts were again attacked with perfect and rapid success They give this aimy a very strong position, and greatly confine that of the enemy Major Colin Campbell, of the 1st native regiment, Lieutenant George Nixon, and Tulla, of the 12th, and Fitzgerald, of the 33id, were killed, in these attacks Lieutenants R. Nixon and King of his Majesty's 12th regiment, and Brooke of Bengal aitillery, wounded Gen Floyd marched on the morning of the 6th to 10m General Stuart, with his infantiv and four cavaliv corps, twenty fieldpieces, and a body of the Nizam's horse This force I consider superior to any thing that can be opposed to it by the enemy The aimy has now taken up its position for the siege

GEORGE HARRIS

No CLXXI

The Earl of Mornington to the Hon Jonathan Duncan

SIR, Fort St George, 7th April, 1799

Although I have aheady addressed to you my public congratulations upon the bulliant and important victory gamed by Lieut-General Stuait over the flower of the aimy of Mysore, commanded by Tippoo Sultaun in person, on the 6th of March, I cannot omit the repetition of my sense of the honour of that day in this private communication

The ments of Generals Stuart and Hartley, as well as of Colonel Montieson and the other officers have seldom been equalled and never surpassed in India, and the most happy consequences may be expected from this early and decisive success, not only in bringing the present war to a speedy and honomable conclusion, but in establishing the character of our aims among the refractory inhabitants of Malabar. We may reasonably hope that the effects of this victory will long be felt in the dejection of Trippoo's adherents on that coast, and among our subjects in the settlement of tranquillity and order on permanent foundations

You will have leaint with satisfaction by the extiaor dunary gazette forwarded from hence, that Trippoo Sultaun's aimy met with an equally waim reception from General Hairs on the 27th of March. To this intelligence I have the satisfaction to be able to add, that all my private accounts from Gen Hairs's army leave no doubt that the whole of that immense equipment will reach Seringapatam in time to commence the siege under circumstances which must render the fall of the place inevitable, unless prevented by the previous submission of the enemy. This is the universal opinion of every officer of experience and judgment in the army.

I shall take an opportunity hereafter of communicating to you the terms of peace on which I am resolved to insist

I approved your instructions to Agha Abul Hussun, sent on a mission to Scind, in consequence of my former suggestion

The prospect of establishing a Bittish factory in that country appears to me to be a very desnable object, not so much with a view to commercial as to political advantages I, therefore, wish that you should by all means encourage the favourable disposition of Futteh Ali Khan, and endeavour, if possible, to settle a factory in Saind Whenever such a factory shall be established your attention will of course be directed to facilitate the means of communication with it, as the most probable mode of obtaining authentic information relating to Zemaun Shah I do not see the necessity of entering into any engagements with Futteh Ali Khan, which might hereafter impose on us the obligation of supporting him against Zemaun Shah by any further exetion than by furnishing him with arms and ammunition. To the setent

I authorize you to afford him whatever assistance may appearancessary Assistance of this nature will, probably, be sufficient to miduce him to admit a British factory, but if the factory cannot be established otherwise than by contracting extensive engagements for the eventual support of Futteh All, the object must be relinquished

I entirely approve your plan of raising a coips for gailson duty at Bombay. On this subject I would only suggest two considerations which I wish you to keep in view in any inlitary association or inhitia corps which either has been or may be formed under your Government. First, the necessity of maintaining, in the fullest extent, the unqualified right of your Government to command the personal services of all its subjects in the event of danger to the Pessdency.

Secondly, to admit no constitution or establishment of any military corps which shall evempt it from the constant control of Government, as well in the appointment of officers, as in every matter of discription and subordination. An attention to these principles is essentially necessary to the preservation of the authority and vigour of Government. And it is not difficult to concluste these principles with every degree of encouragement to the voluntary zeal and layalty of the subject. I have found no impediment in establishing the initiat at Calcutta under a system which equally secures the power of Government and the ease and honour of the individuals serving in the militar.

I observe a complaint of the general ignorance of the jumor servants, sent to the coast of Malaban, in the native languages I wish to receive from you a patitudar report on this subject, accompanied by the suggestion of such regulations as may appear to you most eligible for the purpose of encouraging and enforcing the study of the native languages among the jumor servants of your Presidency,

I received with much gratitude you offer of assistance at Benaues, and I consider you readness to return to your former station in that country as a strong proof of your zeal for the public service. I need not assure you that I shall most willingly accept the offer of your services, if upon my return to Bengal I should find it necessary to call for them

You are aware that the arrangement could not be made in the only manner in which it could be acceptable to you without a total alteration of the judicial and other establishments now existing at Benares I have appointed Mi Vandeiheyden to succeed to Mi Cheny's station, and I have great hopes that under Mr Vandeiheyden the present system may answer the destrable end of composing the unhappy commotions which have lately disturbed the peace of that country If my hopes should be disappointed I shall not forget your obliging and public spirited offer

I entirely approve your proceedings with respect to the French supposed to have been at Muscat, and I cannot recommend to you more earnestly than I feel the abvolute necessity of keeping a most vigilant eye on the proceedings of any French who may arrive in Persia, or on your side of India

I am very glad to hear of your intention to visit the coast of Malabas in Octobes I should hope, at an early period, to receive a full statement of the actual condition of that province, as well as of the means of improving its system of police and revenue I suspect that your present settlement is founded upon a principle wholly irreconcileable with the tranquillity of the country It appears to me that we have not kept faith with the different Rajahs and Chieftains accoiding to the terms on which we received the country at the conclusion of the last war with Mysoie You will set me right if I have conceived an erroneous opinion on the subject , but if the fact be as I suppose, you may be assured that I shall be ready to repair the breach which has been made in the national faith at any expense, being convinced that it will ever be impossible to introduce order into any country in contempt of the confidence and respect of the inhabitants

I wish you to understand that I shall always be happy to receive from your Government the fullest details, either public or private, relating to your local department, with this single reservation, that your communications shall not be given in a manner either to impede the prompt execution of those measures which I deem necessary for the public service, or to draw me into any controversial public correspondence in defence of my own orders. With my most cordial assurance of every sentiment of personal confidence, and of every disposition to assist you in the discharge of the important duties confided to your particular care,

I have the honour to be, Sn, with the highest respect and esteem, your most faithful Servant,

MORNINGTON

No CLXXII.

From Lieut-General Harris to the Earl of Mornington, enclosing a Letter from Tippoo Sultaun to General Harris, secured the 9th April, and his answer

My Lord, Camp before Seringapatam, 9th April, 1799

I this moning received a letter of the 6th, from Geneial Stuat; who was to maich on the 7th, in consequence of a letter he had received from me, of the 4th, informing him of the intended maich of Gen Floyd's detachment, which I tust will join the Bombay amy this day, near Peupnatam I expect their united force here the 14th instant. I also this day received a letter from Tippoo Sultania, a copy of which and of my proposed answer is inclosed. The persons who brought it were informed that "a reply would be sent when necessary" Nothing else has occurred deserving of report.

GEORGE HARRIS

From Tippoo Sultaun to General Harris

The Govenno-General Lord Monungton, Behauder, sent me a letter, copy of which is enclosed You will understand it I have adhered finitly to treaties, what then is the meaning of the advance of the English airmes and the occurrence of hostilities Inform me What need I say more?

From General Harris to Tippoo Sultaun

You letter enclosing copies of the Governor-General's letter has been received. For the advance of the English and Allied armies and for the actual hostitues, I refer you to the several letters of the Governor-General, which are sufficiently explanatory on the subject.

No CLXXIII.

The Earl of Morning ton to the Commissioners of Malabar GENTLEMEN. Fort St. George, 10th April, 1799

The details contained in your letters of the 12th and 17th January, of the measures which had then been adopted, under my orders, for the purpose of establishing large magazines of grain in the district of Coorga, afforded me the highest satisfaction, and the distinguished success of those measures, as reported in your subsequent advices, has surpassed my most sanguine expectation

The zeal and ability, with which this important service has been executed, reflect the highest cied to all the civil and military officers concerned in conducting it. My particular approbation and acknowledgements are due on this occasion Major-General Hartley, to M. Uthoff and to Capt. Mahony

The Rajah of Coolga has seconded my views, and the exertions of the Company's servants on this occasion, with a degree of spirit, energy, and fidelity, which confirm the high character he had justly obtained in the late war expressed my sense of his zealous attachment and honomable services in a letter to him, which will be forwarded to you by the Persian translator, with a copy for your information think it proper to apprise you that I have determined, (as a testimony of the satisfaction which his conduct has afforded me, and with a view of encouraging the imitation of his example among the other tributories of the Company.) to relinguish the tribute at present payable by the Rajah, and to substitute some annual acknowledgment of the Company's claim to his allegiance The Government of Bombay will neceive the necessary directions from me for giving effect to this arrangement

I have no doubt that the eventions of the Rajah to collect grain for the use of the army will be continued, (as long as they shall be necessary) with the same spirit which has hitherto distinguished them, and I am equally confident that those evertions will be ably and zealously seconded by you, and by those under you orders on the coast of Malabai

I approve your appointment of Captain Mahony to be resident with the Rajah of Coorga, and the instructions with which you furnished Captain Mahony on that occasion

In one of your letters which is without date, but which appears to have been written about the 5th of March, you have thought it necessary to assure me, after a representation of the defenceless state of the province of Malahan, "that you are disposed to submit to temponary inconveniences, and evils, even to a considerable extent, tather than pur claims present tranquility at the expense of making per manent sacustices either to Tippoo Sultaun, or any of the native Chiefs of Malabar, of a native unbecoming the dignity or rightful interests of the Company"

Entertaming the high sense which I have already expressed of your ments in the discharge of your proper duties, I am concerned to be under the necessity of observing that the tenor of this passage is utterly incompatible with the dependent and subordinate nature of the commission under which you act It is your duty to submit implicitly to whatever inconveniences may result from the execution of the orders proceeding from the superior authorities of the Bittish Government in India, and ausing not from partial or local, but from general and comprehensive views of the public interests. Your authority is not completent in any case, or for any purpose whatever, to make either a permanent or a temporary sacrifice of the rights, dignity, or interests of the Company to Tippoo Sultaum or to any other power.

It is my duty to call your attention to any point in which you may appear to have formed an erroneous opinion of the limits on nature of your powers, and I now discharge that duty with a full conviction of the uprightness of your intentions, and of your sincere zeal for the promotion of the public service

I approve the letters despatched by your Resident to the Pychy Rapia and to Yemaun Nan, of which copies were enclosed in your letter of the 16th March, and I conceu in opinion with you, that those persons are not likely to and the cause of Thippo Sultain, particularly after the defeat which that Pinice has lately sustained from the aimy under the command of General Stuart Accordingly, I am happy to think that the tranquility of the province of Malabar will not be disturbed by the open or secret movements of those Naris

I entirely agree with you in your construction of the letter from Ayappın to the Rajah of Coorga, a copy of enclosed in your despatch of the 25th March, and will signify to the Rajah of Coorga, that I have with the utmost contempt and indignation, this weak, and attempt of Tippoo Sultanu to cast doubts upon the Ally, whose attachment, fortitude, wisdom, and integrated the affection and admiration of the British ment

I entuely approve the spinit and substance of the tons contained in the extract of your President's letter to the scale of the Resident with the Rajah of Coorga, under date the 30th and enclosed in your despatch of the same date. It is my anxious desire that you should continue to recommend sentiments of humanity and moderation, not only to the Rajah of Coorga but to all the other tubutaities of the company on the coast of Malabai, whenever the occasion may admit of your interposition to mitigate the unavoidable calamities of war

I am, Gentlemen, &c
MORNINGTON

No CLXXIV

Major-General Floyd to the Earl of Morning ton

My LORD,

Camp at Penapatam, April 10th, 1799

As it is possible General Hairis's despatches may not have reached you, I beg leave to give a short statement of events, as far as have come to my knowledge

On the 27th of March the enemy was seen, in force, on the high gound west of Malavilly General Harris, with the night wing, attacked the enemy in front. Two regiments of cavalty supported. Colonel Wellesley, with the Nizam's aimy, took a most judicious situation on the enemy's right flank, and attacked it, and threw it into confusion. I was observing, with three regiments of cavalty, between the right flank of Colonel Wellesley and the left of General Harris, and chaiged and destroyed a great number of the enemy's infantity, taking six stands of colours. About the same period, a number of the enemy's horse had chaiged the European bigade of the right wing, several of them were killed, and the nest fled, the infantly also were repulsed by ours, and the whole retired out of our reach. It seems, from subsequent accounts, that about 500 wounded men reached the enemy's camp, and that then loss was about 2000 men. Our loss amounted to about 7 or 8 killed, and about 40 wounded—and about 45 horses killed and wounded. No office killed, and four only wounded. I have no copy of the return by me

On the 29th March the army encamped at Sosilly, on the bank of the Cavity Here we found a great collection of inhabitants, and cattle, and lice, and a good deal of paddy and other grain. The aimy was considerably refreshed

30th of March, the army had all crossed the river at a good ford

5th of Apil, the amy took its situation before Seningapatam at the west point of the fort. That inght Lieut-Colou-Shawe took possession of a post between seventeen and eighteen hundred yaids from the fort. An attack was also made by Colonel Wellesly on a tope, but the troops were enthdrawn on our patt—a spent ball, as I have heard, stuck the Colonel on the kinee, but it did not neverth his walling

6th Apul, early in the moning, I matched off for Penjatam with four legiments of cavality, one regiment European (73d.) and five battalions native infantry, and about 2000 of the Nizami's hoise. All last might, and most of this day, there was a continued peal of small aims, and, occasionally, heavy guns. We still hear heavy guns at intervals, but I have no account whateve, since we left the aimy.

8th Apil, I encamped at Peniapatam My signals were answered, and I had communication with General Stuart that night

9th Apul, 1 tode over to General Stuart, and after some aniangements, tetuned to camp, immediately a considerable number of the enemy's house appeared, and hovered round most of the day without effecting anything, but with some slight loss on their part

Joh Apul, Geneial Stuat joined me this day, with line and some other atticles for between 30 and 40 days for his army, and a quantity of military stores. We proceed to-morrow to join the aimy at Seingapatam, and shall probably leach it in five matches. Having no cyphel 1 refinan from some particulars, the troops are, in general, healthy, and in high spirits, and full of good will

I have the honour to be, with great respect, my Lord, our most obedient and humble Servant,

your most obedient and humble Servant,
J FLOYD, M G

On my matching from hence to-morrow, the communication will be entirely closed on this side

No CLXXV.

The Earl of Mornington to Lieut -General Harris

SIR,

Fort St George, 17th of April, 1799

I had yesterday the satisfaction to receive your letter of the 7th instant, and I conguntulate you on the complete success with which you have established your position for the stege of Seringapatam

I approve and admire the judgment and alacity which mark the detachment of the force under General Floyd on the same morning on which you established your posts, by the action you describe

The position which you have taken, among other advantages, is highly important in the fachtry which it would afford you of detaching a force against any body of French which might effect a landing on the Malabar coast, either before or during the approaching monsoon I trust that our great naval superiority will secure us from this danger, but you will learn from General Stuart that I have considered the possibility of the event, and have been anxious to provide against it. I wish you to give the matter your joint and secrous consideration

I beg you will offer my hearty thanks to those officers and corps who distinguished themselves in the attacks of the 5th and 6th instant

I have the honour to be, &c

Mornington

No. CLXXVI

The Earl of Mornington to his Excellency Sir Alured Clarke

My Dear Sir, Fort St George, 17th April, 1799

I have just received the communication which you instructed M1 Bailow to make to me on the subject of the message addressed to you by Shums-ud-dowlah.

I entirely approve your judgment in referring so delicate and important a question to my decision. Whatever temporary inconveniences may occasionally result from the delay incident to such references, the principle on which they are founded ought to be strictly observed in all cases of great moment. It is equally certain that no disadvantages can arise from such a system of piecaution which will not ultimately be over balanced by its general benefits and perimanent effects. The main spring of such a machine as the Government of India can never be safely touched by any other hand than that of the principal moves.

I am persuaded that you have taken the proper steps to secue Calcutta against the danger of a sudden attack from the river. If the Imaum should assist General Buonaparte (whom I believe to be still in Egypt, with 17 or 18,000 men.) then object would be to sail directly up the Hoogly, and to suiprize Calcutta

I am concerned to observe the slow progress made by Major-General Stuart against Vizien All and his banditt. I scarcely know a point of more importance to our interests in India than the capture or death of that young assassin, and the early dispersion of his followers

I am, &c
MORNINGTON.

No CLXXVII

The Earl of Mornington to the Court of Directors

HONOURABLE SIRS, Fort St George, 20th April, 1799

I now proceed to submit to you a detail of the operations of the aimies in Mysore.

The aimy of Bombay, under the command of Lieutenant General Stuart, marched from Cananore on the 21st of Feb, arrived at the head of the Poodicherium Ghaut on the 25th of the same month, and took post at Sedapore and Sedasore on the 2nd of March, for the protection of the large supplies which had been collected at Verajunder Pett, in the district of Coorga From these positions, on Lieutenant-General Hauris's approach, Lieutenant-General Stuart intended to form a junction with the army of Madras

The aimy of Maduas, under the command of Lieutenant-General Hairis, entered the tenitory of Mysone on the 5th of Match, and its operations commenced by the reduction of several forts upon the fiontier Some of these forts surtendered without any resistance, and none of them were defended with spirit, although the Sultaun appears, from the improved establishment on which he had placed their gainsons, to have provided as well as he could for a different result

The progress of the aimy of Madias, owing to its ample equipments in every department, paticularly in that of the ordnance necessary for the siege of Seingapatam, was unavoidably slow. Its movements, however, were but little impeded by the enemy. Considerable bodies of hoise howeved about its line of maich, but without any other effect than that of rendering the communication with the Company's tentiories extremely difficult. Some paties of hoise attacked the Nizam's contingent, and his Highness's cavalty are reported by General Hairs to have conducted themselves with great spirit, a circumstance which may partly be attributed to the improvements recently introduced into the discipline and establishments of his Highness's cavalty at the recommendation of the British Resident under my instructions.

At the peniod when the aimy of Madias entered Mysore, Tippoo Sultaun was supposed to be encamped in the vicenity of Maddoor, and to be prepaing to move in the direction of Bangalore for the purpose of opposing the piogress of the Madias army, in the event of Lieutenant-Geneial Harris actually passing the fionties. But it soon appeared that although the Sultaun had so recently affected a disposition to admit an embassy from the British Government, he had probably no other view than to conceal the design which he had formed of striking a sudden and early blow against the army of Bombay For without allowing me the same time to answer his last letter which he had taken for replying to those addressed by me to him, and without waiting to hean of the actual commencement of hostilities on the part of the British Government, he came to the resolution of attacking the army of Bombay then assembled beyond the line of his frontier, in the district of Coorga, under the command of Lieut-General Stuart

For this purpose Trippoo, taking with him the flower of his army, appears to have matched from his camp near Cenapatam, on the 28th of February, (when General Harris was still within the Company's terittories), and moving rapidly in the direction of Petiapatam, to have airved there on the morning of the 5th of Maich, (being the same day on which Lieutenant-Gen Harris entered Mysore on the eastern frontier)

On the 6th of March Tuppoo Sultaun passed lins own frontrer, and attacked a detachment of the atmy of Bombay, undet the command of Lieut-Gen Stuart, the total strength of whose entire army did not amount to more than 6000 fighting men. The attack of the Sultaun's force was resisted by a body not exceeding 2,000 men, and the Sultaun's army was finally defeated and totally daspersed, before General Stuart could collect the whole of his divided force. It is with infinite satisfaction that I enclose for the information of your honoutable Court the paper marked No I, containing Gen Stuart's account of this brilliant and important action which took place at Sedaseic on the 8th of Manch.*

After this signal defeat, Tippoo etteated piecipitately to his camp at Periapatam, and remained there until the 11th of March without making any further attempt to molest the aimy. The loss sustained by Tippoo's aimy on the 6th of March appears to have sumunited to near 2,000 killed, wounded, and prisoners, which included several officers of rank, and some of considerable distinction. That sustained by the army of Bombay will appear in Lieut. General Stuart's letter

Adverting to the great disproportion of numbers, and to other encumstances of disadvantage, I am confident that you honourable Court will be of opinion, that the conduct and success of the army of Bombay on that day has seldom been equalled, and never surpassed in India

^{*} See p 483

Under this impression I take the liberty of recommending to your favourable notice the several officers and corps named by Lieut-General Stuatt, in his letter of the 8th of March, and I am anxious to request your particular attention to the distinguished conduct of Lieut-General Stuart and Major-General Hartley, as well as of Lieut-Colonel Montiesor and of Lieut-Colonel Dunlop Major-General Hartley had alteady received a public testimony of my particular approbation of his extraordinary ment in collecting stores and provisions in the district of Coorga, previously to the arrival of General Stuart on the coast of Malabar.

Tippoo netuned from Penapatam to Seringapatam, and arriving at the latter place on the 14th of March, moved from thence immediately to meet Lieut-Gen. Harris and the army of Madras.

Leut-General Hauis had advanced on the 26th of March to a position between Sultanpett and Malavelly, having met with no considerable impediment from the enemy. The enemy made their appearance in foice on that day, but without attempting to disturb our army. On the 27th of March, when the aimy reached its ground at Malavelly, Tippoo opened a distant cannonade upon it, which, though at first disregarded by Leut-General Hauis, ultimately led to a general engagement, in which the enemy was completely defeated, and driven from every post which he attempted to maintain our loss on this occasion was very inconsiderable, only seven iank and file being killed, and a few men (including four officers) wounded, while that of the enemy is supposed to have amounted to near 700

I refer yout honourable Court to Lieut.-General Hailis's letter of the 27th of March, which foims part of the enclosure No 1, for a more patitudar account of this important victory, requesting also your attention to the merits of the several officers and corps distinguished by the notice of Lieut-General Harits

General Harris marched on the 28th a few miles to the southward of Malavelly, without the least interruption from the enemy, from whence it may be infeired that Tippoo Sultaun was considerably dispitited by the defeat which he had sustained on the pieceding day, added to the piecious success obtained over him by the army of Bombay.

^{*} See page 485

On the 29th of March General Harrs happily accomplished a movement which must have greatly astomished and disconcerted the enemy instead of proceeding in the discotton of Arakeny and Karagat, Lieut-Gen Hanis suddenly tunned towards the River Cavery, where finding a food at some distance above the junction of the Cavery and Copany, he immediately crossed the Cavery with a part of his aimy, and occupied strong positions on both banks of that river, at the distance of about fifteen miles from Seringapatam This movement was also made without the least opposition on the part of the enemy, who indeed does not seem to have entertained the most distant suspicion of the British General's design.

Loud Cornwalls, at a more advanced period of the year, having in vain sought for a practicable ford to the southward of Seingapatam, Tippoo probably concluded that Lieut-General Harris would have pursued his Loudship's route to the ford of Camambaddy, not thward of Seingapatam, for the purpose of effecting a junction from thence with the army of Bombay It is difficult to account otherwise for Tippoo's maction while General Harris executed this ardinous and important movement

The advantages of the position thus acquired by General Harris must prove considerable. In addition to the immediate acquisition of cattle and forage, it must afford additional security to the abundant magazines which have been formed in the Cooga country, and favour the safe approach of our convoys from the southern districts, and from the Barramahl by the pass of Coveruporain, and it promises to open to our army that range of forage, situated to the southward of Seringapatam, which Tippoo seems to have reserved for the consumption of his own aimy.

Lieut-General Harris, with his whole army, having crossed the Cavery on the 30th of March, halted near the village of Soselly on the 31st, on the 1st of April he moved towards Seringapatam, and on the 5th encamped two miles southwest of that city, having experienced no opposition from the enemy since the 27th of March. On the morning of the 6th of Apul, after an engagement in which the enemy appears to have made considerable resistance. Lieut.-General Harris took possession of Sultanpetta and an adjacent tope or grove, and about the same time Major-General Floyd, with a strong detachment, was sent to effect a junction with the aimy of Bombay on the morning of the 6th of April Lieut,-General Stuart received at Sedapore a note from Lieut -Gen Harris. announcing the airival of the latter at Seringapatam, and also signifying that Majoi-General Floyd was to be detached from the army of Madras on the 6th of April for the purpose already stated In consequence of this intelligence, Lieut -General Stuart had determined to march from Sedanore to Sedasere on the 7th of April, and it is probable that the junction of the aimy of Bombay with the detachment under the command of Major-General Floyd was effected on the 8th in the neighbourhood of Periapatam The last accounts received by me from General Harris are dated on the 7th instant, when he states that he had taken up his position for the siege of Seringapatam

Tippoo Sultaun, on the 7th of Apiil, had not returned any answer to my letter of the 22nd of February, nor had he mamfested any disposition to propose a negotiation. Lieut-General Hairis is instructed to propose preliminary articles of peace to the Sultaun before the British batteries shall be opened agrants Sermegapatam.

While General Harris was advancing towards Seringapatam, Lieut-Colonel Read was employed in reducing the country to the northward of Ryakottah. His operations were intended to have embraced a wide range, and he had made considerable progress in them, when the more urgent service of convoying to the aimy the large supplies which were collected in the Barramahl, made it necessary for him to change the direction of his match. He is now drawing together in the vicinity of Coveryporam the numerous himpainess and other supplies intended for the aimy encamped before Seringapatam, which place it is hoped he may be able to reach early in May

To the southward of the Carnatic and of Mysore, Lieut.-Col Browne, at the head of a respectable detachment, began his operations by the reduction of Carioon, which surrendered to him, without any seitous reasistance, on the 5th of April On the 8th he sent a detachment against Eirode, and matched himself on the 9th to reduce Aiavacourchy He would, however, be obliged to suspend his intended operations in the district of Combatoor, and to unter his detachment to that of Col Read, with the view of forming a force sufficiently stong to give due piotection to the large and innortant supplies pioceeding to Seringapatam

Anavacourchy, which had been considerably strengthened since last war, surrendered to Lieut.-Col Brown on the 10th instant

I have the honour to be, &c

MORNINGTON

P S 22nd April, 1799 —After closing my letter I had the satisfaction to receive despatches from Generals Harris and Streat

I congratulate your honourable Court on the successful junction of the detachment under Geneal Floyd with the army of Bombay The final junction of the whole army of Bombay with the army before Sermgapatam was expected to take place about the 13th instant It may be safely affirmed not to be in the power of Tippoo, even materially, to retard this junction, which, when effected, must excite a serious alarm in the mind of the Sultaun for the safety of his capital if not of his person

Your honourable Court will perceive that Lieut-General Harris, in his progress to Seringapatam, encountered the same difficulties which were experienced by Loid Coinwallis from the failure of the cattle provided for the service of the army, which, although amply sufficient in point of number at the commencement of the expedition, appear to have rapidly decreased on the entrance of the army into Mysore, the climate and water of that country are represented to be extremely unfavourable to the cattle of the Carnatac The delay which arose from this unavoidable contingency seems to have been considerable, but your honourable Court will, no doubt, new with satisfaction the spirit and finimess with which this difficulty was met by the Commander-in-Chief, and the zeadous exertion of the whole army by which he was enabled to proceed on his march.

No CLXVIII

The Earl of Mornington to the Secret Committee of the Honourable Court of Directors

HONOURABLE SIRS, Fort St George, 22nd April, 1799

The distractions in the Government of Poonah have increased to such a degree as to pieclude all hope of assistance in the wai with Tippoo Sulfaun, from that quatter on the hand, however, this state of confusion in the Mahratta empire equally prevents the possibility of any attempt against your interests

The sudden flight of Vizier Ah from Benaies having enabled the magistrate of that city to secure the papers of the assassin, a scene of the utmost importance to your interests has been disclosed by the examination of those authentic documents Copies of the several papers which fell into our hands were transmitted to me, and under my orders several persons involved in the designs of Viziei Ali have been apprehended in different parts of the provinces The inspection of their papers has led to further discoveries, and although I cannot yet communicate to you a detailed account of the nature and objects of the designs and the views of those who have been apprehended or of their chief. I am already in possession of sufficient evidence to prove that a conspiracy had been formed for the purpose not only of restoring Vizier All to the throne of Oude, but also of favouring the invasion of Zemann Shah, and of expelling the English nation from the provinces of Bengal, Bahar, and Orissa

The leaders of the conspinacy having been apprehended, and every precaution having been taken to prevent disorder on turmult, I do not expect that any of the intended objects of the conspinators can now be effected. It appears more probable, that the premature disclosure of the conspiracy, and the seasonable measures which have been taken for averting its evil consequences, will disconcert and intimidate such accomplices as may happen to elude the vigilance of Government

But the complexion of this transaction leads to serious reflections on the condition of your possessions in Bengal and the provinces. The defective state of the police in the provinces and the several great cities will require immediate attention You will observe that the persons concerned in this treason are almost exclusively Mahommedans, and several of them of high rank. It is a tadical imperfection in the constitution of our establishments in India, that no system appears to have been adopted with a view either to concluste the good will or to controul the disaffection of this description of our subjects, whom we found in possession of the Government, and whom we have excluded from all share of emolument, honour, and authority, without providing any adequate corrective of those passions incident to the loss of dignity, wealth, and power

The last accounts from Bengal state, that Visier Ah was still in the neighbourhood of Goiuckpool at the head of a considerable body of banditti, but as the Rajahs of Napaul and Betoul had abandoned his cause, and a considerable detachment of our troops under the command of Major-General Strait, had advanced within a few miles of his position, no doubt appeared that his followers would soon he dispersed, and a confident hope was entertained that his person would fall into our hands

I have the satisfaction to inform you, that notwithstanding the export of forty lacs of rupees in specie to this Presidency, and the actual commencement of hostilities with Tippoo Sultaun, the discount upon all the public securities in Bengal has experienced a considerable diminution during the course of the last month, and with the aid of the supplies in specie which we expect from England, I flatter myself that I shall be enabled, within a short period of time, to direct an enlargement of the commercial investment at all the Presidencies I am naturally impatient to return to Bengal, but the experience of every hour convinces me more strongly that the avowed projects of Tippoo Sultaun, combined with his acknowledged means of carrying them into effect, have been among the most efficient causes not only of the decline of public and private credit in Bengal, but also of encouragement to the disaffected and disorderly class of your subjects am, therefore, persuaded that the effectual reduction of Tippoo's means of mischief is indispensable to the welfare and tranquillity of all your possessions Under this impression I feel it to be my duty to remain at this Presidency so long as my presence can in any degree contribute to the energy and vigour of our military operations

It is a most extraordinary encumstance, that we have not received any authentic intelligence of the condition of the French aimy in Egypt, nor of that of our naval defences in the Red Sea. By the ships lately arrived from the Cape I learn that Commodote Blanket was in the Mozambique chanel towards the end of October, that he had met with adverse winds, and was apprehensive that he should be obliged to bear up for Bombay. Since that period I am entirely ignorant of his course or condition

By the latest accounts from Constantinople it appears that General Buonaparte's army still consisted of 17 or 18,000 fighting men

I have the honour to be, &c

MORNINGTON

No CLXXIX

Lieut -General Harris to the Earl of Morning ton

My Lord, Camp before Seringapatam, 22nd April, 1799

On the 18th instant I had the honour to address to your Lordship a report of the proceedings of the army to that date, which was given in charge to General Floyd, who on the 19th marched with the cavalry, a brigade of native mfantiv, and the Nizam's house, to meet Colonel Read near Cauveriporam, and assist in escorting the Brinjairies to camp That morning a battery was opened on the north side of the Cauvery, to enfilade the enemy's entrenchments in front of our intended attack. The 20th, in the evening, the most advanced of these was carried by our troops, and a parallel established on the spot on that night, the letter of which, a translation is annexed, was received from Tippoo Sultaun On the night of the 21st a battery for six guns was elected near the runs of the powder mill, and as a violent attack was made before day of the 22nd on all General Stuart's posts. four guns and two howitzers opened from this battery on the fort this morning with considerable effect, in destroying its defences and reducing its fire

Yesterday, after consulting the Commissioners appointed to assist me in subjects of political arrangement, and with

Meer Allum Bahadui, I determined, in reply to the Sultaun. to transmit a draft of preliminaries founded on your Lordship's paper B, with such alterations as the change of circumstances seemed to require in the security exacted-additional hostages in heu of forts, which now we have no time to seceive I have sequired as hostages four sons of the Sultaun and four of his principal officers, to be selected by me These, with the treasure to be sent in forty-eight hours to camp, or I reserve to myself the power of extending the demand even to the possession of Seringapatam. The letter was sent this day at noon A duplicate of your Lordship's letter of the 29th ultimo has been received from the Coorga country. The particular accounts you require cannot now be sent. We want only provisions and cattle at present Money will be necessary next month Of rice we have collected, by various modes, enough to subsist our fighting men to the middle of May

I have the honour to be, &c

George Harris.

Translation of a Letter from Tippoo Sultaun to Lieut-General Harris, bearing no date, but received in camp before Sering apatam on the evening of the 20th April, 1799

In the letter of Lord Mornington it is written that the clearing up of matters at issue is proper, and that, therefore, you having been empowered for the purpose, will appoint such persons as you judge proper for conducting a conference and renewing the business of a treaty You are the well wisher of both Cheans In this matter what is your pleasure, inform me, that a conference may take place.

A true Translation,

BARRY CLOSE

No. CLXXX

The Earl of Mornington to Lieut -General Harris

SIR.

Fort St George, April 23rd, 1799

Various circumstances, of which the general nature is stated to you in another despatch of this date, combine to render it desirable that Tippoo Sultaun's power and resources should be reduced to the lowest possible state, and even utterly destroyed, if the events of war should afford the opportunity

One of these cucumstances is the equivocal conduct of the Mahattas, which leads me to conclude that they will afford us no assistance against Tippoo, and to apprehend that they may assist him, if any favourable occasion should occur

The vectory of the 27th of Match, combined with that of the 6th of Manch, has, I trust, induced you to adopt draft B* as the basis of any propositions which you may have made to Tippoo, previous to opening your batteries against Seingapatan

If Tippos should have agreed to preliminary atticles founded on diaft B, in fiaming the definitive treaty, you will express the cessions of territories and the payments of money in such terms as shall leave at my option the Peishwa's proportion of either

For this purpose, the preamble to any definitive treaty which you may conclude, should not contain any specification of the allies. The Company only should be specified, and the allies be included in general terms, according to the following duaff:

"Definitive treaty, &c. between the Honourable English Company and their allies, concluded by Lieut-General Harris on the part of the said Company and of their allies, by virtue of powers from the Governor-General, &c"

The name of Meet Allum, or of the Nızam, should not appear in the treaty, you will treat under powers from me. I have little apprehension that Meet Allum will disapprove the terms and form of this preamble, but if he should entertain any doubts on the occasion, they would be immediately removed by apprizing him, in confidence, that the airangement was designed to exclude the Mahiattas from an equal participation in the successes of the war, excepting on conditions which should operate to the particular benefit of the Nizam's Government.

Upon the same principle, and with the same view, it will be necessary that those articles of the definitive treaty regarding cessions, and specifying the several districts and forts to be respectively ceded to the allies, should be so qualified as to place the share to be allotted to the Peishwa at the disposal of the Company and of the Nizam

[·] See p. 463.

After a specification of the several districts to be ceded respectively to the Company and to the Nizam, the schedule of the territory to be ceded to the Peishwa might be qualified according to the following diaft

"But whereas the Penshwa has bonne no part in the present war, and all the expenses of it have been defrayed by the Company and the Nizam, it is hereby declared that the foregoing districts shall be deemed to belong to the Penshwa only on condition of the said Penshwa naking, within a period of two months from the date of this heaty, a satisfactory adjustment with the Company and the Nizam, on account of the butthen of the war having evolusively fallen on them, and in default of the Penshwa's making such a satisfactory adjusment, the districts to be ceded by the present iteaty to the Penshwa, shall be deemed to belong to the Company and to the Nizam, who shall be at liberty to divide them as they shall judge proper."

I wish the terms of any treaty which you may conclude with Tippoo Sultaun, to be regulated by the principles which I have laid down in the present letter

I also wish (if you have entered into no engagements with Tippoo Sultaun when you receive this letter) that the power and resources of that prince should be reduced to as low a state as possible. You are, therefore, authorized to proceed to any extremity which you shall consider practicable, without exposing us to the expense of a protracted and tedious war, or endangering the safety of your aimy, or any of the advantages already acquired.

In the event of any treaty with Tippoo, you must now obtain the utmost possible degree of security for his faithful execution of its stipulations. If this question is still open, I authorize you to demand the temponary possession of the fort of Seingapatam, to be holden as an additional pledge of security, provided that your superiority shall be so decisive as to entitle you to require such a concession.

I desire that the names of Lieut-General Stuart and of Major-General Hartley be added to the commission appointed to assist you in all matters of negotiation. The knowledge which those officers possess of the interests of the Company on the coast of Malabar, will prove very useful to you, and I authorize you to make any variation, in the terms of peace, relating to Malabar, which may be suggested by those officers

I have the honour to be, &c.

MORNINGTON

No CLXXXI

The Earl of Morning ton to his Highness the Nabob of the Carnatic

Fort St George, 24th April, 1799

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HIGHNESS

- I Within a few days subsequent to my animal at this Presidency, I had the honour to infom youn Highness of the state of the differences existing between the Honourable Company and Tippo Sultaun, and conformably to the tenth article of the treaty of 1792. I explained to your Highness, in the fullest manner, the probability of an approaching rupture with that prince
- The conduct of Tippoo Sultaun since that time having rendered war absolutely necessary for the security of the allied powers, hostilities have actually commenced
- 3 The thiid article of the treaty of 1792 stipulates that, "in the event of wai breaking out in the Cannatic, and countries appertaining to either party, and dependent on the Carnatic, or contiguous thereto, it is agreed, for the better prosecution of it, that as long as it shall last, the said Company shall possess full authority over the Cannatic, except the Jaghmis belonging to the family of the said Nawaub, and except also cartain charities, and shall collect the revenues thereof, the said Company hereby engaging that, during such war, they will pay to the said Nawaub one-fifth share of the net revenue arising thereform"
- 4. Under this article it is now become the right of the Company to exercise that full authority over the Canastic which is thus formally acknowledged to be necessary for the better prosecution of war
- 5 Your Highness, I am persuaded, is also satisfied, that it is now become my indispensable duty, without delay, to assume the revenues of the Carnatic conformably to the third article of the treaty of 1792, unless some new arrangement can now be framed, with the consent of both parties, which shall afford equal security to the common interests of your Highness and of the Company, for the vigorous and effectual prosecution of the war

- tion of the wai

 6 I am aware that both you Highness and your respected father have ever been disinclined to the assumption of the Cannatic by the Company, in the manner specified by the article in question, and entertaining an anxious and sincere desire, not only to piomote your Highness's interests and welfare, but to respect your inclinations and sentiments to the utmost extent compatible with the security of the Carnatic, I am induced to submit to your Highness's consideration the plan of a new ariangement between your Highness and the Company, which, if it shall prove acceptable to your Highness, will picclude the necessity of resorting to the stipulations of the third article of the treaty of 1792, and of assuming the whole of the Carnatic, not only during the present, but during any future, war
- 7 In faming an arrangement on this foundation, I have endeavoured to extend its provisions with the view of comprehending the whole state and condition of your Highness's connection with the Company, as well as the equitable adjustment of the various subjects of complaint, which your Highness has been pleased to represent to me since the period of my taking charge of the general Government of India.
- 8 Before I proceed to the details of this plan, I shall submit to your Highness's consideration some observations, which as they proceed from my good wishes for your prosperity and happiness, I trust you will receive with the coidality of friendship.
- Your Highness's situation for some years past, has neither been satisfactory to yourself, not advantageous to the interests, either of your own subjects or of the Company
- 10 You supulated monthly payments, under the treaty of 1792, are not only moderate in their amount, but cannot be stated to bear a due proportion to the increased military charges, now defiayed by the Company, for the defence of the Carmatic.
- 11 Your Highness will never forget that the amount of these payments was settled by Lord Cornwallis, under an indulgent modification of the treaty of 1787, the benefits of which the Company cheetfully relinquished, for the purpose of relieving his Highness, the late Nabob of the Carnatic, and ultimately your Highness from distress of encumstances and from anyiety of mind

- 12 Moderate as these payments are in their amount, they have proved the source of continual voxation to the late Nabob of the Cainante and to your Highness; and you have never been able to realize them in the Company's Treasury, without the utmost degree of difficulty and embarrassment, anising from unfortunate defects in the administration of your affairs.
- 13. These embai issments have occasioned the adoption of tempoiary expedients, for the puipose of removing the pressure of the moment, and the consequences of resorting to such expedients have been injurious not only to the peace of your Highness's mind, but to the permanent interests and happiness of your subjects, and to the foundations of the opulence and prosperity of the Carnatte.
- 14. The tuth of this faithful and amicable representation, will, I am persuaded, produce a just impression on your Highness's mind, when you reflect on the large amount of those sums of money applied to deftay the exolutant rates of interest, on all the various loans occasioned by the necessity of discharging your monthly payments.
- 15 These loans have usually been accompanied by assignments of tenitory to the creditors, whose vexatious management of the revenues assigned, has been the continual cause of of the most aggravated calamities to the inhabitants of the Carnatic
- 16 In these transactions the loss has fallen on your High-ness, your subjects, and your friends, and the illnet profit has enriched those, who (to use the words of your respected father, additessed to Lord Conwalls) "never approach your Durbar for any other purpose, than to pursue then habitual views of plunder and rapine"
- 17 Upon the whole, the final sesult of this system has been, that you Highness's mind has continued in a per petual state of solicitude and alarm, from the difficulty of satisfying the Company's claims, of which the moderation and justice cannot be contested. That the resources of your country have fallen into a state of progressive decay; and that the Company regularly receiving your Highness's monthly payments into the treasury, has viewed with unavailing legiet, the rapid approach of that crisis in the Cainatic, when every source of public revenue and credit, as well as of private opulence, industry, and nomilation must be reduced to the lowest condition

- 18 Neither your Highness not the Company can reflect with sutsafection on the regular discharge of your monthly payments, when those payments are known and acknowledged to be effected by means, which aggravate your Highness's embarrassments, and rapidly exhaust the territorial security pledged to the Company for the military subsidy
- 10 The collateral operation of this unhappy system is not less injurious, than its direct tendency. The notoriety of those embarrassments which compel you. Highness to resort to the expedient of loans and assignments of territory, leads to a general expectation of the approaching failure of your monthly payments and consequently of a speedy it ansfer of the pledged districts to the management of the Company.
- 20 A constant expectation of war for some years past has further countenanced the notion, that the Company's management must soon be extended over a large part of your Highness's territories, under the 3rd article of the treaty of 1792.
- 21 These expectations have precluded the possibility of introducing for the ielief of your Highness's subjects, any improvement founded on fixed and durable principles
- 22 The Carnatic, therefore, in addition to the calamitous misrule of those who have governed it, under temporary assignments of territory, has been subjected to all the accumulated evils of a divided Government and of a fluctuating and precarious authority
- 23 These sentments relating to you. Highness's situation are not the result of my judgment alone; I submit them to you as the result of the deliberate judgment of the Honorable Court of Directors, and of his Majesty's Ministers, formed upon a full, dispassionate, and impartial investigation of the relation in which your Highness stands towards the Company, and of the whole state of your affairs.
- 24 The punciples of sound and comprehensive policy, the duties of respect and regard for your Highness, as well as those of humane consideration for the welfate of your subjects demand, that the Company and his Majesty's Ministers should look beyond the mere convenience of the present hour to the certain operation of evils, menacing he permanent resources of your country

- .95 The appiehension of the approach of that period, when the necessary effect of these evils must break forth to the entire rum of the interests of your Highness and of the Company in the Cainatic, has induced the Court of Directors, and the Government of Fort St George, to urge with earnestness the necessity of a new airangement with your Highness They have, however refrained from missisting to its full extent on that claim of justice and right, which the Company derives from the letter as well as the general substance and spirit of the nearly of 1792, according to the established maxims of public law and national fath.
- 26 Under that treaty, your Highness's faith is unequivocally pledged never to grant tunkwahs or assignments of revenue on the districts composing the security of your monthly payments to the Company
- 27 I am awase that the same article has also provided for the avoidance of all such tunkwals no assignments as shall be found to exist on any of the pledged districts, which shall pass mto the hands of the Company under the operation of the preceding articles of the teaty. But this provision cannot be viewed in any other light than that of an extraordinary precaution, to establish an additional security for the interests of the Company. It cannot be constitued to absolve your Highness from the positive obligation, which you have contacted in specific terms, "not to grant tunkwals or assignments on any account on the revenues of the districts, responsible for any arrears, which may acciue in the payment of the stipulated kists."
- 28 If the treaty of 1792, has not provided a sufficient security for the due per formance of this obligation, and if the neglect of this obligation the atens to defeat the primary object of the whole treaty, and to destroy the fundamental principle of your Highnesis connection with the Company, the contracting parties must resort to the general law of nations, to supply the defective provisions of an engagement, which it is then mutual interests to preserve involate, according to its true tenor and original spirit
- 29 The permanent establishment of an adequate territorial security for the payment of your Highness's share of the expence of defending the Cainatic, is the puncipal object of the teaty of 1792. The treaty, therefore, would become nu-gatory and delissive, in or nemedy could be provided against the continuance of a system, whose unnestrained progress must ultimately deprive your Highness of the power of satisfying your engagements to the Company, and must leave the Company bereft of all means of recovering the runious consequences of such fulture. Your Highness's own discernment, will at once enable you to judge, whether it was the intention of Lord Conwallis in signing the treaty of 1792, to provide a real, substantial, and lasting security for the Company's military subsidy, or to sanction a system of disorder, by which the whole value and efficiency of that security must be annihilated before the Company could derive any benefit from it

30 It is not necessary at present to trouble you. Highness with a more detailed representation on this part of the subject,—the plan which I now have the honor to submit to you, is calculated to preclude all such discussions, and I have revived the subject in this place, meely for the purpose of pointing your attention to one of the puncipal causes, which have rendered a new atrangement with your Highness indispensable

31 You Highness, I am persuaded, cannot reasonably view the proposition for a new ariangement proceeding from the Company, with any degree of jealousy or slaim; I must repeat the observation (and I recommend it with all the earnestness of frendship to your most serious consideration) that a similar jealousy on the part of the Company, would have bound his Highness, the late Nabob, and your Highness to the stipulations of the nearty of 1787.

32 If the Company had pertmactously adheted to the letter of that treaty, and had missted on a strict performance of the engagements contracted under it, I leave it to your Highness's candour and justice to declare, what would have been the actual condition of your affains? But the Company then waved its undernable rights under a subsisting treaty, and consented to a new arrangement at your soluctation and for your benefit. The Company has, therefore, a just claim to your Highness's favourable attention on the present occasion, and I trust, that under this impression, your Highness will not receive my earnest proposition for a modification of the treaty of 1799, with any other sensation, than those with which

Lord Conwallis received your respected father's application for a modification of the treaty of 1787

33 In proceeding to submit to your Highness the details of my proposed plan, I shall in the first instance state certain general principles, which appear to me necessary to be observed for the common benefit of all parties. Ist.—That the new treaty shall comprehend the adjustment of every branch of your Highness's affairs, as connected with your relation to the Company, and shall leave no question open to future discussion and—That whatever adjustment shall now take place, shall be so framed as to afford the utmost degree of practicable security against the possibility of future change in order that the new treaty may become a final and conclusive settlement between you Highness and the Company

3rd —That with a view to secure the stability of the new treaty, as well as to provide an adequate remedy for the evils already enumerated in this letter, effectual provision be made that no part of the Carantic shall remain or fall under a divided Government, or a fluctuating or precaisors authority

34 Referring to these general principles, the first object of consideration in the state of your Highness's affairs, is your debt to the Company This now consists,

First —Of the balance as reported by Messis Woolf and Place, on the 1st July, 1793—35,06,135

Second —Balance of the Kistbundy Account, as per account, made up to 9th Sept , 1791—19,98,006

Third —Balance of the new Cavahy Loan, with interest at 8 per cent, to the 12th October 1798—11,62,770 Total— 66,66,911

35. The two first articles of this debt at the earnest desired of his Highness, the late Nabob of the Carnatic, were referred to the athitation of the Governoi-general in Council, in the year 1793, and a Committee was appointed in Bengal, for the purpose of assisting the Governoi-General in deciding upon them. This Committee has never yet delivered in any ieport, but having myself entered into a minute examination of the whole of these disputed accounts, and having considered with impartiality, the respective claims of your Highness and of the Company, I have no doubt that upon the balance of these accounts, you will be found justly indebted to the Company to a very large amount If, however, a new arrangement should be acceptable to your Highness, I am ready on the part of the Company to consider whether it may not be macticable to complomise the whole of this claim, amounting to 55.04.141 pgs as well as the amount of any claim arising out of the payments made by the Company to your Highness's consolidated cieditors of 1787 The extreme solicitude manifested by the late Nabob of the Carnatic, to induce Loid Conwalks to place these disputed accounts in a way of adjustment, by which his Highness bound himself to submit implicitly to the award of the Governor-General in Council, with relation to them, are sufficient testimonies of the importance and value of the concession which the Company may be disposed to make to your Highness in this article durmg the course of the negotiation

36 With legal to the advance made by the Company to the late Nabob, to the dischaige of his Highness's debt, denominated the new cavalry loan, I am satisfied that this branch of your Highness's debt to the Company should be highdated, partly by an alrangement, stated hom the 37th to the 41st paragraph of this letter, and partly (in the manner aheady proposed by your Highness to Sir John Shore), by the application of the sum of 6,24,105 pagodas, after your Highness's present guaranteed debt shall have been highly displayed by the operation of that fund

ST The great pressure of the material bianches of your debt to the Company would thus be entuely seleved by then indulgence, and the period of the discharge of your new cavalry debt would be settled in such a manner that it could nevel metrelie with your convenience—a stipulation may be inserted in the Treaty, binding the Company never to apply to you Highness for any advance of money on account of the new cavalry debt, pievrous to the period when its liquidation shall commence by the operation of the fund assigned for that purpose

38 Your Highness has, at different times, preferred certain claims with respect to the Ramnad surplus, and to the Pershcush of Sadias, and to the pearl fishery of Ceylon

39 Your Highness has been informed that the whole question respecting Ramnad has been referred to the Court of Directors If, however, I should be enabled to conclude a new Treaty with your Highness, I shall be ready to decide the reference to the Honourable the Court of Directors And being anxious to pay every attention to your Highness's just claims I shall ducet the balance of the revenues of Rammad remaining (after the deduction of all expences according to the 9th article of the agreement of 1795, concluded by Loid Hobart,) to be carried to your Highness's credit in the account of the new cavalty debt, immediately after your acceptance of the general arrangement which may be concluded between your Highness and the Company, in consequence of this letter

- 40 I propose to direct, that the whole amount of the Perscush, due to your Highness, since Sadras has been in the hands of the Company, shall be carried to your credit in the same account
- 41 Your Highness's share of the pearl fishery has been calculated on principles which admit of no contest, to be onefifth part of the number of boats employed in the whole fishery m each season, and an equivalent sum of money has been allowed to your Highness in your general account Immediately after the execution of the new Treaty, I shall direct this sum also to be carried to your credit on the same account. and in the same manner as the two preceding sums Governor of Ceylon being now at this Presidency, in consequence of having received my orders to meet me here for the purpose of settling the affairs of his Government under my directions, if the proposals stated in this letter should meet your Highness's approbation, I shall direct the Governor of Ceylon to form a Treaty with your Highness, securing to you the regular payment of your share of the pearl fishery The payment to be made by the Governor of Cevlon into your Highness's treasury
- 42 The Governon of Ceylon will state to your Highness the great injury which would arise to the fishery from suffering any persons to interfere with those to whom it is faimed. And I, therefore, trust that your Highness will not desine to send any boats to the fishery. The punctual payment of you just share appears to me to be the most advantageous settlement which can be made for your interests, as well as for those of the Government of Ceylon.

- 48 Having thus manifested my desire to attend to the several objects which I know to be interesting to your High-ness, I am further to inform you that I am ready, by an auticle of the new Treaty, to relinquish the right of the Company to the assumption of the Canatic during the present, and during all future wars, on the following conditions
- 44 That your Highness shall place under the exclusive management, controul, and authority of the Company, in perpetuity, a territory, equal to secure the receipts of the whole of your monthly payments into the Company's treasury, which payments are of course to cease from that time The territory to be placed under the management of the Company, is described in a memorandum annexed to this letter. Your Highness will observe, that I have included the southern division of the Arcot province, although not one of the mortgaged districts, with a view to preserve in your Highness's management the countries surrounding your capital, and that the territorial revenues, under each authority respectively. may be as compact as cucumstances will admit In place of the northern division of Arcot, I propose to hold a district in the southern division of that province, to the amount specified in the annexed memorandum I shall also for the convemence of both parties, be ready to exchange districts in the southern division of Aicot, adjoining to those of the center in place of the Jaghire lands, which your Highness holds to the southward of the Coleroon, for a similar purpose of avoiding the evils of a divided authority
- 45 If the territory, placed under the management of the Company, should produce more than the stipulated amounts of 12, 56, 400 15 54, the whole of the surplus shall be paid into your Highness's tressury, upon an account to be settled every third year, or more frequently, when a permanent settlement of the revenue of the Carnatic shall take place
- 46 On the other hand, if, from any accident of season, or from any other casualty, any deficiency should arise in the revenue of the countries managed by the Company, the loss shall fall exclusively on the Company, and your Highness shall not be responsible for any part of it
- 47 With respect to the districts remaining in your Highness's hands, your Highness shall not be accountable for any mercase of their produce under your management, nor shall the Company be responsible hereafter for any contingent diminution of it.

- 48 As the expence of maintaining and repaining the several forts contained in the districts to be placed under the Company's management will necessarily be transferred to the Company—an annual sum will be allotted for the purpose, chargeable on the assigned revenues The amount of this sum will be settled with your Highness's approbation during the negotiation of the new Treaty
- 49 I have already observed to your Highness, that the increase of military charges, for the defence of the Canatuc, has rendered the amount of your subsidy disproportioned to its original object, on every principle of justice the Company would be warranted in proposing to your Highness an augmentation of your military subsidy. But, as I am anxious to preserve to your Highness the full enjoyment of an ample and unmoumbered revenue, I have endearoured to provide a fund for the increase of the military subsidy without any dimmution of your actual recents.
- 50 I propose, therefore, that whatever claims on the part of your Highness, or of the Company, remain in doubt respecting the Polygian, under the Treaty of 1792, should be now fully adjusted with the Company, and I am willing to accept that adjustment in lieu of all claims for an increase of your military subsidy, proportioned to the increased expence of defending the Can sate
- 51 The punciple which induced the Company to seek the transfer of the Polygar Peishcush will not admit any considerable augmentation of the annual payments from those Tributaires If the Company should hereafter deem it to be a wise policy to increase the Peishcush of the Polygars, that increase must be very moderate, and must be considered as a commutation for the military services of the Polygars
- 52 Under a new Treaty, founded on the basis described, I enteatau no doubt that your Highness's clear revenue would be considerably increased, and I am persuaded that you will concur with me in this opinion, when you refer to the former and present value of the countries which will semain in your Highness's hands, and when you recollect the extent of your charges for collection and other contingencies, and the enormous sums which you are compelled to waste every year on account of interest and charges attending loans of money

- 53. Under such a Treaty the evils of a divided Government, and of an unsettled and ill-defined power, would cease throughout the Cunatur. The authority of the Company and that of you Highness could never interfere with each other, and the new settlement would bear such unequivocal mails of permanency and security as would inspire general confidence, facilitate the introduction of an improved system of management, and revive the decaying punciples of general industry, productive labous, and individual affluence
- 54 In order to render this settlement perfect in all its parts, and to secure your Highness's future case and comfort under all possible contingencies, it will be expedient to establish some certain fund for the satisfaction of those private creditors of the late Nabob of the Carnatte and of your Highness, whose claims now stand without security.
- 55 The operation of the sum of 6,21,105 pagodas will have liquidated the whole of the consolidated private debt guaranteed by Parliament in the year 1794
- 56 After that penod, by you, Highness's agreement with Sn John Shore, the whole of this fund would be made applicable to the new cavality debt, but I propose that only half the sum, namely, 3,10,552 pagodas 8 fansms, be appropriated to the payment of the interest and principal of the new cavality debt, and the remaining half to the discharge of such just unconsolidated debts due by your father and by you. Highness to midriduals as shall, after the most struct examination, receive the sanction of your Highness and of the Court of Directors
- 57 After the liquidation of the new cavaly debt, I propose that the whole fund of 6,21,105 pagodas shall be applied to the payment of the unconsolidated debt, according to the principles stated in the foregoing paragraph, and when the whole of the private debts (thus sanctioned by your Highness and by the Court of Directors) shall have been discharged, I propose that the full amount of the sum of 6,21,105 pagodas shall be annually paid in cash by the Company into your Highness's treasury
- 58. Thus, Sir, have I submitted to your Highness the outline of the only plan which appears to me to promise the hope of order to your affairs, of tranquillity to your mind, and of security to the interests of the Company committed to my charge.

- 59 Under the new anangement your Highness would be releved from all urgent demands either of a public or private nature, and you would possess a much more ample revenue than you now enjoy, with the additional satisfaction of iffecting that your possession was hable to no disturbance, either from the contingency of war, or from any casual failure of your resources. You would be at hierty to duect your undivided attention to the cultivation and improvement of those resources to the utmost practical extent, and you never could feel the necessity of injuring the main springs of your revenue for the purpose of meeting the exigency of occasional difficulty
- 60 Whatever increase of produce might arise in the districts managed by the Company, would be a new source of wealth to your Highness, and you would feel a personal interest in every improvement which the Company might be enabled to introduce into the system of your revenue.
- 61 With these observations I shall conclude, can nestly enteating you. Highness to give your most serious attention to this letter. The opportunity is now peculiarly favourable to the final adjustment of you. Highness's affaus, if you suffer it to pass away without improvement, events may intervene to aggravate you. Highness's embariassments, to postpone, or even to pieclude, all final arrangement of your affaus, and ultimately, to involve you in mexticable distress.
- 62. If the general principles which I have suggested, with the freedom and sincerity of friendship, should meet you Highness's approbation, they may speedly be reduced to the form of a Treaty, and I may be enabled, before my return to Bengal, to have the satisfaction of laying the foundation of perpetual ease to you Highness's mind, and of progressive improvement to this feitile, but declining, country
- 63 Your Highness will observe, that throughout the whole of this letter, I have avoided any reference to your fate failure in your engagements to assist the Company in the present exigency, by the immediate payment of a part of the new cavalry debt, I trust you will attribute my silence on this recent transaction to my earnest desire of abstaining from any discussion which can be painful to your Highness

I have the honour to be.

With great respect and attachment. Your Highness's most faithful, and humble servant. MORNINGTON

No 1

Memorandum of Sums, which, in the event of a general arrangement taking place between his Highness and the Company, it is proposed to carry to his credit in part payment of the Cavaly Loan Debt

Sadras Peisheush, for three years, 4,350 27, Ramnad surplus, 57,820, Share of the Pearl Fishers for 1797, 54 892 26 65, Ditto for 1798, 56,488 12. Ditto estimated for 1799, 56,488 12 Total proposed to be credited in part of the Cavalry Lo in Debt, 2,30,040 5 65

Unadjusted Balance due by his Highness the Nabob to the Company. which it is proposed to compromise in the event of his Highness agreeing to the proferred heal arrangement of his affairs

Balance as per account current, the result of an investigation of Messrs- Woolf and Place, 35,06,135 20 17. Balance of his Highness's Kist Bundy account closed July 1790, 19,98,006 10 22 55,04,141 30 39 Total balances and claims to be adjusted, 57,34,182 24 sterling pagedas

No 2

Memorandum of the districts, with the estimated amount of their net revenue. to be placed under the exclusive management, controll and orders of the English East India Company, by his Highness the Nawaub, &c of the Carnatic, by the proposed treaty, in heu of his Highness's payment of narodas, 12,56,400 15 54

Setwadoo, including Calicut, &c., 9,800, Palnaud, 24,657, Ongole, 93,334, Nellore, 3,31,783, Trichinopoly, exclusive of Jaghires, 2.51,139. Madura, 64,945, Tinnevelly, 4,06,508, Southern Division of Arcot to the amount of, 2,01,157, * Sadias Peiscush, 1,450 Total sterling pagodas, 13,84,773

[.] Sadras being within the Company's Jaghire, is here inscited on the principle of preserving distinct the authority of the Company and his Highness in their respective districts

No 3

Memorandum of the Districts and Revenue estimated to remain with his Highness and family

Arcot Province, exclusive of the portion placed under the management of the Company, 3,09,215. Jaghires, 2,13,421

Estimated surplus payable to his Highness from the districts under the Company's management, 1,28,373 pagedas Deduct supposed amount required for the repairing forts, 20,000 Surplus, 1,08,373

Betunated revenue from the Pearl fishery, 50,000. Total sterling pagodas, 6,81,009. To which add the amount that will revert to his Highness when his public and private debts are hquidated, 6,21,105. £5,20,946. 12 per annum, and his total clear revenue will be, 13,02,114 pagodas.

It is here proper to remark, that there is greater room for improvement in the revenue of the Arout province, where his Highness' distincts are situated, than in any other in the Carnatic Its former value was extinated at 12,45,655 sterling pagodas. It is in these Memoranda only estimated, including Jaghre, at 6,58,285 sterling pagodas. Decrease in the mesent estimates, 5,98,732 sterling rapados.

Fion whatever causes this extraordinary failure has anseen, there can be no doubt that the promuce of Arcoi, now protected by the Company's extended boundary, must progressively improve under good management, and consequently has Highness's revenue must increase, it will also microsase from similar effects in those districts under the management of the Company

A true Copy, N B Edmonstone, Persian translator to Govt

No CLXXXII

The Earl of Mornington to the Hon Jonathan Duncan, Esq.

Sir, Fort St George, 24th April, 1799

Shums-oo-Doulah, the brother-in-law of the Nabob of Bengal, having been detected in a design to invite Zemain Shah to mixed Findostan for purposes hostile to the British possessions, has been lately taken into custody, and among his papers, which were secured upon that occasion, have been found letters from Shaikh Khulfaun, and other persons of note at Miscat, to the addites of Shums-oo-Doulah and of the Nabob of Bengal, the contents of which afford the strongest reason to believe that some scheme, mjunious to the British interests, has been in agitation between these parties. The language is studiously obscure, and all explanation is referied to the verbal communications of the agent employed to negotiate between the parties. The specific object of the negotiation, therefore, cannot be traced in these papers, but it evidently appears to have been commenced by the people of Muscat, a cincumstance which, added to other indications in these letters, renders it probable that the whole has its origin in the machinations of the French

As Shums-oo-Doulah has offered to make an ample disclosue of all he knows respecting the vanious conspinances which have lately been discovered, and as the agent Shaikh Thamass, who by the late accounts was at Mootshedabad, will in all probability be apprichended, I trust we shall soon obtain satisfactory information upon the subject, in the meantine, however, I think it necessary to apprize you of what has already come to light, and to desne that you will keep a vigilant eye upon the port of Muscat, with a view to defeat the design, which there is reason to suspect that Government enteitains of affording assistance to the French

I request that you will convey the substance of this information to the Admiral, with my request that he will direct his attention to the port of Muscat

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your most faithful Servant,
Mornington

No CLXXXIII.

The Earl of Mornington to Colonel Palmer, Resident at Poonah

SII

Fort St George, 25th April, 1799

The accounts of the treacherous designs of the Peishwa, and of Dowlut Rao Seindiah, are rendered probable by the weakness, proffigacy, and necessitous condition of both, as well as by the general tenor of their recent proceedings

I have received from the Resident at Hyderabad communications, corresponding in all the leading points with your intelligence

I hope to learn that, in consequence of this discovery, you have suspended the execution of that part of my instructions of the 3rd instant which authorized you to declate to the Peishwa, "that, notwithstanding the perverse and forbidding policy of the Court of Poonah, I should not fail to seeme to him an equal participation with the other alhies in any cessions which might be enforced from Tipoo Sultaun"

The teachety and intended hostility of the Pershwa depurve him of any claim to consideration on the pain of the Butash Govenment His conduct would justify a declaration of war. For the present, however, it will be sufficient merely to withhold the assurances authorized in my letter to you of the 3id matant, and I accordingly direct you not to communicate them to the Pesilwa, or to his ministers, if you shall not have communicated them before this letter shall reach you.

But it is necessary to adopt a stronger and more decisive mode of proceeding with regard to Dowlut Rao Scindish, whose unsativated by reply to your remonstance against his admission of vakeels from Tippoo, renders it an indispensable duty to impose some restraint on his unprovoked and unprincipled projects of plunder and rapine

I, therefore, direct you to signify, in my name, to Dowlut Rao Scindish, without delay, either verbally or by writing, "that reports have reached me of his hostile designs against the Nizam, that I sincerely hope, and am willing to believe, those reports to be groundless. You will add, that his Highness the Nizam, being now cordully and actively engaged in the war against Tippoo Sultam, conformably to the defensive heaty of tiple alliance, any attempt against his Highness the Nizam's dominions would be equivalent to an attack upon the Company. The Birtish Government, therefore, could not view with indifference any such attempt on the part of any power whatever,—accordingly it is my determination, in the event of any violation of the territory of the Nizam, by whatever power, to support his Highness with the whole force of the Company."

Instead of making a similar declaration to the Peishwa, it will be sufficient to apprize him of the communication which I have directed to be made to Scandiah, he cannot fail to apply my admonition to himself, if it should excite in him any apprehensions for the consequences of his late connection with Scandiah, he will be the more encouraged to detach himself from that chieftain, by the hope which our silence is calculated to lead him to entertain, that we have not discovered their intigue, on the other hand, were he to know that I was fully apprized of the extent of his treacherous designs, despair might impel him to unite himself more closely with Sendish

I am, Sn, &c
Mornington

No CLXXXIV

The Earl of Morning ton to Major Bannerman

SIR, Fort St George, 25th April, 1799

I am extremely concerned to learn the death of the Dewan of the Rajah of Thavancore, as well on account of his attachment to the interests of the Company, as from motives of respect for the character of his ability and prudence

I am sensible of the difficulties which may attend the choice of a new Dewan, and I, therefore, authorize you to interfere as far as you may judge it advisable, in the recommendation of a proper person to succeed to that office I rely, implicitly, on your honour and integrity on this delicate point, being persuaded, that in recommending a person to fill the office of Dewan, you will be guided by no other motive than an equal consideration of the interests of the Company and those of the Rajah of Travancore

I am, &c

Mornington

No CLXXXV

The Earl of Mornington to his Excellency Lieut-General Harris

Sir, Fort St. George, 26th April, 1799

The danger of an early attack upon the dominions of the Nizam by Doulut Rao Scindish, either singly on in concert with the Peishwa, appears to have increased since my letter of the 33rd instant * The greatest and most efficient part of the Nizam's aimy being now employed in Mysore, and the state of our force in the Cainatic not admitting of any prompt or effectual and in troops from us, it is, therefore, extremely desirable that the Nizam's contingent, now severing with you, as well as the Company's subsidiary troops (or Lieut-Colonel Dahymple's detachment) should be at liberty, as early as possible, to return to Hyderabad for the protection of his Highness's territories

Vide page 538

The early capture of Senngapatam would, probably, enable you to admit, without danger or inconvenience, the departure of the Nizam's contingent, and of the subsidiary troops Leaving it to your discretion to determine the period of their dismission, I tust that you will not detain them a moment after you shall judge your army (exclusive of the Nizam's contingent and subsidiary force) to be sufficient for the prosecution of the war against the Sultaum

I have the honour to be, &c.

MORNINGTON

No CLXXXVI

Lieut -General Hairis to the Earl of Moinington

My Lord, Camp, before Seringapatam, 27th April, 1799

Our approaches to the fort were advanced 250 vards on the night of the 24th, and a battery of four guns was elected on the 25th, which destroyed the defences of some which bore on our attack This opened with considerable effect yesterday morning, and in the evening the enemy's entrenchments in advance were attacked and carried, not without an obstinate contest, which continued through the night Our troops now occupy these works, and their lodgement will, I trust, this night be made secure The possession of these works is of great importance as it gives us the ground on which the breaching battery must be erected, and every circumstance of the siege promises favourably The enemy have disputed every inch of ground, and the spirit and conduct of the troops on every occasion, (and we have had several) which required animated exertion, has been such as I cannot applaud too highly

I have the honour to be, &c

GEORGE HARRIS

No CLXXXVII

Lieutenant General Harris to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord. Camp, Senngapatam, 28th April, 1799

I yested day reported to your Londship the successful attack made the pieceding evening on the advanced work of the nemy In the course of last might, the position occupied by our toops was strongly secured. This moning a letter from Tippo Sultam, of which I amea a translation, was received In reply, I have referred to the teams forwarded on the 282d, as those only on which I would treat, decliumg to admit any vakeels unless they were accompanied by the hostages and specie, in consequence of those teams being agreed to, and missting on an answer by three o'clock to-morrow

This night our breaching battery will be built, and its fire tomorrow will probably have consideable effect on the Sultaun's determination, no offer to negociate shall for an instant delay our military operations, and every appearance of their present state and progress is extremely favourable

I have the honour to be, &c

George Harris,

Translation of a Letter from Tippoo Sullaun to Lieut-General Hains, having no date, but received in Camp before Seringapatam, on the 28th April 1799

I have the pleasure of your friendly letter and understand its contents. The points in question are weighty, and without the intervention of Ambassadors, cannot be brought to a conclusion, I am, therefore, about to send two gentlemen to you, and have no doubt but a conference will take place, they will personally explain themselves to you, what more can I write.

A true translation,

BARRY CLOSE

No CLXXXVIII

The Earl of Mornington to Lieut -General Harris

SIR.

Fort St George, 28th April, 1799

Curent accounts render it probable that Tippoo Sultaun will attempt to retire from Seringapatam to Chritledroog, or to some other of his strong hill forts. To counteract this attempt, you will employ the whole activity, skill, and zeal of your army, and you will omit no effort to intercept the Sultaun, if he should move out of his capital for the purpose of effecting such an escape

If the Sultaun should escape and Senngapatam should fall into the possession of the British army, the power and reputation of Tippoo will certainly suffice agreet blow, but while he is able to keep an army in the field, and to maintain himself in any strong position, our efforts to reduce him to the last extremity must be unremitted.

In the event supposed, after properly securing the possession of Seringapatum, and storing it as amply as it may be in your power with grain, you will resume your operations against the enemy, with as hittle delay, and with as much vigour as possible

You can best judge whether it would be practicable to undertakethe stege of Chittlednoog, (supposing Trippo to retue to that place) during the approaching monsoon. If you can pusue the enemy during the monsoon, without too great hazard to the health or safety of your aimy, every consideration of polocy will require such a pursuit

Should so vigorous a prosecution of the war be impracticable or mexpedient during the monsoon, you will employ the interval in securing the resources of the Enemy's country, endeavouring (as far as can be done without too great a dispersion of your force) to establish yourself in all the districts of Tippoo lying to the southward of the Cauvery, (including Perinpatam) and opening a direct communication to the northward of the trive between Seimgapatam and Ryakottah, by seizing such places as may be necessary in that line

In all your operations under the case supposed in the present letter, you must keep in view as much as possible, the object of affording every practicable degree of protection to the Nizam's fonter, until you shall be able in pursuance of my instructions of the 26th instant, to dismuss from Mysore his Highness's contingent and subsidiary troops, under the command of Leut-Colonel Dairymple

I am, &c
Mornington

No CLXXXIX

The Earl of Mornington to the Hon Jonathan Duncan

SIR.

Fort St George, April 30, 1799

1 Concurrent accounts render it probable that Tippoo Sultaun will attempt to retire from Seringapatam to Chittledroog, or to some other of his strong hill forts

9. If the Sultaun should escape, and Senngapatam should fall into the possession of the Bittish amy, the power and reputation of Tippoo will certainly suffer a great blow, but while he is able to keep an amy in the field, and to maintain himself in any strong position, our efforts to reduce him to the last extremity must be unremitted

3 In the event supposed, it would be the object of General Hairs, after properly securing the possession of Seringapatam, to resume his operations against the enemy with as little delay and with as much vigour as possible

4 Whether it would be piacticable to undertake the stege of Chittled-nog (supposing Tippo to ictite to that place) during the approaching monsoon, General Hailis alone is competent to judge, but at whatever period this expedition may be undertaken, the distance of the supposed field of action from Seringapatam and its vicinity to the Mahratin flontier, make it peculiarly desirable to secure to our aimy not only the resources of the adjacent Mahratia possessions, but the efficient cooperation of a considerable Mahratia for the properties of the supposed of the supposed of the cooperation of a considerable Mahratia for the properties of a considerable Mahratia for the properties of the supposed of the suppos

5 Neither the state of the Peshwa's authority, not of his melmation to our cause, would justify the least expectation of the requisite cooperation from him, Purseiam Bhow is the only Mahiatta chieftain who is able to afford us the aid in question

- 6 The present position of this chieffam's force, and the relative situation of the country under his management, with respect to Chittledrioog and Bednore, render it particularly desnable to engage his condula services, while the well known antipathy subsisting between him and Tippoo Sultaun offers a reasonable presumption that Puiseaun Bhow would be disposed, by a reasonable prospect of advantage, to assist in the reduction of the Sultaun's power
- 7 With a view, therefore, to the accomplishment of this essential object, I wish a direct communication to be opened between the Company's Government and Purseram Bhow
- 8 It has occurred to me that this communication can best be opened and maintained from the coast of Malabai, (penhaps from Goa,) from which place to the residence of Puisseram Bhow, the route would probably be found sufficiently easy and secure
- 9 It is my wish that Lieut -Colonel Little and Mr Uthoff should be employed on this mission, and that for this purpose they should proceed with as little delay as possible to Goa, these to hold themselves in readmess to repair either jointly or separately to the residence of Punseam Bhow, whenever they shall receive authentic information of the flight of Tippoo Sultaun from Seingapatam, whether to Chittle-dioog or to any other of his strong hill flots.
- 10 The main point which they must endeavour to carry with the Bhow is, his immediate and cordual cooperation at the head of the largest force in cavalry which he can assemble, with our aimy in Mysole, for the purpose of prosecuting the war against Tippoo with the utmost vigour.
- 11 The subordinate points relating to the specific manner in which the Bhow shall cooperate with our army in Mysore, must be adjusted in concert with General Harris, according to whose advice and requisitions the Bhow must engage to regulate all his movements. Without waiting, however, for any specific requisition from General Harris, the Bhow must be required to engage to advance, without loss of time, in the direction of Chittledroog, or of such fortress as may be occupied by the Sultaun
- 12 The Commissioners will, of course, endeavour to obtain the concurrence of Purseram Bhow in these measures, on the most reasonable terms, without prescribing the nature or extent of the encouragement to be held out to him

- 13 I authorize the Commissioners to pledge the Company's Government to secure to Purseram Blow, from the territories which may be obtained from Tippoo Sultaun by the allies, a Jaghne of such amount as they shall deem adequate to the service required I also authorize them to promise to the Bhow, at the expiration of the way, a sum of money limited by the same pumple. They may also advance to the Bhow mmediately, for the purpose of enabling him to move into the enemy's country a sum of money, not exceeding a month's subsistence, for such force as he shall bring into the field This advance will not be made unless the Bhow should absolutely required.
- 14 The Commissioners must have the necessary credit given them for drawing on your Government for any such advance as they shall judge requisite to be furnished to the Bhow
- 15 It is not improbable that Purseram Bhow may require to be joined by a detachment of the Company's troops. I should have no objection to complying with such an application did circumstances admit of it, but as this is not likely to be the case, I can only authorize the Commissioners to assure him, that he shall be joined, if he desires it, by a detachment of the Company's toops, on his approaching or leaching the army of General Hairis.
- 16 I shall direct MI Uthoff to proceed to Goa by the first opportunity, in order that he may be prepared to repair from thence to Purseiam Bhow's residence on receiving intelligence of the event stated in the 9th paragraph of this letter. In this event, both the Commissioners, if at Goa, will proceed together, but if only one of them should be arrived at Goa, he must proceed without waiting for the other, and execute angly the objects of the commission.
- If I should repose perfect confidence in the ability either of Mi Uthoff or of Lieut-Colonel Little, to accomplish the objects of the proposed embassy, and my view in calling for the services of both, is solely to provide equally against the accidents of season to the northward or southward of Goa

I have the honour to be, Sn, your most faithful servant, MORNINGTON.

No CXC

The Earl of Morning ton to Lieutenant General Harris

SIR.

Fort St George, 30th April, 1799

I entirely approve of your determination not to negotiate with the Sultann I trust that, before this letter can reach you, you will be in possession of Seiingapatam. You will observe, that my instructions to you, in the event of your obtaining possession of the place were, that you should neither open not conclude any negotiation without special authouty from me I am persuaded that you will pay particular attention to this instruction, and if you should be in possession of the place, that you will use every exertion to furnish me, without delay, with such information as may enable me to provide effectually for the complete and lasting security of the Company's interests in this quarter. I have made, and shall continue to employ, every possible effort to provide for the ample supply of your army in every respect

> I have the honour to be, &c MORNINGTON.

No CXCI

The Earl of Mornington to his Excellency Sir Alured Clarke

Fort St George, 30th April, 1799 MY DEAR SIR.

I request that, immediately on receiving this letter, you will appoint a committee "to take into consideration the state of the police in Calcutta, and in the cities of Moorshedabad. Dacca, Patna and Benaies, and also in the several districts under the Company's Government, within the provinces of Bengal, Bahar, Oussa and Benaies, and to report the same, together with such new regulations as may appear best adapted to the present cucumstances of the said cities and districts "

To this committee I wish that the magistrates of the several cities and districts should be required forthwith to report the state of the police within their respective departments, together with such amendments as appear necessary and practicable for the improvement of the same

I wish the committee to consist of Mi Bailow, Mi Harington, M1 Macklew, and M1 Blaquiere, with any other names which M1 Barlow may suggest The report of the committee to be transmitted to me, from time to time, during my absence from Bengal, and no measure to be adopted until I shall have had an opportunity of signifying my wishes to you The committee cannot be appointed too soon not proceed too early to report upon the police of Calcutta and of the several cities It would be desnable that M1 Barlow should communicate with Sir John Anstiuther, from time to time, and should sigmfy to him my request, that he will be so good as to aid the committee with his opinion during the progress of then enquiry The judges have been aheady requested to furnish me with their advice respecting the state of the police at Calcutta, and I flatter myself that, with their assistance, added to the detailed report of the proposed committee, I may be enabled to establish such a system of regulation as shall tend to secure, on a more durable foundation, the good order and tranquillity of the cities and provinces under the peculiar charge of the Government of Bengal

Believe me, my deal Sir, &c
Mornington

No CXCII

[This letter was accidentally omitted under its proper date]

Lord Cline to the Secret Committee of the Court of Directors

Gentlemen, Fort St George 17th April, 1799

Understanding that the Gover no-General transmits to you by the present despatch a full and detailed account of the war in which we are engaged with Thypoo Sultaun, and of the circumstances, and motives which have determined his Loid-ship in the choice of the measures which has pursued relative thereto, I should remain satisfied with what is written in the letter of this Government of this day's date to the Secret Committee, did it not occur to my mind that it may be satisfactory to you to know more explicitly my sentiments upon the actual state of our affans respecting the war, and that I should not do justice to the Governor-General if I did not express my sense of the conduct which has put us in a situation of such fan and well grounded expectation as that in which we are now placed. Upon my arrival here the end of August last, I entertained the most serious apprehensions of the Sultaun's invading the Cainatic, which, had he done, very difficult would it have been to have assembled the whole of our army, and yam would have been the hope of collecting a sufficiency of supplies and cattle to enable us to undertake the siege of Seiingapatam this season, and finish the war in one campaign But the fortune of the Company prevented. and possibly the complete success of the measure of annihilating the French party, and increasing the subsidiary force at Hyderabad, planned with so much wisdom by the Governor General, and executed with so much ability by Colonel Roberts, under the direction of the resident, Captain Kirkpatrick, confounded the Sultaun, and deterred him from bringing upon the Cainatic so severe a calamity

From the time I was acquainted with the views and intentions of the Governor-General, it became the object of my constant solicitude, in conjunction with the other members of this Government, to promote his measures by the most zealous and cordial cooperation, and we had the gratification upon his Loidship's airival here the end of the last year, to seceive this full and entire approbation of the exertions that had been made, and of the advanced state in which he found our preparations for war Since that period, the same wisdom and energy which had characterised the Governor-General's Councils has guided our exertions, and we have had the satisfaction to know that the most formidable and best equipped British army that ever took the field in India. combined with a respectable force from the Nizam, entered Mysore the 5th of last month Bombay has not been less forward in its exertions, and the two victories obtained by General Stewart the 6th March, and by General Harris on the 27th, are presages of future success, and serve to evince how little able Tippoo is, without French aid, to contend against the force which is assailing him. The distracted state of the court of Poonah, whose friendship may be deemed equivocal, the effectual assistance of the Nizam, the close connection subsisting between that Prince and the Company, and the powerful state of our armies, encourage us to expect a speedy and glorious termination to the contest. The nieconcilable hatted of the Sultaun, and the uncertam state of the French in Egypt, of whom we have no accounts to be depended upon since August last, when Buonapate was still at the head of 17 or 18,000 men, authorize and point out the necessity of continuing the wai till we can obtain complete security, and establish the foundations of a durable and undistuibed peace. The expenses of preparation have from their extent been un avoidably great, but as we have reason to expect that if the wai is not entirely finished in one campaign, the weight of it will, I trust, upon the whole, prove an economical one, and that the acquisitions we may gain, and the security we shall derive from them, will amply repay the expenses we shall hive menured.

Concuring as I do in the views of the Goverinor-General, bearing testimony to the wisdom and decision of his councils, and sensible of the advantages which must ever result from the person who has the controll of the Company's affains, and the means of dawing for the resources of the three Presidences, being as near the scene of action as possible in a contest like the present, I desire to assure you of my continuing to give my utmost support and most cordial cooperation to measures which bid fain to reflect so much honour upon Lord Monington's administration, and to secure the most solid advantages to the Company and the British Empire In these sentiments I am most heartly joined by the other members of this Government

I have the honour to be, with the highest consideration and respect,

Gentlemen, your obliged and most faithful Servant.

CLIVE.

No CXCIII

Lieutenant-General Harris to the Earl of Moinington

My Lord, Camp, Seringapatam, 4th May, 1799

I have the pleasuse to mform you, that the day, at one o'clock, a division of the army under my command assaulted Seingapatam, and that at half past two o'clock the place was completely in our pos-casion Tippoo Sultaun fell in the assault Two of his sons, the Sultaun Padeha, and Mayen ud Deen, are pisoners, with many of the pincipal Sudais Our success has been complete, I will forward to your Lordship details hereafter *

I have the honour to be, &c

No CXCIV.

Lieut -General Harris to the Earl of Morning ton

My Lord,

Seringapatam, 7th May, 1799

On the 4th instant | I had the honour to address to you Lordship a hasty note, containing in few words the sum of our success, which I have now to report more in detail

The file of our battenes, which began to batten in breach on the 30th of April, had, on the evening of the 3rd instant, so much destroyed the walls against which it was disected, that the aniangement was then made for assaulting the place on the following day, when the breach was reported practicable. The troops intended to be employed were stationed on the trenches early on the moning of the 4th, that no extraordinary movement might lead the enemy to expect the assault, which I had determined to make in the heat of the day, as the time best calculated to ensure success, as their troops would then be least prepared to oppose us

Two flank companies of Europeans, taken from those regiments necessarily left to grand our camps and out-posts, followed by the 12th, 33rd, 73rd, and 74th regiments, and three corps of grenadre sepoys, taken from the troops of the three Presidencies, with 200 of his Highness the Nizam's toops, formed the party for the assault, accompanied by 100 of the artillety, and the corps of pronects, and supported in the trenches by the battalion companies of the regiment De Menton, and four battalions of Madias sepoys Colonel Sher-

^{*} Received at Fort St. George the 11th of May, 1799 This despatch was miclosed in a sealed quill, and conveyed through Mysore by a secret messenger—the country being then filled with Tripno Sultaun's troops and adherents. This circumstance accounts for the long delay in his arrival at Malius.

[†] See preceding page

brooke and Lieut-Colonels Dunlop, Dshymple, Gaidner, and Mignon, commanded the several flank corps, and Major-General Band was entrusted with the direction of this important service.

At one o'clock the troops moved from the trenches, crossed the locky hed of the Cavery under an extremely heavy fire, passed the glacis and ditch, and ascended the breaches in the Fausse Braye, and rampart of the fort, surmounting in the most gallant manner every obstacle which the difficulty of the passage, and the resistance of the enemy presented to oppose their progress Major-General Baird had divided his force for the purpose of clearing the samparts to the right and left. one division was commanded by Colonel Sherbrooke, the other by Lieut -Colonel Dunlop, the latter was disabled in the breach, but both corps, although strongly opposed, were completely successful Resistance continued to be made from the palace of Tippoo for some time after all firing had ceased from the works, two of his sons were there, who, on an assurance of safety, surrendered to the troops surrounding them, and guards were placed for the protection of the family, most of whom were in the palace It was soon after reported that Tippoo Sultaun had fallen Sved Saheb, Meei Saduc. Sved Gofar, and many others of his chiefs were also slain. measures were immediately adopted to stop the confusion, at first unavoidable, in a city strongly garrisoned, crowded with mhabitants, and then property in 1 uins, from the fire of a numerous artillery, and taken by assault The princes were removed to camp

It appeared to Major-General Band so important to ascertam the fate of the Sultaun, that he caused immediate search to be made for his body, which, after much difficulty, was found late in the evening in one of the gates under a heap of slam, and placed in the palace The corpse was the next day recognized by the family, and interned with the honours due to his rank, in the massoleum of his fathe!

The strength of the fort is such, both from its natural position and the stupendous works by which it is surrounded, that all the exertions of the brave troops who attacked it, in whose praise it is impossible to say too much, were required to place it in our hands. Of the ments of the aimy I have expressed my opinion in orders, a copy of which I shall forward to-morrow, and I trust your Loidship will point out then services to the favourable notice of then king and country

[.] See General Band's report in Appendix

I am sonly to add, that on collecting the leturns of our loss it is found to have been much heavier than I had at first imagined. An accurate statement shall be sent to-monlow *

On the 5th instant Abdul Khalic, the elder of the punces, formerly hostages with Lord Cornwallus, surrendered himself at our out-posts, demanding protection. Keinm Saheb, the brother of Tippoo had before sought refuge with Meer Alliam Behadul. A Cowl Namah was yesterday despatched to Futteh Hyder, the eldest son of Tippoo, mixing him to join his bother. Purreah and Meer Cummer ul deen Khan have also been summond to Seringapatam. No answers have yet been received, but I expect them shortly, as then families are in the foir.

This moment Ali Reza, formerly one of the vakeels from Tippoo Sultaun to Lord Cornwallis, has arrived from Meer Cummer ul Deen Khan to ask my orders for 4000 horse, now under his command Ali Reza was commissioned to declare that Meer Cummer ul Deen would make no conditions, but rely on the generosity of the English He desired merely to state, that his claim to the Jaghine of Guiramconda was well known, as was his family and character. If these and his connexion with the unfortunate family of the Tippoo Sultaun should give him a claim to this ancient possession of his house, his sense of obligation would bind him ever to the Biitish interests If this could not be gianted to him, he hoped he might obtain permission to retire with his family to Hyderabad On this subject I have promised to ask your Loidship's pleasure, he will shortly arrive, and as the army of the late Sultaun look up chiefly to him, I hope through his means to be enabled at once to restore tranquillity Monsieur Chapuy and most of the French are prisoners They have commissions from the French Government

I have the honour to be. &c .

GEORGE HARRIS.

^{*} Sec Appendix

Abstruct of a vetarn of Iriled, wounded and mussing, at the assault of Seringapatam, on the 4th May, 1799

Europeans Killed -2 captains, 6 heutenants, 3 serjeants, 1 drummer, and 58 rank and the Wounded —I lieut -colonel, 4 captains, 8 lieutenants, 3 ensigns, 2 conductors, 12 serjeants, 5 diummers, and 228 rank and file

Missing -1 serieant and 3 rank and file

Natives Killed -13 rank and file

Wounded -1 Jemadar, two drummers, and 31 rank and file

Missing -2 rank and file

P A AGNEW, Military Sec

Names of Officers killed and resunded on the assault

Killed — Lieutenant Mather, 75th, Captain Owen, 77th, Lieutenants Lalor, 73rd, (finik company's) Farquhar, Prendergast, Hill, and Shawe, 74th, Captain Cormick, pioneers

Wounded — Leutanant Turner, Broughton, and Skelton, 75th, Louet tenant-Colone Dunlop and Leutenant Laurence, 77th, Louetenant Webb, Bombay regiment, Captain Lurdy and Leutenant Mackey, Meuon, fank companies, Leutenant Shawe, 76th, earing with 12th segment, Captain Mar Leod, Leutenant Thomas, Enagina Antil and Guthine, 73rd regiment, Captain Caldwell, engenees, Captain Prescott, unitless,

P A AGNEW, Military Sec

Copy of General Orders, dated Camp at Seringapatam, 5th May, 1799

The Commander-in-Chef congratulates the gallant surp, which he has the honour to command, on the conquest of yeaterday. The effects assung from the attainment of such an acquisition, as far exceed the present limits of detail, as the surremitting zeal, labour, and unparalleled wilour of the troops surpass his powers of piame. For services incalculable in their consequences, he must consider the army as well entitled to the appliance and graitatized of their country at large

While Leut-General Harris suncerely luments the loss sustaned in the valuable officers and men, who fill in the attack, he cannot omit to return his thanks in the warmest terms to Major-General Barrd, for the deceded and able manner med-in the conducted the assault, and the humane measures which his subsequently adopted for preserving order and regularity in the place. He requests Major-General Barrd will communicate to the officers and men, who on that great occasion acted under his command, the light sense which he must even entertain of their atchevements and ments The Commande-in-Chaff requests that Colonel Gest and the corps of engineers under he orders, will accept his thanks for their uncommenger exertions in conducting the duties of that very important department, and his best acknowledgements are due to Major. Beation for the essential assistance given to this branch of the esertion, by the constant exertions of his ability and zero.

The ment of the artillery corps is so strongly expressed by the effects of their fire, that the Commander-in-Chief can only desire Colonel Smith to assure the officers and men of the excellent corps under his command, that he feels most fully their claim to approbation

In thus publicly expressing his sense of the good conduct of the aimy, the Commander-in-Chief finds himself called upon to notice in a most particular manner the evertions of Cuptam Dowse, and his corps of pioneers, which during the present service, have been equally marked by urmenting abour, and the ability with which that labour was applied

On referring to the progress of the suege, so many occasions have corrected or appliance to the troops, that it is difficult to particularize individual mont, but the gallant manner in which Leutenant-Colonel Shave, the Hon Colonel Mellestey, Lent-Colonel Moneypenny, the Hon Leut-Colonel St John, Major Macdonald, Major Shelly, and Leut-Colonel Wallace, conducted the attacks on the several out-works and posts of the onemy, demand to be recorded, and the very spinited tatack led by Leut-Colonel Campbell of H M 74th regiment, which tended so greatly on the 26th ultimo, claims the strongest approbation of the Commander-in-Chief

The important part taken by the Bombay army from the commencement of the sage, in all the operations which have led to its honourable conclusion, has been such as well austians its long established reputation. The gallant manner in which the post at the village of Agrar was succed by the force under Colonel Hart – the ability displayed in directing the fire of the batteries established there—the vigour with which every attack of the enemy on the out-posts of that a may was rejuised—and the spirit shewn in the assault of the bisech, by the corps led by Lieut-Colonel Duilop, are points of particular notice, for which the Commandei-in-Chef equests Lieut-Geneial Stuart will offer his best thanks to the officers and troops employed

Lout-Geneal Harrs trusts that Lout-Gen Strart will excuse hus thus publicly expressing his sense of the cordial co-operation and assistance received from him during the present service, in the course of which, he has ever found it difficult to separate the sentiments of his public duty from the warmest feelings of his private fundship

Eatract from General Orders, dated Seringapatam, 8th May, 1779

Lieut -General Harris has particular pleasure in publishing to the army, the following extract of a report, transmitted to him yesterday by Major-General Baird, as it places in a distinguished point of view the merit of an officer on the very important occasion referred to, whose general gallantry and good conduct since he has served with this army, have not failed to recommend him strongly to the Commander-in-Chi f

"It where all behaved nobly it is proper to mention individual merit, I know no man so justly entitled to praise, as Colonel Sheibrooke, to whose evertions I feel myself much indebted, for the success of the attack"

P A AGNEW, Military Sec

No CXCV

The Earl of Mornington to the Hon Jonathan Dunoan

SIR.

Fort St George, 8th May, 1799

The exemplary conduct and distinguished character of the Coorga Raja having lendered me desirous of manifesting some public testimony of my appi obation of his recent services. the remission of his annual tribute to the Company appears to me to be a measure, which would combine the effects of an honourable distinction and of a profitable reward. My intention is that of the whole amount of the Raigh's present tilbute, which I understand to be about 24,000 tupees, a sum not exceeding a thousand supees be reserved to the Company, or that in place of tribute, some article of considerable value be annually required from him, as an acknowledgment of his allegiance to the British Government, I request, that after having determined the nature of the acknowledgement to be required, according to your own judgment, you will take the necessary measures for carrying my intentions into effect I think the airangement should be made to take place from the day of the junction of the aimy of Bombay with the detachment commanded by Major-General Floyd

I am, &c
MORNINGTON

No CXCVI

Lieut -General Harris to the Earl of Mornington

MY DEAR LORD,

Seringapatam, May 9th, 1799

That I most sincerely congratulate your Lordship on our most fortunate successes, I feel you will give me entire credit for, without my dwelling further on the point. The Almighty has been pleased to giant a victory so complete in all its events, as to leave nothing on my side to ask, but that your Lordship will come and regulate the political concerns for the benefit of all concerned.

You may be assured that every order or wish of yours sigmified to me, shall in future, as heretofore, be carried into execution with all possible despatch, but for the good of our countiv. I really think your presence necessary For my part, politics have never been my study, exclusive of which, my constitution is evidently giving way to the anxieties I have already gone through, and I am fearful will fail altogether unless allowed to recruit in quiet I cannot expect the world shall allow that the anxieties of the expedition were proportionally great to the shortness of the period in which it has been executed, but I best know, that had mine been divided into as many years as we have been months, they would still have worn me down-added to this, I am not as equal to bodily fatigue as I thought myself, from all which, I shall be much obliged, by your Lordship making such arrangements as to let me retuin as soon as convenient after our meeting here In the meantime, you may depend that the same active measures, which under Providence, have so greatly tended to manye our success shall still be continued, and that we shall not sit down content with having taken the capital, but proceed with all possible despatch to secure the country

I am, with the greatest regard,
My Lord,
Your very faithful and obliged Friend and Servant,
George Harris

PS -I have every reliance your Lordship will have no objection to my son's taking home the colours of the fort

No CXCVII

Lord Chas to the Hon Henry Dundas

My DEAR SIR, Fort St George, 11th May, 1799

Although Lord Mornington writes to inform you of the news received vesterday, and confirmed to-day, of the fall of Seringapatam upon the 4th instant, I cannot allow his Lordshin's overland express to depart without conveying to you the sum eme gratification I have in being able to offer you my warmest congratulations upon that event having taken place within the short period of two months from our army having entered the frontier of the enemy The wisdom which has presided over and directed the conduct of this short war, the ment of which rests almost solely with the Governor-General. the extent of our menarations, and the vigour with which the army was equipped, and the celerity with which the great object of the campaign has been carried into execution, render the taking Seringapatam, with its concomitant circumstances of the flight and fall of the Sultaun, of the families of that Prince's principal officers having fallen into our power. and of the mmense quantity of lice and provisions, and probably of treasure captured, one of the most bulliant and useful achievements of this or any other age. No event so important has occurred since the battle of Plassev in this country, that laid the foundations of our greatness in India. and this last glorious success will, I trust, confirm that greatness, and place in our power the means of durable, advantageous, and honomable peace The details of the siege and storm have not yet reached us, but from the circumstance of the Forlorn Hope having employed only six minutes to cross the rocky bed of the river, and to reach the top of the breach. it is reasonable to believe that our loss has been small Time does not permit of my troubling you further at present, it is more than probable that Lord Mornington will be under the necessity of proceeding to Seringapatam, in which case I shall accompany him, and you may be assured that nothing will give me more satisfaction than to have the honour of addressmg you from that place. I have the honour to be, with great esteem and respect, dear Sn,

your much obliged and faithful servant,
CLIVE

CLIVE

No CXCVIII

The Earl of Mornington to the Court of Directors

HONOURABLE SIRS,

Fort St George, 11th May, 1799

No paticulal comment is required from ne to illustrate the numerous advantages which cannot fail to flow from the brilliant and decisive atchievement announced to you. Homourable Comit in the despatch of the Governor-General in Council of this date. But I cannot refrain from offering to you my separate and most cordial congratulations on an event, the glony of which has never been suppased (if it has ever been equalled), in the history of the military transactions of the British nation in India.

The fall of Serngapatam, under all the circumstances which accompanied that event, has placed the whole of the kingdom of Mysore, with all its resources, at the disposal of you Govenment, and the only power in India to which the French could look for assistance, or which could be deemed formidable to your interests, is now deprived of all vigour, if not entirely extinct. When your Honounable Couri recollects that these advantages have been acquired within four months from the date of my arrival at this Presidency, and within two from the period of the aimy's entiance into Mysore, I tust you will be of opinion that your servants have not been deficient in alscirity or diligence.

When Lieutenant-General Hanus took the field, I thought t my duty to inwest him with the most efficient and extensive powers which it was possible for me to delegate, and he has carried with him to the gates of Seungapatam the full vigout and energy of your supreme Government. To the judicious exercise of this ample authority, combined with the liberal supplies which had been provided for the aimy, may be ascibed in a great measure the unparalleled rapidity and promptitude of its operations. I have the further satisfaction to add that the particular detail of those operations, which I shall hereafter submit to your. Honourable Court, will furnish the most hillhard examples of judgment, skill, discipline, finness

^{*} The despatch adverted to is in substance the same as his Lordship's letter to the Court of Directors and valous, under many trials of all those distinguished qua-

The deadful fate of Tippoo Sultaun cannot be contemplated without emotions of pain and legiet, but I trust it will serve as a salutary lesson to the native Princes of India, and will prove the danger of violating public engagements, and uniting foeigin myasion for the prosecution of schemes of ambition and hatted against the Bitish power. He was interied within his own capital on the day following its captine, in the mussoleum of his fathei, with the honours of wan, paid to his remains by the British aimy. I am persuaded that you Honourable Count will derive peculiar satisfaction from the intelligence that his family and palace suffered no insult or violence during the heat of the assault, and have since been protected with the turmost can.

I have the honour to be, &c
MORNINGTON

No CXCIX.

Earl of Monnington to Lieut -General Harris

Sır,

Fort St George, 12th May, 1799

I had yesterday the satisfaction to receive your letter of the 4th instant, advising me of the capture of Seringapatam, and of the death of Tippoo Sultaun

With the warmest sensations of admination, affection, and attachment, I offer my cordial thanks and zealous congratulations to you, and to all the officers and privates composing the gallant army, which has achieved this glorious and decisive victory with a degree of energy, rapidity and skill, unpaiallelled in this quarter of the globe, and seldom equalled in any part of the world

It has afforded me peculiar satisfaction on this important occasion to learn, that every possible attention has been paid to the families of Tippoo Sultaun, and to those of his Chieftains

Although I have not yet received directly from you any official details of the circumstances attending the assault and capture of Seringapatam, it is evident that the acquisition has been attended with circumstances of a nature to facilitate a final and satisfactory airangement of the country I entirely approve all your proceedings of a political natine (as far as you have icported them to me) relative to the negotiations with the Sultaun previously to the assault of the city. You have faithfully puisued the spirit of my instuctions, and departed from the letter only in such cases as would have compelled me to adopt similar alterations of pimcuples and measures if I had been on the spot

The subject of a final adjustment of Mysone is however so complicated and delocate as to appear to require my presence at Senngapatam. For this reason, I intend forthwith to proceed to Ryakottah, from which for thess I can advance to Senngapatam, if such a measure should appear to be necessary. In the meanwhile I have determined to despatch my bother, Mi Henry Wellesley, and Lieut-Colonel Kinkpanick to Ryakottah, with orders to proceed to the aimy whenever the communication shall be sufficiently open, for the purpose of acting with the commissioners appointed under my instructions of the 28nd of February, and of ascertaming a variety of points of detail on which it is necessary that I should be fully and accurately informed previously to the formation of any definitive adjustment of the affairs of the Kingdom of Mysone

But it is requisite immediately that the Company should obtain full possession of all Canaia (including Bilguy and the heads of all the Ghauts communicating between Canaia and the Upper County), as well as of the Combatoor Country You will, therefore, without delay require from the proper persons the most peremptory and unequivocal orders for the immediate delayery to the Company's officers of all the forts, and of all other public property comprehended in these countries.

For the purpose of taking possession of Canaia, you will (unless you should deem it impuident) as soon as possible detact the army of Bombay, or such part of it as may be necessary. It appears probable that you may safely detach the army of Bombay on this service, on the other hand, the possibility of a French invasion in India from the Red Sea makes that desuable that the army of Bombay should return to the Coast of Malabar, and that we should obtain possession of Canara as soon as possible

For the purpose of securing the Combatoor country, it will perhaps be sufficient if you send thither the detachment under the command of Lieut-Colonel Brown as soon as may be macticable

The Barrahmahl at present containing an inconsiderable force, you will return Lieut-Colonel Read's detachment as soon as you may judge expedient

At the same time that you demand from the proper authorities the necessary orders for the sun ender to the Company of the specified countries and forts, you are to require similar orders for the prompt and unconditional delivery to the officers of his Highness the Nizam of the forts and districts of Gooty Bulherr, Gurrumconda and Colar, with the exception only of any forts in the two latter, which may be situated at the head of passes leading from the table land of Mysorc into any of the districts of the Company, or of the Nabob of the Cainatte, it being my intention that all such forts shall be occupied by the Company's toops

For the purpose of occupying and securing these counties it will be necessary that the contingent of his Highness the Nizam, and the subsidiary detacliment should move towards the north-east as soon as possible

The country and puncipal foats situated between the north bank of the Cavery and Cola, may be occupied for the present either by the necessary detachments from your anny or by Colonel Read The ultimate allotment of this tract is a point for future consideration

The Strdars, on whose teady acquescence and submussion the Company and the Nizam must depend for an early and easy possession of the foats and countries which have been mentioned, must be planly informed that the measure of favour and protection to be extended to them will be regulated by the alacrity and sincerity with which they shall event themselves to satisfy the allies on this occasion

With segaid to Bedoore, and other paits of the late Typoo Sultam's possessions bordening on the Mahratta fronties, I wish those countries to semain unoccupied for the present, until I shall have determined what postion of territory shall be assigned to the Peishwa * Accordingly, no

The necessity for this deliberation is explained in the Governor-General's letter to General Harris (paragraph 6) of the 23rd April, 1799 (see orders for the delivery of any forts, or the cession of any districts to the Mahrattas must be issued by the Sirdas in authority without my specific requisition, and they must be apprised that I shall hold them responsible for the conduct of their respective managers and subordinate officers in the countries in question.

All the Fiench whom you may be able to secure (and you will make the most diligent enquiry after persons of that nap 538), where the following letter is referred to, and which would have been printed in its proper place could it then have been found

The Earl of Mornington to General Harris

SIR,

Fort St George, April 23rd, 1799

Since the date of my instructions to you of the 22d and 25th of February, circumstances have octuned which render it absolutely necessary to reduce the power of Tippoo Sultaum as much as possible, and desirable to make certain modifications of the articles of peace transmitted to you with those when those

- Of these circumstances the following paragraphs contain some of the leading points
- 1 I have received fresh proofs of an obstinate adherence on the part of Tippoo Sultain to his connexion with the French, to whom he has recently despatched M Dubuc and two Native Valcels on an Embassy from Thanquelan
- 2 I am still ignorant of the actual condition of the Fiench army in Egypt, and of the means possessed by General Buonaparte of aiding the Sultann
- 3 Commodore Blanket was not arrived in the Red Sea on the 31st of Documber, I fear ht has lost his passage, consequently the mouth of the Red Sea may not be adequately guarded at the return of the periodical opening of the navigation.
- 4 Zemaun Shah may be enabled to resume his designs against Hindostan, and recent discoveries in Bengal prove those designs to have been more immediately dangerous to the British interests than I had supposed
- 5 Dowlut Row Scindish has been discovered to entertain hostile designs against the Company and the Nizam, and I have reason to suspect that a secret correspondence subsists between him and Tippoo
- 6 The Penhwa appears to have entered into Soindiah's views against the Company and the Nizam

The nature of this conseyance does not admit of my making such detailed reflections as arise from these circumstances, or of my stating other points intimately connected with them, you will receive my instructions, founded on the considerations above mentioned, in another despatch of this date. tion) must be sent to the Presidency by the first favourable opportunity

Î wish you to send a detachment of your aimy to meet me at Ryalottah whenever you deem it prudent to spale such a force. By the flist opportunity you will inform me how far the state of Mysole may either require or adunt of my proceeding to Seimzanstam.

I am, &c

MORNINGTON

No CC

Lieut Gen Hairis to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord,

Seringapatam, May 13, 1799

I have forwarded to you Lodship, by various hircarahs, an account of the success of the aimy in the assault of Seningapatam, with copies of the orders issued on that occasion In those orders I expressed my approbation of the conduct of the troops in general, and my sense of the merits of those officers whose behaviour had attracted particular notice

It remains for me to state what is in justice due to those whom, for obvious reasons, I could not present in the same manner to your Lordship's notice, these are officers on the general staff, in my family, and others whose zeal induced them to forward the public service by the exertion of their abilities, in and of departments to which they were not officially attached.

In every point of view I must call your Londship's pattenlar attention to the Adjutant-General of the army. His general character as an officer is too well established by a long and distinguished course of the most meritorious service to require my testimony, but the patricular exertion of his talents on the piesent service in directing, regulating, and assisting the progress of our departments, when embarrassed by all the difficulties attending a deficiency of conveyance for an uncommonly extensive equipment during the advance of the army, and the ability, eagl, and energy displayed by him in superintending the valious operations of an aiduous siege, where he was ever present, stimulating the eventions of others, or assisting their judgment and labours with his own, claim from me to be stated to you. Lordship in the most forcible terms. It is my earnest wish that my sentiments on this subject may be publicly leconded, and it is my firm opinion that if the success of this aimy has been of importance to the Bittish interests, that success is to be attributed in a very considerable degree to Liceut-Colonel Closu.

From the officers more immediately in my family, I have derived all the assistance, in the conduct of the public service, which I had leason to expect from their experience, and I am highly indebted to your Lordship for the indulgence with which you attended to my wishes in the selection of Lieut-Colonel Agnew and Captain Macauley as my confidential exist.

The gentlemen of the commission named by you Loudship to assist me with then advice, on subjects of a political nature, have in every instance where I have found it expedient to refer to their judgment, acted in a manner with which I am particularly startfied Your Loudship is in possession of their proceedings on the subject of the various overtimes for the proceedings on the subject of the various overtimes for segotation made by Tippoo Sultaun, and the orders I have since received on this head leave me no ground to doubt your Lordship's approbation of the line of conduct which they have uniformly muisued

Mayor Dallas has strong claims to be particularly recommended to your Lordship's notice. The readmess with which he came forward to exert his personal influence with the pumepal natives in the bullock department, at a period when it seemed scarcely possible to move forward the public stores. The effectual and which he gave to the store department by his personal assistance in its arrangements, and the duty equally important and laborious, which he voluntarily took upon himself, of seeking and securing forage for the public cattle during the manches of the aimy, are amongst the many instances in which his zeal has been distinguished, and which entitle him to the attention of Government

In the department of the Quarter-Master-General the conduct of Lieut-Col Richardson and Major Allan has been very satisfactory to me Captain Turing has ably assisted Lieut-Col Close in the Adjutant-General's office, and Capt On1, of the guides, has mented great piasse by his judgment, and activity, in conducting the matches of the army, and of all the detachments of importance, which, since our encampment here, it has been necessary to make under Major-General Floyle.

Captain Macleod, of the intelligence department, has been employed in the management of the bazars of the army, in the arrangement of the bingaines, and on a vaniety of services not specially the duty of any regularly established office, but which required a perfect knowledge of the customs of India, and the strictest integrity in the person charged with their execution. I have on all such occasions given my full confidence to Captain Macleod, and his conduct has shewn him deserving of the trust.

I have thought it a necessary part of my public duty to make this report to your Lordship for the information of Government, and have the honour to be,

My Lord, your Lordship's most obedient, and faithful servant.

Grorge Harris

No CCI

The Earl of Mornington to Lieut -General Harris

Sir,

Fort St George, 15th May 1799

I have aheady expressed to you may answer to your note of the 4th instant, my distinguished sense of the invaluable survices of the admirable army under your command, and having now received the details of the assault of the 4th, I shall immediately issue a Geneal Olden in Council respecting the conduct of the rapid and brilliant campaign which terminated with such lustre on that memorable day

My private and military secretailes will set out for Seingapatam by Ryakottah this evening, chaiged with instructions for your guidance until my arrival can take place. In the mean while I authorise you to assue Meer Cummu-ud-Deen Khan that I ceeve with guest staffschort his unconditional submission to the generosity of the British power and that he may rely with confidence on my countenance and protections.

ion, you will add, that in concent with his Highness the Nizam I will readily take into consideration Meen Cummund-Deen's claim to the Jaghne of Gini immeonda, but it would be piematune at piesent to enter into any specific engagement on that head. However, I empower you to declaie to Meer Cummun-ud-Deen immediately in my name, that if I shall be satisfied with his services in the restoration of tampullity, I will make an ample and liberal provision for him, fully equal to whatever may appear to be his just claims. As it may tend to imspile Meer Cummun-ud-Deen with additional confiderce, I enclose a letter for him under my own hand and seal

You will inform all the Sndas, and persons lately in high office in the government of Mysore, that the degree of favour and protection to be extended to them by the Company and the allies will be regulated according to the fidelity with which they shall respectively render an account of all the property of the Sucar under their charge, referring in patiular to the stable horse, to the draft and carriage cattle, and to all aims, ordnance, and ordnance stores, belonging to the Sucar

I desne that you will issue such orders as you may judge necessary to the different asophs and aumis of Tippoo Sultaun's government, requiring them to hold the public property of very description at present in their charge, as well as the vernue which may hereaften be collected, at the disposal of the allies, and apprising them that a regulan account of all unch property and revenue will be taken with the greatest recurracy as soon as crumstances will permit. I think it exedient that all these orders should be issued in you own name until my arrival at Seimgapatam, as well for the purpose of giving the greates degree of force to them, as of obviating my jealouses which might aimse from the immediate appointnent of officies on the part of the Company for the collection of the revenue.

I have no doubt that you have adopted every necessary neasure for securing to persons of every description the safe and undisturbed possession of their private properties

I am. &c &c

No. CCII

General Orders of the Governor General in Council

Fort St George, 15th May, 1799

The Right Hon the Governor General in Council, having this day received from the Commander-in-Chief of the allied army in the field, the official details of the glorious and decisive victory obtained at Seringapatam on the 4th of May, offers his cordial thanks and sincere congratulations to the Commander-m-Chief, and to all the officers and men composing the gallant army which achieved the capture of the capital of Mysore on that memorable day His Lordship views with admiration the consummate judgment with which the assault was planned, the unequalled rapidity, animation and skill with which it was executed, and the humanity which distinguished its final success Under the favour of Providence, and the justice of our cause, the established character of the aimy had inspired an early confidence, that the war in which we were engaged, would be brought to a speedy, prosperous, and honourable issue. But the events of the 4th of May, while they have surpassed even the sanguine expectations of the Governor General in Council, have raised the reputation of the British arms in India to a degree of splendour and glory unrivalled in the military history of this quarter of the globe, and seldom approached in any part of the The lustre of this victory can be equalled only by the substantial advantages which it promises to establish, by restoring the peace and safety of the British possessions in India on a durable foundation of genuine security The Governor General in Council reflects with pride, satisfaction, and gratitude, that, in this aiduous crisis the spirit and exertion of our Indian army have kept pace with those of our countrymen at home, and that in India, as in Europe, Great Britain has found, in the malevolent designs of her enemies, an increasing source of her own prosperity, fame, and power,

By order of the Right Hon the Governor General in Council

> J WEBBE, Secretary to Government

No CCIII

The Earl of Mornington to the Right Hon Henry Dundas

MY DEAR SIR, Fort St George, 16th May, 1799

Vesterday I received the enclosed despatch from Lieut. General Harris.* containing the details of the capture of Seungapatam, they require no comment, and I am persuaded that no solicitation is necessary on my part to induce you to recommend the incomparable army which has gained this glomous trumph to the particular notice of his Maiesty, and to the applause and gratitude of their country. The unconditional submission of Cummui-ud-Deen, accompanied by that of Futteh Hyder, will, I trust, much facilitate the means of making a new settlement I am on the point of setting out for Seringapatam, and I have no doubt that, in any possible case, I shall be able to add to the annual revenues of the Company, in the peninsula of India, a sum not less than twelve lacs of pagodas, with the additional advantage of contracting and strengthening our frontier, and of establishing a continuity of our territory from the coast of Coromandel to that of Malahai

In our present situation the arrival of a French foice in India would be tather a desirable event than otherwise, as I am confident that the result must be an accession of reputation and honout to our troops, and the disappointment and rum of the enemy. If the French should be established in Egypt, it might be advisable to consider whether an expedition might not be fitted out from India to cooperate, by way of the Red Sea, with any attempt which might be undertaken from the Mediterranean I cannot venture to prepare any such expedition without orders from England, but if I should receive them, you may be assured that they will be exceeted with alacuity and diligence not only by me, but by the whole amy in India.

Believe me, my dear Sir, Yours most faithfully and affectionately, Mornington

^{*} See page 569

No CCIV

Lord Clive to the Chairman of the Court of Directors of the Honourable East India Company

SIR. Fort St George, 16th May, 1799

I have the greatest satisfaction in offering to you my warmest congratulations upon the fall of Seringapatam, and upon the events which have since led to the extinction of the power of an inveterate enemy, who has for a series of years kent this Presidency in a state of constant inquietude, uncertainty, and expense By the late despatches from hence you will have been made fully acquainted with the grounds and leasons upon which the line of conduct adopted by his Lordship has been pursued, and with the measures which have termmated in this most important conquest. The wisdom with which the plans of the Governor-General have heen combined, was equal to the extent of the danger which threatened us, and the vigorous efforts which have been made for the completion of our military equipments were pronortionate to the uigency of the occasion, which required all the energy of your Governments in India, while the ability, zeal, and valous which have been displayed in the execution of this aiduous enterpiize, have effected an achievement, the bulhancy of which has seldom been equalled in any part of the world.

In reflecting upon this important and unparalleled success, it is a cause of just trumph that the British councils have to be a possible of the characteristic moderation, and that we have been compelled, by the inveterate hatried of an implicable enemy, to adopt those decisive measures which have ended in the final subversion of his power, and in establishing a basis of listing tranquillity throughout this part of your possessions. From the magnitude of this event we derive a just rehef from the regret, which the loss of any part of that gallant amy must inspire, and in the consequences which must follow it, we shall find more than a compensation for the expences which have been incurred in the prosecution of this necessary was

The fall of Senngapatam, the death of the Sultaun, the surrender of the principal part of his family, with the submission of the most powerful of his chiefs, wail ant the expectation of a speedy and permanent all angement of the whole of his dominion. The advantages to be gained from an increase of levenue, it might not be difficult to estimate, but the solid benefits to be derived from an extension of commerce, and from the preservation of lasting tranquility, which, under the blessing of Providence, it may now be in the power of those entursted with the direction of your affairs in India to command and maintain, it is scaledly possible to appreciate

> I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect and esteem, Sn, your most faithful and obliged humble servant,

No CCV

Charf Justice Six J Anstruther to the Earl of Morning ton

My DEAR LORD, Calcutta, 17th May, 1799

It is with the most sincere satisfaction and heait felt pleasuie that I congitatulate you upon the most builliant and glorious event which even occurred in our Indian history. The news of the fall of Seingapatam and the death of Tippoo, and your complete and decisive success is just announced to

Every man in the country will feel his security meneased, and his character raised by the destruction of s power long looked up to as the only one capable of reasiting the fonce of our aims. The events of last war, which, after two years of, I may say, defeat, ended in the third in a politic peace, proved to every native power the ability of a native power to resist even a confederacy against him with effect, at least, if not with success. It was reserved for the prompitude and vigour of your Government to shew our power irresistible—to lender our empire permanent and secure in India, and your own name minorial.

All your finends wall, no doubt, highly rejoice, but I who know the difficulties you had to encounter, the counter tons you had to experience, feel a degree of pleasure in the event not only as a public man and your private friend, but very considerably incleased by the anxiety which my knowledge of those very circumstances has occasioned to me Most heartly indeed do I rejoice May every other plan you have be equally successful, and may you long enjoy, in the bosom of your friends and family, you well earned fame

Adieu, your's affectionately,

J. Anstruther

No CCVL

Lieutenant-General Six Aluxed Clarke to the Earl of Mornington

My DEAR LORD,

Fort William, 17th May, 1799

The great and gloious news we have received of the fall of Seingapatam, amd its late monatch, has filled me too full of joy to admit of my waiting the receipt of a letter from you, ere I offer my most hearty congratulations on it, which I beg leave now to do, with sincere assuiances of my taking a particular interest in the personal satisfaction that your Loidship must, from peculiar circumstances, feel on the occasion.

The wisdom of that policy which dictated the measures that led to this brilliant and most important event, and your Lordship's persevening exertions to summount the numerous difficulties that occurred in the execution of them, do you the greatest honour, and cannot fail of producing those marks of approbation and gratitude from your king and country which such conduct so highly ments

I am extremely anxious to see more detailed accounts of the various transections from the army Hailie's success, exclusive of public considerations, gives me sincere pleasure, and I earnestly hope that he and his gallant troops may deirve every possible benefit of honour and profit that ther zealous services and bullant conquest can entitle them to

I will do myself the honour of writing to you again soon, and in the meantime,

I remain, with true respect and esteem,
My deai Lord,
Your Lordship's most obedient,
and most faithful humble servant,

ALURED CLARKE

P S I 1 emember your observations of "humbling Tippoo before the anniversary of your entering upon the duties of this Government," which took place precisely this day twelverworthe

No. CCVII

The Earl of Mornington to the Secret Committee of the Court of Directors

Honourable Sirs, Fort St George, 19th May, 1799

The accidental detention of the Sacah Christiana packet enables me to forward to your honourable Committee, by this despatch, documents of great importance, explanatory of the nature of the connexion between Tippoo Sultaun and the French republic

These papers were found in the palace of Seringapatam, and were transmitted officially to my military secretary by the secretary of the commission appointed to assist Lieut-General Harits in all matters of a political nature

The paper No 1" is a letter from Tippoo Sultaun to the Executive Directory, and appears to be an attested copy of that which was despatched by M Dubue with two native vakeels of the 7th of February, 1799 The letter, however, is dated the 20th of July, 1798, at which time the military preparations in the Carnatic had scarcely commenced

You Honomable Committee will observe, that, Tippoo Sultain, in the most distinct manner, states the nature of his late embassy to the Isle of Fiance to have been the same which I have described in my minute of the 12th of August, and in my letter to Tippoo Sultain of the 8th of November, notwithstanding that he had endeavoued to put a different colour on the transaction in his letter to me of the 18th of December, 1798, received at Fort St. George the 25th of the same month

It is equally remarkable that he does not attempt to allege against the British Government any ground of complaint since the conclusion of the last war

The object of his offensive and defensive alliance with France appears to have been not merely the recovery of his former dominions, but the expulsion of the English from all

^{*} See Appendix

their rich possessions in India, and the utter annihilation of their power in Asia

You will further observe, that he declares ut to be his intention to commence the attack on the first favourable occasion, and on the whole, that he professes to make common cause with France, under the most solemn protestations of fidelity and zeal to the republic

The paper, No. 2,* is a note of the demands which Tippoo Sultain's ambassadors were authorized by him to make upon the Executive Directory at Pairs They correspond in substance with the requisitions announced in M. Malaitic's pro-clamation at the Mauritus, 1

In the atticles 5 and 6 you will perceive that the Sultaun mittended to commence his operations in the heart of the Cainatic, in conceit with a Friench aimy to be landed at Potto Novo, and that he did not propose to wait the actual arrival of the French force, but was resolved to make himself master of the coast of Coromandel as soon as he should find it convenient, after having received notice of the motions of the French

In atticle 7 it appears that the Portuguese colonies in this quarter of India were to have been divided between Typpoo Sultaun and the French All the atticles of this paper demand particular attention, as tending to prove, in the most conclusive manner, the entire devotion of this inflatiated Prince to his alliance with France This paper also is dated on the 20th July, 1798, both documents are signed in the Sultauris own hand writing, according to the abbreviated form of signature, which he was accustomed to use in all his letters and other official documents This mode of signature is usual among the natives of Hindostan, and no doubt can be enter tained of the authenticity of the papers.

You Honourable Committee will observe, that the letter from Tippoo Sultaun to me, which was received at Fost St. George on the 13th of February, must have been written subsequently to the despatch of the papers now enclosed, as M Dubuc, with the Sultaun's two vakeels, embarked at Tranquebau on the 7th of February

I have the honour to be, &c
MORNINGTON

^{*} See Appendix

No CCVIII

Moon General Ser J II Comm to the Earl of Mornington

My LORD.

Cawnpore, 24th May, 1799

Though I shall not be the foremost, I can assure your Lordship that I shall not be the least sincere in my congratulations. on the glorious event of the capture of Seringapatam The fall of the Sultaun, and the destruction of the power of his family, by the capture of his sons, which so fortunately distinguished it. have completed the success, and to the energy and vigoui of your Lordship's administration, Britain and the India Company will be indebted for the most important and beneficial event, that has ansen from the efforts of then aims. since the battle of Plassy established us in these provinces Not will the value of your Lordship's services be estimated alone, by then immediate effects in the established security of our possessions in the Carnatic In my mind, at least, they carry with them, a still higher price in the restoration of our national character This, your Lordship has already rescued from the contempt into which it had fallen, and to the wisdom and sprit of your Lordship's measures shall we owe the neturning respect and awe, with which the Native Powers will, I doubt not, view us in future

I have the honour to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordshrp's most obedient and fatthful humble Servant.

J H CRAIG

No CCIX

General Orders of the Governor General in Council.

Madras, May 24th, 1799

The Right Honourable the Governon-General in Council directs the Commanden-in-Chief of the allied auny in the field to assue the offices on the general staff of the auny, those composing the confidential staff of the Commanden-in-Chief, and those whose zeal, ability, and exection, have been distinguished in aid of the departments to which they were you. I not officially attached, that his loidship entertains the highest sense of their several emment services during the late glorious campaign in Mysore

The conduct of the Adutant-General, Lacut Colonel Close, has amply justified the implient confidence reposed by the Governor-General in Council in his extensive knowledge, approved experience, superior talents, aident valous, and indefatizable activity

The uniform zeal, peaseverance, and fortitude, with which Lieut. Colonel Close has exeited all these great qualities, in every final of difficulty and dangen, entitle him to the puase, respect and esteem of the Governor-General in Council His Lordship feels himself bound, by every obligation of justice and public duty, to recommend the extraordinary merits of Lieut-Colonel Close to the particular approbation of the Honomable the Court of Directors, and to the appliause and gratifule of his country

The selection which the Commander-in-Chief had so judiciously made of Lieut-Colonel Agnew and Captam Macaulay, for his confidential staff, was confirmed by the Governor-General in Council, with a just expectation that his Excellency would derive considerable advantage to the public service from their able assistance

The Governon-General in Council is happy to record a public acknowledgment of the distinguished conduct of Major Dallas, and to assure that officer that his Lordship has a just sense of the important services which he has rendered in his successful superintendence of the laborious departments under his charge

It is very satisfactory to his Lordship to remark, that the conduct of the Quarter-Master-General's department under Lieut-Colonel Richardson and Major Allan, and that of the department of the guides under Captain Ori, has met with the approbation of the Commander-in-Chief, his Lordship desires that his public thanks may be conveyed to those officers, and on this occasion his Lordship thinks it proper to publish to the array the particular thanks which he had already directed the Commander-in-Chief to convey to Major Allan and Captain Ori, for the essential services i endered by them on the 22nd March last, after the battle of Mallavelly

His Lordship is also happy to concur in the honourable testimony boine by the Commander-in-Chief to the merits of Captain Turing and of Captain Macleod, and directs that his thanks may be conveyed to those meritorious officers

In all lanks and depaitments of the allied army, his Loidship has observed, with sincere pleasure, a general spirit of hammony and concord, which (under the happy auspices of the Commander-in-Chief) has united every heart, head, and hand, in the common cause, signalized each progressive opelation of the campaign, with a peculial character of alactity and adout, and crowned its early conclusion with victory, triumph, and renown

By order of the Right Honourable the Governor-General in Council,

J. Webbe, Secretary to Government

No CCX

The Hon Jonathan Duncan to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord.

Bombay, 25th May, 1799

In acknowledging the news of your Lordship's glorious successes, I tequest of your Lordship to accept of my sincerest congratulations, as well as of my cordial wishes, that all the future measures of your Lordship's administration may be attended with equal proportionate lister and advantage to the State The bigotted Mussulmen here can hardly yet believe that their champion is fallen.

To-morrow there is to be a thanksgiving in our church for the Divine blessing on the British armies on the late occasion, of which I hope your Lordship will approve

If you Loidshp find leasune, the papers about Malahm may be taken up and decaded on by you Loidship before the expiration of the leases in Septemben render it necessary for me to act, and if in view to the late events, or from any other circumstance, your Loidship see any fundamental alteration necessary in the management of affairs in that quarter, I beg to assure your Loidship that it is my unfeigned desire that no consideration of delicacy or proposed accommodation towards me may for a moment interfere with your Loidship's views for the good of that country, to see which well estiblished, is either the first, or, at least, one of the first wishes of my heart

Have the honour to be, my Lord.

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble Servant,

Nο

From the Earl of Mornington to the Court of Directors

HONOURABLE SIRS, Fort St. George, 6th June, 1799

I have received intelligence from Seingapatam that Futtel Hyder, eldest son of Tippoo Sultain, Punneah, the Dewan of the Sultain, and Meer Cummin-nd-Deen, have surendered themselves to Lieutenaut General Hairis at Seingapatam. The whole of Tippoo Sultain's sons; thitteen in number, together with all his sudais of note, are now at Seingapatam.

The pinaly objects of General Halis's attention, after the fall of Seingapatam, were to disband the late Sultaun's aimy, and to obtain possession of the pinnepal strongholds throughout his doriminos. The mer-wice siece say for the first of these objects were accordingly taken through the agency of Puneali. The Silledan house, of then own accord, returned to their lands. Some discussions however took place with regard to the disposal of the Baigeer, or stable-horse, which were at length teniniated on the 18th ultimo by the assistance of Puneah. The corps, formerly Lally's, has surendiered, and the Europeans, composing it, together with those under Monsiem Chapuy, recently airised from Maintius, were secured, and have been sent pisoners of war into the Carratic. Upon the whole, I have the satisfaction to inform your Honourable Court that the late Sultaun's aimy is now entirely disbanded.

The stable-houses, elephants and camels, belonging to the Cucan have been delivered up, and many of the formen have been allotted to complete deficient copps of the Company's cavalty, while others, not calculated for that service, have been appropriated to the use of his Highness the Nyzam

In the meantime, the necessary measures have been pursued for taking possession of the remaining parts of the Sultaun's dominions On the 13th ultimo, the army of Bombay, under the command of Lieutenant General Stuart, marched on its 1etunn to Malabar by the way of Coorga, with the intention of detaching troops to take possession of the district of Canara This aimy airived at Cannanoie on the 22nd ultimo, at which period the rams had not commenced. Circular orders were addressed by Lieutenant-General Harris to the commandants of the principal fortresses in Canara, and supported by similai requisitions from the Meer Sudder, or general supermtendant of garrisons, under the late Sultaun's government, requiling the suitender of their respective forts to the British troops, and giving them general assurances of favour and countenance There is every reason to believe that the forts will be quietly delivered up, in which case troops will be immediately detached by Lieutenant General Stuart to occupy them

Similar measures have been adopted to obtain the surrender of the forts in other parts of the late Sultaun's dominions, and as far as our troops have yet proceeded, with uniform success

The villagers have returned to then occupations in most parts of the country, and the strongest symptoms have appeared of a general disposition to submit to the orders of the Bittsh Government without opposition or reluctance

I have great satisfaction in informing you Honourable Court that the whole of the late Tippos Sultain's second, having been fortunately secured, they are found to contain a series of correspondence between the Sultain and the French I have now the honour to transmit to you Honourable Court a complete copy of the whole series No commet upon them can be necessary. The cucumstances under which they were found, as well as the internal evidence which they contain, render then authenticity indisputable.

I am now occupied in framing a general arrangement of the

^{*} The whole of these papers (occupying a large volume) were printed at Calcutta, and translated by N B Edmonstone, Esq. then filling the high and i sponsible station of Persan Tanslator to Government, now a Director of the East India Company, and one of the best informed non an ill Oriental subjects, whether of a political on literary nature. Mr Edmonstone's sud in the preparation of the piesent work has been freely and generously accorded.

affans of Mysore, which I hope to be able to effect in a short space of time, upon principles calculated to promote the interests and honour of the Honourable Company, and to secure future tranquility and safety to our Eastern dominions

I have the honour to be, &c
Mornington

No CCXII

Major General Band to the Earl of Mornington

Camp, 23 miles W of Seringapatam, June 27th, 1799 My LORD.

I am at a loss to express to your Lordship the warm feelings of pleasure and gratitude, which I have experienced in the perusal of your Lordship's letter of the 287d which I had the hono to receive yested day. Your Lordship's approbation of my conduct on the memorable 4th of May, in the command of those brave toops whose exertions, crowned with signal success the wisely concerted plans of your Lordship, affords me a gratification of the most flattering nature. In compliance with your Lordship's desire, I beg leave to reply that any mark whatever of hono, which my Gracous Sovereign, or of favor which the Hon. Court of Directors may please to confer through your Lordship's intercession will be received by me with the utmost gratitude and respect, but to a Soldier I consider the order of the Bath the highest, of all military honors.

I have the honor to remain, my Lord, with the greatest respect and esteem

Your Lordship's most obedient and humble Servant, D Baird.

No CCXIII

The Marques Cornwalles to the Earl of Mornington

My DEAR LORD, Phonny Park, 20th Sept, 1799

Captain Tweedale, who brought the first account of your glorious success, landed at Galway, and as he passed through

Dublm, sent to me you most welcome letter of the 18th of May Exclusive of my public feelings on the great event which it announced, I beg leave to assure you, that none of your fixends could more since ely rejoice, at the well deserved lustic which it must selfect on your administration.

You have now, my dear Loid, every thing m you power, supported by the unanmous voice of your grateful country, and you will use that power, with wisdom, energy, and moderation I wish I could say that things in this island wore as prosperous an aspect, but there i emains still too much ulsenaffection and teason on one side, and too much violence on the other, on the whole, however, we are better than we have been, and the idea of union proves more popular, and gains ground both in and out of Parlament

I am, with very sincere regard,

My dear Lord,

most faithfully yours,

Cornwalls

[The following letters are here inserted as they refer to the

No CCIV

The Right Hon Henry Dundas to the Earl of Mornington

(Private)

MY DEAR LORD,

Whitehall, 13th August, 1798

I have been duly favoured with your Lordship's very important letters from the Cape of Good Hope of the following dates (No 1) 23rd of February,* (No 2) 28th of February,† and (No 3) 7th of March,‡ 1798

In my secret letter of the 16th of June lasts I wrote to your Lordship very fully on the subject of the hostile views of Tippoo Sultaun, as they had been stated to us by recent

^{*} See page 1 † See page 17

[†] This was a brief note, mentioning his Lordship's continued detention at the Cape, owing to the La Virginia requiring so much repair

[§] Sue page 348

despatches from the Cape, and also relative to the armament fitted out from Toulon, under the command of General Buonamate I at the same time enclosed copy of a proclamation said to have been issued by the Governor of Mauritius," as well as the latest intelligence relative to the expedition above alluded to, by which it appeared that Egypt and India were the ultimate objects of the great preparations that had been made Having in that letter fully detailed the measures proposed to be adopted at home, and pointed out such as appeared to be proper to be carried into execution by your Lordship in India, I shall not at present enter into any forther detail on those subjects, but shall content myself with referring you to the despatches you will receive by this conveyance, through the Secret Committee, for a detail of the measures adopted by Government for the better security of out Indian possessions

In my letter of the 16th of June I observed that I had, to a certain extent, given your Lordship my opinion upon part of the subjects to which you had called my attention in your despatches from the Cape, and stated my intention of 1eserving my sentiments on other matters of detail and of a less pressing nature, for some future conveyance, this I intended doing by the present opportunity but as the ships are to be despatched immediately, and of which I was not informed till this moining, it is my intention to answer those letters, as well as any I may receive in the mean time, by the first ships of the ensuing season

I am anxious to hear of your safe arrival in India, and of your having entered upon the very important functions committed to your charge, and in which I most cordially wish you

STICCESS

I am, my dear Lord, Yours very sincerely.

HENRY DUNDAS

^{*} Sec Introduction

No CCXV

The Right Hon Henry Dundas to the Earl of Mornington

(Private)

MY DEAR LORD.

Whitehall, 27th November, 1798

I have been duly honoured with the receipt of your Lordship's letters from Madias, dated the 8th of May,* and another from Calcutta, dated the 23rd of June last |

I most sincerely congratulate your Lodship on your anival at Fort William, and upon your assumption of the Govennment of that Presidency, and trust you will soon find little or no inconvenience from the climate, though it may appear dieadful at first

By the present overland despatch, I can do httle more than advert to the contents of the letters from your Lordship, the receipt of which I have above acknowledged

One point, however, in you letters from Madias affords me the highest satisfaction, I mean where you state the coast aimy to be in the finest condition, and to be one of the noblest bodies of men in the world I trust your Loudship will find the Bengal aimy fai more respectable as to order and discipline than has been generally supposed. Lord Teignmouth has spoke very favourably to me of it, and especially of the troops in the upper provinces, and has done ample justice to the abilities and excitons of General Caug

His Loidship has left with me the rough draft of the confidential letter he wrote to your Loidship, to be delivered to

^{*} This was a biref note, mentioning his Lordship's arrival at Madrias in the 28th of April, 1798; Atta the manu object of his mission to the Presidency at Foit St George (relative to the Nabob of Arcot) had not been accomplished, that the sumy was in the finest possible conductor, that General Hairs would make a good Commander-in-Chief in Bengul, and that his Lordship would said for Fort William on the 9th of Wang.

[†] This is a brief letter, stating the Governor General's arrival at Fort William on the 17th of May, transmitting the Mauritus proclamation, and expressing an opinion that the judicial business ought to be separated from that of the Council

you on your arrival at Calcutta * I have not had time as yet to attend to the same, but from the conversations I have had

* The following is an extract of the letter referred to -

From the Governor-General Six John Shore to the Earl of Morning ton

Calcutta, March 7th, 1798 My Long, After an absence of three months and a half, I returned to the Presidency from Lucknow on the 2nd instant, and with every inclination to communicate to your Lordship my detailed sentiments on the state of affairs in this country. I must plead the apology of incessant occupation and interruption, for a hurried address, neither conformable to my own wishes nor probably to your expectations

As the transactions in which I have been lately engaged have occupied a large portion of my time and solicitude, I shall first briefly speak of

Upon the sudden death of the late Nabob Vizier, on the 21st of September last, we were compelled to admit the succession of his declared son Vizier Alı Khan, in opposițion to universal opinion, that he was of spurious origin. For the principles on which this admission was first made, and afterwards confirmed, I refer your Lordship to my public Minutes, which will sufficiently evince the embarrassment and hesitation attending it The state of affairs at Lucknow soon assumed an appearance which threatened the subversion of the influence and interests of the Company there, and compelled me to undertake the arduous task of attempting an arrangement of them at the moment when I was preparing to embark for Europe I left Calcutta on the 25th of November, and in the progress of my journey to Lucknow, I found grounds of more serious alarm, and every indication of unprovoked hostile opposition. My determination upon it was the result of events which left me without option, and in its progress led to an enquiry, which established, upon the most solid evidence, the spurious birth of the successor to Asoph ud Doulah, and of all his reputed sons, a determined opposition little short of open hostility to the Company, and compelled me to change the line of succession, and establish the Nabob Saadit Ali Khan, the eldest surviving son of Sujah ad Doulah, on the Musnud of Oude, as the legitimate and rightful successor to the late Naboli

This is a summary account of the most important occurrence of my Administration, the particulars of which are detailed in my public Minutes In the perusal of them, your Lordship will participate the embarrassment attending a situation involving the interests, the justice, and reputation of the Company, risk, danger, and great personal responsibility, and without precedent or parallel I have the fullest confidence that your Lordship's judgment on the occasion will concur with mine. and I most earnestly recommend to you an early declaration of your determination, to support the Nabob Saadit Ali Khan, in conformity to the

with Lord Teignmouth, I have no doubt but he has stated his sentiments in the most friendly and unreserved manner trenty which I have concluded with him, as essentially necessary to impart confidence to him, and suppress the intrigues and apprehensions incidental in India to a change in the administration of this country. In the documents referred to, your Lordship will find ample details of my transactions at Lucknow, of the conduct and characters of the native there, and of every circumstance necessary to inform your judgment

But as I consider our connection with Oude as one of the most important and deficiate amongst our political relations in this country, and as no information can supply the advantages of personal observation, I cannot but recommend to your Lockship the propriety of visiting that country whenever the state of affairs and season will admit, and allow me futher to suggest to your Lockship that the notification of such as initiation to the Nabob Saidit Ali Khan, in your letter to him announcing your secession, may be attended with some advantage.

I have communicated, agreeably to usage, to all the native powers with whom we are connected, the information of your Lordship's accession and of my departure, in terms suitable to the occasion, and the rank and character of your Lordship

The power of the Bittah nation in India is most respectable, and their political legislation is most generally inspected. If has ever been my navious endeavour to promote it, by a steady adherence to every engagement, by the inneerity of my public conduct, and by an attention to avoid any interference or measure, which could excite jealousy or discuss. The political forbearance of the Company has not failed to make a sensible impression on the Mahrattas, Nizam, and thoughout, of which, if time admitted, I could mention some stituting and important instances, but it is not in the nature of timing to be expected that we can ever have all the credit which our conduct deserves, with those who art upon different principles, and who limit their forbearance by the extent of their power. Such is the case with credy fastic Prince, and the actual power of the Company is their only solid security, whilst it is, however, strongly supported by their reputation for political justice and suscertly

The ambition of Scindials appears unbounded, and in proceeding the dictates of it, he has equally appealed to teachery and violence, his power is, in fact, a military usurpation, which, however irresistible apprexime, may be abaken on subverted by the same treachery and military in the order of the manner of the transfer of the military in the transfer of the military in the mili

I have carefully perused your orders to Madias and Bombay received from the latter Presidency, in consequence of the proclamation issued at the Mauritus, and it is a pleasing cincumstance to find that, at the exact period we were framing our orders here on that subject, you were anticipating them by the orders issued by your Government.

As your Lordship must before now be in possession of the orders of the Secret Committee of June last,* I shall not here add any thing farther their reseatment, or to re-catablish them-elves I will require uncommon abilities in Sendada to cander his present power solid and permanent, and any serious institution to him would probably be succeeded by conviliation which might shake his power in Hindochast no its foundation. The Rayshe of Jaypiose and Jondpore, and many others, would probably serve the opportunition of whiching off the Militartia voke, and if Sandmai should ever provide a context with the Company, much advantage, I am connuced, might be obtained from their assistance.

The pone of the Nizum, as well as his health, s. sapidly on the decline, and his Minutet, Azim til Orarda, his long pressed a closer timon with the Company—Although I foresee great embarnssments, and the possibility of sectors exils from the subvirzation of the power of the Nizum, I see still greater in an umon which would impose upon us the pivention of it. This is the result of much debleatation on this important subject

Tippoo will certainly avail himself of any fan opportunity to 1e-establish the power and reputation which he lost in his former contest with us. Whether Zemann Shah will ever unade Hundstan is a matter of doubtful speculation, although I give him credit for the determination. If we were assured of no hoated nationis on his past towards us or our algo-the the event might, perhaps, operate to the abruntage of our interests, the event might, perhaps, operate to the abruntage of our interests, the event might, perhaps, operate to the abruntage of our interests, let unusually alternative and the superational perhaps the superational perhaps and the possible danger arising from the approach towards the frontiers of Oulek, the quastron of a defend union with the Mahintata occurred. Without pretending to decide upon union with the Mahintata occurred. Without pretending to decide upon union with the Mahintats to oppose Zemani Shah, which might carry our arms bevoud the dominances of the Najob Vygae!

I cannot conclude without expressing my sincerest satisfaction at your Lordship's appointment, my most cordual wishes for the prosperity of your administration, and my personal respect and esteem for your Lordship's character.

I have the honour to be, my Lord, Your Lordship's most obedient, humble Servant, J Shore

 They were received by the Governor General on the 18th of October, 1798 I shall anxiously expect the details your Lordslip has promised relative to Arcot and Tanjoie, the finances of the Company, and the general politics of India. On the latter subject I intended to have written to your Lordship by an early opportunity, but shall defeit it till I am favoured with your promised detail, and, indeed, by the pleasing change that has taken place in public affails, by the glorious victory of Admial Nelson, as well as from the uncertainty of the designs of Tippoo, it is not at this present moment necessary to enter particularly on the subject. I am confident your Lordship is feelingly alive as to the necessary of vigilantity watching of and guarding against the designs both of Tippoo and the French, as well as the other powers of India, who may be minied to the interest of the Buttsh nation in India.

I am happy your Loidship is pleased with the appointment of Loid Clive to the Government of Madias, I trust he will do honour to our choice, in this opinion I am much confilmed by what Loid Teignmouth has stated to me, that his Loidship constantly grew upon him in the several conversations he had with Lord Clive at the Cape As your Loidship will receive by this conveyance several letters, which we have directed the Secret Committee to trainmit, it will be unnecessary for me to enter into any detail of their contents

Lady Jane joins me in sincere respects

I have the honour to be, my dear Lord, yours faithfully,

HENRY DUNDAS

No. CCXVI

The Right Hon Henry Dundas to the Earl of Mornington (Private)

MY DEAR LORD,

London, 29th December, 1798

I have wrote to you many occasional letters since the one wrote to you in the month of June last, but few of them were sent, because from the total want of information for a long time, of what was passing in Egypt and the Levant, and afterwards from the rapid change which was produced in those quarters by Nelson's splendid victory, I was literally not in a situation to give to you any new idea beyond what I have detailed in my letter in the month of June, I have contented myself at present with baiely alluding to Nelson's victory, and the state of affans in the Mediterranean and Egypt, because I know from the steps that have been taken to convey information of those transactions directly to India. your Loidship and the Government in India are informed of them as soon as we are here I have felt myself perfectly at ease with regard to what was going on in India amidst the arduous points on which I had every reason to believe you would be called upon to act, because from your own letters. particularly the one recently received of date 6th July, compared with what I had wrote to you in the month of June. when the scene first opened, I had the satisfaction to perceive that our ideas were so much in unison as to leave me no 100m to doubt that your conduct would be precisely what I could wish I know not yet whether anything decisive has happened to Buonaparte and his army in Egypt, if there has you have heard it long before you can receive this Our last authentic accounts were that he and his aimy were labouring under every species of difficulty, and recent renorts, not however sufficiently authenticated have reached us. that he himself had been muidered at Cano, and the remains of his aimy of course put into great dismay and confusion. This is all that at present I am in a situation to state to you with any authenticity, at the same time from every collateral cu cumstance entertaming the most sanguine hopes that he and his whole aimy must go to destruction This feeling, however, has not and shall not relax my intention to give to you in India every aid of men and money that I possibly can, keeping always in view that you are or may be involved in hostilities and consequently in expense If no French assistance arrives, which is not likely to arrive. I take it for granted that you will be enabled to shape your conduct with regard to Tippoo exactly as circumstances may dictate to your own judgment and discretion The pressure of other business and the uncertainty whe-

I no pressure of other business and the uncertainty whether this letter may go to you by sea or overland, in the first instance, prevent me at this moment writing to you more at length, but it is my intention to take the first days of the holidays to write to you at full length in answer to you letten of the 6th July, and I shall at the same time detail to you without isserve, every idea that occurs to me respecting India Being possessed of these sentiments, it must be left entirely to your own judgment to apply them as circumstances may suggest

As for our situation at home, it is every thing we could wish, we have followed the blow given in the Mediterranean by Loid Nelson, in the capture of Minorca, of which the accounts are received within these few days. The authentic accounts are not yet arrived, but we are in daily expectation of hearing of the recapture of Malta, and our success in the Mediterranean has emboldened Naples to take up a ima signings. France in Italy, whether this circumstance, or indeed any other, will induce Austria and Russia to act upon their true interests by returning to a confederacy against France remains to be proved

Russia has shewn them a noble example. Laying aside all former jealousies and animosities she profile of her aid to the Ottoman Porte, when the French directed their attacks against Egypt, and annotst all the extraordinary events which the present times have exhibited to the would, it is not the least extraordinary to see a Russian fleet in the Levant So however stands the fact

As to our civil and domestic situation it is equal to the proudest wish of our hearts Founded chiefly on the voluntary zeal and exections of the country we have not less than 240,000 men in aims within the island, and we may carry that principle as far as we please No democrat date show his face, -Government popular in every ale-house, -Our commerce and revenue flourishing beyond all former example .--Public credit thoroughly restored, and in order to render it so beyond future peril, the idea of raising a great part of the supply within the year, has become so universally recognised and approved, as to enable Mr. Pitt to bring forward the measure of raising ten millions annually by a direct tax, upon income, and against the measure not a murmur without doors, but the reverse, and in Parhament the opposition has been so feeble as not to be worth mentioning. As long, therefore, as our enemies shall choose to be distracted so long are we in a condition to carry on the war, and the wealth of the country is so great as to make the burden of it to be little felt The most pressing subject now remaining is the situation of Iteland, all the attempts of France to invade it have been discomfited, either by the surrender of their troops when landed, or by the capture of then fleets and troops by the navv. without permitting them to land Notwithstanding all our exertions at home for our own security, and notwithstanding the appropriation of considerable force to our distant possessions and the Mediterranean, we have been enabled to send to the assistance of Ireland within the year not less than 25,000 troops, consisting partly of regular force, but chiefly of fencible and militia regiments who have volunteered the service. It is now decided that the plan of Union is to be immediately brought forward, and the whole strength of Government applied to carry it through For the reason I have given to you I cannot write to you to day more in detail, but I flatter myself the short sketch I have given you of the leading points worthy of being communicated to you will afford you not an unpleasant morsel

Lady Jane is well and desires to be kindly remembered to you, and I remain,

My dear Lord,

Your's sincerely,

HENRY DUNDAS

No CCXVII.

The Right Hon H Dundas to the Earl of Mornington

My dear Lord,

Wimbledon, 18th March, 1799, [Received 5th Aug 1799]

As the ships at piesent despatched are under orders to sail, it deprises me of the opportantly of writing to you upon the important subjects treated of in you letters, lately arrived overland. These letters are so voluminous that they are not yet decyphered, and from what is reported to me as to the progress made in decyphering, I have great doubts if these despatches will be leady to be brought under my view before the ships actually sail. From your general letter to the Secret Committee, I perceive that the subjects of those undecyphered papers are of a very interesting nature, and your Lordship may be assured of hearing from me by the first opportunity after I have considered them

It is my intention, in my present letter, to advert to some of the general topics to which you have referred in your letter of an earlier date, and the subject of which I may not have exhausted in any former communication.

It is impossible for me not to begin with noticing the letter recently received, enclosing the Treaty you have made with the Nizam * Your Lordship has long before this time anticinated the satisfaction I have derived from that transaction. which has been completed in so masterly and effectual a manner Long before this, I trust, it has been carried into final I have long felt uneasy from the cucumstance of the French force in the service of the Nizam, and it was, nerhans, the cn cumstance of all others which gave me the most uneasiness, when I became satisfied that the powerful a maments under Buonaparte were destined for Egypt, as his best road for the annovance of our Indian possessions Your I eaty with the Nizam effectually puts an end to every alaim ipon that part of the business, and whether you consider it negatively as removing the French force from our neighbourgood, or positively in respect of the additional strength it iffords to ourselves and the aid it gives to our finances, it is transaction which tells in our favour in a variety of ways. ind was well worth accomplishing at any risk, even if the Mahiatta powers had been dissatisfied with it I do not. lowever, see any real foundation for their being so, and I rust it will not be long before I shall hear that your Lordship ias been able, by proper exertions with the Mahrattas, to onnect them with the Nizam and us still more closely upon he principles of a common interest of defensive alliance gainst Tippoo, and every power in alliance with France

Upon the subject of the Rajah of Berai, it is only necesany foi me to say, that in so far as my general knowledge and recollection of Indian affinis enable me at present to ecide, it appears to me that he has always been fixendly to be Bitish interests in India, and I should conceive that in o respect a close connection with imm can be piepudicial to un defensive system, and the desire of pieserving the genenal peace of India, which, if it can be observed with bonoun, is certainly our wisest system, and as it is most likely to be disturbed by the hostility of Tippoo, it of course follows that every connection which stiengthens our power against him must be ultimately beneficial to the Indian interests of Great Britain. This naturally leads me to advert to the views of Zemann Shah, and the situation of Scindia as connected with that subject.

It was some time ago the fashion, in my opinion, too much to undervalue the menaces of Zemann Shah respecting India, but I think that opinion is gradually wearing away as it ought to do You are more in the way of collecting accurate information than I am, but if the French were ever to obtain such a footing as to enable them seriously to distress us, I have long thought that it would be a material point of the plan to obtain the co-operation of Zemaun Shah And even if Tippoo himself, from any misguided ambition, should be induced to undertake any extensive project against us, I must always believe that his best endeavours would be used to obtain the assistance of Zemaun Shah I take it for granted, Mi Jones, at Bagdad, transmits regularly to India the informa tion his situation there enables him to collect, but in case, by any accident it should not have reached you. I herewith send you a copy of the information; recently received from him or the subject of Zemaun Shah, and comparing it with others it strongly confirms me in the belief of his hostile designs, and that we ought to keep a very watchful eye upon the motion: of that Prince, whose talents, military force, and pecumary resources, afford to him the means of being a formidable on ponent! It would be too strong for me to state, that under no given circumstances our own forces were to go beyond our own provinces and the territories of the Vizier, but the temptation must be very great, and the advantage very evident, to induce us to do so The means of resisting any m tended aggression on the part of Zemaun Shah appear to b the following. First, to encourage and keep up those dis

See the Governor General's letters to H Colebrooke, Esq at p 479
 and to Colonel Palmer at, p 126

^{† &}quot;The information alluded to by Mr Dundas not having been received in time will be forwarded under a separate cover the See Zemaun Shah's letters in the Appendix tractions and ammosities within his own territories, the apprehensions of which must always, to a certain degree, keep him in a state of alaim, and which obliged him to return rapidly from his last attempt to invade Hindostan. Secondly, every encoungement should be given to the Seiks and Rajpoot tribes to harrass and distress him in his progress. But lastly, what of all others appears most material is, upon the ground of his own danger, to engage Seinda condaily in that defensive system of alliance, which it is our interest, by every means, to strengthen and confirm, with a view to the security of our Indian empire. It is perfectly obvious, that if ever Zemanu Shah gains a material footing in Hindostan, Semdia and his power must fall the first searcher to his ambitton.

Under these cucumstances I do not think your Lordship can do a more essential service to the interests of your country in India than by using your best endeavours to soothe and heal those jairing animosities which annihilate the force of the Government of Poonah, and render them an easy prey to the restless ambition either of Tippoo Sultaun or of Zemaun Shah Nothing can more effectually tend to secure this object than persuading Scindia to abandon that system of wickedness, perfidy, and intrigue, which he is now pursuing at Poonah, and engaging him to return to the care and protection of his own territories which require his best attention, and must ultimately tend to gratify his ambition, and consolidate his power, more than any advantages he can hope to attain by aiming at more remote or distant objects of ambition. I cannot more strongly convey to your Lordship the importance I attach to the suggestions I have laid before you, than by stating it as my opinion, that if you are able to consolidate in one defensive system the Nizam's power, the Mahiatta power, and the power of Great Britain in India, we have nothing to fear in that quarter of the globe from any combinations that can be formed against us

Upon the subject of Tippoo Sulfaun I have little to say in this letter, further than to express my approbation of the line of conduct you have pursued relative to that restless Prince You will have seen long before this, from the letter I wrote to you in the month of June last, how much the principles upon which you have acted correspond with the suggestions I laid before you at that time, when the object of Buonapan te's expedition was not ascertained, but which for the reasons I then cave. I was satisfied was intended for the prosecution of those objects which afterwards proved to be the case The first thought which you seem to have entertained, viz . that of attacking Tippoo in consequence of his conduct at Mauritius, was a very natural feeling, and there can be no doubt that the Ambassadors he sent there, and the alliance he appears to have formed upon principles hostile to us, would have fully justified you in any measures you might have thought proper to adopt His conduct was tantamount to a declaration of war against us, but still I think you judged well in not building it to that extremity By the line of conduct you have nursued towards him, you have asserted the pride and honour of the British name, which must never for a moment he let down . but you have done it in a manner to enable you to review, deliberately, your resources, and to arrange your force in such a manner as will enable you to act with effect, if the humility of his acknowledgments is not adequate to what our power and the justice of our cause entitle us to demand By this delay, likewise, you have accomplished the important point of strengthening the connexion with the Nizam, and of disbanding that permitious French force which had grown up within his territory Besides this you have received the additional confidence naturally resulting from the military force which has been sent to you from this country and from the Cape, and I likewise trust that the bullion which has been sent from this country has reached you before this time, and has tended to enliven your cuculation and resources It shall not be my fault if much more is not done in the same line in the course of the present season. but I do not enlarge upon that subject at present, as I will have occasion to advert to it in a letter upon the trade and finances of India, which I intend to write to you time enough I hope to go by the present conveyance Neither has the delay been attended with any detriment to your affairs

It is unnecessary to touble you with any details with regard to the situation of the Friench amy in Egypt Our information of what passes there is so slow and techous, I tust that the means which have been taken to supply you with intelligence from thence have kept you as well and early informed in India, if not more so than we are at home, but from what we have learnt from various quarters, I flatter myself Lord Nelson's splendid victory, and the exertions of et m the Mediteaianean, leave us little reason to apdu any danger at present to India from the French which has landed in Egypt. I trust that army will s grave in Egypt, and consequently as Tippoo must ill informed of those circumstances, you will not find a expectation of a French succour will add much pride but to his communications with you your Lordship is perfectly familiar with the different of which I have treated in this letter, I have not it it necessary to trouble you with minute details on opic, but I flatter myself I have said enough to make a fectly acquainted with my sentiments on those leading of Indian policy The result of the whole is, that our y rests, pimaily, on our own reputation and power, at in order to render our exertions efficient and permat ought to be our unceasing care to keep the power of zam and of the whole branches of the Mahratta confein a strict amity with us for the purpose of establishimpregnable barrier against all Asiatic ambition, whesting separately or in co-operation with European allies , ssential ingredient of this system, I have no hesitation ing that your Loidship is warranted to consider the hing and maintaining any French force or French men, any of then tennitonies, as an insurmountable bar t any close connexion with us.

till remains for me to state to you my opinion upon two separate points on which you desire to be desire to know what is meant by a considerable i force which is the expression generally used in the tions from home on the subject of Tippoo Sultaun ng Fiench force into his country. The application of neiple to the particular occasion must be left to the set of sound discretion, but as a general principle, I o hesitation in stating that we are entitled under the stances of the present times, to consider the admission French force into his aimy, be it greater or smaller, et hostility to us

I 1emain, my deai Loid, youi's very faithfully,

No CCXVIII

From the Secret Committee of the Court of Directors to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord, East India House, London, 18th June, 1799

As it must be satisfactory to your Loidship to be informed of our sentiments upon the leading points in your administration, so far as they have hither to come to our knowledge, we shall briefly communicate them to you by the present despatch.

Tanjour —We very much approve of the judicious an angements formed by your Lordship at Madias preparatory to carrying into execution the orders relative to the Tanjour succession *

Wynaad District —For the reasons which have been assigned, we concur entirely in the propriety of your Lordship's decision for relinquishing the Wynaad district to Tippoo Sultam

Subsularry Treaty with the Nizam [—Without entering by this despatch into the particulars of the negociations with the Nizam, which produced the late important an angement we have only to express, in the highest terms of approbation, our sense of the wisdom of your Lordship's conduct in effecting the same And as no doubt can be entertained that the introduction of French officers into the service of the native Princes, with a view of establishing the most certain means of subveiting the Butish power in India, formed part of a regular system of French policy, the entire destruction of French influence at the Nizam's court and in his armies, must be considered as an object of the utmost importance to the peace and security of the Company's possessions

We observe what is stated in your Lordship's minute of the 12th August, 1798, with respect to the sovereignty of the Decan being in Secunder Jah, the eldest son of the piesent Soubah, the Nizam Although, under present encumstances, no apprehension can be entertained of a disputed succession, we think it necessary to follow up the idea suggested by your

See Governor General's Minute on Tanjore, 31st May, 1798, p 41
 See Appendix

Loidship on this occasion, and to direct that, upon the death of the Nizam, Secunder Jah be considered as the lawful successor, and that his right, if necessary, be supported by every possible exection on our part Tippoo Sultaun -In the minute of the 12th August* your Lordship takes a very able and comprehensive view of the situation of affairs with Tippoo Sultaun As no doubt could be entertained of the positive infraction of the Treaty of Selingapatam on the part of the Mysore chief, it were to be wished that the state of the Cainatic aimy for offensive openations had been such as to have enabled you to act upon the first suggestions contained in that minute, consisting of five propositions -We shall not, however, regret if the necessity of proceeding to actual hostilities shall have been averted by Tippoo Sultaun consenting to receive Major Doveton on the part of the allies, and by his acquiescence in the three propositions contained in the subsequent part of your Lordship's minute beforementioned But should a war be rendered inevitable we trust that its conclusion will be marked by his cession to the Company of the whole maiitime tellitory 1emaining between the ghauts on the coast of Malabai, agreeably to your Lordship's original idea upon the subject, which would effectually secure us against any apprehension from any future junction between the forces of Tippoo Sultaun and those of the French, and by his relinquishing the Coimbetore country, which would greatly tend to the security of the Carnatic, and enable us to reduce the military expences on the coast At all events Tippoo Sultaun might be induced to assign over the Combetore country to the Company upon the recent of a reasonable adequate revenue for the same, as a faither security against any hostile attempts on his part in future. In the event of a war with Tippoo Sultaun the respective countries of the Nabob of Alcot and the Rajah of Tanjour will of course come under the Company's management, and we direct that they be not relinguished without special orders from us, or from the Court of Directors for that purpose in order to afford sufficient time for the formation of arrangements for relieving those Princes from all incumbrances upon then revenues.

See page 159.

In conclusion of this despatch we have only to express our approbation of the reasons which so zealously induced your Lordship to iepan to Madias, our entire reliance on the wisdom and firmness of your Lordship's measures for the sunport of the British possessions in the East Indies during the present arduous contest, and our full approbation of those which have been aheady adopted to meet every possible exigency

Although your Lordship's determination to proceed to Madias was influenced by the very critical situation of affairs with respect to Tippoo Sultaun, we observe with great satisfaction, by your minute of the 2nd January last, that in the exercise of your authority at that settlement it is not your intention to interfere in the details of that Government, a measure which must naturally tend to the support of that dignity and consequence which we always wish should be maintained by the respective governors and councils at the subordinate Presidencies At the same time we have the faither satisfaction to witness the most zealous and cordial co-operation of Lord Clive and his Council in such measures as may be proposed by your Lordship for the Company's safety and prosperity.

> We are. Your affectionate friends, STEP LUSHINGTON. HUGH INGLIS. JOHN MANSHIP.

No. CCXIX

My DEAR SIR.

The Earl of Mornington to the Right Honourable H Dundas

SIR. Fort St George-1799

You will not be surprised at any degree of earnestness which I may feel to promote the interests of that gallant army by whose assistance I have effected the late important and happy resolution in the affairs of the British Nation, on this side of India...

You own zeal for the public service, and the honotable support which it has always been your peculian pude and pleasure to afford to those who have cooperated with you in the great cause in which we are all engaged, inspire me with a confident expectation, that I shall find my your sentiments a degree of cordiality, and aidour correspondent with my

The aimy at large have received in the captured property, taken at Seringapatam, a reward in some degree proportioned to their ments, and it is rather the Province of the Commander in Chief than mine to appreciate and recommend to notice the conduct of the officers of inferior rank to that of Generals on the Staff I shall therefore confine my recommendations to that rank

I have already had sepeated occasion to express to you my feelings of public, and purste, grafutude towards Licut-General Hauis as well as to explain the strong grounds on which both those sentiments are founded in my mind * The share, which General Hauis has seceived, of the pinze taken at Seingapatam has placed has fortune above the want of any public ad, † otherwise I have no doubt that the magnitude

† The following is General Harris's letter to the Governor General on this subject

My DEAR LORD, Camp, 27th June, 1799

Your favour of the 23.d reached me yesterday ovening, and be assured made me very happy, as I can so readily fall in with you Lordships' flattering wish, that I should repose my whole confidence in your favourable disposition towards me. Your kindness and pleasant manner with me, has put every gloomy idea to flight, and alsely most of them are even forgot. However, my dear Lord, you are far exceeding my humble wishes, and I really think those of Mrs Harris, or rather you would do so if you preferred the request to his Majesty—to grant to me the dignity of a basin of Gerst Britum.

I am highly sensible of your Lordship's friendship, and any mark of his Majesty's favour would always be received by me with respect, but as [•] Upon the daccusson in Council at Foit St. George (Jist July, 1798), relative to firmming pecunary funds for the detachment of the surportional form of dered by the Governor General to be sent to Hyderalad, General Huirs, then acting Governor, offered to be responsible in the pivrate funds for the sum inequaled to put the troops in motion (see p. 156). This more, greaten and pationtic offer completely scienced all opposition, and orders were immediately assist for the advance of the troops to Hyderabad.

of his services would have insured to him a liberal and munificent provision from the East India Company

I certainly do not wan these high honours, so, I should be truly sorry you should bay yourself under obligations for what, to say the truth, would annow me exceedingly Indeed, my dear Lord, you could not have puz-zled me more—supposing I was soluctious to succeed—than by the question, what title I would chause to take?

An humble clergymate's son, thrown very early in lite into the army, entirely a soldier of foitine, with scarcely any assistance save his own exertions, is little likely to have any hereditary place he would chuse to commemorate, and in my instance the 5th regiment was near six and twenty veals my constant home.

Your Lordship's wise policy and extraordinary exertions have thrown me into affluence equal to my most sanguine wishes, but what is affluence to my military rank, would be very moderate to support the honours you propose, and no doubt as I am above the want of a pension, so I think at most likely I shall keep clear of soliciting our honourable employers on that head, unless you should persist in forcing these honours on me. so take care In respect of George and the colours, be so good, my dear Lord, to use your own good pleasure, for my part, I have no doubt they would be very safe by the Connuallis, as I understand she is a most excellent sailer, and it would certainly be an object to have George in such good company as Beatson and Allan I am rejoiced to hear your Loidship's determination of not leaving the coast before September, as that will surely give me the opportunity of a few days at least in your society, and which Mrs Harris will inform you I much wish for, and I may add, even under the threat of the trumphal entertainment, which your Lordship is perfectly right in suspecting, as I perceive you do, I am not very ambitious of receiving Years are creeping fast upon me, and I feel the the desire of retirement, which has always been my wish, growing daily stronger Under these circumstances, the vanities of the world weigh but little Indeed, the utmost I feel, is to close this campaign with satisfaction to your Lordship, and then those are welcome to the honours who are anxious for them My Sovereign, I should hope, will receive me with some attention whenever I may get home, as having all my life endeavoured faithfully to do my duty by him, my country, and those who have employed me I wish your Lordship may not think me too piolix, but aware of the difficulty of avoiding honours, without being suspected of more vanity than if I sought them, I have entered into a detail of my own concerns, which I could only submit to the eye of friendship

Thus, my dear Lord, it will please me most to let the matter take its chance, giving me such credit as you think me deserving of, for behieve me in this respect I am very ambitious. No one can set a higher value on your commendations than,

My dear Lord.

Under Lieut General Harris's actual cucumstances I should hope that His Maiesty might deem it proper to confer a distinguished mark of honor, upon that deserving officer, and impressed as I am with the importance of the conquest achieved under Lieut-General Harris's command. I trust that His Majesty, will confer no honors on General Harris below those of the order of the Bath, and of a Peerage of Great Britain It is my duty to state to you that any honors inferior to these would not meet the public opinion entertained in India, with respect to the importance of the late victories, nor satisfy that sentiment of honorable pride which they have diffused thi ough every branch of the civil and military service in this country I must therefore make it my most anxious and earnest request to you that you will omit no endeavour to obtain for Lieut -General Harris, the honors which he has so well mouted Lieut -General Stuart Commandonin-Chief of the aimy of the Bombay, has long been distinguished for the ability and eminence of his services in India During the late War he has added considerably to his former lamels, and the victory obtained by the troops, under his command at Sedasere, must ever be remembered as one of the most bulliant events, in our military history in India. His health is now declining, and he proposes to return to Europe in the approaching season. His circumstances, even with the addition of his pieze money, will be moderate, and certamly no military character in this quarter of the Globe, whether considered on the ground of long service, emment success, or approved integrity, ever was a more proper object for the munificence of the East India Company I also trust that the splendid and important victory of Sedasere will recommend Lieut General Stuart to His Majesty for the order of the Bath. It is impossible to bestow too much commendation on the conduct of Major-General Baird in the assault of Seringapatam A more judicious operation conducted with more heroic gallantiv and spirit never was achieved, and when you recollect the decisive consequences of the success of that day, effecting within the course of two hours the entire destruction of our most formidable enemy in India, I am persuaded you will concur with me, in an anxious solicitude to see the gallant leader of the assailants of Tippoo Sultaun's capital rewarded in a manner suitable to his exertions, and to their beneficial effect I have made it my particular business to engune into Major-General Band's cucumstances, and I have ascertained that they are by no means affluent It would therefore be a peculiar satisfaction to me if the East India Company should exercise their known liberality in his case When it is remembered, that in the course of active and arduous service during the former war he fell into the hands of Tippoo Sultaun and suffered a long and cruel imprisonment in the dungeons of that Fortress, which on the 4th of May 1799, submitted to his mesistible valour and skill, I am persuaded that his claim to public reward and honor will be deemed peculiarly interesting, and powerful I should also hope that his extraordinary ments on the 4th of May would induce His Majesty to consider him as a proper object for the order of the Bath, I enclose a letter from Major General Band, which reflects the highest credit on his sentiments of honor and public spirit *

The commander in Chief has made a very favorable report to me of the conduct of Major. General Floyd who commanded the cavally during the war, I understand that General Floyd proposes to return soon to Europe, and that his principal object is to obtain a regiment; The commander in Chief has also made a very favorable report to me of the conduct of Major-Generals Budges and Popham, of the Company's Service, during the Campaign And I have aheady had occasion, in myletters to the Court of Directors, to appliant the services of Major-General Hautley, on the Coast of Malabai

My Lord, your most obedient and most humble Servant, J FLOYD

Sec p 598

[†] A letter from General Floyd to the Governor General, dated Bangalore, the 26th August, 1799, contains the following passage on this subject "My Lorp,

When you did me the honour to give me your thanks for my poor seuces in the late war, and to offer me the very material assistance of your influence in my personal pursuits, whether of honous or of other advanuages, I mentioned to your Lordship how much I should be gratified should Him Minjesty honour me with the command of a regiment of cavalry I am senable my military situations must be determined by opmons already formed of me during a practice of several years. I am always ready and happy to receive your Lordship's command, and I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect,

It appeared to me that even those parts of this letter which relate to the bounty of the East India Company, would be more properly addressed to you, than to the Court of Directors, who might deem it presumptuous in one of their servants to affect to point out to them the proper objects of their liberality on such an occasion as the present You will, however, make whatever use of this letter may appear to you most advisable

With regard to the several able and gallant officers, whom I have named, their pelsons were entirely unknown to me previously to my arrival in India, not have I any knowledge of their respective families or connections in Europe. The services which they have rendered to the public, form the sole ground of my own acquaintance with them, and the only motive of the interest which I take in their welfare and honor. I know that the same circumstances will be their best recommendation to your courtenance and protection.

Believe me, Dear Su, with great respect and regard Yours, most faithfully and affectionately,

No CCXX

Address from the Inhabitants of Fort St. George, to the Right Honourable the Earl of Mornington K. P. Governor-general, &c. &c. &c.

My Lord

WE the undersigned mhabitants of Madias, impressed with a deep sense of the glory and advantage derived to the British empire from your lordship's administration, beg leave to approach your lordship with our sincere congratulations on the successful termination of the war with Trippo Sultan

The dawn of your loadship's government opened to us the early prospect of restoring the national interests in India, to that security and elevation which had been acquired by the victories, justice, and wisdom of the Marquis Connwalls, the

This address was agreed to unanimously at a public meeting, Major General Ross in the chair, it was presented to the Governor General by a deputation of the principal inhabitants, and received in presence of Lord Clive. the Members of Council, Licentenant General Stunt, &c.

removal of a power, festering in the centre of our possessions, and coinciding one of our most important alliances, evinced, as well your loadship's foresight of the dangetous cloud, which was collecting, under the councils of France, as the decision and energy with which your loadship prepared to meet the impending storm

A prudence less penetiating, or a vigour less active, might have been appalled at the difficulties of supporting a war against the kingdom of Mysore, but it was the peculiar energy of your lordship's mind, to anticipate the growth and maturity of those difficulties, to estimate the time extent of our own power, to seize the critical period of action, and to create resources, by inspiring a confidence and energy, correspondent to the extent and importance of your lordship's measures

The issult of those measures we now new with triumph and exultation, in the complete subversion of the power of Tippoo Sultain, of whose emitty the determined inveteracy rendered peace undesirable, and whose infatuated attachment to the implacable enemy of England, iendered was unavoidable. The rapidity with which this great event has, under Providence, by your lordship's wisdom, and the gallantry of the army, been achieved, has left on our minds impressions of administron, at a conquest unequalled in its importance, in the annals of British India.

The brillancy of this conquest has spread a blaze of glory over the meridian of your loudship's goveniment, and from the extensive influence of its effects, we have a just confidence that your lordship's career in India will close by diffusing throughout Hindostan, the calm of genuine peace, and undistuibed tranquility

Feeling in our immediate situation the first consequences of you loudship's ancess, we beg leave to offer you loudship our wannest acknowledgments, and, while we contemplate the benefits we now enjoy, we are unable to express our gratitude in terms adequate to our sense of the decisive termination with which the builtant achievements of the Marquis Cornwallis and the victory of Admiral Lord Nelson have been crowned by the Earl of Mornington

Madras, 26th June, 1799

The Earl of Mornington's reply

GENTLEMEN,

The zeal which distinguishes your congratulations on the prosperous termination of the late campaign in Mysole, is similable to the character of British subjects, animated by the glorious success of a just and necessary war, and by the happy prospect of an honourable and secure peace.

It would not become me either to depreciate the efforts which have been made for your defence, or to disclaim the share which my public duty required me to take in them

It would have been cummal in me to have neglected any pieceaution, or to have declined any exertion which, in my judgment and conscience, appeared necessary to the important object of flustrating the avowed designs of the enemy, and of providing for the safety of the valuable interests committed to my charge.

In the discharge of this duty I am happy to declare, that I have received the most cordial assistance from every class and description of the inhabitants of this settlement

My acknowledgments of the honounable, generous and dismeter ested support of Lord Clive, and of the zealous co-operation of the members of the council, are not perhaps into duced with strict propriety on this occasion, but his lordship will pandon my eagerness to offer to him a public tribute of my succer gratitude, respect, and esteem

In all the principal civil and military officers throughout every branch and department of this government, I have found an unammous spirit of alacity and diligence, equalled only by then emment abilities and extensive knowledge. The same spirit has marked the conduct of the commercial houses, and of the banks estiblished in this settlement, by their seasonable assistance I was enabled, in the most critical period of our military preparations, to avail myself of the resources of this presidency, to an extent unexampled in its history

By these aids, and by the extaordmany eventons of the governments of Bengal and Bombey, I was empowered to call forth that gallant army, whose transcendant achievements have delivered the Canatte from the perpetual alain of mvasion, and conveited the strength of our implacable enemy into a new source of security and power to us, and to our allies

It is, therefore, in your energy and zeal, and in the co-operation of all the Butish governments of India, that I trace the pinnary causes of our recent victories, and anticipate the settlement of a peace as propitious to our interests, and honourable to our national character, as the events of the war have been glorious to our initiary reputation

Concord, unanimity, and prompt obedience, combined with a faithful at d assiduous discharge of public duty, and a high sense of public honour in the public service, will render the Supreme government of these extensive possessions a grateful task, in the servicest tails of difficulty and danger

With such an umon of loyalty and public spirit, we may confidently expect to counteract every device and machination of our enemies, to detect their intrigues, to disappoint their treachery, to repel their violence, and to perpetuate the British empire in India on the solid foundations of humanity and valour, justice and power

Madras, 26th June, 1799

Mornington

No CCXXI

Address of the Inhabitants of Bombay to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord, Bombay, 3rd Aug 1799
We the undersigned British subjects, civil and militar

We the undersigned Bitish subjects, civil and imbitary, now leading in Bombay, beg leave to offer to your Lordship our sincere congratulations on the termination of the war with Tippoo Sultaun, a war founded in necessity and justice, prosecuted with extraordinary vigour, and crowned with unexampled success. In the accomplishment of this gives the whether we consider your Lordship's penetration in fathoring the perfidious designs of the Sultaun, in alliance with the French nation, in violation of a solerna Treaty, and without a pretence of provocation, to attack the British possessions in India,—the subsequent solicitude evinced by your Lordship to concluste the Sultaun's friendship, and by recalling him to a sense of his obligations, to avert the calamities of war—the policy, when every overture of concluston had been disegrated, obvaring the menaced aggression by an immediate appeal to aims, or the vigorous adoption of all the vanious measures essential to a successful prosecution of the wai, every thing equally excites our administion and applause, and while the transcendent achievements of a gallant aimy, in exception of your Lordships measures, and in the final conquest of the Sultaun's kingdom, have added new and never fading lained is to their blow, it is matter of evultation to every Birtish subject to observe your Lordship, in the moment of triumph, and in the plenitude of power and conquest, exhibiting to the descendant of a deposed Pinney, to our alless and to the world, a fiesh instance of Birtish honour, Birtish faith, generosity, and justice

In the result of this conquest, as unpiecedented in the lapidity of its completion, as it is unequalled in its importance, we behold the entire extinction of a cuel and relentless foe, a valuable acquisition of territory and power, the strength of our alliances in India increased, a destructive confedency dissolved and defeated, which, whilst it affords us the fainest prospect of a permanent internal tranquility and security, releves us also from the apprehension of external volcence and invasion, by giving us a well grounded confidence, that it must effectually flustrate the machinations and intrigues of the Directory of France, the inveterate and implacable foe of England, and the common enemy of established order, liberty, and government, in every part of the world

In addition to these unportant benefits, arising from the glorious termination of the Mysone wai, we entertain the pleasing hope that the brilliant achievements in India, so opportunely aiding the splendid successes of his Majesty's arms in other quarters of the globe, will, from the extent of their influence, have a forcible operation in testoring to us the blessings of a general, permanent, and honourable peace

Implessed with a deep sense of the honour and advantage derived to the British empire under your Lordship's Government, feeling in common with his Majesty's subjects in every other part of India, the immediate effect of your Lordship's recent measures, which peculiarly call for our warmest acknowledgments of respect and gratitude, and fully confiding in your Lordship's wisdom, integrity, and justice, that the powers of Government will ever be directed to the true interests of the people, we cannot omit this occasion of assuring your Lordship that we shall not, without regret, behold the arrival of the moment that shall put a period to your Lordship's administration of the Government in India *

We have the honour to be, My Lord.

With great respect, Your Lordship's most obedient humble servants

The Earl of Mornington's Reply

Gentlemen.

It is peculiarly satisfactory to me to receive the honourable testimonies of personal esteem, and to observe the cordial expressions of zeal for the public service contained in your able and ammated address

The rigorous prosecution and prosperous issue of the late wan with Tippoo Sultaun are to be ascribed, under Providence, to that unanimous spirit of prompt obedience and cheer fiel co-operation which I found in every part of the Buttish possessions, and in every hanch of the public service in India. This happy disposition proceeded not more from a sense of duty and a regard for the principles of subordination, than from a general conviction of the justice of our cause, and of the indispensible necessity of frustrating, by a seasonable effort, the systematic treachery of our faithless, implacable, and infatuated enemy

The distinguished part which the Settlement of Bombay has borne during the late cursus in the labous and honours of the common cause has repeatedly claimed my warm approbation, and will ever be remembered by me with gratitude and respect. In your liberal and voluntary contribution towards the exigencies of your native country, and towards the defence of the Presidency under whose Government you reside, [

This address was passed unaumously at a great public meeting convened by the present Sir Charles Forbes, Bart, a gentleman who in India as well as in England has pre-emisently distinguished himself by his noble public sputt—an expansive mind, and a truly Christian philanthiony

[†]The Bombay Presudency, with Bengal and Madras, was cqually zealous to promote the success of the Governor-General's measures, the voluntary loan towards prosecuting the war in Europe amounted to upwards of 200,000 rupces, of which Mr Duncan generously contributed 25,000, Leatt-Gen Stuart, 20,000. Mjor-Gen James Rivett, 12,000, Mr Page and in the alacity with which you have given you personal services for the military protection of Bombay, I have contemplated with pleasure the same character of public spirit, resolution, and activity, which has marked the splendid successes of the gallant army of Bombay from the commencement to the close of the late glorious campaign

The extensive power which the result of the wai has placed in the hands of the allies has enabled them to conclude the pacification on such pimoples of moderation and equity, as afford a reasonable prospect of permanent security and repose

Your unsoluted assurances of confidence and esteem confirm my desne and hope of deriving from the recent settlement of Mysore the mestimable advantages which it promises to the interests and honour of Great Britain, and to the peace, happiness, and prosperity of the native inhabitants of Index.

I have the honour to be,

Gentlemen, Your faithful servant,

Mornington

697

No CCXXII

Address of the British Inhabitants of Calcutta to the Right Honourable the Governor General *

My Lord,

Calcutta, 21st August, 1799

We, the Bittish inhabitants of Calcutta, impressed with a deep sense of the great benefits which the public interests have derived from the wisdom and energy of your Loidship's Councils, in the glorious termination of the late war with

- (M C) 12,000, Mr J Forbes, 8,000 The cops of Fenenbles raised by the Preadency was 1,000 stong, of which Sir Charles (then Mr) Forbes equipped and pand 50 men. It is to these patrotic cuts and to the hecosm displayed by the Bombay simy, especially in the battle of Seedasere, (see p 483), that the Governor-General refers in his Lodship's answer to the address
- As at the other Presidences this address was unanimously agreed to sta public meeting, convened by the sheriff (MI Ewer), and signed by all the European goatlemen of the Presidency There were also addresses from other parts of India, and from the Hindoo gentry, and other native imbalticuts, all breathing a spirit of loyalty to the Butish Government, and gratified for the englit of the Governor General's exertions

Tippoo Sultaun, beg leave to present our sincere congratulations on the splendid events which have crowned your Lordship's measures with such rapid and complete success

The fall of Tippoo Sultaum and his capital, the capture of his sons, the submission of his chiefs, and annihilation of his power, must seeme to the Company's possessions the blessings of internal tranquillity, increase, beyond calculation, the resources, strength and stability of the Butish empire in the East, and, while they reflect the highest honou on the General and the aimy by whose bullbant victories your Lordship's objects have been accomplished, must transmit your Lordship's name with distinguished lustre to posterity

The restolation of the injunct lace of Plinces, whose dominions then is bellious subject Hydea Ah had usurped, and whose immediate descendant your Lordship has aussed from a pisson to a throne, the liberal provision your Lordship has bestowed on the family and chiefs of our implacable and cruel enemy, the late Sultanu of Mysoce, and the partition of the conquered counties," demand our warnest applause, and cannot but increase the confidence of the native powers, in the tustice and elemency of the British native

To you Loudship's 'agalance, energy and wasdom, Great Britam is indebted for all these great events, which, combined with the invaluable result of you Loudship's previous negotiations at the Court of Hydeiabad, have not only releved the Bitish possessions and those of their allies from the constant apprehension of invasion by a restless and ambitious Prince, whom no moderation could appease, but must also extinguish every hope our invetenate enemies of France so anxiously cherished, of involving these happy countries in the calamities and horious which they have spread over so many other regions of the globe, and will, we furst, under Drivne Providence, essentially contribute to the final deliverance of Europe, from the chains which they have imposed, and to the ultimate object of every just and necessary war, a lasting, safe, and horiourable peace

We beg leave to offer our most respectful congratulations to your Lordship on your safe return to the chief seat of Government, where we earnestly hope you will long continue

^{*} This refers to the settlement of the Mysone territory, which will be detailed in the subsequent volume to preside, and add to those great and numerous claims on the public gratitude, which, by such important and distinguished services, your Lordship already has acquired

> We have the honour to be, with the highest respect, my Loid, Your Loidship's most obedient, humble Servants,

Reply of the Right Honourable the Governor General to an Address presented to his Lordahy by the British Inhabitants of Calcutta on the 21st of Sentember, 1799

GENTLEMEN,

I teceve this distinguished mark of your regard with sentments of satisfaction and gaithtude, proportioned to my experience of your approved loyalty and public spirit, and of your just sense of the interests and honom of the British empire in India.

The prosperous termination of the late campaign in Mysoic is a proper subject of public congratulation. The British aims have seldom achieved a conquest of greater lustre or value, and never were employed in a cause of more ungent necessity, or of more imanifest justice. The progress of our success has revealed additional justifications of our original appeal to the sword, and the final triumph of our arms has been enhanced by the satisfactory reflection, that the war, which terminated in the destruction of our enemy, originated in his implacable hatied, flagrant treachery, and unprovoked aggression.

Under the blessing of Providence, favouing the justice of our cause, the lapid and unintercupted course of our victories is to be ascribed to the admirable valoui, skill, and discipline of the gallant officers and toops employed in Mysore, to the predominant influence of the British character in India, and to the intrinsic vigoui of our extensive resources and established power

It was my duty to make a seasonable use of these emment advantages, and un the unanmuty of our counsels, in the zeal, talents, and happy subordination of every branch of the civil and military service throughout the British possessions, I found the piniciples of that spirit of alacrity and adour, which accelerated the equipment of the army, and secured the early success of the war

My thanks have already been offered to the governments and inhabitants of the Presidencies of Foit St George and Bombay, for the distinguished part which they have borne respectively in the late arduous crisis of affairs

Î am happy to avail myself of this public occasion to declaie, that, from this Piesidency I received the most effectual and timely aid, to an extent, which fully justified my confident expectations of coidial cooperation from the respectable hands, which, during my absence, administered the Government of Bengal

In reviewing the more immediate causes of our success. I cannot repress a tribute of gratitude to him who laid the foundations of that strength which it has been my lot to call into action The name of the Maiguis Coinwallis is inseparably connected with the fame and power of Great Britain in this quarter of the globe, and will continue to be an obsect of affection and severence as long as wisdom, fortitude, and integrity shall be respected, or any sense retained of ustice, clemency, benevolence, public faith, or military glory The final conquest of Mysoie is calls the memory of that glorious war, in which the first shock was given to the hostile power of Tropoo Sultaun it must never be forgotten, that, under the auspices of the Marquis Coinwallis in that wai. the supply and movement of our armies in Mysole wele first reduced to a system of regularity and order, and our officers acquired that experience and skill so conspicuous in the able and masterly operations of the late campaign " Under the

Dublin Castle, March 2nd, 1800

MY DEAR LORD,

Your answer to the Address of the unabitants of Calcutta, on your return to Bengal, was gratifying to me in proportion to my esteem for the person who honoured my services with such flattering approbation.

^{*} The following letter was written by the Maiquis Coinwallis to the Earl of Mornington, on receiving the intelligence of the Governor-General's reply to the Calcutta Address

If I am to derive any credit from posterity for my endeavours to establah order, honesty and dignity in the Government of our Indian empire, it is to you, my dear Lord, that my fame will be indebted, for unless you same auspices, the whole system of our defensive alliances in the peninsula of India was founded, and the national faith was maintained in a degree of purity and lustre, which inspired a general confidence in the British Government, and disposed the native powers to stengthen and cement their connection with the Company on the solid basis of reciprocal interest and mutual security. This favourable disposition was confilmed by the prudence, integrity, and honour of my immediate predecessor (Sir John Shore), and in the important negotiations, which it has been my duty to conduct, I have derived considerable assistance from the advantageous impressions of the British character, which I found deeply fixed in the minds of our alless.

Possessed of such powerful means, I have been enabled not only to prosecute the war with success, but to conclude the partition of our conquests on principles of moderation and equity, conformable to the laws, the honour, and policy of the

had gone to Bengal, the transient fruits of my labour would soon have been done away and totally forgotten

Your correspondents in England will probably tell you that every thing is going on well in Ireland, and that the union will be carried with ease, but believe me the task will turn out more difficult than they imagine. and although I trust that we shall ultimately succeed, it will be after a long and violent contest The leaders of opposition are able, and their followers are ammated with that zeal which vanity, prejudice, and selfinterest naturally inspire, and since Mr Grattan has come forward, their cause is espoused in distant parts of the kingdom by the lower class, who looked on with indifference as long as faction was untainted with disloyalty We have a majority of between forty and fifty, scarcely any of whom will, I believe, desert from us, but they are in general cold and languid friends, and it is very difficult to procure such an attendance, as the importance of the case, and the activity and unfan dealing of the enemy, render necessary for our daily security In the mean time we hear, from credible quarters, that an attack upon us is intended from Brest, which, however difficult the enterprize may appear on the part of the enemy, adds considerably to the weight of my occupation

I shall refer you for the affairs of Eogland, and the general politics of Europe, to your better informed friends on the eastern side of St George's channel, and shall content myself with assuring you that I am, with the most catnest wishes for your health and prosperity, British nation, and affording the most rational promise of permanent security to the possessions of the Company, and of meneral tranquillity to India

To whatever situation the course of future events may call me, the assurances of your personal confidence and esteem must always be highly honourable to my character, and grateful to my recollection

While the administration of this aiduous Government shall be entrusted to my hands, my earnest endeavous shall be constantly employed to secure and improve our recent acquisitions of tentitory, wealth, and power, and to guard the prosperity and happiness of these opulent and flomishing dominions by such effectual piecautions as shall avert the aits and arms of Fiance, and discourage her spirit of enterpute, or fustate its numous effects

Mornington

No CCXXIII

From the Right Hon Henry Addington to the Earl of Mornington

My Lord,

Palace-yard, 5th October, 1799

The reward of public approbation and gratitude has, on no occasion, been more cordually and deservedly bestowed, than by the inclosed resolutions, which I have the honour of transmitting to your Lordship, in obedience to the commands of the House of Commons

Wisdom and vigous in council, and talents and exettons in the field, have emmently characterized the civil and military services in India, during the period of your Loidship's administration, and the effects of the measures which have been adopted, are to be found in the overthrow of a restless and perfidious power, in the dissolution of a menacing and formidable confederacy, and in the improved security of the Birtish possessions in that quarter of the woll.

Allow me, my Lodd, so far to indulge my own feelings, upon this occasion, as to assue your Lordship, and those, who, under your auspices, contributed to successes so splendid and important, that, in the discharge of my official duty, I have never experienced a higher guatification, than in being the channel of affording this additional proof, that great and glorious services will ever be distinguished by the applause, admination, and gratitude of the Commons of Great Britain

I have the honour to be, with the utmost respect,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient, and faithful humble servant,

HENRY ADDINGTON.

No CCXXIV

Vote of Thanks of the House of Commons

Veneris 4º die Octobris, 1799

Resolved, Nemine Contradicente.

That the thanks of this House* be given to the Right Honourable Richard Lord Wellesley, Earl of Mornington, m the kingdom of Ireland, and Governor-General of the British possessions in the East Indies, for the wisdom, decision, and energy, with which he discharged the arduous duties of his station, from the time of his taking upon him the said Government to the glorious termination of the late war by the capture of Senngapatam, during which period, by opposing to the perfidy of the late Sultaun of Mysore, an uniform moderation, dignity, and firmness, and by counteracting with equal promptitude and ability, the dangerous intrigues and projects of the French, particularly by destroying then power and influence in the Decan, he prepared the way for the rapid and bulliant operations carried on under his superintendence and direction, the result of which has finally disappointed all the designs of our enemies in that quarter, and has established, on a basis of permanent security, the tranquillity and prosperity of the British empire in India.

Resolved, Nemine Contradicente,

That the thanks of this House be given to the Right Honourable Loid Clive, Governor of the settlement of Fort St George, for his zealous, cordial and honourable concurrence, A 18.00

^{*} A similar vote was passed unanimously by the House of Loids

in forwarding the use and dignified riews of the Govenno-General in Council, by which he has furnished a salutary and memorable example of the advantage of unanimity and concoid among the persons employed in high stations in the Butash dominions in the East Indies, and has, to the utmost of his power, promoted the success of those measures, from which the most important public benefits have resulted to this country

Resolved, Nemine Contradicente,

That the thanks of this House be given to Jonathan Duncan, Esq., Governo of Bombay, for the seal and prompttude of his conduct in preparing the army of that Presidency for the field, agreeably to the orders of the Governor-General in Council, whereby the army was enabled materially to contribute to the successful and glorious termination of the late war in India

Resolved, Nemme Contradicente,

That the thanks of this House be given to Lieut-General George Halling, for the whole of his able and mentionous conduct in the command of the forces of his Majesty and of the East India Company, during the late gloinous and decisive war with the Sultani of Mysore, and paticularly for the ability, judgment, and energy, with which he planned and directed the assault of Seringapatam, the success of which brilliant achievement has so highly contributed to the glory of the British name, and to the permanent tranquillity of our possessions in the East

Resolved, Nemme Contradicente,

That the thanks of this House be given to Lieut.-General James Stuart, Commandet-in-Chief of the Bombay army, which so gloriously co-operated in the success of the late campaign in India, and also to the Major-Generals John Floyd, Thomas Burdges, William Popham, James Hartley, and Dawrd Baird, and to the respective officers of the a immes employed on that occasion against the enemy, for their distinguished and mentiorious services.

Resolved, Nemine Contradicente.

That this House doth highly approve of, and acknowledge, the services of the non-commissioned officers and private soldiers employed against the enemy, in the glorous and decisive wai in the East Indies, and that the same be signified to them by the Commanders of the several corps, who are desired to thank them for then gallant behaviour

Ordered,

That Mi Speaker do transmit the said Resolutions to the Right Honourable the Governor-General, and that his Londship be requested by Mi Speaker, to signify the same to the Governors, Generals, and other officers, referred to therein.

J LEY, A D Dom Com.

Vote of Thanks of the Honourable East India Company

At a Court of Directors held on Tuesday, the 24th September, 1799, the Deputy Chanman, agreeably to an intimation given on the 20th instant, moving the Coint, it was, on the question being severally put, Resolved unanimously, That the thanks of this Court be given to the Earl of Mornington. Governor-General, for the able and successful measures which he adopted, whereby the complete annihilation of French influence at the Court of Hyderabad was happily accomplished, for the ability, firmness, and decision manifested by his Lordship in his conduct towards the late Tropoo Sultaun, and for the previous measures which he pursued to enabling the army to take the field, whereby it was put in a situation to act with vigor against the enemy, and to effect the speedy conquest of the capital of the Mysone dominions, the happy presage of a lasting peace in India, and the consequent increase of prosperity to the East India Company

Resolved unanumously, That the thanks of this Court be given to the Right Honounable Loud Clive, Govenno of Madias, for his zealous co-operation with the Earl of Monington in the measures proposed by his Lordship, and particularly in the exertions which he made for equipping the Madras aimy for those operations which have redounded so much to its honor and to the interests of this Company

Resolved unanimously, That the thanks of this Court be given to Jonathan Duncan, Esq., Governon of Bombay, for the zeal and promptitude of his conduct, in preparing the army of that Presidency for the field, whereby it was enabled to take a conspicuous shate in the glorious achievement of the late campagin against the Mysoic dominions the late campagn against the Mysoic dominions Resolved unanimously. That the thanks of this Court be given to Lieut-General George Halls, Commander-in-Chief of the King's and Company's Toices employed in the siege of Sermgapatam, for the very able and judicious manner in which the attack of that for ties was planned Resolved unanimously. That the thanks of this Court be given to the officers of the King's and Company's forces employed in the assault of Seingapatam on the 4th of May, 1799, for the iapadity, animation, and skill, which they manfested in the execution of this important service, and to the non-commissioned officers and privates for the courage and interplaty of their conduct upon that brilliant occasion.

Resolved unaminously, That the thanks of this Count be given to Lieutenant-General Stuart, for his able conduct in the command of the Bombay aimy previous to its junction, and to the officers and men of that aimy, who were engaged in the action of the 6th of Maich with a chosen body of the count of Thumpo Sultany, for them able and murral or abuse.

troops of Tippoo Sultaun, for then able and spurted conduct upon that occasion.

Resolved unanimously, That the thanks of this Court be given to Lieut-Gen Halls, and the officers and men of the given to Leut-Gen Hains, and the offices and men of the King's and Company's forces under his command, for the great and important services rendered to the East India Company throughout the whole of the late glorious campaign, which has tenimated to the advantage of the Company and the nation, by affording a well-grounded hope that the peace of India will be secured on a solid and lasting foundation.

OF OFFICIAL AND PUBLIC DOCUMENTS

Α.

Queries in oposed by Lord Mornington to Major Kirkpatrick, with the Answers of the latter, (referred to in the Governor General's letters from the Cape of Good Hope, p 2

Question 1st --- What was the origin of the corps disciplined by European officers now in the service of the Nizam?

Ansier —This corps consisted during the late war in Mysore (or at so recent a period as 1752) of nome; I think, than one battaino, at most, only of two, which had been rused not long before the commencement of that war by its present chief commander, Raymond, a French adventurer, formerly belonging to the corps of Lally Du Bongre's, and some other regular boties of infantry (with felil paces attached) had been formed, an tecedently to this period both by Mhadages, Sciendeali, and Tuckope dunity obvious advintages which the former of these chiefs in put itsular had derived from such an establishment that first suggested to Axim all Omia the expediency of a military institution. Baymond's battailon served during the war, principally, I behere, in conjunction with the detachment of the Company's troops intribated, according to treaty, to the Nizare.

Question 2nd — What has been the sugmentation of that corps? At what periods of time has that sugmentation taken place? To what causes is it to be attributed? And is there any ground for believing that either the formation or sugmentation of that corps proceeded from any hostile disposition towards the Birtish interests?

Assort—I am not acquanted with the terms or the extent of Azhm ul Omra's organial agreement with Raymond, but I doesn it probable that it went to the establishment of more corps than were immediately rissed. Be than set in my, the peace of Semangatam had not been long controlled Be than set in my, the peace of Semangatam had not been long controlled frequently surped han to complete his cops with all possible expedition to forteen battalons, or regiments, of a thousand men each. Such a large augmentation might in some measure appear expedient on account of the great extension of territory obtained by the Court of Hydreshad through that peace but I am duposed to thank that it sprung prancipally from a dense of preparing for intac custed with the Mahattae to long before an dense of preparing for intac custed with the Mahattae to long before an account of the control of the court of the control of the control of the control of the control of the court of the control of younger than his Chief He appears to be a far more enterprising and active man than the latter, and to be particularly fond of the military profession I understand he is an outrageous Jacobin, as some proof of which it may be mentioned that he sent, not long since, to his namesake and countryman, the successor of Du Boigne, in the service of Scindeah, a silver tree and cap of liberty, the acceptance of which, however, is said to have been declined by the latter Perron, at the head of two regiments, was with Azim ul Omia during the latter part of that minister's stay at Poonah, on which occasion he would, of course, not neglect to cultivate his namesake, or to disseminate his own principles as well as he could among the officers belonging to him It happens, however, either that Seindeah's Peiron is lukewaim in his polities, or that having several Biitish subjects in his corps (introduced into it by Du Boigne), one of whom. named Sutherland, commands a brigade of six or seven battalions, he does not yet consider it safe or prudent to countenance any movements of this nature

640 APPI'NDIX

Baptiste, who stands next in rank to, is not a less bitter Jacobin than, Perron, but he is very much his inferior in point of military endowments What he wants, however, as a soldier is made up for by a certain gasconading manner that suits very well the genius of the Court he belongs to, by great activity and cunning, and above all, by a large stock of that unprincinled sort of address, so useful in the management of low intrigue, and the conduct of pecuniary transactions with the classes he has usually to deal with He is also connectly and peculiarly serviceable to Raymond as the main link of his correspondence with Pondicherry, Tranquebar, and Marpilly, and as his agent for enticing French and other deserters, both native and European, and facilitating their escape to Khummum, where, just at our doors, as may be said, this bustling emissary of seduction, and procurator of all material supplies any way connected with, or depending on the Carnatic, has established his head quarters. I consider both Perron and Baptiste as much abler men, that is, more equal to the purposes of mischief or such purposes as the French Government may be supposed to mar hinate against us in the Hyderabad question-than Raymond, and should accordingly he sorry to see his command devolve on either of them

I have nothing to add respecting the characters or dispositions of any of the rest of the officers of this corps to what has already been said generally of the whole,—at least not of sufficient interest or certainty to ment

Question 4th—In what mode is the cops pud and recruited? Of what nation are the snaks composed?—Where is it stationed? What there been its operations? What effects has its existence already produced upon the Brush interests at the Court of Hyderabad or elsewhere? And what dangers are to be apprehended to those interests from its continuance?

Amore — Till the persol of Ann al Omris captusty the coaps had always been paid eithen numethatly from the treawny at Hydershad, o by occasional rankforms, on the teremise collectors, with the exception only of he had previously obtained as a fined for the payment, of a particular drussion band previously obtained as a fined for the payment of a particular drussion that the contract of the particular drussion of the payment of the payment of the particular drussion framework of the particular drussion of the procure on a still better footing the whole Sixrar of Mandace/, a fixed data (i.e., computed to pead about 18 lacks of rupes, and fully adequate.) I behive, to the total charges of his copps, as xxed by agreement as the large payment of the p since heard of his being prepared to follow the example of the Roy Royan in this particular, by granting to Raymond another extensive district, (namely, Khummum-matt), in addition to what he already held

The corps is recruited more or less from all the provinces of the Nizam's dominions, but from none so much as Autumgabad, partly, I believe, from the adjacent Mahiatta districts, and but in too great a measure from the dependencies of the Carnatic, particularly the northern surcors. The matority of the native officers would, more especially, appear to be natives of the latter, and of these a large proportion have been educated in the mi-litary service of the Company I had taken some measures before my denarture from Hyderabad for ascertaining, as well as possible, the names and buth-places of all the men of this coups, but in particular of its native officers, with the view of thereby obtaining some hold, through the medium of their families, on such as might prove to belong to the Company's dominions It may be observed in this place that the pay of the coast sepoy in garrison, or cantonment, is less by a rupee (I believe) than that of Raymond's schoy, whose duty too is easier If it were raised a rupee, the effect would, probably, soon appear both in the decrease of description. and in a greater facility of recruiting than is experienced at present. A proclamation too might be issued, forbidding the natives of our territories, under certain penalties, from entering into the military service of foreign

The station of the corps has varied according to culcumstances. Raymond seems averse (and several reasons for this may be conceived) to its being divided, and its usual head-quarters are in the vicinity of Hyderabad, where he has established a sort of cantonment for it. Its professional services have hitherto been very inconsiderable. I have already planced at those performed by what may be called the root of it, in conjunction with one detachment last wai , and which principally appeared in the siege of Kopul At Khurdlah (in 1795) the corps certainly gathered no laurels , but if it did not acquit itself on that occasion with spirit, the Nizam himself, as well as his Minister displayed still less. The rebellion of Rachore. headed by the late Darah Jah's son, was subdued by our detachment, for two regiments of Raymond employed on that service, under the command of the Mons Salnave, mentioned above, had but little share in the business In the insurrection of the late Jah, it happened fortunately for Raymond, that the Prince duected his flight to a quarter whither he could not be puisued by our troops without the consent of the Mahrattas Raymond by simply following him to Aurung abad, where the Prince submitted without further struggle, acquired the credit of having crushed a formidable con-The military actions of neither party in the course of this short contest, were of the least importance. For the rest, the services of the corns have been much of the nature of those performed elsewhere by Sebundy or Purgunnah troops

The principal effects bitherto produced, or likely hereafte to be produced by this crops upon the Bruist interests, are referable to the cicumstants of its being commanded by men belonging to a nation, and very probably devoted to a Government, which we have abundant reasons to believe have nothing so much at heart as the destruction of our power in India. It cannot, i am persuaded be requisite to enlarge on the dangers liable to proceed from such assure, or to expanish center on the probably or possible consequences of so constant, numark, and une tertuned an interest of the constant of the constan be the case in regaid to Raymond) with any views of a nature hostile to

But shibough the corps was thus directed to be augmented to 14,000 mm, ver Raymond and not been able to complete it to thus established when the Nzam took the field against the Mahnataus I saterngth at the fluir of Klurdish hardly exceeded 11,000 mm, but that he should have been able to mercase it even to this amount within so about a prived as some continuing the contract of the

Sometime after the return of the army to Hyderabad from the unfortunate expedition just alluded to, a nominal reduction of Raymond's corps took place, that is to ay, the acting minister, in a fit either of economy, or of temporary dissatisfaction with its commander, directed the recruiting for it to be discontinued in consequence of which its remains were compressed into 10 battalious or regiments of 1,000 men each

In this state it appears to have continued till the return of Azim ul Omra to Hyderabad, but, according to the latest accounts the minister would seem disposed, if he had not actually agreed, to its being once more angmented to at least its formerly intended establishment of 14,000 men If he should absolutely have adopted the measure, either he has done so on some particular suggestion of Raymond, or with some sinister view of thereby working upon our realousy of that Frenchman's growing power For, if he had really indeed an increase of the regular infantity of the state necessary, his nurrose would have been equally well answered by making the requisite augmentation upon the rival corps of Finglass. This too is the step which he onght rather to have taken consistently with his own snontaneous professions on the subject of Raymond to the assistant at Hyderabad immediately upon his return thither from Poonah, when he affected at least if he did not feel, considerable uneasiness at the conduct and dispositions displayed by that Prenchman in his absence, and no less solicitude to circumscribe within very narrow limits, if not altogether annihilate his power Neither the fact, however, upon which the present reasoning proceeds (that is to say, the actual augmentation of the couns). not the still more important one of the annexation of Kummum-mart* the already enormous territorial assignments held by Raymond is sufficiently established to permit of our building any strong conclusions upon one or the other. It may, nevertheless, be allowable to observe in this place, that there will be but too much ground for fearing, should either or both of the points in question turn out to be true that Azim ul Omra must have been moved to proceedings so offensive (as he well knows) to us, and so much at variance with his own recent declarations, by a notion of the possibility, not to say probability, of the "French nation," acquiring, at no distant period, decided ascendancy in India as well as in Europe There can be no doubt of the unceasing endeavours of the French party at Hyderabad to instil this notion into every one about that Court, and when it is considered that they have from 10,000 to 12,000 tongues. by means of which they can diffuse among a people, prone from the highest to the lowest, to believe the man vellous and striking, then true, false, or exaggerated accounts of the successes and projects of their nation, it will not, perhaps, be wondered at that the efforts of the Residency to expose their misrepresentations, or counteract their views in them, should not always be successful

Question 3d —What is the present strength of the corps, the state of its discipline, and the number of European officers? Of what nation is the majority of those officers composed? And what are the characters and prin-

^{*} Alluded to in the notes

Answer -With respect to its present strength the answer occurs (as far as circumstances enable me to furnish it with accuracy) in the preceding reply, to which it seems only necessary to add that, besides a field train of artillery, consisting of about 30 pieces, and on the whole pretty well appointed, there is attached to the coins a troop of perhaps 60 native dragoons (the embryo of a larger body of regular cavalry which Raymond manifests a desire of raising) With the exception of an European officer to each battalion or regiment (as it is most commonly called) and a soit of second to a few of them, all the other Europeans, to the number I apprehend of about 50, constituted, at one time, a separate corns. They have latterly, however, either been stationed to the artillery, or distributed in the character of serjeants among the several regiments, an alteration that I take to be an important improvement in his system. These men consist of various nations, and among them there are, I am sorry to say, but too many English deserters from the Company's artillery, who have been often, but fruitlessly, reclaimed The parade appearance of the corps is, in general, good, that of Perron's regiment is particularly so In other respects, however, its discipline would not seem to be very strict, which most probably speaks as a powerful inducement with many of the natives of the Company's as well as of the Nizam's country, to prefer the service of Raymond to ours Whatever may be the cause, it is too ortain a fact. I fear, that this Frenchman has greater facility in recruiting than our Carnatic officers experience

I believe the number of the officers, properly so called, do not at present, or did not lately, exceed 12, and that the whole of these are Frenchmen. with the exception, perhaps, of one or more acobinized Germans. He had formerly a Hanovenan of some professional ment in his corps, who had been an ensign in His Majesty's service. This man, however, was soon dismissed, and afterwards assassinated by a furious Demonah, in the employ of the Chief of the Pungahs He had also with him at one time a French gentleman who had been an officer in the regiment at Pondicheriv. but openly professing his attachment to rovalty, he likewise speedily lost his situation, and was finally obliged to quit the country. The best disposed man in the corps is, or was some time since, one Salnave, commandant of a regiment, and supposed to be secretly averse to the demo-cratic party With the exception of Perion, Baptiste, and pulhaps one or two more favourites, the officers were represented to be dissatisfied with Raymond on account of his haidness and want of liberality in pecuniary mutters But as they would nearly all appear to be of the jacobinical stamp, and have no prospect of bettering themselves elsewhere, this circumstance alone will hardly induce any of them to leave hun, especially as he has contrived to make it very difficult for them to do so without his consent Besides, he possesses a resource (such as it is), for replacing any he may lose by desertion of otherwise in his rank of semeants, most of whom are just as likely to be qualified for the commands of corps as the majority of

Raymond lunself would not appear to be a man of ugo ous mind, or, in any respect, of a very decided intensiter. He has mere shown lunself to be much of a soldier, but he is a stid, seems to have an arranging head in sufficiently conclusing in his manner towards those be his to deal with. He is an undoubted republicam in punciple, but I don't know that he is a violent once. I should atther suppose from the general mould of his character, that he was not. I take him to be about forty-five years of those at present holding them

Person, who is his second, is a native of Alsace, and several years

640 APPUNDIX

vounger than his Chief He appears to be a far more enterprising and active man than the latter, and to be particularly fond of the military profession I understand he is an outrageous Jacobin, as some proof of which it may be mentioned that he sent, not long since, to his namesake and countryman, the successor of Du Boigne, in the service of Scindeah, a silver tree and cap of liberty, the acceptance of which, however, is said to have been declined by the latter Peiron, at the head of two regiments, was with Azim ul Omra during the latter part of that minister's stay at Poonah, on which occasion he would, of course, not neglect to cultivate his namesake, or to disseminate his own principles as well as he could among the officers belonging to him It happens, however, either that Sendeah's Perron is lukewarm in his politics, or that having several Bittish subjects in his corps (introduced into it by Du Boigne), one of whom, named Sutherland, commands a brigade of six or seven battalions . he does not yet consider it safe or prudent to countenance any movements of this nature

Baptiste, who stands next in rank to, is not a less bitter Jacobin than. Perron , but he is very much his inferior in point of military endowments What he wants, however, as a soldier is made up for by a certain gasconading manner that suits very well the genius of the Court he belongs to, by great activity and cunning, and above all, by a large stock of that unprincipled sort of addresss so useful in the management of low intrigue, and the conduct of pecuniary transactions with the classes he has usually to deal with He is also emmently and peculiarly serviceable to Raymond as the main link of his correspondence with Pondicherry, Tranquebar, and Marpilly, and as his agent for entiting French and other deserters, both native and European, and facilitating their escape to Khummum, where, just at our doors, as may be said, this bustling emissary of seduction, and procurator of all material supplies any way connected with, or depending on the Cornetic, has established his head quarters. I consider both Perron and Baptiste as much abler men, that is, more equal to the purposes of mischief or such purposes as the French Government may be supposed to machinate against us in the Hyderabad question-than Raymond, and should accordingly he sorry to see his command devolve on either of them

I have nothing to add respecting the characters or dispositions of any of the rest of the officers of this corps to what has already been said generally of the whole,—at least not of sufficient interest or certainty to merit attention

Question 4th —In what mode is the cops paid and recruited? Of what nation are the lanks composed?—Where is it stationed? What have been its operations? What effects has its existence already produced upon the British interests at the Court of Hydeiabad or elsewhere? And what dangers are to be apprehended to those interests from its continuance?

Assers — Tull the period of Azim al Omra's captuity the corps had always been paid estime immediately from the treasury of Hyderabad, or by occasional rankhares, on the revenue collections, with the exception only of the pair periodic processor of the particular division of a particular division of the particular division had previously obtained as a fund for the payment of a particular division that processity obtained as a fund for the payment of a particular division for the following the deministration, however, of the Roy Royan, he contrived to procure on a still better footing the whole Sincer of Mandach, a fertile district, computed to predd about 18 lacks of rupes, and fully adequate, 1 behave, to the total charges of his corps, as fixed by agreement. This way among the financial rangements of the Roy Royan in the absence as placing the corps us higher and more than the particular districtions and the sure, as placing the corps us higher and more than the contribution of the particular distriction of the payment the sure, as placing the corps us higher and more than the payment than the order to be mis own polery to assign to it. We have nevertheless since heard of his being prepared to follow the example of the Roy Royau in this particular, by granting to Raymond another extensive district, (namely, Khummum-mailt), in addition to what he already held

The corps is recruited more or less from all the provinces of the Nizam's dominions, but from none so much as Aurungabad, partly, I believe, from the adjacent Mahiatta districts, and but in too great a measure from the dependencies of the Carnata, particularly the northern sirears The majority of the native officers would, more especially, appear to be natives of the latter, and of these a large proportion have been educated in the mi-litary service of the Company I had taken some measures before my departure from Hyderabad for ascertaining, as well as possible, the names and buth-places of all the men of this corps, but in particular of its native officers, with the view of thereby obtaining some hold, through the medium of their families, on such as might prove to belong to the Company's dominions It may be observed in this place that the pay of the coast sepoy in garrison, or cantonment, is less by a rupee (I believe) than that of Raymond's sepoy, whose duty too is easier If it were raised a rupee, the effect would, probably, soon appear both in the decrease of descrition, and in a greater facility of recruiting than is experienced at present proclamation too might be issued, forbidding the natives of our territories, under certain penalties, from entering into the military service of foreign

The station of the corps has varied according to circumstances, Raymond seems averse (and several reasons for this may be conceived) to its being divided, and its usual head quarters are in the vicinity of Hyderabad, where he has established a sort of cantonment for it. Its professional services have hitherto been very inconsiderable. I have already glanced at those performed by what may be called the root of it, in conjunction with one detachment last war, and which principally appeared in the siege of Kopul At Khurdlah (in 1795) the corps certainly gathered no laurels . but if it did not acquit itself on that occasion with spirit, the Nizam himself, as well as his Minister displayed still less. The rebellion of Rachore, headed by the late Darah Jah's son, was subdued by our detachment, for two regiments of Raymond employed on that service, under the command of the Mons Salnave, mentioned above, had but little share in the business In the insurrection of the late Jah, it happened fortunately for Raymond, that the Prince directed his flight to a quarter whither he could not be pursued by our troops without the consent of the Mahrattas Raymond by simply following him to Aurung abad, where the Prince submitted without further struggle, acquired the credit of having crushed a formidable conspiracy The military actions of neither party in the course of this short contest, were of the least importance. For the rest, the services of the coins have been much of the nature of those performed elsewhere by Sebundy or Purgumnah troops

The principal effects butherto produced, or lakely hereafter to be produced by this corps upon the Bruitan interests, are referable to the circumstance of its being commanded by men belonging to a nation, and very probably devoted to a Government, which we have abundant reasons to believe have nothing so much at heart as the destruction of our power in Infinial It cannot, I am persuaded be requisite to chairge on the dedagers label to proceed from such assures, or to expanise either on the probably or passible consequences of so constant, minusely above to the probable or possible consequences of so constant, minusely above to the probable of passible consequences of so constant, minusely above to the probable of passible consequences of so constant, minusely above to the probable of the trees of supposed safety, of low purdence, of personal case, and of immediate and surface. It is plant that so close and nutual a relation between the Nixan and the notorous rivals of the English, is but too well caked, in the present conjunctive, to exited doubt in many of the smelty of he Highnesi's friendship for us, and to encourage a notion of the probability of the Presch legaming then former scendiacy at Hydershad Nor is the natural tendency of such a persuasion to promote the purposes and and the operations of Raymond, by gaining hum many useful instruments and adherents, so little obvious as to need being further imsisted on

G12 APPENDIX

There is, however, one particular danger connected with the point immediately under discussion, of such an aspect as to challenge the most serious consideration What I allude to is the predicament we should be placed in, supposing a war with Tippoo to break out, by the unquestionably hostile dispositions of Raymond and his officers in general, seconded by the enterprising spirit of some individuals among them, which might in such a case, become more or less transfused into the Communder himself. It is manifest that though this corps constitutes the chief-nay, almost the sole stiength of the Nizam's aimy, we should, notwithstanding, be unable to employ it against the common enemy, except at a 11sk, to which its total inactivity would be far preferable But it is likewise obvious that we should not be altogether safe in leaving it behind us, since upon any sinister accident to our arms, or in the possible (happily no longer probable) event of a French irmament appearing at such a crisis in India, the temptation to Raymond and his officers, openly to attempt something against us, might become very powerful If time permitted, yet it would not perhaps be necessary to pursue this consideration further, the bare mention of the matter seeming sufficient to suggest the whole train of its consequences Whether the evil admits of any eligible semedy, short of the radical one of entirely annihilating the corps in question, is a point on which different opinions may be entertained My own, however, is, that under the existing cucumstances with respect to us and France-circumstances, too, to the continuance of which no period can be assigned—it does not Another prejudicial effect of this corps upon our interests, and which, though not of the same political importance as the one just noticed is, nevertheless, of sufficient magnitude to claim attention, has already been touched on, and consists in the inducements it holds out to our European and native soldiery on the coast, and in general to those classes of the inhabitants inclined to a military life, to join its standard , giving birth by this means, to numerous desertions from the Company's army, and rendering it extremely difficult to raise recruits for supplying even the ordinary casualities of the service This is a mischief that, no doubt, might be corrected in a macerial degree, as far as regarded Europeans particularly, by suitable arrangements of precaution and vigi-lance, while, with respect to the natives, some augmentation of the Sepoy's pay, followed by such a proclamation as before suggested, would be found a still more effectual remedy The evil, however, can never, perhaps, be completely removed while we have such a neighbour as Raymond

Additional Questions—to be inserted (with their answers) in the proper places among the original ones

Question 5th — Have you any reason for beheving that Raymond is in correspondence with the French Government in Europe, or that of the Isle of France—or with Tippoo Sultaua?

Answer -I have no very substantial proof of his being in correspondence either with the Government of France, or with that of the Mauritum, though what spite to this effect have reached me from his examp. The strongest circum-stance I know of, indicating such an intercourse, in his harm, fired a sinkle about two years ago on concasion, as wast altest given out in his party, and reported to me by one of them, of his having iccounty received the commission and uniform of a general othere from the Franch Government in Burope. Considering, indeed, the great activity of that can be also the present and the

The proofs of the existence of a cottespondence between Raymond and Tippo Sultanu will, perlips, be deemed les vagne, when one of these is stated to be the discovery, a few months ago, by the Assistant at Hyden shad, of a secret intercourse between him and the vakele of the latter (Aledina Saheh) residing at the Nizam's Court. It was conducted through the medium of a third person who, it is remarkable, disappeared immediately after his name had been confidentially communicated to Azim ul Omiah by Contanu Kirlostrick.

It is also a fact sufficiently well established, that the last secret agent deputed by Tippoo to Hyderabad, (namely, Kadr Husam Khan) had charge of some letters for Raymond, but whether they were from the Sultaun himself or only from Vigee's (formerly Lally's) corps in the service of

Tippoo, I had not the means of ascertuming

Question 6th—Does Raymond occupy any fortified posts either on the Company's frontier, or elsewhere? and if he does, what is their strength and guirlsons, and what are the advantages he derives, or disadvantages we suffer, from his possession of them?

Answer —He occupies two or three small forts in the district of Maduch, of which, as has been already mentioned, he is in some soit the renter. They are, however, of but little importance in a military view, and are in a quarter remote from the Carnatic

The only post he holds in our neighbourhood is Khamazan, where Derive Gotherwise Teikhard) has commanded for several green, and where a regiment of the copie has usually been statumed. The featherstone are regiment of the copie has usually been statumed. The featherstone are not, believe, considerable, but they have been improved, I anderstand, by Baptate. If serves Raymond as a magrame, the store he from time to me procurs, from the Camazan, and the store he from the conveniently statuted for commancanton with Narphily (formedly a Flench post in the Gunton) where Raymond has a store-house, Gustenship's belonging to the Nizam) in charge of a Frenchman of the name of DEmpieur This is also the point whence Baptate's emissance issue for the purpose of invegling deserters, and procuring recursts from the adjacent districts of minimum of the processing the state of the purpose of invegling deserters, and procuring recursts from the adjacent districts of minimum of the processing the state of the purpose of invegling deserters, and procuring recursts from the adjacent districts of minimum of the processing to and from thence, all the French fugities, and many recruits obtained in the same quarter, pursum the 10 to the Ykn pola and Khamama.

It is presumed that this hasty sketch of the advantages which Raymond derives from the possession of this post, will sufficiently show the detriment it is of, and may be to us

Question 7th—What measures have been suggested for the purpose of inducing the Nizam to disband this corps, and what have been the objections to the adoption of any ineusures suggested for that purpose?

Answer —I suggested some time in 1796, in a private correspondence with the Governor-General and Lord Hobart, under sufficient encouragement to that end received from the Nizam, through the medium of Meer

Allum, the expediency of introducing some select British subjects into his Highness's employ, for the purpose of raising and disciplining for his services such a body of troops as would, in the first instance, have served as a counterpoise to the corps of Raymond, and, perhaps, ultimately have led, by gradual reforms, to its complete reduction At the same time that I started this idea. I fully admitted the mischievous tendency, in an absolute view, of the general measure, offering it simply in correction of an evil that already reached to an enormous height, that bore, for obvious reasons, a particularly threatening aspect at Hyderabad that called for a speedy remedy in that, more pressing than in any other quarter, and that did not admit, as well as I could judge, either of a prompter or more certain one than that which I, or rather Meer Allum, (not to say the Nizam himself) had recommended The Governor-General seemed to be sensible of the necessity of the experiment, and even to have fixed, at one time, upon a person every way qualified. I believe, for conducting it to a favourable issue In the meanwhile, however, Lord Hobart declared himself to be decidedly averse to the measure, insomuch, that I thought it would be no longer easy or nrudent to pursue it Here then it diopped for the present

I cannot call to mind, at this time, the pattends arguments publicly proposed by Lord Hobart to the measure, but, I necellect that I myself timushed him with the objection that had all along appeared to me (though with him it was only of secondary consistention) to but the most forcible of the whole, and that was the offence it may hi possibly gave to the Mohrattan Vet, metter was this an insupersible obstacle, since the crumistante control of the cont

on the occasion

But though I cannot detail Lord Hobatt's reasoning on the subject, I have not forgotize, that it comprehended all the topics obviously, adverse to such a question considered absolutely, and that though he did not, in my adquinct, demonstrate the mergediency of the thing, as an anuitated truth no person indeed could be better satisfied than I myself had always leen

The Governor-General continuing to deem it extremely desirable to oppose the best check that circumstances might admit of to the growing power of Raymond, (which, indeed, daily became more and more alarming) thought proper to authorise the resident at Poonah to promote, but with due precaution, the introduction into Azim ul Omra's (or rather the Nizam's) service, of certain Europeans at that place, who appeared disposed to engage in it, and to be of a description likely to answer as some sort of counterpoise to that Frenchman The con-equence was, that an American named Boyd, and a British subject of the name of linglass, were entertained by the Minister, the former bringing with him a ready-formed and experienced corps of about 1500 men, but the latter only a small body, which it was settled should be (as it since, I believe, has been) considerably augmented Mutual disgust, however, soon arising between Mr Boyd and the Court of Hyderabad, he quitted the service Mr Finglass proving more tractable, appears to be rising in favour with the Ministry am not qualified to speak from my own knowledge of this man , but Mr Uthoff, the assistant at Poonah, has reported favourably of his character He was formerly, I think, quarter-master of his Majesty's 19th regiment of dragoons

It may not be ammss to mention in this place, that on occasion of an alarm somewhat hastily taken, in August last, by our detachment at Hyderahad, in consequence of a report of Raymond's designing to attack their camp

both Mr Boyd and Mr Finglass, on being apprised of the circumstance. instantly prepared their corps, and signified their determination, in the supposed event, of supporting the Company's troops

I shall close this head with remarking, that if a fair trial of the project suggested (as above related) in 1795, had been made, I think there is a considerable probability that Raymond's would by this time, either have ceased to exist, or, at least, to be an object of the reasonable solicitude which it excites at present

Question 8th -What measures now appear to you to be the best adapted to the object of inducing the Nizam to dishand this corps?

Answer -The pressing importance to the British interests in India, of effecting (and with as little further delay, too, as possible) the subversion of this party, though a point only meidentally considered in the preceding pages, and by no means any where uiged with the force of which it is susceptible, may be presumed (as it is, indeed, by the question supposed) to be fully established It only remains then to enquire how this desirable object may be best attained

The most attentive examination I have been able to bestow on the subsect, has suggested to me nothing better than the four following modes of

1 -By introducing, with every possible previous attention to their characters and principles, British subjects (or other Europeans, being the subjects of friendly powers) into the service of his Highness, with a view in the first instance, to balancing the French corps, and of ultimately, completely suppressing it

2 - By pointedly and finally demanding the dismission of the corps, and signifying the determination of our Government to withdraw itself, in case of refusal, from its existing engagements with his Highness

3 -By holding out suitable inducements to the European and principal native officers, as well as to the European sergeants of the corps to quit it, and retire into the Company's dominions a measure which, if tolerably successful, would necessarily either bring about the entire dissolution of it. or at least, reduce it to a state of comparative insignificance

4 -By meeting the wishes so often expressed by the Nizam's Government, for a closer connexion with the Company, and for such an augmentation of the detachment of our troops already allowed his Highness by treaty, as should in some measure preclude the necessity of retaining Raymond's corps

I shall consider each of these expedients in order

1st -Regarding the first of them, however, little remains to be said. the subject being nearly exhausted in the reply to query the 7th -It would. no doubt, under present cucumstances, although a foundation for it is already laid by the establishment of Finglass's corps, be of slow operation -Besides the inclination of Azim'ul Omia to countenance the measure faither, is at least uncertain. He may possibly imagine that by manifesting a backwardness in this respect, we may be the more readily induced to do what he would like still better-that is, augment our detachment and take off some of the restrictions under which it has hitherto acted It may be added, that the Government at home, having thought proper to discourage the measure immediately under consideration, (though on what grounds is not known to me) it is the less necessary to enlarge on it at present

With the exception of the Peishcush, which, perhaps, no circuinstance short of an open rupture with the Nizam, would warrant our withholding, there seems nothing in the measure suggested in this article that might not be vindicated both to the world at large and to the other membei of the triple alliance (or the Mahratta state), by a variety of forcible arguments deducable from the absolute ampossibility of our ever acting together, under any critical state of things, with the confidence and concord necessary to the success of our joint operations, or even with entire safety to ourselves, composed as his Highness's principal military force virtually is, and swaved as his councils are, or may be, by the inveterate enemies of out nation But however defensible, or reconcileable with the spirit of treatics, such a step might be, I very much doubt whether it would at any time, and especially in the present conjuncture, produce the desired effect The proud spart of this court (still proud under its recent humiliations), would revolt at such a capitulation, and, most probably, bazard much rather than subscribe to it It would talk, as it has already done, more than once, on occasion of some temperate and distant expostulations on the same head, of its independence, of its right to employ and favour whom it pleases, of its reliance on the fidelity and attachment of its French servants, and of the unreasonablenes of our entertaining any distrust of men entuely at the devotion, and the mere creatures, of a friendly power, havmg no interests but what are inseparable from ours. But these arguments, plansible as they are, do not con titute the sole, or perhaps principal difficulty in the present case One of the consequences of Raymond's corps (and besides Raymond's corps there is another consisting of from twelve to afteen hundred senovs, commanded also by Frenchmen, attached to the Rissalah of Umjid ud Dowlah)*, has been a material reduction of every lously than artfully, perhaps,) to acquire

It may be thought that the abominable tendency of French principles (in whatever view considered,) and the evil consequences which have resulted to almost every power that that nation has drawn into its alliance, if properly exposed and illustrated, ought to have the effect of exciting, at the different courts of India such a detestation of the one, and dread of the other, as to render any connexion between them next to impossible though these are topics which have not been neglected, and though they doubtlessly seem well calculated to produce the sort of impressions to be wished for, yet it would be wrong to place any great reliance in considerations which unfortunately have not always had the weight they were entitled to with European powers better qualified, in general, to appreciate their force (as being more conversant in systematic and prospective politics.) more immediately hable to suffer from a coalition with the new republic, and, finally, more interested to oppose its aggrandizement, than any of the princes or states of India can be It is true, that a French connexion would be dangerous even to Tippoo Sultaun, but remote and speculaive danger is often overlooked in favour of immediate, and, perhaps, only apparent, benefit With regard to the court of Hyderabad in particulat, I may venture to say, that its political views hardly ever embrace a very distant period, or any combinations having the permanent advantage of the state for their object

^{*} The principal Pungah Chief

I have dwelt the longer on the consideration of the expedient suggested in the persent state (from the subject of which, however, the whole of the preceding passgraph must be owned to be a digression,) because I apprehen their may be some persons capable of misaging our political positions of the property of the form and only as to enable us to easy a point of this kinds with ittle on oddifficulty. No doubt we were placed by that event, or rather by the political segments and ministry skill which conduced to it, on higher and more the postable grounds than who had were before occupied in India, but we shall, nevertheless, do well always to bear in mond, that it is an expert emmended to the property of the property of the property of moderations on much contributed to on graning.

Before we dismiss the consideration of the measure suggested in this attice, it may be proper to notice a modification of which it may be thought sunceptible, and which presents itself in a limitation of its operation to the Ken opens part of the cope, and on offer of replaning this numediation of the Struggest of the cope, and on offer of replaning this numediating but that of the cope of the cope, and on offer of replaning this numediating the state of its prancial military force, would by that of depuring the state of its prancial military force, would by the means be got if dof, yet it would, at the same time, become lable to much of the objection Jurg against the first expecter, from which it would not then materially differ in the chief feature

Srd I shall confine myself to observing with regard to the surgestion contained in this anticle, that although I have hitde doubt of the general (cheave) of the measure, yet its adoption would not seem to be warrantable to prudent in any order cases than those of an absorber unyture with the Nizam, or of some strong and open act of lossibly on the part of Haymand Immed? Such cases, bare, in some degrees, been secretly provided too, but meet? Such cases, bare, in some degrees, been secretly provided too, but permutally done or might some single the secretary to follow the something the necessary to follow dus something like a neumonary provision, if not even to the single provision of in the even of the single provision of in the even of the single provision.

employment

4th It has long been a favourite object with the court of Hyderabad to make the defensive engagements, subsisting between it and the Company, general instead of particular , or, in other words, that we should guarantee its possessions against the Mahrattas, as well as Tippoo Sultaun It has also long sought to prevail on us to relax from the strictness of that article of the agreement of 1789 with Lord Cornwalls, conformably to which we have always, not only restrained our detachment from acting against certain nolvears, tubutary to the Mahiattas as well as to the Nizam, but also carefully prevented it from passing the Mahiatta boundaries whenever this has appeared necessary (as owing to the mingled nature of their respective dominions, has sometimes happened,) in order to reaching the point where its services were required Such, for instance, was its situation towards the close of the rebellion of Ali Jah, whom it was obliged to decline pursums to Aurungabad, because this could not be done without its occasionally entering the Mahiatta territory, and because the court of Hyderabad either would not apply for, or could not obtain, the consent of the Poonah Government for that purpose By complying with the wishes of the Nizam's Ministers in these re-

By complying with the wishes of the Wakam's ministers in these respects, and digreeing to such an augmentation of the detuchment at present employed with his Highness, as might be judged necessary, there is little doubt but we should obtain our object with regular to Raymond to whatever extent we pleased to say nothing of other advantages that we might eithe expressly and previously stephiside for, or subsequently derive from the accordancy which we should in this case, acquire at the court of Hyderabrd

Perhaps even something short of these compliances might procure us

G18 APPENDIX

our man object. But as perfect confidence is not likely to subsist for any long time tegether between the curts of Hydreabad and Poonalis, and as apprehassons of future curroachments by the latter will ever contained to the contract of th

There is, probably, one point at least that Azim all Omra would consider as an indispensable condition in such an arrangement as we are now contemplating, though to were even to wave insisting on a general defensive aliance against the blairatia, and that is a possive engagement to support the succession as it might be settled by the nonimation of the Nizam (or, in engagement single hope in the pole is in opposition to the Mahratias, who, upon the Nizam's death, might be disposed to fivour some other Preder to the Mussud, and, presisting to maintain his cause, make it extended difficult, if not impossible, for us to avoid a wai with them. Here is an impediament that deserves to be well considered, and weighted agonat the advantages of the measure immediately in question.

In regard to the restrictions under which our detach

In regard to the restrictions under which our detachment has hitherto served, I am of opinion that without their being removed, no body of troops that we might supply to replace Raymond's corps would compensate, to the Nizam for its loss, since while they continue, they must operate, as hitherto, to deprive him of its services in cases, perhaps, of the first importance in his estimation Besides, though these restrictions were properly enough established by us, yet they are considered, and not entirely without leason, as great hardships by the court of Hyderabad, between which and the Government of Poonah there subsists a sort of tacit convention, whereby the forces of his Highness have not only occasionally passed through the other's territories, but even acted against the Polygar's tributary to both states (as those of Shorepoor and Gudwaul,) without any visible objection on the part of the Mahrattas We certainly could not now relax from the rigidness of our practice in these particulars without giving offence, and furmshing a just ground of complaint, to the Government of Poonah, but, on the other hand the peculiar nature of the case would appear to warrent a hope that the difficulty might be surmounted by means of a suitable representation to the court of Poonah, made in concert with that of Hyderabad

But however practicable it should be to obtain the acquiseence of the Maharatas in these points, or with whateven indifference they might view even our determination to interfere in the settlement of the succession to the Missaud of Hydershad, it can exceed by de obtained that such an extension of our determinent serving with this may have spoken of, would excite in them considerable yellows and alaim. The consequences to which dought they are not, perhaps, incoming the most of the consequences to which dought they are not, perhaps, incominable, yet in unsetting the deadwardings of the proceeding under discussion, it may be against the deadwardings of the proceeding under discussion, it may be a pright (and will, at least, be the safest way,) to take these last in the extreme. And there it is proper! I should acknowledge my own moompetency, and the support means of the Readmory at Poonsh to appreciate, with due exactness and greater certainty, the extent of the effects capable of being, or likely to be, produced on the Mahiatta Government by the different measures in question That Residency also will be best able to ascertain how far, and to suggest 10 what manner, it may be possible to reconcile it to those measures On this last head I shall, for my own part, only venture to hint, that perhaps an offer to admit it to a participation of any advantages granted to the court of Hyderabad, might conduce to remove its objections to the arrangement, and that though the Mahrattas are not likely ever to stand in need either of our troops, or our guarantee against the Nizam, yet they might not be unwilling to accede to the projected Treaty with his Highness, on condition of our agreeing to a defensive alliance with them against Zemaun Shah and the Seiks, which it may sooner or later be advisable for us to do with other views besides that of propitiating them in regard to the objects of the present enquiry

In conclusion, and on an attentive review of all that has been advanced,

I have no hesitation in declaring it to be my opinion that of the four different modes which have been suggested for an iving at our object with regard to the corps of Raymond, the one calculated to accomplish it with the most promptitude and efficacy, and the least hable to failure, is the fourth or last It must at the same time be confessed, that owing partly to a certain unaccommodating and illiberal spirit in the Government, and partly to the generally disordered state of its finances, our present detachment suffers inconveniences on the score sometimes of pay and at others of provisions, that would, as well as the unpleasant expostulations and discusaions to which they occasionally give lise, he but too likely to increase with any considerable augmentation of its numbers. The most effectual way of preventing these difficulties under a new airangement would probably be by procuring the assignment of one or more districts known to be adequate in point of levenue to the discharge of the subsidy, and, in their other resources, to supplying the remaining wants of the troops Kur pah alone, if not entuely, would yet, in a great measure, particularly well answer these purposes, at the same time that our possession of it would, on account of its local position with regard to the north-eastern parts of Tippoo Sultaun's dominions, add considerably to the security of the Carnatic, and especially of the Sirears Whether the realousy and discontent which that Prince would no doubt conceive at our gaining even a footing of so limited a nature in Kunpah ought to make us wave so great an advantage, is a point for the consideration of others

It would likewise, in the event of such a connection between us and the Court of Hyderabad as the one in contemplation, particularly behave us to be on our guard against the arts which the latter might be but too apt to practise for the purpose of provoking an attack from the Mahrattas, and with the secret view of prosecuting in that case, by our means, some prosect of sesentment or aggrandisement

The only remaining precaution that occurs to me as particularly necessary to be taken in case of a material augmentation of our troops at Hyderabad, respects the selection of not only their commander, but of all the principal officers, in whom it would be desirable, for obvious reasons, that temperate and concellatory manners, a just solicitude for the maintenance of the national character, together with a competent knowledge of the customs and language of the country, should be joined to the qualifications more properly professional

Notes to the Answers.

Page 6:39 Pungah, in its more restrained sense, signifies cavalry mounted on horses, the property of the Sircar, and is equivalent to what we call the stablehorse of Tappoo Sultaun At the Court of Hyderabad, however, it has come to be applied more generally, being used there to denote what may otherwise be called the household or body guards, comprehending foot as well as house, and the commanders of which have been commonly distinguished by the appellation of Pungah Salah Sudars By the Pungah party is meant that political division among the Omray of this state, headed by the chiefs of the Paugah It was established by the late Shums ul Omra, principal commander of these troops, and sometimes called commander in chief of the Nizam's army. He had a great jealousy of the influence of Azim ul Omra, whom he was much in the habit of opposing during his life time He died at Panngul early in the late war with Tippoo Sultaun, leaving an infant son on whom the Nizam conferred the title of his father (or Shums ul Omra), as well as the principal command of the Pungah But though this youth is, in consequence, strictly speaking, the chief of the Pungul, yet his maternal uncle and guardian, Umjid ud Dowlah, has hitherto been more usually considered as such. Next in rank of this party to Umjid ud Dowlah is Ghasimees, who is likewise a kinsman of Shums ul Omra The most efficient member of it however, till lately, was supposed to be Mahommed Azeen Khan, who aspired, as it was thought, to the station of minister but who is at present a state prisoner in the fort of Golconda. This party continued its opposition to Azim ul Omia, after the death of the cider Shums ul Omra, and in fact were, in conjunction with Govind Kishen, the Mahiatta Vakeel at the Nizam's Court, the framers of the treaty of Khurdlah, which led to, if it did not actually stipulate by a secret article, the surrender of the minister's person But the victory of the Pungah party in this instance was of short duration, for the Nizam had scarcely got back to Hyderahad when he discovered, or was made to believe, that his honour and interests had been basely sacrificed on that occasion. In consequence, the active members of the party soon fell into disgrace, but as Umjid ud Dowlah either was not considered as falling under this description, or was thought to have atoned for his past errors by his early separation from his colleagues, he escaped their punishment. The credit of the party has since been rapidly on the decline, insomuch that it may be doubted whether it is any longer an object of solicitude to Azım ul Omra, though heretofore very much his dread

Page 830. That we must depend principally if not solely on our own anangement for interrepting deserters, & from the Carnatic, will appear from the airs sever once given to the resident upon his complianing to the Nizam's ministers, that his highness's, dimutal and other offices did not drive ever themselves to prevent such persons from entering into a proceeding through their respective distances of the contract of the persons from entering into a proceeding through the respective distances of the contract of the contract of the contract prevent deserters, from passing the contract prevent deserters and the contract prevent deserters are contracted by the contracted ĸ,

APPENDIX B

Extract of a Letter from Jacob Bosanquet, Esq., Chawman of the Court of Directors, the Homonable Jonathan Duncun, Governor of Bombay, dated East India House, 1st June, 1798

France is now fitting out a considerable fleet in the Mediterranean, the destination of which is unknown, amongst other objects, the conquest of Egypt has been mentioned, and though I do not think it very nichable. either that the attempt will be made, or that it could succeed if it was. I think it is impossible for us to be too much upon our guard, as we know India to be one of the great objects to which the French at present are directing their attention By every thing that I can collect, it appears that both the conquest of Egypt, and the conveyance of a force down the Red Sea, might be carried into execution by France under certain circumstances, and therefore what is not impossible, ought always to be looked to with a certain degree of caution by prudent men. All I mepose by this letter is to call your attention to the subject, and to recommend you to neglect none of those precautions that you may think may reasonably be employed to frustrate any attempt of the French, either to pass a body of men to India surreptitiously, or by the more open mode of really taking possession of any part of Egypt

A true Extract Jonathan Duncan.

APPENDIX C

An Abstract of the present State of Trippoo Sultana By Capiana (subsequently Sn John) Mulcolm

In drawing up the Abstract I have neither time nor information to take a wide range, I shall therefore confine myself to a few principal points

The nature of the intelligence on which the knowledge of the Sultaun's designs and at Lors a founded must creat diffidence in any person who relates them. I have made it is rule to assume no fact that is not immutely corroborated by two or more persons who were employed for the same purpose of obtaining intelligence, but who, from circumstances must have been considered in the control of each other holy management both with the persons, and ecceptation of each other holy management both with the persons and ecceptation of each other holy management when the persons and ecceptation of each other holy management and the persons and ecceptation of each other holy management and the persons and ecceptation of each other holy and the persons are personally as the person of the per

I mean to arrange this abstract under three general heads

1st The military force, which will include the fixed establishment. Their present strength, mode of payment, state of discipline, principal military officers, then characters, then estimation with Tippoo, garrisons, and their present state.

2nd The revenue department State of his treasury, alterations of his mode of management, principal revenue officers, their characters and estimation

31d Late occurrences, present stations of troops, policy of the Sultaun, and reflections lst Military Force 'The hxed establishment of the Sultaum's standing aimy is as follows —Three Kutchernes of regular cavalry called Askars, each to consist of four Mokums, of 1000 horsemen each, amounting to 12,000 Three Kutcherries of irregular cavalry, called Suars, Sillahdars. indifferently each Kutcherrie to consist of four Rissallas, of 1,000 men each. 12,000 Three Kutcherries of regular infantity, called Jiesh , each Kutcherrie consists of four Cushoons, of 4,000 firelocks and eight field pieces. two battering guns, and two camel load of Rockets attached, men 48,000. field pieces 128, and battering guns 32 One Kutcherine of Slaves, to consist of two Cushoons, called Asudullah and Ahmedu, who are considered as the guards of the Sultann, and generally do fort duty, 8,000 men, sixteen field pieces, and four battering guns One Kutcherrie of pikemen, called Jelloo, that attend always the Sultaun's person, 2,000 One Kutcherrie of pioniers, 8,000 A Kutcherrie of Carnatic peons, called Sooder, who are employed in collecting the revenues, and as garrisons to small forts. 8.000

Abstract of Established Force.

	Regular Cavalry	Irregular Cavalry	Infantry	Slaves or Guards	Pikemen	Peons	Pioneers	Field	Batterng Guns
Total	2,000	1,200	48,000	8,000	2,000	8,000	8,000	144	36

About 500 have been lately entertained and though admitted on the strength, have not yet joined this corps, as both men and horses are yet training, 300 of the horses were brought from Poonah, and 200 by ships to Mangalore

N B There are beades these many local corps of peons that are not included

N B Though no corps of Golendanzes, or gunners, are stated in the above, they are supposed attached as well as gun lascars N B Independent of the house abovementioned, there are about 800

Beyd or Looties, who follow the army, and whose occupation is plunder The establishment has never been completed, its present strength, from the best information I have may be reckoned as follows -Regular horse,

6,000, Irregular house, 7,000, Regular infantry, 30,000 Guards, viz Ahmasy and Assadulah, 4,000, pikemen, 1,500, pionceis, 6,000, Carnatic peons, 8,000

Abstract of real Strength

	Regular Horsa	Irregular Horse	Regular Infantry	Guards, &c	Pikemen	Carnatic Peons	Pioneers
Total	6,000	7,000	30,000	4,000	15,000	8,000	6,000

N B I have not yet included battering guns, field pieces, or rockets. imagining he has at all times as many of these as he can transport, and also as many elephants, camels, and draught and carriage cattle as he ever can require, he has with his army 100 mules, which are reported to be for his guns

ADDENDIV

Tinnoo's European or French Force, as it is called, consists as follows -

	Officers	Private Europeans	Half-Cast and Caffries
Lally's Party Lately arrived from the Mauritius	4 6	40 50	350 100
Total	10	90	450

Pay and the Mode of Payment

The mode of payment of the army differs as much as the troops do of which it is composed

The Askars or stable horse receive a monthly net* pay of twelve rupees The horses are the property of the Cucar, at whose expense the men are clothed and aimed

The horses of the megulan cavalry belong either to the Commander or the horsemen and the Circar pay a legular monthlysum for each, 40 rps a Hindoo horseman, and 45 to a Mahomedan — If a horse belonging to the irregular cavalry is killed on source, the Circar to pay a stated price, and half of all plunder is considered as the Circar right.

The Sultaun has lately ordered that the Jimmidais of the irregular hoise should have lands (Jaulads) assigned them for payment in heu of jecuring cash from the Treasury

The regular infantry are divided into three classes, which receive a net pay as follows —1st+ class, 10 rupees per month, 2nd ditto 84 ditto, 3rd ditto, 7 ditto

The Assoudullia and Ahmodu or guards, formerly received 5 rupees per month, and were victualled by the Cricar, but I am informed they now provide themselves and receive monthly 15 rupees

The pikemen per month, 10 rupees, the Carnatic peons, 5 ditto, the pioneers, 8 ditto, golandanzes, 10 ditto, gun lascais, 7 ditto

I stile it net pay, because all the troops have a nominal pay, exceeding considerably what they actually receive, a cucumstance which arises from the difference of exchange in the Circar payments, and in the Bazsar

⁺ All these three classes meet in one kutcherne, of which they compose different bessulhas —Between the two first, the difference of pay is made on account of the difference of size and appearance, they do similar duties. The third class are subordinates, put on all duties of fatigue, and into garrison, but never hardly brought into action.

Lally's party are pad by contract. The Sultanuallows the Commandant, for each European horseman, 90 rupees per month, for each European foot solder, 30 duto, for Cadress and half-cast, 20 duto, for instruct Sepoys, 16 duto, for a gun, 500 duto, for an elephant, 12 pagodas, for his own pay as Commandant, 2000 rupees own pay as Commandant, 2000 rupees

From this allowance, the Commandant is obliged to pay whatever officers he may have in his party, as also to purchase and feed horses for his cavalry, and to find bullocks for his gun and to cloth and arm his party

valry, and to find bullocks for his gun and to cloth and arm his party

N B —The troops do not receive their pay regularly, but are seldom more than four months in arrears

The Government beneats considerably by kcoping the troops in areas from an institution of the Sultain's, of a bank called Malek Toyan, "which is kept in camp by the servants of the Circar, here cash is lent at high interest to the troops for orders on their arreas, by which interest and a double management of the exchange, a soldier is generally defrauded near one sixth of this naw.

The pay of the regular army is the same in the field and gairison, but their constitution supposes them always encamped Despine—With regard to discipline, the chef attention of the Sultain seems still directed to his unfainty. The regular cavalty executes in body They much regularly in file—form in line and charge. The irregular properties whatever The infainty take said to be much large proved ance last were the golindanze on artillery, at a day kept in constant practice.

The whole of his army is kept in a state of activity—movements are perpetual—and no kutcheine or cushoon is ever allowed to remain more than two years and seldom so long in any station.

The regular army are almost always in the field, except during the monsoon, when it is cantoned, but seldom any part of it is put in gallison, except the guards, who do duty in Seringapatan.

Principal Officers and Estimation—The Saltaun employs his officers in a civil and military line, as the occasion demands, but I shall in this place only mention those who may be deemed his chief military Commanders. The brist is Meet Cummur u Deen, an officer of acknowledged bravery and ability—he is idolized by the army, and, therefore, an object of jealousy to the bulbaun, who is, however, sensible of his superior merit, and always employs him in cases of cinerecutory

Reza Saheb, commonly called the Banky Nabob, a relation of the Sultanu's, and in high estimation. He has the character of being a brave officer, but is acknowledged impetuous and headstrong. He is about thirty years of age

Mahomed Reza, son of Waken Khan, Nabob of Savenore—an officer of merit, and in favour with the Sultann

Syd Ghoffer, formerly Commandant in the Nabob's service at Tanjoteabout 64 years of age—a man of great experience and bravery, in favour with the Sultum

Meer Mohin u Deen, better known by the name of Syd Saheb—a miset and a coward, but an able manager, in which his he has been lately employed, though he still holds high initiary command. Hepossesses the conidence of the Sultaun who is married to his daughter 4

Foker u Deen and Meer Nazur Ali, are also Chiets of estimation

^{*} There is one of those Circar shops or Malek Tonyar's with every detachment + Who died about twelve days ago

Garman—then State—The Sultam has expended great sums in improvements, or rather additions to the works of Semigapitan, on which he has been employed ever since the conclusion of the peace in 1792. I cannot form any shakinct tiels of the nature of the works he is constructing —from what I have inhietto heard, one account says, he is carrying two walls round the fut, each of which is of much more strength and sohidity than the old one, which is destroyed as the new work advances, but of which not one fully a wet flassifier.

Another states he is also occupied in cutting a bload deep ditch across the island, from the Delinh Daulet Begh to the south branch of the liver. There is to be a diawbridge over the ditch opposite to the east gate of the fort, and the only high road to the fort to be over it.

It is highly probable that he will weaken instead of strengthen his capital, by multiplying unnecessary works, particularly as no account mentions their being under the direction of an European engineer

Bangalore and Ossore have both been destroyed. The former has not been so completely demolished as the latter. Many pats yet remaining entire, particularly fine east gate and the lower parts of most of the rampart, a circumstance which would seem to have originated more in the unskilfulness of the munist than any design.

Both Savendroog and Nemdydroog have been repaired and stored with provisions. The other garrisons remain much in their former state, he has built a small fort and pettah close to Old Mysore

2nd Revenue Depairment, state of Teariny — Although it is generally exported among the nations that Tippo has by assessments on the inhibitants of his remaining the interest of his remaining the pace of 1792. A moment's reflection will then the white his treash is the pace of 1792. A moment's reflection will then the thirty lack, which is considerably more than two year's sevenue of the country left in his possession. He has had not only the current expenses of his Government to definy, but to repair the ravages of war which may surely be calculated to have deprived him of a levit as, months next revenue. Independent of this, he had to remount great pair of his cavalry, were destroyed on lost during the way. When to this would the verticular expended on the fortifications of Seingrapatam, on which 6000 men have been at work for neal six years, we cannot suppose his revenues, which do not amount to one and a half crote, have more than must his annual expenditure.

If this is the case, his treasury cannot contain more than two croics at the utmost, as between five and six croic was the greatest supposed amount at the conclusion of the peace, out of which he paid three croics and thirty lack, and in all probability, that amount was exaggerated

Alterations in management —Tippoo has varied in many points at differ-

Alterations in management —Tippoo has varied in many points at different periods from that mode of management which was prescribed in a code of revenue regulations which was translated into English, and published in Calcutta in 1792.

It is an ascertained fact that he has not collected so much from his country as his father, a cucumstance which may be ascribed to his chiefly employing Mussilmen. Assoft, and Aumildars, which Hyder seldon did—The Hadoos still do the business, but are more venal from having less responsibility.

Among the greatest changes that have taken place lately in his revenue

^{*} Indeed I believe those never were observed system, may be reckoned that of his granting assigned lands to some oil his military commanders for the municineance of themselves and party, and his having dimmisshed much the number of revenue officers, by allotting larger managements. No assof is now appointed to a country that does produce a lack, and no Aumidiar to one under thirty thousand.

Chef Resense Office Characters—At the head of the revenue officers may be placed Mee Mahomed Saduk (Duan,) to which high station he was promoted by Hyder, from hung cutwal to the army. He is an able man, devoted to the will of the Sultain, with whom he is esteemed a favourite, he is acquised a prudent statesman, and a strong advise of peace

Meer Hussan, brother-in-law to Cummer u Deen, an officer high in trust Sied Mahomed Khan, an officer of high repute in the revenue line

Purneya, treasure .—He was in the same employment with Hyder, he is reputed an able financier

There are besules many revenue officers of reputation, whom I have not mentioned from want of sufficient information to speak of them with canchess

Charles of courrences since Juniary, 1798—I mean not in this part of the account to take a long retrospect

I shall confine myself to this year, the account to take a long retrospect I shall confine myself to this year, and briefly state those occur ences which appear most worthy of note In Innuary the Sultana joined his camp near Seingapatam, and pub-

In Juneary the Sultana jounced has churp near Suringapatam, and pubished that he was going towards Mangadore, where it was runoused several French ships were expected with unopa on board, to this was addiced report, that the Sultanu meant on their crivial to attack the English, the Sultanu meant of the Company of the Sultanu Sultanu Sultanu ing denacd, and a mutchella (or obligatory note) taken from each seportent fix family was above the Ghauts.*

Ribnay — Tippoo was reported next to have changed his mention of group towards Managlore, and to have tuned his thoughts towards vasting his northers fronter, in order to intimulate the Mahrattas who had demanded seven years' arrans of Chourt, and also with a rose to risit the been long anxious to become He received and despatched upon in this month a waked from Poonah

He encamped with some part of his army at a village called Anakara, two marches from the capital, for several days, and from it detached the Banky Nabeh, Rezah Saheb, in one direction, and Meet Saduk in another, in order to distribute the lands to the Jemmadras of Sulfahain horse, agreeably to the new system of supporting them that he had resolved upon

"More! —The Sultanu went with his secort to a place on the banks of the Cawii (Thear,) 25 miles from Seringapatan, to supeinitead the repair of a dain across the river, he returned to the city to be present at the Ramzan feast, but ordered his teuts and escort to pass on to encamp near Motta Talm, where he joined them after the feast was over

He despatched a vakeel with letters to Scindiah, and report said he was much inclined to join the Mahrattas in an attack on the Sultain, but that both Meer Saduk and Purneah exerted all their influence to prevent such an event occurring

About this period news reached the capital that the Annagoondy Rayah had been successful against the Sultaun's troops, in consequence of ^{*} An alarm was also spread at this period about the Coorga Rajah, who, it afterwards appeared had taken unnecessary alarm at the approach of some irregular horse, who were forsging, and had in consequence assembled his troops near Periapatam. This matter was settled on explanation

[†] So in copy, but most probably the Nizam which a strong detachment was ordered to hold itself in readiness to pro-

April —The Sultaun remained at his camp near Moota Falou. The principal event of this month was cutting the bank of this famous tank, which he did contrary to the opinion of several of his Omrahs. Two motives were conjectured to induce him to this extraordinary action. The one supposed it the effect of availe, the other of policy. If the former, he was disappointed, for two old guins were all that its drained-bed produced, but it is more reasonable to ascible it to policy, as he destroyed several other small tanks in its vicinity, appearantly with a view of distress.

mg any numerous army that might hereafter encamp near his capital it is not unworthy of observation, that immediately previous to the breaking out of last war, he destroyed the large tank near Bangalote, and similar conjectures were then made Letters were despatched to the courts of Hyderabad and Poonah, from the former letters had been received by Camel Kerkerrah, and from the latter a vakeel

The stable horse were kept at the capital, and every division of the country use ordered to store gram and ghee, and to send a proportion of draught cattle to the capital

May —Not only all the Aumildars, Assoffs, &c were required to swear all anneators to the Sultana, a custom which with them has been annual for five years past, but every soldier of the arm, was directed to swear (in the form prescribed by the religion he professed,) to be furthful to his stan-

The Sultaun went for a short time into the city, but intermed to camp on the 2nd of June with part of his zamana, and all the Sillahdra horee were offered to join from their for aging stations. Accounts were received of a French party landing at Mangalore, and preparation was directed to be made for their march to, and reception at, Se ungapatam.

June —On the 3rd of June the river came down, and all communication with the capital was obliged to be carried on by means of basket boats

On the 18th Shire Khain returned with three cushoons to the capital from the Malabar coast, where he had been to settle some differences between the Sultann and Coorpia Hagab, relating to the disputed territories It is not stated what has been done, but there appears to have been an amicable adultstance.

On the 20th, in the evening, the long expected French pasty received comp, they consasted of about 50 Buller-ass, one of the Europeans and shout 100 buller-ass, one of the Europeans was in a palenquin, five on horseback, and the rest, with the coffrees and half-cast, marched on foot. They had only one tent on their much the Sultam, however, directed an ample supply of campungace, and fixed their encamponent at about a under from his own quarters, next day sax of the party who were said the passed on white of the surface when they came out that they were pleased with their reception. Two of the French gentlemen have since half dropent intercourse, but no arrangement of consequence has yet been made It is believed the Sultaun means they should discipline a considerable body of sepoys

The Mohurrum feast was celebrated with splendour, but no part of the anny was after it was over ordered to forage

The Sultann gave out that he meant to remain in camp for some months, and various reports were at the same time spread as to his design of march-

* A fl.w months previous to the breaking out of last war, he took a similar precaution of swearing his men

VOL 1

ing, which it is now thought he is resolved upon, as tents had been sent

July —At Sengapatan it was reported he meant to take the route of Gottvi towards his eastern frontia. It was believed he meant to invide the Carastic, and this report had mode such an impression that fifty finnites had by the Burnaullo in the 500 by June for Migrow, and game as a vession vales into signific at the time many critical, their had relations an the Salticus and, and the state of the superstant, that they had relations as the Saltents and the state of th

Present position of 'toops — Having now finished the detail of his transactions for these few months past, I shall state what I believe to be the present position of his troops

He has immediately with him encamped near the French rocks his son, Futtee Hyder, Cummur u Deen, and all the principal officers, both civil and military, of his country

As his army are for convenience encamped in parties at the distance of a few miles. I shall state for the sake of perspicuity, under one head

His whole army on the island and in the environs of Seringapatam, that

Regular horse	-	-	-	6,000
frregulais -	-	-	-	3,500
Regular infantry	-	-	-	14,000
Pikemen -	-	-	-	1,500
Junners and Lascar	8 -	-	_	2,000

10 battering guns, and 40 field pieces on this side the river, 30 clephants, 100 miles, 100 camels, and 1,500 draught bullocks, in camp, as many more as are wanted, within two days march, at forage

2 000

Garrison of Seringapatan-

Infantry, 2nd Kutcherry -	-	-	1,000
Troops in the Harponelly of	Total	-	4,000
the Annagoondy Rajah	, under the	comma	ad
of Mahomed Khan and Selladars, or megular		Alı Zettı	1,000

At Gootty, under Asstnapah and Banker Bey 4,000

Some infantry are still on the Malabar coast, and some Sillahdar horse and a large part of infantry at Sadiashavagur, and also some of the Sillahdar horse dar's horse and Byeds at forage in different parts of the country

Policy of the Sultaun and reflections on it

Tippoo is generally described as a Prince equally destitute of humanity and reason, as one whose passions ever triumph over his judgment

Whatever arguments may be brought against the first part of this accusation from the treatment of his subjects, the tyrannical circlety he exercised on his English prisoners, will ever warrant their countrymen in affixing it on his name

As to the latter points, I am not disposed to allow them just, as general positions. His conduct since the peace of 1792, has shewn that though he possessed those feelings which are allowed not only to be natural, but how possessed those feelings which are allowed not only to be natural, but how power and fune, and a spirit of revenue agent of matients or regime lost power and fune, and a spirit of revenue agent of the possessed of the peace o with that unremitting activity and zealous warmth which we would look for in a Prince, who had come to a serious determination to endeavour by every reasonable means in his power to regain what he had lost To prove what I have said, I shall take a short retrospect of the leading features of his conduct since 1792

This was first marked by an honourable and unusually punctual discharge of the large sum which remained due at the conclusion of the neace to the allies Instead of sinking under his misfortunes, he exerted all his activity to renair the rayages of war. He began to add to the foitifications of his capital-to remount his cavalry-to recruit and discipline his infuntry-to numsh his refractory tributaries-and to encourage the cultivation of his country, which was soon restored to its former prosperity

He next (near two years after the war) took the wise resolution of destroving Ossoor and Bangalore, as he had seen they were easy conquests to the English, and served them both as useful posts to cover then convoys and secure their depots for their grain and military stores, this was surely the action of a man who had benefitted by experience

During the first two or three years he seemed wholly devoted to domestic arrangements-when all was settled he found himself at liberty to engage again in politics

He appears first to have intrigued at Hyderabad, with a design to separate that Court from the English interests, but without success

An important scene soon opened, the imprisonment of Azim-ul-Omrah and the contemptible interregnum (if I may term it so) at the Court of Hyderabad This added to the divisions at Poonah and the declining health of the Nizam offered a fair prospect. The Sultain took every step that prudence could suggest to make the most of the opportunity without involvmg himself in any risk till success was highly probable, if not certain. He sent a large and well appointed detachment to Ghootty under one of his ablest officers (Syd Ghoffer) on the pietext of enforcing payment of some of his unsettled claims on Kainoul

At this period, Nana Furnaveze, who was expelled from Poonah by the dread of Scindish's power, solicited the Sultaun's aid, who, aware of the ex-Minister's influence and wealth, flattered him with the promise of support

The improvement of the Nizam's health-the return of Nana to The emancipation and restoration to power of Azim-ul-Omiah. -events as extraordinary as they were unexpected disappointed the success, but did not impeach the wisdom of the Sultaun's schemes

His French visitors, of whom he had several, flattered him with hopes of future success against the English, the power with whom he was naturally the most exasperated, but he does not appear to have entered into serious negotiations with any of them before September, 1797, when two gentle-men from the Mauritius made him large offers of aid, and induced him to send a vakeel to the islands authorized, (as would appear from Governor Malartic's proclamation) to enlist whatever number of Frenchmen could be induced to enter the Sultann's service

He has had of late some correspondence, both with the Courts of Poonah and Hyderabad, of what nature I know not-but he is well versed in Mahratta politics, and knows that they solicit foreign interference, more with a view of intimidating domestic foes into some arrangement, than with any serious intention of using it—and he also knows that whatever appearances Azun-ul-Omrah may from political design assume, that he is his fixed enemy on principle

From what I have stated, I infer that the policy of the Sultaun is obviously to regain his former power, and that all his intrigues and preparations, whatever may appear then immediate object, are ultimately directed against the English, on the principle that it is their declared and invariable policy to check his aggrandizement

But at the same time, I do not think he will deviate from that line which he has obviously inheric preserved of not engaging in hostilities till success in high probable it not certain. I conside him at this moment pausing for events. The French busyed him up with hopes of England being inmed, and of their sharing with him—the territories of that kingdom in India—and have probably, at all events, promised him the immediate, cooperation of a Puge for the property of th

On the other hand, he views with anxiety the tedious troubles of Poonah, which certainly now appear approaching to a crisis, and that he conjectures may afford him a favourable opportunity of action

These are reasons, more than sufficient for law keeping so large a force in redures new Seringapatam, and there is no doubt, had the French been able to have lended a respectable force at Mangalore, at the same period which they did that contemplate party which have reached Seningapatam, he would before this have engaged in lostilines with the Englishman of the content of the series of the content of the content of the content of the series of th

him to so bold a measure

My object in this hasty abstract, has been solely to throw such light as

My object is this hasty ansulact, has been solely to throw such light as my information caabled in on the Sullauria statution and views. On the conduct, we should at this period observe towards hum, I shall not presume a conduct, we should at this period observe towards hum, I shall not presume a contracted to those whose high regulation leaves not a doubt, but the line of conduct they pursue, on this and every occasion, will be that which is best calculated to promote the prespective of the British nation.

JOHN MALCOLM, Persian Interpreter Madras, 16th July, 1798

APPENDIX D

From Zemaun Shah to Su John Shore *

Recurved 3d June, 1798.
At this time the triasty Ghoolaum Ahmed Khinh, the news-writer in Hindostan, after lawing the bonour of paying his respects at the to-splenient presence, described to as the excess of your statument and fidelity which wards you have been supported to the excess of your statument and fidelity which wards you list our intention to you! Hindostan, and at a proper season shall accordingly set out where we shall encourage fixeds and chastise enemies. We have, therefore, now deputed Ghoolaum Ahmed Ahan thailer to soons—and who are our fixeds and who are our enemies, which we will communicate accordingly, let your mind be perfectly at ease, and continue to the control of the property of the p

From Zemaun Shah to Mr Lumsden

Ghoollum Ahmed Khan, our nens unter for Hudostan, being admitted into our presence, made us happy by representing your attachment and regard, and camed an increase of our favour and good will meet a considerable of the properties of the properties of the time will come, when we shall rause our 1074 standard in those counting, our ruterous series shall bring hoose to the well affected, and punishment to the refractory. For this reason, we have sent before us Ghoollom Almed Khan, to accettam who are our friends and who are our friends and will in every respect be comident, and firm in your attachtion of the properties of the properties of the properties of Editors, 1913.

[.] Referred to at page 188

6000 senovs, with firelocks, with a due proportion of field pieces, manned by Europeans, and as at the monthly rate of two lacs, one thousand four hundred and twenty-five rupees, the yearly amount of subsidy for the aforesaid force of 6000 men, with guns, artiflery-men, and other necessary appurtenances, is twenty-four lacs, seventeen thousand one hundred rupees The said sum shall be completely discharged in the course of the year by four equal instalments, that is, at the expiration of every three English months, the sum of six lacs, four thousand two hundred and seventy-five rupees, in silver of full currency, shall be issued without hesitation or demur from his Highness's treasury And should the aforesaid instalments happen to fall at any time the least in arrears, such arrears shall be deducted. notwithstanding any objections thereto, from the current kist of Peishcush. payable to his Highness on account of the Northern Sirkars Should it. at any time, so happen, moreover, that delay were to occur in the issue of the instalments aforesaid, at the stated periods, in such case, assignments shall be granted on the collections of certain districts in this state, the real and actual revenue of which shall be adequate to the discharge of the vearly subsidy of the aforesaid force

Article 4th -The duties on grain and on all articles of consumption, as well as on all necessaries whatever, for the use of the new subsidiary force. shall be commuted agreeably to the practice that obtained with the former detachment A place likewise shall be fixed on as the head quarters of the said force, where it shall always remain, except when services of importance are required to be performed, and whenever either the whole, or part of the said force, is to be employed in the business of the state, a person of respectability, and who is a servant of this Sirkar, shall be appointed to attend it. The commanding officer and officers of the said subsidiary force shall be treated in all respects in a manner suitable to the greatness and dignity of both states

At tucle 5th -The said subsidiary force will at all times be ready to execute services of importance, such as the protection of the person of his Highness, his heirs and successors, from race to race, and the overawing and chastizing all rebels or exciters of disturbance in the dominions of this state, but it is not to be employed on trifling occasions, nor like Sebendy, to be stationed in the country to collect the revenues thereof

Article 6th - Immediately upon the arrival of the aforesaid subsidiary force at Hyderabad, the whole of the officers and serieants of the French party are to be dismissed, and the troops composing it, so dispersed and disorganised, that no trace of the former establishment shall remain. And his Highness hereby engages for himself, his heirs and successors, that no Frenchman whatever shall ever hereafter be entertained in his own service, or in that of any of his chiefs or dependants, nor be suffered to remain in any part of his Highness's dominions Nor shall any Europeans whatever be admitted into the service of this state, nor be permitted to remain within its territories, without the knowledge and consent of the Company's government

Article 7th -The whole of the European and sepoy deserters from the Company's service, that may be in the French or any other party of troops belonging to this state, are to be seized and delivered up to the British resident, and no persons of the above description are to be allowed refuse in future in his Highness's territories, but are (on the contrary) to be seized without delay, and delivered up to the British resident Neither shall any refuge be allowed in the Company's territories to sepoy deserters from the service of his Highness, who shall, in like manner, be seized and delivered up without delay

Article 8th - Whereas his Highness the Nizam, from considerations of prudence and foresight, and with a view of avoiding manifold evils, has VOL. II determined on dismissing the French from his service, and in dispersing and disorganising the troops commanded by them, as specified in the 6th Article, and on entertaining a perpetual standing force, of the Honourable Company's, in their room, subject to the limitations and restrictions prescribed by Earl Connwallis's letter to the Nizam, mentioned in the 1st Article . it is therefore hereby agreed, with a view to the mutual benefit of his Highness and the Pushwa, and the happiness of their respective subjects, that the Company's government will use their best endeavours to have inserted with the consent and approbation of both, in the new treaty in contemplation between the three allied powers, such a clause as shall set at case with regard to the other Should the Peishwa, however, not accede to a monosal so highly advantageous and profitable to both governments, and differences hereafter arise between the two states, namely, that of the Naszanh Asof Jah Behadui, and of the Rao Pundit Perdhaun, in such case, the Company's government hereby engage, that interposing their inediation. in a way suitable to rectitude, friendship and union, they will apply themselves to the adjustment thereof, conformably to propriety, truth and sustice. The Nawaub Asof Jah Behadur accordingly hereby engages. never to commit on his part any excess of aggression against the Sirkar of Rao Pundit Perdhaun , and in the event of such differences arising, whatever adjustment of them the Company's government, weighing things in the scales of truth and justice, may determine upon, shall without hesitation or objection, meet with full approbation and acquiescence

Article 9th —All former treaties between the Honounable East India Company and the governments of the Navaub Asof Jah and the Pesslwa, remain in full force Should hereafter the Rao Pundit Pet dhaun express a desire to enter into subsidiary engagements, similar to the present, with the Honourable Company, the Nawanb Asof Jah will most readily give his

A total 10th — This enlarged subsidiary treaty, consisting of Ten Articles, being this day settled by Captain Sink James Achilles Kinkpatrick, with the Nawash Asof Jah Behadur, Captain Kinkpatrick has delivered one copy hereof in Eighth and Persona, ageods and seled by humself, to the Nawash, because the same, dayly executed by bimself, and Captain Nirkpatrick hereby routes assame, dayly executed by bimself, and Captain Nirkpatrick hereby routes of the contract of the contr

Signed, sealed, and exchanged at Hyderabad, 1st September, A D 1798, or 19th Rubby ul-awul, A H 1213

J A KIRKPATRICK

Separate article appertaining to the perpetual subsidiary treaty concluded between the Honourable English East India Company and his Highness the Nawauh Asof Jah Behadur, on the 1st of September, A D 1798, or 19th of Rubby-ul-awul, A H 1213

Whereas in conformity to a wish expressed by his Highness the Nsam, the stipulation in the 6th Article of the Subniding T Praty respecting the delivering up of the French is agreed to be made a separate one, his High-mess hereby engages, that after the airval of the Company's troops at Hydersbad, the whole of the French officers and soldiers in his service shall be apprehended in such way as Cuptain Kinghatrick may point out, and be delivered up to him, or for a time be kept in confinement in an abatiant belonging to this Strate, but in the custody of the Company's troops, and upon the test generated by the party lately under the command of the aforeast Finend officers, live, the sual French officers, and soldiers aball, within the space of two months, be delivered up to the Britsh readent aball, within the space of two months, be delivered up to the Britsh readent and to those in charge of all forth and past looked are on the fromtiers, and to those in charge of all forth and past looked are on the whatever, attempting to past their respective stations, and send them improved the state of the

Signed, scaled, and exchanged, at Hyderabad, 1st September, A D 1798, or 19th Rubbyul-awul, A H 1213

Separate atticle appertaining to the perpetual Subsidiary Treaty concluded between the Honourable English East India Company and his Highness'the Nawaub Asof Jah Behadur, on the 1st September, A D 1798, or 19th Rubby-ul-awul, A H 1213

No correspondence on affairs of importance, shall, in faiture, on any account, he carried on with the Sixter of Bao Phunit Perdinain, or with any of his dependants, either by the Nawauh Asof Jah Behadur, on by the Homoushle Company's government, without the mutual printy and consent of both contracting parties. And whatever transactions, whether of great or small import, may in future take place with the aforesad Rao Piot Pardhaun, or his dependant, a reciprocal communication of the same shall be made to the other contracting party, without delay and without reserve

Signed, sealed, and exchanged, at Hyderabad, 1st September, A D 1798, or 19th Rubbyul-awul, A H 1213

Ratified by the Right Honourable Richard Earl of Mornington, Knight of the most illustrious order of St Patrick, &c &c &c Governor General in council

For t William, 18th day of September, 1798

APPENDIX F

Memor andum relative to the late French corps in the Deccan, by Capt Malcolm

The Fiench corps in the Deccan, have for several years past hoisted the national flag, and most of the lapells and epaulets of their new clothing, had the worlds liber is and constitution embiousleted on them

The general conversation of the French officers after they were dismissed, proved that they had entertained ambitious designs, and considered themselves as forwarding the interests of their mother country. Captain Christoff, an officer of the party who had been formerly a serieaut of sepoys in the English service, affirmed that the late Monsieur Raymond had formed the most ambitious projects, and that the same were adopted by his successor—and that the landing of any French in India, would probably have been the signal to commence their intrigues *

It was generally reported and believed that Raymond had a General's commission from the Directory, but it has not been discovered In a letter which passed through the resident at Hyderabad, recommending a person to Monsieur Piron-it was stated that the person recommended would, from having respectable connexions at Paris, be useful in transacting Monsieur Piron's affairs with the Directory

In a letter from Monsieur Buptiste, the second officer in the corps, to Captain Kirkpatrick, relative to his claims on the party and property at Hyderabad-Monsieur Baptiste expresses an apprehension that he will be unable to return to France, as Monsieur Piron will represent his conduct (to the Directory) in odious colours There was found in store when our troops took possession of the French lines, small arms and clothing for 12,000 men beyond the force then servhnes, small arms and crothing an anyone mental arms and under Mons Piron, besides a number of pistols for cavalry in any two foundaries. I only saw these at their lines, near Hyderabad. The arsenal there was full of military stores, and in the foundery, there were a number of brass cannon newly cast, which our artillery officers judged as good and as well finished as any they had ever seen. They also made swords, muskets, and pistols. The specimens I sent to Lord Mornington, will shew the great progress they had made in these manufactures

The French party were always well paid-their clothing was nest and their discipline superior to any troops I ever saw in a native service. The men were the best of the country-and from the regularity of their pay, they could recruit at pleasure

APPENDIX G

Buonaparte's Letter to Tropoo Sultaun +

PRENCH REPUBLIC

Laberty

Equality

Buonaparte, Member of the National Convention, General-in-Chief, to the most Magnificent Sultaun, our greatest Friend, Tippoo Saib

> Head-Quarters at Cairo, 7th Pluviose, 7th Year of the Republic, One and Indivisible

You have already been informed of my arrival on the borders of the Red Sea, with an innumerable and nymcible army, full of the desire of delivering you from the iron yoke of England

I eagerly embrace this opportunity of testifying to you the desire I have

^{*} This information I had from a gentleman to whom Christoff had communicated it

⁺ Referred to at name 295

of being informed by you, by the way of Muscat and Mocha, as to your political situation

I would even wish you could send some intelligent person to Suez or Cairo, possessing your confidence, with whom I may confer

May the Almighty increase your power and destroy your enemies

BUONAPARTE

True Translation from the French.

FRANCIS WAPPERS, Translator

APPENDIX H.

Proclamation du General Buonaparte aux Habitans au Cavre le 1er Nivose, Pan 7me de la Republique Françoise

Des hommes pervers avoient egaré une partie d'entre nous , ils ont peri Dieu m'a ordonné pour être misericordieux pour le peuple , J'ai été clement et misericordieux pour vous

J'aı été faché contre vous de votre revolte, je vous aı prıvé pendant deux mois de votre Dıvan mais aujourdhui je vous le restitue, votre bonne conduite a effacé la tache de votre revolte

Scherifs, Ulemas, Orateurs des mosquées faites bien conuaître au peuple, que ceux qui de gaieté de cœur se déclaiei ont nos ennemis n'auront de refuge ni dans ce monde in l'autre

Y aura-t-il un homme assez aveugle pour ne pas voir que le Destin dirige toutes nos operations, y auroit il quelqu'un assez incrédule, pour revoquer en doute que tout dans ce vaste univers, est soumi a l'empire du Destin

Fattes connaître au peuple que depuis que ce monde est monde al etote cert qu'après avoir détruit les Ennemis de l'Elaamisme fait abattre la Cioxx Je viendiois du fond de l'occident remphir la tache qui m'à été imposée Fattes voir au peuple que dans le saint livre du Coran, dans plus de ringt passages, ce qui arrive a été préru, et ce qui arrivera est egalement expliqué

Que ceux donc que la ciainte seule de nos armes empêche de nois nuire changent car en faisant au Ciel des vœux contre nous, ils soliciteroient leur condamnation, que ces vrais croyants fassent des vœux pour la prospétité de nos armes

Je pourrois demander compte à chacun de vous, des sentiments les plus secrets de son cœur, car je sais tout, même ce que vous n'avez dit à personne.

Mais un jour viendra que tout le monde verra avec evidence, que je suis condint par des Ordres Superieurs, et que tous les efforts humains ne peuvent rien contre moi Heureux ceux qui de bonne foi sont les premiers à se mettre avec moi

Extract of a Letter from Mr Udney to Lord Grenville, dated Leghorn, 16th April, 1798

A gentleman of extensive correspondence, has given me every assistance, and taken much pans to discover the destination of the armament carrying on in Genoa and the rest of Italy and France. The result of which has been as follows, and well-doubled—"That the inedexcous is to be at Apiccio, in Cornea, from Genoa and Toulon, that from the 26th of this Apiccio, in Cornea, from Genoa and Toulon, that from the 26th of this Miller, which is vot be given up on their appearance, that twelly said the line and fragates. Flench, Venetian, &c., are to be employed with 600 and of transports, and 50,000 mm Alexandria is the principal destination, and even the Black Sea, with the consent of the Ottoma Porte, and the however exceeded, the bloom a meant against the East India Company'e power in Jaha Shouth on this be put a stop to, the consequences may be the control of the Consequences may be written, and result in the Consequence of the Consequences of the Consequence of the Consequ

Copy of a letter from Mr Secretary Dundas to Lord Grenville *
My dear Lord, Wimbledon, 13th June, 1798

In consequence of the artellagence from Mi. Udney, lately transmitted to me by your Lordwhyn, and the stall more research melligence from Penuk. fort, and the communication made to me last unjuk, relative to the proposed disposal of the Portuguese troops, I have thought it right to put my ideas disposal of the Portuguese troops, I have thought it right to put my ideas gray to be a consideration of the proposed of the proposed to the proposed of the proposed power would be a stall crumstance to the proposed of the proposed power would be a stall crumstance to the proposed of the proposed of the proposed power would be a stall crumstance of the proposed power would be a stall crumstance to the moment, but having dead of the proposed of the pr

I am samme in my lobes that our fact now in the Mediterranean well supersed the necessity of deciding upon any practical conclusions, which may flow from our speculations upon this subject, but as the prospect is most activated to the supposition of the supersection of the supersection

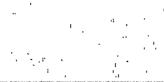

^{*} Referred to at p 350

a paper upon that subject recently put into my hands by Lord Spences succently states the outlines of what is to be expected from such a possision in the hands of France, and I certainly concur in every idea h states, with many additional ones which my official situation has led moften to revolve upon

But to return to the purpose of this letter, which is directed to the fur ther views of the French, as stated in you intelligence, namely, the over throw of our Indian power by an attack upon the British territories there I believe it is not a new idea, and I have reason to suppose that the Em piess of Russia had it in contemplation, at the time that hostilities between that Court and Great Britain were likely to take place

The transporting an army to India from the Mediterranean must be at tempted in one of four ways—eiths by Constantinople and the Black Sea or secondly, by ressels from the Red Sea, or the Mg, by land from Joid though the Upper Yemen to Musca, or rather to that part of the Araban coast where the sea is most narrow (which is about opposite the island of Kishmish), and there by the help of vessels to be piocured a

that the Emperor of Russia would suite such a circlimistance to take piace, it is unnecessary to trouble you with the further detail of this route, it would be towards the Caspian, and thence to penetrate into India, which would be very difficult, and barely possible through that part of Peissa

The second and thad routes are cet tauly practicable, upon supposition that the Frankfort intelligence is tue, of this expectation having been concerted with Toppoo Sultam, because in that case ressels may have been sent either from the Mannitas or from the ports of Tippoo Sultam, or from both, and in that case there could be no difficulty in tausporting a body of troops either from the Red See or from the Fransa guidy, in the body of troops either from the Red See or from the Fransa guidy, in the Egypt to Indus, but I am not of opinion that the French Government can have formed as sufficient concert, of woold run the risk of all the difficulties which stand in the way of their enterprise m either of the two ways now supposed

The following reasons lead me to this conclusion—in the first plate, although the possession of Egypt his been long a favourie object both with the old and new Freich Government, and was always considered by them at the most offerom means of undensuming the Brist poser in Infate, I do not think till iccentify they erec exteriorated an idea to accomplish it in the aggingtine manner now proposed, and consequently not accomplish to the property of the property

nage either in the Aubum, on the Persum, gulph, secondly, if they had thought of the caterprize sufficiently early for such preparation, their own judgment must have suggested to them the risk of their whole plan being firstant dry by storms, or by the suplance of our cruerzes in the Idonaiseas, thardir, they were not certain but their plans would be disconfised by a very small mand force being standoned either at the mouth of the Red Sea, or at the mouth of the Persian gulph, and, in fact, I conceive it even now not to be too late to use that p recentline.

These various reasons satisfy me, that if this enterprize is really to be undertaken, Buonaparte will, as much as possible, avoid the dangers of the sea, which is not his element, but trusting to his own evertions and the enthusiasm of his followers, endeavour to accomplish his object by marching to Alenno, cross the Euphrates, and following the example of Alexander, by following the river Euphrates and the Tigiis, and descending to the Persian gulph, and thence proceeding along the coast to the Indus This route lenguires no vessels to transport troops The loads are much more practicable, and the resources of provisions and forage much greater, if, indeed, the Turks were hostile to their views, they could in a variety of ways annow them, both in their first project and in their after plans of recruiting their army, by the means of landing them at Alexandretta or Scandicon, the nearest port to Aleppo But if, as stated in the Frankfort intelligence, the Turks are really friendly to the views of France. I do not see any reason to suppose that the object of reaching India may not be accomplished It will be done, no doubt, with great fatigue and loss of men, it must be a tedious operation, and many hardships must be undergone, but these are considerations which will not operate either upon the leader or upon the followers of this enterprize, and therefore it appears to me we will act most unwisely if we omit any one exertion to proteet our Indian interests against the most formidable danger to which, in my opinion, it was ever exposed

"The first and most obrons measure that can be pursued from the country as a dust representation, both to the Bmpeor of Bussa and at Constantinople If the Turks have formed any such connection, and entered into any such allance, as stated in the Frankfort michigence, their conduct is so directly hostile to us as to rehere us from every ocremony with regard to them. The interest of Russas itself is so nearly concerned by the admission of the French mito Egypt, and the means thereby afforded them of gaming a pre-eminence in, and ultimately the conquest of, Turkey, that I cannot conceive the Empeory, with all his pacific dispositions, will choose to be a time spectator of such timesterious Nothing should be left undone on our part to exactle him to a sense of his dancer, and if the Turks, nothing that the confect our connect ourselves in such Russians passable, and and the metery project she may independ for the classificance of the Turks.

Information will be immediately and by the speediest modes conveyed to our governments in Inda, stating the intelligence we have received, and guarding them against the danger with which they are threatened, and a nearl force, either from the Calpe, or from Indan, must be directed to curuze at the mouth of the Red 'est, and at the mouth of the Persana Gulph; in the continued of Inda, years of communication between the French and the continues of Inda, years of communication between the French and the continues of Inda.

For these two years past these has been, from time to time, appearance of French emissiane, both in Persa and in Egyps, and it a noil probable that the French would have formed such a project as this without having endeavoured to secure a co-operation with some of the power, through whose countries they are to pass, and, in the last despetches from India, there scenes to be a floating videa as if Tippoo had been holding out the hopes of a French co-operation to one of our refractory rajahs, on the coast of Malabar It must be the object of our government in India, by every means in their power, to counteract the intrigues which the French may have used for facilitating their present enterprise I hope much may be done in this way, and considering the desultory politics of Indian powers, the French may very speedily find themselves disappointed in the co-operation they have counted upon Any material disappointment in this respect must be fatal to their project—their army must be much fatigued and exhausted after so long a march; and if in that situation we can induce the Abdalli, the Afghans, and other tribes bordering upon the Indus, and also the other powers in the north of India, to annoy the French army in then progress to our territories, they would be so cut up before we were called to encounter them, as would render our success tolerably certain At the same time, it must not be forgot, that in all systems of intrigue with the native powers in India, we labour under a great disadvantage in a competition with France However much we may endeavour to use our power in India with fairness and with moderation, still we are an upstart power, and our dominion there is established on the foundation of the conquests or cessions, made to us by a variety of the native powers. It is impossible to suppose that they do not feel uneasy under such circumstances, and therefore a more easy prey to the representation, seduction, and intrigue of another power, who comes in the plausible form of offering to deliver them from English bondage, without desiring any recompence in retuin, in short, it is a rivalship, where our enemy has every thing to gain and nothing to lose, and where we have nothing to gain and every thing to lose

Under these culcumstances we have no certain security, except what rests upon our own independent and solid power, it is for this reason I urge the absolute necessity of reinforcing our governments in India, by every means in our power The great demand for troops upon the Continent at the beginning of the war, together with the expeditions and loss of men in the West Indies, and the conquest of the Cape, joined to the apparent security of India, has induced us to keep back from the Indian establishments those recruits necessary even for keeping up their peace arrangement The 10th and 11th regiments were destined many months ago for the East India service, but you know that both the one and the other have been since appropriated to other services, and are, of course, withdrawn from their former destination, and it does not occur to me that we have a possible resource for sending the requisite force to India, except in two ways The one is, to send the regiments, being two in number, lately recruited from the supplemental militia, to Gibraltar, and to send an equal number from thence to the East Indies The other resource is the troops in Portugal, and even after both of these are applied to that service. our Indian security will not be adequate to our wishes

Do not conceive that I am undervaluing the service to which you wish to mpity the troops in Portugal I know and feel its importance, but I have uniformly and invariably mantained that it is our duty, in the distribution of the control of the cash of all extins disney jessions. Their distance places them out of the reach of all extins disney jessions. So millian regiment will rolinitee it service for the security of Indian—many will fost the security of England, but the East and the kingdom will arm hunself for the security of England, but the East and West Indises can look to no auch resource. When strucked they must stand or fall by the force appropriated to them, but they are placed beyond an urgent disneyer presess at home.

Secret intelligence from Frankfort [Enclosed in the foregoing letter]

A Monsieur Famas de St Fond (known as a man of letters before the revolution) arrived at Frankfort a few days ago He is employed by the French Government to make enquires into subjects of Natural History The Abbé de Lisle is here likewise on his way to Brunswick, he was visited by Fauras, with whom he was formerly acquainted, and who in conversation informed him that the expedition from Toulon was certainly destined to Egypt, that it had been long in agitation, that Buonaparte had formed the plan, and prevailed on the Directory to adopt it, that the Porte had agreed that they might take possession of Egypt, in return for which they had stimulated the future payment of a large sum of money, the cession of some islands taken from the Venetians, and the free exportation of grain from Egypt to Constantinople, which condition they had persuaded the Porte would always be observed, being in effect mutually advantageous, that the army under Buonaparte consisted of 40,000 men, the chie of the French troops, which would be gradually reinforced, and that all the principal officers in every corps and department of the army, were chosen by Buonaparte, that the project was, after having secured possession of certain parts of Egypt to take the nearest route by Ajabia. through Person, cross the Indus nearly where Alexander did, and from thence advance into the British territories He said that the Directory for a long time past had employed Agents in Persia and India, that those who at present had the chief power in Persia had agreed to assist in and facilitate the enterprize, that the Prince on the borders of the Indus (meaning, I suppose, Zemann Shah) had done the same, and that measures had been fully concerted with Tuppoo Sultaun, to whom the Government would endeavour (or were endeavouring) to convey the number of troops he had re-quired. He observed that this enterprize embraced a number of great public objects, as well as many private views, that Buonaparte saw in it an ample field for gratifying his ambition, and perhaps a prospect of establishing himself in some great and independent situation, which he could scarcely have done in Italy Mr Faujas pretended also that the projected invasion of England was intended merely to create expense, excite approhension, and cover this expedition, so as to prevent the British Ministry from taking measures for the security of their Asiatic dominions

Importance of Egypt to the French [Enclosed in Mr Dundas's letter to Lord Grenville]

The probability of the Fiench taking possession of Egypt, naturally leads us, as a great commercial nation, to consider the question of the probability, as well as the consequences that may arise from the accomplishment of such an undertaking

I believe it will be very generally admitted, that the possession of Egypt has been a long time an object of French politics, the sending of Monsieur de Tott to survey the levels and roads practicable across the Isthmus of de Tott to survey the levels and roads practicable across the Isthmus of the Tott to survey the levels and design, which perhaps was retarded at that moment by ideas of justice, now no longer prevails

M Volney, one of the latest writers on the affairs of Egypt, and a man of some influence with the existing Government of France, speaks but slightly of the minitary prowess of the present Mannahuke Government, and considers 10,000 effective men as the greatest number they can bring mit the field, so that it supposes, if in this hour of airogenee, the French intend the invasion of Egypt, they will not be prevented by the opposition that can be given to them by the Mamaluke Government

The immediate advantages that may lead the French to this measure are, that after the various acvolutions of parties that have taken place, an establishment in Egypt may, perhaps, be deemed necessary to transplant such subjects as might otherwise be troublesome at home. The idea of settling and parcelling out a country whose riches and fertility have been the theme of all ages, cannot fail to catch the minds of those men, who, from habits of licentiousness and dissipation, are no longer fitted to return to the restraints of industry, or the sobriety of regular government

Another very material argument arises in favour of such an establishment It is well known that the southern provinces of Figure are not equal to the supply of their own wants for corn, which they have been always used to purchase of the Barbary States Egypt will afford them abundance in return for the common manufactures of France, and by this means, form a basis for that commerce by barter, which will easily extend itself whenever their Government shall attain a sufficient degree of consistency, so much, therefore, may be said on the question of probability

As to the advantages that may in future arise from such a possession, they are great and manifold, I know that it has been an opinion long prevailing in France, that Egypt would afford most of the articles of the East and West India growth, and I have reason to think such an opinion well founded. The productions of this country as it now stands are wheat, rice, Indian coin, millet, jesamum, cotton, flax, senna cassia, sugar, nitre, natron, sal ammonia, honey, and wax

But if we extend our idea, and consider the situation of Grand Cairo. we shall find it calculated for a great mait, extending its commerce to all around it. It is the centre of the Carravan trade, and unites Europe with Africa and Asia by its circuitous commerce Carravans from Morocco. Nubia, Abyssinia, Armenia, Persia, Syria, Damascus, Aleppo, Algiers, Tunis, Tripoli, and various others, arrive annually at Cairo, and bring the produce of their several countries, and a large sum in specie for the purchase of such commodities as they want

When the trade of Cairo was flourishing, it consisted of spices of all kinds, gums of various sorts, drugs of most kinds, silk, cotton, and all sorts of china and India produce, which were exchanged with the Carravans for gold dust, wory, and slaves, and with Europe for gold, silver, copper, tin, lead, coral, and most articles of European manufacture The Venetians, who carried on the greatest part of this trade to Europe in the 15th century, employed 43,000 seamen in it, nor has this commerce entirely vielded to the destructive Government of the Turks, for, according to Monsieur Volney, the worth of the commerce of Cairo amounts annually to 150 millions of livres

Should the French restore the commerce to India by the Red Sea. which is, undoubtedly, their object, they will do it to more advantage than ever it has yet been done For our commerce to India has introduced into these countries more of the European manufactures than were formerly in demand, as well as familiarized the use of China and India produce to every part of the world

Coffee and tea, two articles little known in former times, are now become generally and extensively in common use, and form a very considerable branch of commerce. The growth of sugar and indigo in India are likewise new articles, and of great consideration, so that the commerce of the Red Sea is materially changed in its favour

The navigation of the Red Sea is by no means so dangerous as ignolance has represented it. The winds are periodical, making the passage very short both to and from India, and the passage from Suez to Cairo is twenty days by the Callavans, and from Callo the passage down the Nile is through a channel of about two hundred miles to the sea

We were formerly in the practice of trading to Suez with assorted eargoes known in India by the name of Gulph goods, but the late troubles in Egypt have greatly disturbed this commercial intercourse

When I was in India I procured several statements of the nature of this trade from a free merchantwho had himself been there, and he calculates that on the sale of two cargoes of the amount of £000,000, the profit would are not for the cargo of the amount of £000,000, the profit would are not for the cargo of the amount of £000,000, the beginning the cargo of the cargo of the cargo of the cargo of the the Beys and all contingencies. The returns to be made in Mocha coffice, on which there is a great profit both in Europe and Asas, and in bills as a remainance of their money to Europe

Should that rathe, therefore, be once established in the hands of the French, it is easy to foresee the attendant consequences. If would give Head to the state of the state of

To follow all the circutous branches of such a commerce would lead to lengthal cannot permit myself to follow. I fear they are too obvious not to shew themsavier on the slightest examination, but there is one advantage left to a maritime nation—there are no poist of shelder on the plant of the shelf of the by a narel force in its influency, or its progress may be always impeded by our superior extrintly and agrid shift.

20th April, 1798

From the Eml of Mornington to Dowlut Row Scindials

Fort William, July 8th, 1798 *

I have already had the pleasure to address a letter to you, notifying my arrival in this country, and expressive of the kind and friendly sentiments I entertain towards you, which I trust you will have received

It is always my wish to maintain the relations of amity and good-will you, and being constantly amonous for the maintenance of your prospenty and welfare, I inform you that I have received a communication from Zemant Shab, announcing his intention of visting Hindostan demanding my assistance and that of the Nabob Viser, for the purpose of restoring the throne of Delhi to Shah Allum, and of eyelling the Maritais from Hindostan Colonel Palmer, in whose windom and experience I repose the greatest confidence, will have the honour to communicate to you the papers which were received by the Rendent of Lucknow, from Zemann Shah

If Zemaun Shah should invade Hindostan, it will be necessary for all the established powers upon the north-western frontier to be vigilant, and to attend carefully to the defence of their respective territories. For this

This letter was procured for the Editor by the kindness of Mr Edmonstone, after the text had gone to press, but as it is of importance, it is here given purpose whenever you shall return into your own dominions, you shall find the British Resident at your Durbar, instructed by me to enter into a defensive Treaty with you for the recuprocal protection of your dominions, of those of the Nabob Vizies, and of those of the Company, against the threatened invision of Zemann Shah

With these friendly intentions towards you, it would give me great as intention to learn that you own predence, and your regard for the safety of your invaluable possessoms on the north-western fronter of Indus, had suggested to you the propriety of returning to Hindstan for the purpose of the contract of the propriety of the predently danger. Your the product of the propriety of the propriety of the propriety of the makes another motive to induce you not to pretract your say in the domakes another motive to induce you not to pretract your say in the do-

minions of the Peishwa

The conduct of Tippoo Sultaun having lately been of a very offensive and hostile nature towards the British Government and its albes, it is therefore necessary for me, in conjunction with the Nizam and with the Peishwa, (being all united by Tieaty,) to demand satisfaction of Tippoo I earnestly hope that Tippoo may satisfy the just expectations of the allies without compelling them to resort to arms, my uniform disposition being to preserve peace with him and with every power in India But under the circumstances of Tippoo's preparations for war, prudence requires that the allies should be prepared on their part to meet any exigency that may arise. The present position of your army prevents both the Peishwa and the Nizam from fulfilling their defensive engagements with the British Government against the menaced attacks of Tippoo As you are the friend of the Company, you will be sensible of the propriety and justice of my amicable request, and you will not continue to occupy a position which disables the allies of the Company from acting, where their assistance is due under the solemn obligation of existing Tieaties

When you arise in your own dominions, you will there find Colonel Colon Ins, whom Sir John Shore appointed Resident a your Durbar, and whom I have confirmed in that appointment, placing equal relance on his abilities. He will have the honour to present my particular respects to subjunt and in addition to a defensive Treaty against Zemann Shah, he will offer Mixing and the Paulway and the Colon Sir Colon

Nothing would make me so happy as to become the instrument of peace and reconclustion between you and the courts of Hyde abad and Poonah, for I consider you all as the friends of the Company, and it has given me great concern to witness your late unfortunate dissensions

I entreat you to understand that this letter is dictated by a spirit of friendship, and of anxiety for your real interests. I refer you to Colonel Palmes for the particulars of all my sentiments towards you, and I hope through him to hear a satisfactory account of your welfare, and to obtain an additional biedge of your amicable disposition.

MORNINGTON

N B EDMONSTONE, Persian translator to Govt (A true copy)

MILITIA ORDERS

Bu the Right Honourable the Governor General

Fort William, Dec 21st, 1798

The Governor-General has observed, with the utmost satisfaction, the zeal and alserity with which all ranks of the European, Armenian, and Portuguese inhabitants of the town of Calcutta, have applied themselves to learn the use of arms, since the re-establishment of the corps of European militim.

The regular and assiduous attention of the infantry and cavalry, comprising this respectable corps, will soon render it an important addition to the military force of this Presidency, and will contribute essentially to the security of the seat of the supreme Government of the British possessions in India

The Governor-General being on the eve of his departure for Foit St. George, takes this opportunity of declaring his public approbation of exertions so honourable to the character of this settlement, and so conformable to that spirit which now secures the British empire in Builope against the combined efforts of all its enemies

All the others hearing commissions in the mitria having, without exception, manifested every possible degree of activity and disguese in the formation and distipline of their respective companies and troops, the Governor-General unit not stempt to descriminate the ment of individual belonging to the corys. But it is his duty to express a particular sense of the service readered by Laust-Colonel Welsi, of the 2nd segment of native exvalvy, in forming the corps of multius earsily, which has desired

"The Governor-General is persuated, that no incitenest is necessary to sustant the zeal which now animates the whole settlement, but he cannot withhold from the gentlemen who have exerted themselves on this occasion, the accomplaning testimony of the white of their services, combaned in the case of the services of the services of the services of the new services of the services of the services of the services of the proper mixtue lad taken lakes.

Extract of a letter from the Right Hon Henry Dundas to the Right Hon the Governor-General, dated the 16th June, 1798

In consequence of the meases and surgent language of our enemy, theretaening, by an unwasso of our own island, at once to strike at the whole value for our strength and power, a spirit of zeal, artefant loyalty, and manney, and the locar centred or degree transpulled at any period of our house, and the locar centred or degree transpulled at any period of our house, and the locar cost of the country. We are, in truth, become an armed nation, and, in additionable to the country. We are, in truth, become an armed nation, and, in additing the country of the country. We are, in truth, become an armed nation, and, in additing, founded upon the country and the country and the country of the country. It was a supplicable to the state formed a butward for internal security, founded upon a spirit of the country would prove facilities in the true that a successful lavasion of this country would prove facilities, in every one with regard to his Majore's thought upon, in a still mose pecularly true, white representation of the department of the British Interest with regard to his Majore's thought upon, in a still mose pecularly true, white representation is consideration, as death's wound to every prospect which any could series, would be a death's wound to every prospect which any could series.

vant of the company can entertam. Why then are not they, so far as at consistent with their other avorations and duties, to devote some lessure hours an each week, in order to learn the use of arms, and to form themselves into corps, under the subtroity of the Government, for the purpose of adding to your European strength in India, and preparing themselves, in case of the last extremity, to securisfie their lives in defence of those microscopic flowers and the strength of the strength of

APPENDIX I

To Lieut -General Harris, Commander-in-Chief, &c .

SIR

Having in obelience to your orders taken the command of the troops ordered for the assume of the Fort of Scuragastain, consisting of a corps of six companies of European flankers from the Bombay army, under Leut-Colone Dunlop, a corps of four companies of European flankers from the Sottch Brigade, and the Regiment de Meurone, under Colone Bhertbrook, hi Majasty's 12th, 33rd, 73rd, and 74th regiments companies of Bengal sepoy flankers, under Leut-Colonel Bartymple, six companies of Bombay sepoy flankers, under Leut-Colonel Mignan, and the companies of Bombay sepoy flankers, under Leut-Colonel Mignan, one hundred attlictymen, with a proportion of gun lacars, under Major Bell The European and Native pioneers under Captain Dowse, amounting as per cuclesoid teum of time actually under arms at the assault, to—

Firelocks { Europeans - - 2,494 } Total - 4,376

I have now the honour to report to you the measures I took to secure the success of the important object entrusted to me, and the result, and to enclose a return of the killed and wounded on the assault

Having received your instructions to make the capture of the ramparts my first object, as the force under my command was not deemed suftrcient to assault the ramparts and town at the same time, when defended by Tippoo's whole atmy, I directed Lieut -Colonel Dunlop, with six companies of Bombay European flankers, supported by his Majesty's 12th and 33rd regiments, and ten companies of Bengal sepoy flankers, with fifty artillerymen, to assault the North ramparts, and to push on with the European flank companies until he met the South attack, under Colonel Sherbrooke, consisting of the flank companies of the Scotch Brigade and Regiment de Meurone, reinforced by the Grenadier companies of his Majesty's 731d and 74th regiments, in consequence of the vigorous resistance, there was reason to apprehend at the several heavy batteries on the South face of the fort, and supported by his Majesty's 73rd and 74th regiments, eight companies of coast native, and six companies of Bombay native flankers, with fifty artillerymen, when the whole were dinested to form on the East face, until arrangements were made for the attack of such of the Cavaliers as might not already have been seized on, or for proceeding to the attack of the body of the place, if with the force remaining such a measure should be deemed advisable

The assault commenced, in obedience to your orders, at one r w colonels Sherbrooke and Dunlop were directed on no account to quit the inner rampart previous to their junction, for any other object but that of seizing on the cavaliers in the neighbourhood of their respective statesky, and to lose no time in regaining their situation on the simpaits, as soon as that object should be similar their states of the situation of the situati

In the one of every part of this plan my warmest washes were guttified, this work of the ramparts, and every evasher in the fost, were in a very consistent of a few hours, in the possession of our troops, who work ow well acquainted with the value of their conquest to reader the retaining it against the whole of Tupoo's army at all doubtful The hoce, therefore, being so securely our own, I was not anxious, by an immediate attack on the palace, to bring on a fiesh and unnecessary simplifier, and indeed the echanised state of the gallant fankes is endered it expedient for me to halt a short time before I proceeded to the attack of the values, which, if Tupoo over in it, there was every reason to suppose would be, if possible, as gallantly defended as attacked

During this halt, two fresh buttalions of sepoys arrived, and trusting that by this time the Sultann would see how fruitless any further resistance must prove, I requested Major Allen, Deputy Quarter-Master-General, who had just arrived from camp, and who, from his knowledge of the language, was well qualified to execute the duty, to proceed with a flag of truce to the palace, and offer Cowle to Tippoo Sultaun, and every person in his palace, on his immediate and unconditional surrender of himself and family to me; at the same time informing him, if there was the smallest hesitation in acceding to this offer, that an immediate assault on the palace would take place, and every man in it be put to the sword The Grenadiers, and part of the 12th regiment under Major Craigie, with the 2nd battalion of the 9th regiment of senovs, accompanied Major Allen to put this threat into immediate execution, if necessary, and I prepared the flankers, now a little recovered from their fatigues, to follow to the attack of the palace on the first signal of hostilities having recommenced (for the firing had ceased on all sides for upwards of an hour) In the mean time I received intelligence from one of the prisoners, of whom I caused enquiry to be made as to the place where the English soldiers. who had been taken in the different assaults on the enemy's out posts during the siege were confined, that they had all been put to death about ten days before in the most barbarous manner, by having nails driven through their skulls On this I immediately advanced with the flankers of the 74th regiment and the light infantry, and remaining part of the 12th regiment, resolved, if Cowle had not already been granted, and the dreadful accounts of the fate of our fellow soldiers were confirmed, to sacrifice the tyrant to their manes

On reaching the palace, Major Allen came out to me, and informed me he had been with Tippo's two youngest sons, who were ignorant where their father was, but were disposed to surreader themselves and the palace on a promise of protection. Auxious, if possible, to discover Tipo, who I had been informed was certainly in the palace, I heatstated to agree to these conditions unless they would inform me where their father was and threatened to search the most secret recesses of the palace if he was not instantly produced, but not being able to learn from them when the Sultain was, and washing to get them out of the fort before it was dark, after gring them every assurance of protections and fault treatment, I sent them off to you, under charge of Lieutenant-Colonel Agnew, your public Secretary, and Captain Merriott, your Aid-de-Camp, escorted by the light infantry company of his Majesty's 33rd regiment. The palace was then taken possession of without opposition. I now proceeded to the search of the palace, accompanied by Lieutenant-Colonel Close and Major Allen, taking care, however, to avoid the Leuana, round which I had posted a sufficient force to make his escape from it impracticable. In the palace we found a man who, on being severely threatened, said that the Sultaun was killed in attempting to escape through the Northein Sally Port, and offered to conduct us to the body We accordingly proceeded thither, and under a slaughtered heap of several hundreds, many of whom were men of consequence in his service, had the pleasure to discover the body of the Sultaun, he had been shot through the head and body, and was quite dead, I caused him immediately to be put into a palanquin, and conveyed to the palace, where the body was identified by some of the principal men who had fallen into our hands, and by two of the eunuchs belonging to his Haiam

I now proceeded to give such protection to the inhabitants as was in my power, and although it was by this time dark, as I have heard no complaints of outrage or insult being offered to any after the conflict ceased, I may venture to say the natures of India will be satisfied that the British soldiers are not more brave than humane

Early the next morang Abdual Cawlic, the second son of Tippoo, and the elders on of the two who were delivered to Lord Conswalls as hostures at the conclusion of the last war, was met by Leutenan-Colonel Dalivimple coming from the shade to delive hissest flux, he was immeted to the constraint of the contract of the contract of the to meet him to show how much assisted. I was, with the confidence he placed in us by thus delivering hunself into our hands when the means of

scape were perfectly in his power

Having been led to expect you in the tost yesterday morning, I watch with Abdual Cavilt to deliver him into your own hands. But on being relieved by Colonel Wellesley, I proceeded with him to camp, and delived him over to you I peticieve, in the general orders of yesterday, that no mention is made of Colonel Sherbrooke This, I percere, is owing to that order heng published before I had time to make my report to you of the conduct of the troops under my command on the assault, which was highly exceptibly throughout, and if, where all behaved nobly, which was highly exceptibly throughout, and if, where all behaved nobly to praise a Colonel Sherbrooke, to whose eventions I teel myself much modeled for the success of the attack.

I make no doubt but Lentenant-Colonel Dunlop, who commanded a party of equal floce with that of Colonel Sheb node, would have mented equal pusse for his evertoons had he not most unfortunately been disable by a wound very early in the assail, a curcumstance I most suncerly regretted, as from the well known chanater of that ofhcer, and the clear manner in which he understood the instructions I gave hum relative to the attack he was to lead, I put the greatest confidence in the success of the attack

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your most obedient, humble Servant,
DAVID BAIRD, Major-General

Camp at Seringapatam, 6th May, 1799 Statement of the Force composing the Grand Army under the Command of Lieutenant General Halls, February, 1799

Corps	Non Commissioned Drums Rank and File	Total
19th Regiment Light Diagoons 25th Do Do	447 465	912
1st Do Native Cavalry 2nd Do Do 3d Do Do	448 443 443	312
4th Do Do	437	1766
Total Cavaliy		2678
2 Companies Bengal Artillery 1st Battalion Artillery 2nd Do Do	148 128 300
Total Artillery		576
12th Regument Foot 33rd Do Do 73rd Do Do 74th Do Do Scotch Bugade Swiss Regument	773 869 851 801 500 814
Total European Infantry		4608
1st Battalson 1st Regiment 2nd Do 8rd Do 2nd Do 8rd Do 1st Do 6th Do 1st Do 8th Do 2nd Do 9th Do 2nd Do 9th Do 2nd Do 9th Do 2nd Do 1nt Do 2nd	1077 1022 1086 1012 1101 857 838 1069 3000
Total Native Intentry		11,061
Gun Lascars Pioneers Total Gun Lascars and Pioneers	1726 1000	2726
Abstract
Cavairy Artillery European Infantry Native Infantry	2678 576 4608 11,061
Total Fighting Men Lascus and Pioneers	18,923 2726
Grand Total	21,649

Detachment under the Command of Colonel Roberts

Cosps		Non Commissioned Drums Rank and File	Total
1 Company Bengal Artillery 1 Do Coast		57 85	142
1 Battalion 10th Regiment B N 1 2nd Do 10th Do Do 2nd Do C N 1 2nd Do 2nd Do Do 2nd Do 1th Do Do 2nd Do 1th Do Do 2nd Do 1th Do Do		993 1008 1065 1068 1092 1099
Companies of Gun Lascars			6325 318
	Total		6785

Detachment in the Southern Division under the Command of Lieutenant Colonel Brown

Brown
Detachment of the 1st Battalion Artillery	58	58
1st Division 1st European Regiment 2nd Do 2nd Do Do	300 316	,,,
2110 20 2110 100 100	310	646
2nd Battalion st Regument (3 Companies)	349 1040 900 224 224	2737
New Troop of Cavalry	108	108
Gun Lascars Pioneera	168 100	168 100
Total		3817

Northern Division Commanded by Colonel Vigors

European Infantry Native Infantry including Revenue Corps and Invalids	129 6712
Total		6841

N B A Detachment of Recruits from Hydrabad, consisting of Thirdleric Absolutes and 748 Sepper, at Massipinatam, not included above Five Companies of His Majesty's 19th Regiment of Foot, and one Company of Bengal Artillery, ordered from Columbo to jour the Troops in the Field in the Southern Drivaton, not included in the above Also a Detachment of 1500 Men under the Command of Louetnant Columel Read in the Eurschwichts.

GENERAL ORDER OF ENCAMPMENT OF THE GRAND ARMY

g 1st Batt 1st Reg Major of Brigade Lt Lauder

	Qr Mast Brig Lieut Brice	ortan
U SH M 12th Foot	Maj Gen Baird Commanding	S Con
H M 74th Foot	Major of Brigade Lt Lambton	Cam Cam 24 12 12 12 12 12 12 12 12 12 12 12 12 12
	Maj of Brigade Lt Colebrooke Col Sherbrooke Commanding	May of Ma
E 2nd Do 12th Do	Qr Mast Brigade Lieut Kelly	May G Staff 3 Do A Batter 2 3
		F-02-FI

1st Bengal Volunt Maj of Brigade Capt Cuppage 3rd Do Do Lt Col Gardiner Commanding 2nd Do Do Qr Mst Brig Lt R Marijott H M 33rd Foot Reg de Meuron The Hon Col Wellesley Comg deCp Lt 25 E 23 E 35 H M 73rd Foot Maj of Brigade Capt Hughes May Brig Capt Lt M'Pherson May Gen I Staff May o Do And de C Lieut Col Scott Commanding 5 C C - 4 2nd Do 5th Do Qr Mast Brig Lt Aimstrong

Salt Reg Nat Cav

Salt Salt

APPENDIX L

General Return of the Troops belonging to the Presidency of Bombay, composing the Aimy assembled for Field Serice. Leutemant-General James Stuart, Commander-in-Chief, Head Quarters, Cananore, 11th February, 1799

Total fighting men	510 653 653 663 528 528 693 717 717 663 675	6,430
Total fighting men, sexives	344 653 672 663 717 717 663 675 416	4,803
Total Aghting men, sansopeans	166 7 223 528 693	1,617
Runk & File, Matives	314 589 600 599 638 597 390	4,316
Rank & File, Europeans	200 467 618	1,422
Commanded by	LtCol Lawman Col Satcorns Major Lawrence Major Daney Major Perbes Major Perbes Major Perbes Angor Perbes LtCol Home LtCol Home LtCol Marshall Gapt B Moncriff	Total
CORPS.	Datachment of Artillery and Laweura Data Naring Register, come if the nat 2 reg N S Explaint Col Monreson, 1 in that 4th reg Centr to Plancycon Bargade, 1 H N 75th reg Centr to Plancycon Bargade, 1 H N 75th reg on by LtCol Dustop, 1 H N 75th reg 7th regenent 2th has date W 1, with by LtCol Wisconsa, C S 1 let that 5th reg N 1, with Paneer Corps Paneer Corps 2th by Bargade, 1 H M 75th reg 2th has date W 1, with by LtCol Wisconsa, C S 1 let that 5th reg N 1 Paneer Corps

Robent Gordon, Adjutant-G & neral

Consess Between of Killed Wounded and Messner in that next of the Army engaged with Topics Sultain's Troops at and near APPENDIX M

		[s3	oT basid	v 44 8	0 4 v 0	143
3, 179		72	savitsN	00	9	12
arch 8	Missing	Total	Emobesus	-	60	4
2	4	9	Rank and Fil	6100	w w	114
e,	- 1	11618	J bras systematry 1
· 2			Captain	_		-
Camp near Sedapore, March 8, 1799	_	-	Natin es	7,88	3 62	12
near		Total	Entobesus	വത -	- 96	22
2 6			Paukanley	_
: 8	20		Rank and Ph	-5°08	30100	28
1	Ιã	stelt	Drummers and 1-			24
	Wounded		Haveldaure	c) -	-	77
	=		July 190		_	1=
n_			Jemmedar	7		i -
(6			Subahadaz	-	-	-
Ξ		-	Enstgna			1-
ď			Lieutenants	-01 -		4
Mar		Total	97thsN	Ξω.	*	8
eth 6th	Killed	ů	Emopeans	er —	co 64	6
4.2	13		Paukanly	1.	-	-
1	~		Rank and Fil	0000	0001-	32
10			etablivaH			65
8			distq6.)	_		-
Sedasee on the 6th of March, 1799 Camp near Sedasoe, March 8, 1799				1st Bat 2nd Reg 1st do 4th do	1st do 75th Re 77th Re 1st Bat	Total
Concrat Accura of Asino				Artillery and Lascars Right Native Brigade	Centre of European Brigade Left Native Brigade Pioneer Corps

ROBERT GORDON, Adjutant General Names of Officers—Kill. a, Capt S Thompson, 1st Bat 2nd Reg —Wounded, Lout Leur Wilknavon, Ensign Effertinger, 1st Battalion Saft Regement, Subabdur-Normpo, 1st Battalion, 3rd Regement — Missing, (Jay Sholl), 1st Br. 2nd Regement

APPENDIX N

Return of Killed, Wounded and Missing, of the Coips which were engaged under the command of Lieutenant-General Haiis in the action with Tippoo Sultain's Army near Mallavilly, on the 27th of Murch, 1799

	Eu	Europeans Natives			s	Horses
Согря	Killed	Wounded	Missing	Kalled	Wounded	Missing	Wounded Wissing
His Majesty's 19th Dragoons 25th do 10n Com life Mod of N Cav 3nd do 3nd do His Majesty's 33rd Regument 74th do 10n How Bengal N I 11th do 12d do 3nd do 4nd Hom Com loth Reg Bengal N I 11th do th 12d do 3nd do 2d do 3nd do 12th do 1th do 12t do 12th do 2d do 12th do	5 1	8 2 1 4 17 5		1	3113121	4 1	322 3 3 2 3 4 2 1 1 4
Total	6	37		1	16	6	1233 3

Officers included in the Return — Wounded, Captain Kennedy, 19th Light Dragoons, Lieutenant Strachan, 2nd Regiment of Native Cavality, Lieutenant Moore, 74th Regiment

B Close, Adjutant General

Abstract of the Returns of the Army commanded by Leset. General Harris, abstract its strength at various periods of the Campalger with na Abstract of Ordinace and periods Stores conveyed with the Army and remaining at the conclinean of the asegs of Semigraphian 980 23948 2618 26651 2351 easuou Grand Total 14013 SOADUN 56 6334 840 34 4632 1079 56 9026 sunadomn Horses Present, includ-328 1413 70 1638 Date T STODUCTA 684 60 990 800 Ациирија 2 90 63 95213 1471 43 112 Compay Sick 1 0 22959 1697 69 CHABIL 18779 1697 69 106 Horses NATIVES For Duty, including Officers 23 Engineers, 3 521 of his Highnese the Nizam's Infantry, and about 6,000 Cavalry, TRIOT. 1395 4327 1028 346 едаашоја 8 19756) ABSTRACT OF ORDNANCE AND PRINCIPAL STORES 7781 Ligarita 2013 8 3 1858 2206 £40III12V 053 CHARILL Horses 4 Sick Present, 10-cluding Officers 937 264 103 384 T830.T 206 836 206 330 Litentry Lapping 350 33 25 146 98 95 803 37 64 SUROPEANS CRABILL Horses For Duty, melading Officers 785 6247 7767 T810.T 0977 Latantay 736,6101 383 Armiery 920 100 585 CHARILL Strength of the Army in the Ffeld on marching | from the Carnetic evolunies of his Highness the Nizms s cavalry and infantry Strength of the Army before Scringspatan, after the march of Mayor General Ployd to Piccapatan and infantry
and infantry
and infantry Strongth of the Army on the return of Major General Broad and Junction of the Jondbay Almy Strongth of the Army on the return of Major General Broad from Coverspoxen with the Desirch ment of Leet.—Golonels Brown and Read Periods of Returns m z

Part		Shells faul 43		2000	135	ychs
1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1		tiont 8		1000	708	cluded
1		outite a ditto		1200	88	not in
A		Ditto, g ditto		3800	1314	Bead.
1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1		pitto,		8399	2821	WD and
The Pref of Continues and Stores with the Brownia Army, and the Continues and Stores with the Brownia Army, and the Brownia Army, an		othid othe 81		36395	10150	els Bro
1 The Principle of the Company of th		Shot, 24 pounder		3800	1176	Colon
The Principle of the Company of the		ogașp Ps	-		4	Lieut
The Profession of the Company of the		16T931TWOM	60		63	mder
A F F F F F F F F F F F F F F F F F F F		3 ditto	00		8	nnents
The Property of the Control of the C		odilb 8	88		38	Detacl
e Thair converge define the Anny Like Special Conference of the Co		oppip St	(CO		œ	nd the
The Prairie convey of this the Army a series of the	ĺ	othin at Brass	81		41	rmy, ş
Frain conveyed defin the Army Army Pounder The Conveyed define the Army Army Army Army Army Army Army Army	1	oddab at	8		80	nbay A
First conveyed with the Army Addition of the Army Addition of the Army Addition of the Army Addition of the Conder of the Army Addition of the Conder of the	i	otdib 81	30		8	the Bos of Train conveyed with the An Alstreet conveyed with the An ellint remaining at the con- fittle Suge The Field Ortinance and 8	į	M. Pounder Iron Gun	es.		24	with:
			g Train conveyed with the An ditto	Ditto ditto remanning at the conclu-	ston of the Stege	æ

stand ot oo 5987 2255

Youngt,

ири Фо 9 8 A.c.

APPENDIX P

General Return of Killed, Wounded and Missing, of Corps composing the Army before Seringapatam, from the 4th of April to the 4th May, 1799, both days inclusive

Seiingapatam, 5th May, 1799

		9.1	,		-,-	-
	Eu	ropea	ns	Na	tives
Cotps	Killed	Wounded	Mussing	Killed	Wounded	Missing
Malus Engineers Bombay do Benaal Atullety 1st Battalon Coast do 2nd do Benaal Atullety His Majesty's 12th Regument His Majesty's 12th Regument Total do 75td do 75td do 75th do 75th do 75th do 75th do 80toteh Bugde Bombay Regment de Meuron Bombay Regment of European Infanty	4 6 8 4 17 6 21 45 16 10 14 16 9	1 12 6 15 6 49 28 99 111 64 51 86 60 23	1 12 1 3 1 1 1 1 1	2 9 5	10 5 27 4	3
lst Bat 10th Bengal Reg Native Infantry 2nd do do do 1st Battalion Bengal Volunteers 2nd do do 3id do do		23	1	3 5 3 6 2	3 3 30 8	12 9 5
ist Bet 1st Reg Madras Native Infantry 2nd do 2nd do do 2nd do 3rd do do 2nd do 5th do do	1	2		3 4 12 11	14 10 47 33	15
1st do 6th do do 2nd do 7th do do 1st do 8th do do 2nd do 9th do do 1st do 11th do do 2nd do 11th do do 1st do 12th do do				4 5 4 3	16 13 7 11 4	5
lst do 12th do do 2nd do 12th do do Poneer Corps 1st Bat 2nd 18eg Bombay Nat Infautry 2nd do 2nd do do 1st do 3nd do do 2nd do 3rd do do 1st do 4th do do 1st do 5th do Poneer Corps -	1 1 1	3 1 2 1		1 7 8 4 2 4 2 3 4 2	46 37 10 10 15 6 14 7 25	51
Total	101	-	22	119	_	100

N B Two Conductors of Ordnance wounded on the 2nd and 4th instant, not included in the above

OFFICERS KILLED AND WOUNDED, INCLUDED IN THE GENERAL RETURN

Major C Camphell, 1st bat 1st Madras reg N I killed 5th April, 1799 Lieut G Nixon, H M 12th reg do 5th do Lieut T Falla, do do 6th do Lieut Fitzgerald, 33rd, do 5th do Lieut Frieworker A Brooke, Bengal artillery, wounded 5th do Lieut R Nixon, H M 12th reg do 5th do Lieut King, do do 6th do Ensign Neville, do do 17th do Capt I Munro, 2nd bat 12th Madras N I do 18th do Lieut I Vernon, do do do do Lieut Moore, do do do Lieut Mackintosh, 2nd bat 3id Madras reg N I do 17th do Capt Alexander Tornano, Bombay artillery, killed 18th do Leut Wm M'Reddie, do do 18th do Leut Wm Taylor, staff, wounded, do do Leut Jenemiah Lock, 2nd bat 2nd neg Bombay N I do do do Lieut John Barnard, do do do do Assist surgeon Glasser, Reg. de Meuron, killed 19th do Lieut I Fish, 2nd bat 3rd Madras reg. N. I. do 20th do Lieut S. Smith, do wounded do do Lieut Fletcher, H M 74th reg do do do Capt C I Mears, 1st bat 2nd Bombay reg N I killed 21st do Capt John Gordon, H M 75th rer wounded do do Cant Marshall, 1st bat 5th Bombay reg N I do do do Capt Wm Brown, 1st hat 3rd do do do do do Lieut Todd, H M 73rd reg do 26th do Capt Hav, H M Scotch brigade, killed do do Lieut M'Beath, do wounded do do Lieut Innes, do do do do Lt M'Lean, do de do do Lt Blair, 1st bat Madias artil do 25th do Lt Irvine, H M 74th reg killed 26th do Capt Aytone, do wounded do do Lieut Maxwell, do do do do Lieut Cairington, do do do do Lieut M'Lean, jun H M 73rd reg do 27th do Capt Molle, H M Scotch brigade, do do do Capt Piauchaud, Reg de Meuron, do do do Lieut Fagen, 3rd bat Bengal volunteers do do do Lieut -Col Montagu, Ben-Fagen, 3rd Dat Bengai volunteets to do to the fact Cookesley, 1st bat gal artillery, wounded 2nd May (since dead) Licut Cookesley, 1st bat address williary builted do do Cant Coshy, staff do 3rd do Cant Lt Caldwell, Madras engineers, wounded 4th do Major Mandeville, 2nd bat Madras artillery, do do do Capt Jourdan, 2nd bat do killed do do Capt Lieut Prescott, 1st bat do wounded do do Lieut Shawe, H M. 12th reg do do do Capt Macleod, 73rd, do do do Lacut Lalor, 73rd, killed, do do Lieut Thomas, 73rd, wounded, do do Ensign Antil, 73rd, do do do Ensign Guthrie, 73rd, do do do Lieut Farquhar, 74th, killed, do do Lieut Prendergast, 74th, do do do Lieut Hill, 74th, do do do Lieut Shaw, 74th, do do do Lieut Mather, H M 75th reg killed 4th May Lieut Turner, 75th, wounded, do do Lieut Broughton, 75th, do do do Lieut Skelton, 75th, do do do Lieut Skelton, 75th, killed, do do Lieut Col Dunlop, 77th, do do do Capt Owen, 77th, killed, do do Lieut Lawrence, 77th, wounded, do do Capt Lardy, Reg de Meuron, do do do Lieut Mathey, do do do do Lieut R Webb, Bombay Lui opean reg do do do Lieut Cormick, Madras pioneers, killed do do

ABSTRACT OF OFFICERS KILLED AND WOUNDED

Madras engineers, 1 wounded Bombay oo, 0 Bengal artillery, 2 wounded Madras do 2 killed, 3 wounded Bombay do 2 killed Bengal infantry, 1 wounded Madras do 14 killed, 2 wounded Bombay do 3 killed, 12 wounded Madras pioneers, 1 killed Bombay do 0—Total killed and wounded 67.

BARRY CLOSE, Adı -Gen

APPENDIX Q

Abstract of Ordnance, &c in Seringapatam

fatof haard		$ ° $	929	9-9
2	op s	-	1-
Howitzers	ob ått	es.	a
6	13f qo	K	I N
=	10 Inch		1 9	e e
1	op #s	9 7	1 9	용
1	op g	-		ğ
1	op ₹€	04	1 00	2 2 3
	op $9	6	12-	2 2 3 9
1 8	op #9			$ E 7 %
Cohorns	op §9	gt.	1 01	4 85 6 8
8	op g	9	+6	Account of Millery Buildings, 5c coreing and polsabing Guuss with self, southings fours use, Guranges, 4c come Ernses, Entrembing Tools, &c Powder 2 anno Ernses Ernst Gunshing Small Arms, &c Ernst Gunshing Small Arms, &c op 4	-	1-	7 Hr 4 R8
1	op 8		- 1 - 10	9 4 8 5 E T
Mortars	op 6		+=	हिं तिहा से धारी
1 2	OP 01	- T		7 2855 N 38
>	0b 11		-	5 A 5 8 8 8 8 8 8 8 8 8 8 8 8 8 8 8 8 8
1	13 do		-	1 1125513 44
1	ob #1	- 6	+=	S HAN THE SHE
1	15 (1)()		09	Account of Millery Bruthage, 5c. Mustrie, scenario Giuna Mustrie, Statie Mustrie, Statie, Scenario Giuna Mustrie, Statie, Mustrie, Statie Mustrie, Statie, Mustrie, Statie Mustrie, Mustrie, Statie, Mustrie, Statie Mustrie, Mus
1	op 4	0 4	28327 63 98 48 14 68 3 13	Account of Milliory Davidacy, is to get limiter for because and polabulary of come after a constant for many of constants for un- tracted for Constants, for the con- tants butter for the constants of con- tants butter for the con- tants butter for the con- tants butter for the con- tants and con- con- tants and con- con- con- con- con- con- con- con-
1	op è	-	10	a a sala
1	ab I	22 15	1.2	B-2 80 E
1	09 PT		1 3	P 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2
	ap g	2462739022281418	9	2 4 4222
	ab $2	2 2	TE	Large 1 Do Large 2 Do Carge 2 Small Founde
1	op g	9 5	18	24 25 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2
1	op Pg	12	1 50	TUTTELL
1	op ş	2 2	1 8
1	op f p		1 64	22222 4 5
1	00 0	0 0	8 81 34 19 87 18	lbs 424 406 529 000 99,000 22,000 to pre-
1	op 9 op 2 op 8 op 6 op 6	5 5	1 a	= 4 2 2 2 E
1 2	op Z	0 0	1 2	2 %
Gans	op 8	9 9	1 %	ry her
1 -	9 do 10 do	, ,	12	7 4
1			-	2 3
1	ob gi	8 5	- 3-	. 4 5
	1¢ qo		1 2	24 AV 88 W
	op gt		15	4 8 5 6
	29 qo	9 9	8 32 16 10 73	, B
1	0p 02 34 qo	01 0	+=	the estate the estate to the e
	op 95	9 9	1 2	8 22 8 33 4
	30 QD		+=	75 HE G AN
1	op 88	- 0	10	2 6 2 2 2
	op gs		1=	2 2 2 2 2 3 2 3 3 3 3 3 3 3 3 3 3 3 3 3
1	*13puned 79	~	7-	Prucpal Stores to different als fur the different be see &c see (19 600 are s so works to works t not having) act the
		Brass Ordnance Do unfinahed in the Foundry fron Ordnance	Grand Total of Ordnance	Promoted of Bonnel Promoted Stores has been for all the stores of the st
		g.	3	44.55 Va
1		ě	Ē	36483 64
1		ă	9	26944 658
		, ,	ŝ	CE248 25
1		8 5 6	ş	## 6#####
		and de de	10	Power State
		2 4 5	ā	2000 52
		Brass Ordnanoe Do unfinished i	5	52666 F
1		E 2 2		GEUUR F

APPENDIX R

MEMORANDUM

Respecting the Prize Property captured at Seringapatam

Although it is not possible to ascertain with any degree of accuracy what the prize property in Seringapatam will amount to, yet from the various information obtained through the Mutseddies and others, employed in different departments under the late Sultaun, I am enabled to form the following estimation -

1st-specie, 16,74,350 star pagodas, 2nd-jewels, gold and silver bullion, 25,00,000, 3id-paddy, pepper, salt, and other articles, in the different gianaries, 1,10,000, 4th-copper and biass pots, glasses, carpets, &c. 20,000, 5th-elephants, camels, horses, bullocks, would amount to 54,000, 6th-Cloths of various sorts, &c in the Tosha Khana, 2,00,000 Total,

45 58,350 star pagodas Military stores not included

No remark is necessary on the 1st article. The estimation on the newels is very uncertain, there are still twenty and more boxes, the contents of which have not been valued, very little is known upon the subject of lewels, for no one among Tippoo's people has any idea of the contents of his treasury, so that information is very little to be depended upon relative to this 2nd article. With regard to the third, I have every reason to think that the estimation is correct. The 4th article consists of a varicty of things, which, most probably, will produce the estimated sum The 5th is composed of property of which I cannot procure an exact ac-The 6th includes all the gold and silver cloths and every article of that description, as well as sundry other commodities too particular to enumerate, the estimation is within bounds

As the greater part of the captured property is composed of jewels, &c., articles which either Tippoo or his father Hyder had plundered, the Mutseddies and other persons, of whom I have enquired, declare that they cannot give any exact statement of the late Sultaun's riches

W M GORDON

So ing apatam, June 9, 1799

APPENDIX S.

The Streat Condadad to the Executive Directory, representing the French Republic, One and Indivisible, at Paris *

In the name of that friendship which the Sircar Coudadad, and the subjects of the Sircar, vow to the French republic, which friendship and alliance shall endure as long as the sun and moon shine in the heavens, and which shall be so solid that the most extraordinary events shall neither break nor disunite them

The English, jealous of the connection and friendship which, for so long a time, has subsisted between my Sucar and France, some years ago united against me with the Marhattas, the Nizam Ally Khan, and my other enemies, and declared a war as odious as unjust, which lasted several years, and of which the result was so fatal, that it cost me three croies and thirty lacks of jupees in money, and my finest provinces

^{*} Referred to at page 591

The regulite us cettanily not ground of any of these unfortunate curvatences, not of the many directs and to depute, such or require possession of that country, which at last I was obliged to return the possession of that country, which at last I was obliged to return as the control of the country of the hees sentiments, with which I have long been anumeted, I have made howen to the Government of the Isle of France, through the organ of two Ambussadors, it out whom I have had the great satisfaction of receaving such an answer as I desired, together with the republican flag, by the hands of Chapuns, Chaef of a brigude, and Dubter, a Caption of a shap, who will be the control of the control of

Sercey to supply me

I retain with me the hist of these officers, and send the second to you as my Ambassado, who, in requesting your alliance, offensive and defensive, will, I trust, obtain such a temforcement of twops as, joined to mine, may enable me to attack, and annihilate for ever, our common enemies in Asia

I send you my standard (which, united with that of the republic, will serve as a basis for the alliance into which our respective nations are about, to contact), and with it the particular articles which I have charged Captain Dubue to communicate to you

I join with him my subjects Sheik Abdoulraim and Mahomet Bismilla,

In my Palace at Sering apatam, 20th July, 1798
A true Translation.

114401111111111

G G KEBLE, French Translator

A Note of the Proposals to be made by my Ambassadors to the Executive Directory at Paris *

Article 1 -For ten or fifteen thousand troops, of every description, infantry, cavalry, and artillery

Article 2 -A naval force to act on the coast where our armies may be, to favour, and to reinforce them, in case of necessity

Atticle 3 —The Sireai will furnish all military stores and provisions for the army of the republic, as well as horses, bullocks, earts, and tents, together with every other necessary; excepting European inquois, which his country does not afford

* Referred to at page 59

At ticle 4 -On all marches and military operations, the King's orders are to be observed

At the t 5—The expedition shall be directed to some point of the Conmandel coast, and in preference, to Porto Novo, when the disembarkation of the troops shall take place, and where the King, with his whole army, will appear, eithe before the arraral of the French army or at any time appointed, it being his intention to commence operations in the heart of the enemy's country

At ticle 6—The King desires that the republic will inform him, by despatching to Mangaloie two correctes from Europe, within 20 days of each other, of the number of ships and troops which are to be sent from France, in order that he may take the field immodustley, and be master of the Coromadel costs, before the arrival of the republican forces, and thus be enabled to provide for all their wants

A stal 7—All the conquests which may be made from the enemy, each required those provinces which the King has been obliged to edde to the English, to the Marchattes, and to the Nama Ally Khan, shall be equally divided between the two nations, and according to their respective convenience. The same drawns shall also be made of the enemies shaped to the contract of the contract of

Article 8—Should any difficulty arise between the allied armies, each shall observe justice, according to their own laws and customs, and every discussion relating to them shall be conducted in writing between the two matons

Article 9—Whatever may be the desire of the republic, whether to give peace to England, or to continue war, the King trusts the republic will always have the kindness to consider him as a friend and furthful ally, accordingly comprehend him in all its treaties, and apprise him of all its intentions

Article 10—All French whatever, who now ase or may hereafter come within the territories of the King, shall be treated as friends and alilies, they shall have the liberty of passing and repassing, and of tuding, without any molestation or hadrance, on the contary, they shall receive every assistance and succour which they may went

Article 11—To procure for my service four founders of brass and four founders of ron cannon, four paper makers, twelve manufacturers of glass, in different branches of the manufacture, two naval engineers, and two good ship-builders

Given in my Palace of Seringapatam, under my signature, and that of my Prime Minister, with the seal of state affixed, the 20th July, 1798

A true Translation.

G G KEBLE, French Translator